MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

BRUTAL MURDER.

Speedy Committal of the Perpetrator for Trial—Further Particulars.

PERTH, Nov. 26.—A horrible tragedy was enacted here last night. About 7 o'clock a young man of unsound mind, named Benjamin Mitchell, attacked a lame man named William West, at the latter's house with an axe, striking him several blows with it and breaking in his skull. West lived about an hour after. Mitchell who is said to have been half drunk at the time, was at once arrested and lodged in the lock-up.

There are few known particulars about the murder. The evidence to-day at the coroner's inquest goes to show that Mitchell gained entrance into the kitchen by breaking in a panel of the door and shoving the bolt back. This was when West and his fellow-lodger, Yankee Brown, were away. Mitchell ate up all the provisions he could find, and ransacked the house generally, and when West came back a war of words took place. West called to passers-by for assistance to put Mitchell out, but as rows of this kind were not uncommon no attention was paid to his appeal. This was about four o'clock. Shortly after six Mitchell told parties whom he was with, or met near the house, that West was dead. They went in and found West with his head and face cut up, and a bloody axe in one corner of the room. Mitchell was soon after arrested and placed in the lock-up. There is no direct evidence of his guilt, and though it is morally certain that he killed deceased, yet the circumstantial evidence is not conclusive. It is said that Mitchell confessed his guilt to some one after he was arrested. West lived alone, with a man named Yankee Brown, near the edge of the town, and was a cripple and a weak man. He had frequent quarrels with Mitchell, who came often to the house, and appeared to act as a sort of chore boy to the two men. He is of weak mind, and of decided animal propensities, but strong and robust in body.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that Wm. West came to his death by blows with an axe wilfully and maliciously dealt by Benjamin Mitchell. The prisoner has been sent up to the Assizes for trial.

IRELAND.

A STRIKE of tailors has occurred in Limerick, and the cause alleged is the introduction of new machinery.

SEVERAL tenants on Lord Portarlington's estate in the Queen's County, have received notices warning them not to pay any rent.

THE Town Commissioners of Bandon adopted on Nov. 4th, the memorial to the Lord Lieutenant in favor of the institution of reproductive public works.

IN the County Roscommon notices have been posted in various places warning tenants to pay no rents unless they are reduced to Griffith's valuation.

THE tenants at Cloonoghill, county Leitrim, on Mr. David Dick's estate, were visited, on Oct. 31st, by about 30 men, who threatened them with violence if their rents were paid. Guns were fired on leaving each house.

THE death rate in Dublin for the week ending Nov. 1st was nearly 60 per cent. above the average rate in London towns, nearly 50 per cent. above London, about 100 per cent. above Glasgow, and nearly 100 per cent. above Edinburgh.

THE Cavan Town Commissioners met on Nov. 4th, and after some discussion as to providing employment for the poor laborers during the present trying times, it was unanimously agreed to borrow a sum of £300 from the Board of Works to be expended on the present fair green.

THE Bishop of Meath, the Most Rev. Dr. Nulty, and his co-trustees of the Dempsey Charity Trust, have commenced an action for libel against the London World, for a statement imputing severity on their part to the tenants of the trust, raising their rent three times, and serving them with notices to quit.

IN the staple trade of Ulster the evidences of improvement continue. The demand for flax is brisk, and prices are very firm, but no changes have taken place. Large quantities continue to be brought weekly to the markets all over the North, but the quality continues low, and it is difficult to secure any superior lots. In the Ballymena Linen Market, matters continue to show an improvement.

NOTICES were recently extensively posted through Trinity College, Dublin, calling on the students to assemble in "Botany Bay" at a stated hour and take steps for obtaining a remission of the rent of their rooms in college, owing to the "prevailing depression." The college authorities took alarm at this proposal, and when the meeting began to assemble it was dispersed by a show of the forces which the collegiate authority commands.

AN old woman, named Hurley, has been killed by a ram belonging to a farmer, named Brady, residing about two miles from Ballyfeard, in the Carrigaline district. It appears that the poor creature, who ended the 80th year of her life by such an untimely death, was a beggar belonging to Bandon, and that while passing through a field the ferocious brute rushed at her, and hunted her nearly to death. She survived but a few hours after being rescued from an instantaneous death, and was burried at his own expense by the owner of the ram.

Newly Painted Rooms.

The danger of inhaling the vapor of turpentine has been long known, and its pernicious influence on the health is beyond all doubt, as has been verified in several cases occurring in persons sleeping in newly painted rooms, some of which have even proved fatal. Several theories more or less plausible, have been propounded to explain the prejudicial effects of the inhalation of these vapors; but, whatever be the correct explanation, there is no doubt of the danger of occupying a room recently painted in which turpentine has been employed, before complete desiccation has taken place. It has pointed out by the Council of Hygiene that a sudden death which recently took place in Paris was attributable to this case, it being shown that it could not be ascribed to the lead which entered into the composition of the paint of the room in which the deceased slept; the lead, being fixed and nonvolatile, cannot in these cases be accused of being the offending element.—British Medical Journal.

Alcohol and Milk.

In his introductory address at the opening of the winter medical session of Anderson's College recently, Dr. Andrew Buchanan, the President of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons, ridiculed the recent scare as to the propagation of fever through milk; and speaking of alcohol, he said it was to his mind quite clear that all who entertained the views which he set forth of the beneficial action of alcohol upon the human body ought to partake of it, that they had a double sanction, moral and religious, in so doing and that for any man, directly or indirectly, to prevent them from doing it was a wrong action, contrary to the dictates of both morals and religion. Alcohol was, however, a full and over-flowing source of disease, immorality and crime; but two great parties could not agree upon first principles, and therefore they did nothing. But the mists of error and prejudice in which both parties were now enveloped would at length be dispelled; good men would see and recognize each other, and joining hands like brothers, would act in concert in framing a code of wise laws for the repression of intemperance.

WIVES should now be obedient unto their husbands. Christmas is coming.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

In these days when farmers' grievances are in everybody's mouth, the following story is worth telling:—"A farmer called on the late Earl Fitzwilliam to represent that his crop of wheat had been seriously injured in a field adjoining a certain wood where his lordship's hounds had during the winter frequently met to hunt. He stated that the young wheat had been so cut up and destroyed that in some parts he could not hope for any produce. 'Well, my friend,' said the Earl, 'I am aware that we have frequently met in that field, and that we have done considerable injury; and if you can procure an estimate of the loss you have sustained, I will repay you.' The farmer replied that, anticipating his lordship's consideration and kindness, he had requested a friend to assist him in estimating the damage, and they thought that, as the crop seemed entirely destroyed, £50 would not more than repay him. The earl immediately gave him the money. As the harvest approached, however, the wheat grew, and in those parts of the field, which were the most trampled the corn was strongest and most luxuriant. The farmer went again to his lordship, and, being introduced, said. 'I am come, my lord, respecting the field of wheat adjoining such a wood.' Lord Fitzwilliam immediately recollected the circumstance. 'Well, my friend did not I allow you sufficient to remunerate you for your loss?' 'Yes, my lord, but I find that I have sustained no loss at all, for where the horses had most cut up the land the crop is most promising, and therefore I have brought the £50 back again.' 'Ah,' exclaimed the venerable earl, 'this is what I like. This is as it should be between man and man.' He then entered into conversation with the farmer, asking him several questions about his family, how many children, and what was the age of each. His lordship then went into another room, and on returning gave the farmer a cheque for £100 saying, 'Take care of this, and when your eldest son shall become of age present it to him, and tell him the occasion which produced it.' Thus, while meeting an honorable act with a generous return, Lord Fitzwilliam at the same time adopted a most effectual means of transmitting a lesson of intregity to another age, and of stamping the deed with his approbation."—Sheffield Telegraph.

The New "Allan" Steamer.

The Liverpool Journal of Commerce of November 18th says:—Referring to a recent announcement that tenders were being asked for the construction of a large passenger steamer of 5500 tons for the Allan Line, were now in a position to state that the order for this steamer—to be called Parisian—has been placed with Messrs. Napier, of Glasgow, the celebrated shipbuilders and engineers. The Parisian will be built of steel, made on the Siemens-Martin principle, and the material to be use in construction will be subjected to the most rigid tests both by Lloyd's and by the owners' own surveyor. She is to be fitted throughout her entire length with a double bottom, divided into water-tight compartments. This mode of structure, besides adding greatly to the strength of the steamer, gives a special security in case of grounding or other mishap—injury to the bottom of such a vessel being harmless. About nine months ago the Messrs. Allan had the courage to contract for a vessel for their ocean service, to be constructed entirely of steel and of this double bottom arrangements, before such had been so employed in the construction of an Atlantic vessel. The vessel in question—Buenos Ayrian, now nearly ready for sea—was recently launched by Messrs. Denny, of Dumbarton, and is the largest steam vessel that has ever been built of steel. It may be mentioned that the same system of construction is also to be adopted in the new Cunard steamer Sahara. The Parisian will be 440 feet, 46 feet broad, and 36 feet deep, and of about 5,360 tons gross tonnage. Her engines will be of great power, three-cylindered, and built to the designs of their superintending engineer, Mr. William Wallace, of Liverpool. The saloon which will be placed amidships and fitted up in the most complete and sumptuous manner, will have permanent accommodation for about 200 cabin passengers. She will have room for over 1,000 steerage. Every appliance that can increase the safety or enhance the comfort of passengers will be found in the Parisian, which may be expected to take her place among the other well-known steamships of the Line in April, 1881."

On the borders of civilization it is customary with men to sleep with a revolver within easy grasp. This precaution is deemed necessary to insure the safety of their personal property. The sagacious housewife, to prepare against a sudden attack of sickness in her family at these times, takes the wise precaution to arm herself with the most potent remedy known to science for the curing and putting to sudden flight, colic, diarrhoea, inflammation of the bowels caused by colds, or what is more often the case, the eating of green apples or other unripe fruit before retiring. The weapon is SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d166-w45-1m

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Rain, Snow and Frost.

The warm rain of the past two days has cleared away the snow and spoiled the sleighing. The fields are nearly bare of snow and the frost is coming from the ground. Probabilities says that there will be a change to-night with cold freezing weather and snow. Should this prove true, there will be sleighing again to-morrow, as the roads are sufficiently hard to form a good bottom.

Companies' No. 1 and 2 of the 57th.

Companies' No. 1 and 2 of the 57th Battalion met at the Drill Shed last evening for their regular weekly drill. There was a good attendance of the members and much improvement was manifested. The continuation of these weekly drills will infuse a military spirit into the young recruits, and a degree of proficiency will be attained by them before spring that will astonish the veterans in the service.

A Farm for Sale at Auction.

The fine farm of Mrs. M. A. Young, containing 45 acres of highly cultivated land, situated in the Township of Ennismore, comprising the south half of the north half of lot No. 9 in the 5th Concession, will be sold at auction by Mr. Charles Stapleton at the Stewart House on Saturday, Nov. 29th, at 2 o'clock p.m. The property is convenient to Peterborough by a good gravel road and the land is well watered and fenced. This is a rare opportunity for parties wanting a first class farm.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: winds gradually shifting to north and west and increasing in force; cloudy weather with rain turning into snow and considerably colder weather by morning. Storm signals are up at all the lake stations. The rain storm of yesterday at Peterborough continued throughout the night, and partly cloudy to cloudy with occasional rain throughout the day. Wind easterly to south-easterly.

Property Improvements.

The improvements constantly going on in different portions of Peterborough, would seem to indicate a revived condition of trade and commerce in this section. Especially this is the case in the central portion of the town. Among the latest improvements noticeable, is that or E. Wainwright, the butcher, on George street above Brock street. The high bank on which the one storey building stands, has been cut down to a level with the sidewalk, and the old dilapidated structure has assumed a fresh and neat appearance.

I. O. G. T.

Last evening there were a large number of the members present at the meeting of Carswell Lodge, No. 411, I.O.G.T. The great attraction elsewhere and the storm kept many away but a pleasant evening was spent and the hour slipped by quickly. The Lodge is in a prosperous condition and a new interest seems to have sprung up. Their literary and musical entertainments from week to week make it an attractive place to spend an evening. Visitors meet a cordial welcome and are well repaid for their visit. The Lodge meets every Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The following named officers have been elected and installed to serve the Lodge for the ensuing quarter:—George Chamberlain, W. C. T.; Mary Rishor, W.V.T.; Miss Elma Evans, W.S.; James Lyttle, W.F.S.; Wm. Cocks, W. T.; Alice Lumsden, W. Chap.; Louis Spry, W. Mar.; Fannie Douglass, W. Dep. Mar.; Miss McWilliam, W. I. G.; Barrett, W. O. G.; Misses. Irwin and Garbutt, W. R. and L. H. Supporters; and D. M. Sim, Lodge Deputy.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons.

Bradburn's Hall was crowded on Thursday night with the largest and most appreciative audience ever assembled there. That they fully enjoyed and appreciated the rich treat offered to them was evident from their wrapt attention and their hearty but discriminating applause. Mrs. Scott-Siddons, with her melodious, flexible and powerful voice, her hereditary dramatic talent, expressive countenance, and rare personal advantages, seemed equally at home in tragedy, comedy and pure humour, in all alike carrying her audience irresistibly with her. The scene from "Much ado about Nothing," with which she opened the programme, was an admirable representation of the various characters, her impersonation of Beatrice being especially life-like. The touching tale of the Curfew Bell was given with deep feeling, and the grace and truth with which she simulated the motion of the devoted girl while swinging from the silenced bell was marvellous, while graceful in the extreme. The humour with which she read "Father Phil's Collection," by Lover, was irresistable, and awoke the laughter of her audience, smothered with difficulty, so as not to lose a word. The sleep scene from "Macbeth" was absolutely weird, with its tragic intensity, bringing before our very eyes the crime-laden wife of the Thane. In the "Senator Entangled" she again displayed wonderful versatility, the comedy and refined humour being as effective as the previous tragic scene. The "Creed of the Bells" displayed fully her rich voice, the final representation of the Methodist bell being electrifying. In response to the enthusiastic applause, she read very humourously, as an encore, the song of a love-born swain with a distressing cold in his head. A chapter from "Helen's Babies" threw a new light upon that popular book, from her arch, natural manner of rendering the sayings of "the imps." A scene from "The School for Scandal" concluded the programme, the girlish, provoking insouciance of the thoughtless, extravagant wife being deliciously rendered. In reply to the tumult of applause Mrs. Scott-Siddons reappeared, and in a few graceful words expressed her thanks for her reception. Such brilliant elocution and dramatic power combined were never before witnessed in Peterborough, and we hope some day again to have the pleasure of hearing and seeing Mrs. Scott-Siddons.

A ROMANCE OF CRIME.

A Pair of Blackmailers and Poisoners in New York—Their Victim Escapes Them—Dark Suspicions.

By Telegraph to the Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Mary Ann Connolly informed the police yesterday that Joseph and Mary Valkner, living as man and wife, had tried to poison Charles E. Blair, a wealty manufacturer, aged 76 years, residing at Chalhaw village. Complainant stated that she resided with Mrs. Valkner, that while on the Boston boat they met Blair, who became very intimate with Mrs. Volkner. They invited him to call on them at New York, intending to blackmail him. On Wednesday he visited her, and it was arranged that Mr. Valkner should at the proper moment enter his wife's apartment, find her with Blair, demand satisfaction and make him settle by the payment of a round sum of money. The plan did not work, and Mrs. Connolly alleges that Valkner, believing Blair had considerable money with him, decided to poison him. He gave her money, and she purchased morphine, but declined to administer it. Valkner and his wife then bought beer into which they put the poison. It made Blair sick and he refused to drink any more. Mrs. Connolly, overhearing Valkner and his wife planning to charge the murder, if successful, upon her, became alarmed, hurried to the station house and confessed all. Blair was found at Valkner's house, and the entire party was arrested. Blair was astonished at the revelation, but admitted that he became very sick and weak after drinking the beer. The case creates some sensation, and it is believed discloses the secret of some mysterious disappearances in this city.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT

FIGHTING IN AFGHANISTAN.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A Cabul despatch says General Baker's cavalry came into conflict with the natives near Mardan. Several natives were killed. Gen. Baker was to attack the natives in force on the 27th.

RUSSIA IN CENTRAL ASIA.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Russian army in Central Asia will be reinforced by four regiments. The general staff is preparing a plan for a new route for an advance.

Emotional Insanity.

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Nov. 28.—On Wednesday a verdict of not guilty was rendered in the case of Miss Linkhaw, of Lumberton, who shot Ed. Hartman, a Baltimore drummer, for betraying her. The defence set up was of emotional insanity.

Bearing Fruit.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Several tenant farmers, delegates, have arrived home from Canada. They recommend Ontario and Quebec to farmers with large capital; and Manitoba and the North-West for young farmers. They speak in high terms of the Dominion.

Increasing Excitement.

DUBLIN, Nov. 28.—Daly's return to Castlebar will be celebrated by bonfires and other demonstrations throughout the county of Mayo. Mr. Parnell left Sligo to-day. Davitt and Daly remain until Killen is released. Mr. Parnell has received invitations from all parts of the country to address meetings. His propaganda has been actively carried on in Sligo during the trials. Speeches and other incidents cause increasing excitement. Last night a mob of 3,000 paraded the streets, followed by twenty armed constables, to prevent stone-throwing and the violence which occurred on the previous night.

The "Cure" Mania.

—In Germany they call every system of treatment which can be done into a marketable form a "cure." These are "salt", and "grape" cures, and cures of every name and class imaginable. Now it is anticipated that we shall have "the lemon cure," and another for which no formal name has perhaps been devised, but which will be reported as efficacious in the treatment of consumption. Each new discovery, which is generally destitute of the smallest claim to novelty, is duly chronicled by the lay press, and finds its way into the English news channels, where it not uncommonly suggests a "subject" to some distressed leader writer. The public should be on their guard against the exciting stories of "cure" which arise from this source. The professional men who originate these wondrous sensations do not mean to imply that the methods of treatment they adopt are really better than others. They are simply called "cures" in accordance with the fashion of the day, and a certain tradition, probably suggested by experience, that what is called a cure will be sure to cure somebody of something. The "lemon cure" is as old as the hills. A liberal use of fresh lemons is often very useful, particularly to persons subject to rheumatism. This has been perfectly well known for an indefinite period, and no new fact has been added to the store of information on the subject.—Lancet.

FIRE FIEND AT LINDSAY

THE RESIDENCE OF COLONEL DEACON, MAYOR, TOTALLY CONSUMED.

A Valuable Jewellery Box Preserved From the Flames—Military Relics and Regalia Destroyed—Only a Partial Insurance.

Special to the Review.

Nov. 28.—The residence of Col. Deacon, Mayor of Lindsay, situated at the corner of George and Wolf streets, Irishtown, was destroyed by fire early this morning. Besides the piano, very little furniture was saved. The fire is supposed to have been caused by hot ashes. The amount of the loss and and of the insurance is not yet known.

LATER.—The loss by the fire this morning at Mayor Deacon's residence is estimated at $5,000. There was an insurance in the Western for $3,000. The actual loss to the Insurance Company is about $2,400. A case belonging to the Colonel containing jewels valued at $2,500 was fortunately saved, but a box containing army relics, regalias, &c., perished.

PORT HOPE.

SUPPOSED INFANTICIDE.—The Guide says: The Government authorities have taken up the case in connection with the mutilated body of a child found lately in the township of Hope, full particulars of which, and of the coroner's inquest and verdict, appeared at the time. The jury found that the child had, in their opinion, been born alive and put to death by violence, but implicated no one. Rumour, however, pointed to Mary Ann Weatherup as the supposed mother of the child, and upon the coroner's statement of the case to the Government, Detective Murray was entrusted with the working up of the case. That officer came here on Wednesday, and after consultation with the County Attorney, arrested the woman above-mentioned, and placed her in a cell in the lock-up here. She was subsequently conveyed to Cobourg gaol by Constable Ellis.

THE PIER.—The Times says:—A storm came up on the lake about 10 or 11 last night, and skippers report that the wind blew hard and snow fell in considerable quantities. Ariadne was the only vessel which suffered at this port. By some means or other she struck against the west pier, and succeeded in breaking a few of her bobstays. This is the third time recently that this pier has been struck by schooners entering our harbor, and the officials now anxiously enquire "What spite have captains against it?"

NORWOOD.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.—The Register says: The Norwood School Board met on Tuesday to engage teachers for the High and Public Schools. There were 200 applications received altogether. Mr. Matthew McKay, of Wolf Island, near Kingston, was engaged as Principal, at a salary of $650. Mr. Colin Fraser, by a unanimous vote of the Board, was re-appointed to his present office at the salary he now receives. Mr. Dewart and Miss Sargent have also been re-engaged for their respective departments at their present salaries. And Miss Laidlaw, of Toronto, has been offered the teachership of the primary department, at a salary of $250. The applications received for the assistant-mastership of the High School, and the applications for the senior and the intermediate departments of the Public School, were not examined at all, so that it will be seen that the paragraph we copied from the Globe, in reference to the action of the Board in discharging the whole staff of teachers, is perfectly true, although two of the trustees at this meeting denounced that unsavory "tit-bit" in no unmeasured terms.

BEEF.—It is an old and true saying that its "either a feast or famine" with us, as we have now in our village about half-a dozen professional and non-professional butchers, all doing a lively trade, besides farmers bringing in that staple article of diet by the carcase, and we as well receive semi-weekly visits from several butchers of Hastings; and still beef is by no means cheap. Poultry is coming in plentifully, and is selling at a lower rate than the beef.

Not as the Poet Sings.

If the unfortunate and unhappy Kirk White were alive, it is more than probable that he would have unsung his poem commencing "Come Consumption's Ghastly Throng," as the remedy for that fell disease has now been discovered. It is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. Many so called remedies have been offered to the public, but none have proved trustworthy until this preparation was given to suffering humanity. It not only relieves in every case, but in most cases permanently cures; at the same time is perfectly palatable.

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible, Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

EXCITING SCENES AT SLIGO.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—At Sligo to-day the magistrates decided that the evidence which Mr. Jno. Rea proposed to call in favour of Killen was irrelevant. They decided to close the case and commit Killen for trial, admitting him to bail. Killen refused to leave the Court and had to be carried out. The Court was ordered to be cleared, but Davitt and Rea remained in defiance of the order. When the telegram containing the above particulars was despatched, Killen was in gaol, and Rea was addressing an excited crowd.

REA'S WITNESSES.

Rea desired to call as witnesses the Crown Solicitor, the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin and one of the members of the House of Commons for Tipperary. This was what finally broke down the patience of the magistrates. After committing Killen, they offered to accept the same bail as Daly and Davitt, but Rea protested and said he had arranged with his client not to find bail. The magistrate asked Killen whether he would find bail. Killen stoutly refused and offered a passive resistance to the removal from court. He hung on the arms of two policemen with his feet just off the ground.

THE MONTENEGRINS THREATENED.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Six thousand Albanians are posted near Gusinge, and they will probably make an attack on the Montenegrins.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR PROTESTS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 28.—Mr. Layard, British ambassador, has protested against the concession to a French company to construct the quays at Constantinople and levying the tonnage duty as being contrary to capitulations.

A BAILIFF MURDERED.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A despatch from Dublin says a bailiff who was executing some decrees on a farmer near Sneem, County Kerry, has been murdered.

THE NEW FRENCH CABLE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The representative of the new French Transatlantic Company stated to-day that the cable worked successfully. The land connection will probably be finished on Monday, but it is hardly likely the line will be open for business until the first of next year. No consultation has yet been held in regard to rates.

AMERICAN.

EXPLOSIONS.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov 28.—The Marcellus Powder mill, 12 miles south-west of Syracuse, exploded on Thursday morning, destroying three buildings and three thousand pounds of powder. No persons were injured. The loss is $3,000. On Friday morning, a few minutes before five, there was an explosion, and a bright light in the north-western sky, from Syracuse. The light lasted for half a minute, like a large conflagration. It is supposed that it was a meteor.

A TERRIFIC STRUGGLE.

BUFFALO, Nov. 28.—Captain Andrew McKenzie, of the barge Walton, was to-day arrested on suspicion of murdering the mate of his vessel, Thomas Russell, last night. The body was found in the river, partly naked, and the head all cut up and clotted with blood. The boat bore evidence of a terrific struggle, and was covered with blood. McKenzie claims that he left the murdered man at 8 o'clock last night, since which time he had not seen him alive, McKenzie's clothing was all covered with blood, the presence of which he could not explain. He denies all knowledge of the crime, but the detectives claim that they have discovered several suspicious circumstances, which strongly point to the captain's guilt. The latter claims that he paid Russell twenty-five dollars, all the money due him last Saturday night, and produced his receipt book, but the detectives think the signature is a forgery. The captain claims he and Russell were always good friends, and never had a quarrel. He says he was at the Variety theatre last night, and did not go on board the Walton until two o'clock in the morning. He only lit a match then, but discovered no traces of the deed. He is the first man who discovered the body in the water this morning. Coroner Almendinger will hold an inquest in the case.

BEATEN TO DEATH BY BOYS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Mary Force, who on the 20th inst., was beaten by lads of 14 and 15 years, who knocked her down and threw her in a coal bin, died to-day at her residence. She was in delicate condition, and on Sunday gave birth to a dead child. Two of the boys have been sent to the House of Refuge, and Crowley, who inflicted the injury which caused death, was held for trial.

THE UTES AND MORMONS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A despatch to Secretary Schurz from General Hatch, dated Los Pinos, 26th, says all investigation was stopped this morning by runners from the White River Utes, who stated the runners from the Uintah Utes said the troops were moving to the Uintah agency to make prisoners, and all the Uintahs had left for the camp of the White River Utes, who refuse to come in till assured that this is not true. The Indians have been informed by the Commission that this report is false, and the troops are instructed not to advance during the present negotiations. The advance of the troops would close the enquiry. Ouray thinks the story is an invention of the Mormon elements, who are doing all in their powers to create serious trouble. This will delay the Commission six days until the White River runners return from the Uintah agency. Enquiry in official quarters fully confirms Hatch's assurance to the Indians, that the report of the advance of troops is untrue. Schurz has for some time suspected that some adverse element is secretly at work to retard, or, if possible, to defeat the efforts of the Commission. He is strongly inclined to the belief that the source of the present trouble is correctly indicated by Ouray.

A MURDER DIVULGED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—A confession has been received from a prisoner at Ballston, N.Y., that John Ryan, now in Michigan penitentiary, and John Lamb, who is waiting trial here for the murder of Officer Race, were the men who in 1875 committed the terrible murder at Norway, near Lasalle, by which Burdick Sornstin lost his life while defending the life and property of his friend, old Mr. Keppler, from burglars. REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The Tribune prints the text of Secretary Sherman's report for the year ending June 30th, 1879. The Secy. points out the necessity for economy, in order not to exceed the estimated revenues of the Government. The total ordinary receipts for the year are $273,000,000, while the total ordinary expenditure is $266,000,000, having a surplus revenue of $6,879,000. The amount due to the Sinking Fund for the year was $36,955,000, leaving a deficiency of over 30,000,000, as compared with that of the previous year. There has been an increase of receipts of $16,711,000, as follows:—Customs, $7,009,659; Internal Revenue, $3,000,000; Premium on Loans, $1,500,000; Repayment of Interest by the Pacific Railroad Companies, $1,340,000; Miscellaneous, $2,560,000. The following items show a decrease:—Proceeds of sales of Public Lands, $150,000; Premiums on sales of coin, $300,000; Semi-annual tax on Banks, $660,000; Sales of Government Property, $68,000; Total net increase, over sixteen millions. The expenditures show an increase of $22,250,000 in the following items:—War Department, $300,000; Interior, $8,500,000; Indians, $576,000; Pensions, $8,000,000; Interest on the Public Debt, $2,527,000; Civil and Miscellaneous, $12,500,000. There was a decreased expenditure on the Navy of $2,250,000. The total net increase was $20,933,000. The total estimates of receipts for the year ending June 30th, 1881, amount to $288,000,000. The expenditures, excluding Sinking Fund, amount to $238,269,000, showing a surplus of $49,730,000. The requirements for the Sinking Fund are estimated at $39,828,000 and the remaining surplus of $9,902,000 will probably be exhausted by additional appropriations. The Secretary says that should Congress increase the appropriations beyond this limit or repeal or reduce existing taxes, other sources of revenue must be provided. The Secretary suggested as a means of meeting the deficiency, the restoration of a moderate duties on tea and coffee and an internal tax upon manufacturers of opium.

A LADY HOTEL PROPRIETOR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The East End Hotel at Long Branch was sold yesterday under foreclosure of mortgage to Mrs. Jay Gould.

ERIE RAILWAY STOCK.

The Herald says the jump in Erie stock yesterday afternoon was owing to unauthentic rumors that Vanderbilt had been admitted to its directorate. It was subsequently ascertained that the directors had held no meeting.

A SPECULATIVE STOCK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The Herald says that on sober second thought a glimmering idea arises that the Great Central and Huron River sale may conceal a "nigger in the fence." After all it has been privately understood that the English syndicate who bought 4 per cent failed to find buyers, and were only too glad to exchange unsalable bonds for salable stock. A more serious phase of the transaction, however, is to be found in the fact that Central and Hudson, from being a strictly investment stock, is likely to become a very speculative stock.

INFLATION IN WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The Herald has a long interview with Keene, the noted stock operator. He said that Vanderbilt had made a wonderful sale and had got the full price for his stock. The sale is a capital thing for the Wabash people too, and if the syndicate now can only find buyers for their stock, it will be a profitable thing all round. Keene expressed himself plainly against the present Wall Street inflation, and said, "seventy per cent of the grain has been moved this season and the balance soon will be. There will be the very devil to pay in this street one of these mornings let me tell you. Somebody will get hurt."

THE CUSTOMS.—The Commissioner of Customs arrived in this city yesterday, and suspended the Collector and Chief Clerk. Upon notifying the two officials that they were suspended, Mr. Mackay vigorously and in plain terms denied having taken any part in concealing the Government funds, but the Collector, following his solicitor's advice, refrained from discussing the subject.

PORT HOPE.

SHEEP AND DOGS.—The Guide says:—The killing of sheep by dogs in the township of Hope appears to go on with more fatal energy than ever. At the last Council meeting not far short of three hundred dollars was the amount required to foot the bills on this account. At this rate it would surely pay to buy up all the dogs in the township and destroy them.

BELLEVILLE.

MINING.—The Intelligencer says:—The mining interests of North Hastings are decidedly "looking up," and the prospects at present are not only of the most cheering character, but promise to improve, now that the great richness of the iron and gold deposits has been fully confirmed by the careful examination of experts and by practical tests. Mr. Brown's crusher and that at the Gatling property will be in operation very shortly, when we have no doubt large quantities of gold will be taken out. The iron miners are operating with as strong forces of men as the nature of the work will permit, and with the extension for a few miles northward of the railway—which work we hope to see carried out next year—an impetus will be given to trade in this part of the country which will prove of great advantage to all concerned.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1879.

AN ANNIVERSARY.

A year ago to-day we commenced the publication of the Daily Evening Review, which has thus entered upon its second year. We were told at the time that we were trying a hazardous experiment, but we believed that the town of Peterborough had arrived at a stage when a daily newspaper was desirable and would be supported, so we made the venture with a feeling of confidence, which the result has shown to be justifiable.

We have indeed every reason to feel satisfied with the result. Our subscription list has attained dimensions, which equals, and indeed surpasses our expectations, bearing a comparison with that of some of the cities of Ontario. If advertisers at first needed to become accustomed to advertising daily, they gave us a fair measure of support from the start, and continually grew more willing to avail themselves of this means of publicity, feeling that it is the most effective channel for communicating with the people of the town.

Among other arguments against this new departure, we were told, that the publication of a daily edition would prejudicially effect our weekly issue. So far from this being the case, the improvement which we have been enabled to make in the Weekly Review in consequence of the publication of the daily paper, has attracted a large number of new subscribers. We are constantly adding to our list, which now far exceeds in numbers that of any other paper in the town and county of Peterborough. This is no empty boast, for we are at all times willing to lay our subscription list before intending advertisers, thus enabling them to ascertain the number of readers under whose eyes their announcements would come.

We have endeavoured during the past year to make the Daily Review a credit to the town, and we will spare neither effort nor expense to improve it to the full extent that is warranted. We are encouraged to do this by the liberal patronage we have received, for which we thank those who have patronized us. At the same time we appeal to them to continue, and even to augment the support then extended to us in the past. A daily paper is undoubtedly beneficial to the town, and therefore we feel warranted in asking for the good will of all who have the welfare of Peterborough at heart.

FEATS OF DANCING.

To the Editor of the Review

Dear Sir,—I have noticed an article headed: "Six Hours of Dancing," as something wonderful by a young lady of 18 years of age. We have several young ladies in Peterborough who think nothing of dancing from 10 to 12 hours. I was at an excursion on the steamer Golden Eye to Idyl Wild, when there was a widow on board of 50 years of age, who danced 19 hours, with an intermission of only a few minutes for meals. When the boat arrived at the wharf she asked the musicians to play just one more tune to wind up with.

THE "WAUBUNO" DISASTER.

Sustained Excitement in Collingwood Over Her Loss—A Specimen Incident.

Collingwood, Nov. 27.—The first shock of grief and dismay at the Waubuno disaster has passed, and people to-day are discussing not merely the loss itself, but also the condition of the boat, and ability of the captain, the character of the crew, and other matters which tend to point out where the responsibility lies. Considering the terrible severity of the affliction, and the seeming utter needlessness of the great sacrifice of life, it cannot be wondered at that many of the rumours current concerning the points referred to betoken a spirit of bitterness which probably none will be willing to acknowledge a short time hence. It is a difficult matter to persuade people overwhelmed with grief in this sudden and awful manner that the loss of their friends was the result of accident simply, and that nobody is responsible for it, and they are hardly worthy of censure if just now they speak their feeling rather than their thoughts. The responsibility for this affair is an awful one, and if after full investigation it is found that it must rest with any particular persons, their position will be such as should almost earn for them the pity of the people at large. It is almost certain that some of the bodies will be recovered, and if so an inquest will be held, which the public will, no doubt, take good care shall reach the very bottom facts so far as there is evidence in the country to prove them. Even should none of the bodies ever be found, the probability is that the relatives of the lost people will take effective steps to secure a searching investigation. Until the real facts have been ascertained by one course or the other it would be manifestly unfair even to give publicity to the many statements and rumors which are current here to-day.

In order to furnish an idea of the state of public feeling, however, one incident may be mentioned. The office of the Montreal Telegraph Company this morning continued the usual half dozen of people who had come to learn any new facts which had been ascertained, and remained to discuss what was already known, when an oldish man came in, and, in an unusually excited manner, he repeated the old query:—

"Any news?"

The reference was of course to the Waubuno, as information on any other subject would hardly even be listened to yet.

"Nothing," answered the agent.

"Well, they're alive!" cried the man excitedly.

"What!" exclaimed the listeners, and each looked up involuntarily. But the idea seemed to follow at once that the man was insane, and no particular questions was put to him. He, however, went on to tell a rambling story about having "received word from a woman" that those on board the Waubuno had left the steamer before she sunk; that all the passengers had perished, but that the crew were all safe on some islands near Moose River. The captain was on one island, and the crew together on another, the latter with fire, but the former without.

One or two of those present undertook to explain that this was utterly impossible, but the narrator of this wonderful tale persisted that what he said was true, and that the woman who told him of it was the same who had indicated the whereabouts of a little boy who had been lost near the north shore some time ago. He grew more excited as he went on, and ended by exclaiming:—

"Well, what I know is that I'll give fifty dollars to any boat that'll go out there."

The truth was, that he had been consulting a clairvoyant, and had become feverishly excited over the prospect, however dubious, of seeing his friends again.

I am informed that a letter containing statements of the same tenor has been made, and signed "An unknown friend," has been shown to a number of people in town, by parties who firmly believe it is trustworthiness.

A story having found publication to the effect that Mr. David Collett, printer of this city, and a companion, engaged by Mr. Fisher of the Parry Sound Northern Star, were among those lost on the steamer Waubuno, the friends of these young men will be re-assured by hearing that they went from Collingwood to Parry Sound by another boat. The mother of Collett has received a letter from her son announcing his arrival, and the detention of Mr. Fisher at Collingwood "for two or three days." It seems that Mr. Fisher engaged the men and sent them forward promptly, he being delayed in the city by business. He thus became a passenger by the Waubuno, and probably went down with her.—Globe Cor.

TORONTO.

A Pitiful Sight.—A young woman of prepossing appearance, who gave her name as Kate Tayler, was taken to No. 1 Police Station in a beastly state of intoxication on Thursday. P. C. Hendry found her rolling in the mud in a lane off York-street; and some children who were beside her had taken her baby, only a few weeks old, and were caring for it. The policeman procured a cart and had the unfortunate creature conveyed to the station. The child was cared for by a little brother of the prisoner, who accompanied her.

An Elopement in Yorkville.—The northern suburb is somewhat excited over the elopement of a fair young damsel, who had for many years resided in that classic village. The lady in question was loved by a city young man, who, for reasons unknown, was disliked by the father of the girl. The pair arranged and carried out clandestine meetings, and at one of the it was decided that the father's wishes in the matter should be of secondary consideration. On Tuesday evening last the father, a widower, attended a meeting, which kept him engaged till about ten o'clock. Instead of finding his daughter at his return home, he found awaiting him a note, which informed him that it was "unnecessary to fret—chase useless—pray forgiveness—hoped be reconciled to dear———, to live without would be distraction, insanity, early grave," &c. The parent, a matter-of-fact old gentleman, after finding that the young lady's wardrobe had also eloped, did not borrow a shot gun and start in pursuit of the runaways, but soliloquized briefly, as follows:—"Let her flicker." On the return of the pair from their hymenial tour, the usual programme will, no doubt, be carried out—pleadings, tears, handshakings, reconciliation, joy all round.

The Earl of Fife has purchased a hundred guineas worth of tickets for the next session of French plays at the Gaiety Theatre.

A woman died of hydrophobia on the 1st of November, at Glasgow. She was bitten by a mad dog in July last, and the wound was cauterized and speedily healed.

An old woman named Margaret Brown, who died in Dunfermline Poorhouse, has been found to possess about £150 in gold, silver, bank-notes, and a savings bank receipt book.

The objectors to the introduction of instrumental music into North Leith Church have lodged answers and reasons of appeal against the recent judgement of the Edinburgh Presbytery.

Along the Lammermoors oats have been cut in an unripened state, and still stand in stock. It is estimated that the value of the barley crop will be about £3 per acre less than in an ordinary good season.

MONTREAL.

It is rumoured a lady, belonging to one of the first families of French Canadians has run away with her father's gallant coachman.

A Brutal Son.—A man named Edward Laramie beat his old father's face almost to a pulp last night, and will be tried to-morrow.

Burglaries and Safe Openings are common enough just now, but the most audacious business that has transpired here for some days was the robbery from the sidewalk opposite G. & W. Clarke's store of $300 worth of goods packed in a case. John Craven, Patrick Monday, and James Harney, it seems, stole a horse and sleigh, tumbled the case into it, and made off. They were captured and most of the goods recovered this morning. They are a bad lot, and Harney is the same rascal who attacked a young Orangeman named Rousell during the Orange excitement a couple of years ago, and was shot for his pains.

French Evangelization.—In speaking of the effect of French evangelization upon French Canadian Roman Catholics, at the anniversary meeting last night, the Rev. Dr. Jenkins, of St. Paul's, said that when he first came to Montreal forty-two people could not be got together in the French Protestant Church. Now they had that number of missionaries, twenty-two of whom were ordained. He dwelt strongly on the necessity of establishing mission houses throughout the Province, and said that in Chicoutimi a few French Protestant families offered to pay a clergyman $700 a year to preach the truth to them. He was glad to be able to announce that a man was secured, and would be sent at once.

Difficulty About a Child.—A Mr. and Mrs. Beamville, of Boston, eleven years ago had a child, and not knowing what to do with it gave it to an aunt named Mrs. Moore, at the mile end, St. John Baptiste village. This lady reared the little girl carefully, and was astonished to find the mother of the child appear before her a few days ago and demand her portage. As the eleven years had elapsed without the woman ever writing about the child Mrs. Moore refused, and a day or two ago Mrs. Beamville pounced upon the child as she was returning from school under the care of her teacher and attempted to carry her off. In this she was unsuccessful, but she prowls about the neighborhood seeking a chance to kidnap the girl.

An Exciting Case.—A case has been in the Grand Jury room of the Police Court, but the very accommodating magistrate, Mr. Dugas, has managed to screen the name and charge against the parties until to day, when the following story leaked out:—It appears that Mr. Griffin, the notary, was appointed some years ago sole executor to the estate of Mrs. Hoyle, deceased many years. The will provided that the executor had not the power to loan the money of the estate except in cases where the best of security was offered, such as Government bonds, etc. Regardless of this provision, however, Mr. J. C. Griffin, it is reported, lent money to one of his relations on frail security. This security was was a second mortgage of a property which the first mortgage fully covered. The information is laid by the brother of the minor heir, Mr. Devine, who is also an heir. The gentleman to whom the money was loaned is a broker named Mr. C. Ritchie, son-in-law of the defendant. The tutor of the young lady has been the means of bringing the case before the Courts. The capital amount willed in favour of the young lady is said to be in the vicinity of $15,000. The trial is still in progress, and the legal war between the defence and the prosecution is said to be exceedingly exciting.

WHAT I LIVE FOR.

I live for those who love me,
  For those whose hearts are true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
  And awaits my spirit, too;
For all the human ties that bind me,
  For the task my God assigned me,
For the bright hopes left behind me,
  And the good that I can do.

I live to learn their story,
  Who've suffered for my sake,
To emulate their glory,
  And follow in their wake;
Bards, martyrs, patriots, sages,
  The noble of all ages,
Whose deeds crown history's pages,
  And time's great volume make.

I live to hold communion
  With all that is divine.
To feel that there is union
  'Twixt nature's heart and mine.
To profit by affliction,
  Reap truth from fields of fiction,
Grow wiser from conviction—
  Fulfilling God's design.

I live for those that love me,
  For those whose hearts are true,
For the heaven that smiles above me
  And awaits my spirit, too;
For the wrongs that need resistance,
  For the cause that needs assistance,
For the future in the distance,
  And the good that I can do.

IS PRESBYTERIANISM DECLINING!

Figures that Dr. Cuyler Has looked into—Evangelical Religion Forty Years ago and now.

The historian Froude, Colonel Ingersoll, of Illinois, and the Rev. Dr. Cuyler, of Brooklyn, seem to be agreed that Protestantism, if not Christianity, is a failure. While almost everybody, from the President down to the humblest citizen, congratulates the country on the revival of commercial prosperity, Dr. Cuyler thinks that any one who has examined the ecclesiastical reports from various religious bodies, and who has watched the utterances of the religious press, must be convinced that the present state of evangelical religion is not a theme for congratulation. Instead of an advance, it remains stationery; in some quarters, if compared with the growth of population, it is on the retrograde. There is little comfort, however, in the fact that the Presbyterian Church, with its culture, resources and orthodox standards, suffers no worse that its neighbours; but its latest statistics show a lamentable want of progress. The prominent Synod of Philadelphia, at its last meeting, devoted its chief attention to the low state of religion within its bounds. The Metropolitan Synod, of New York, reported that the number of its church members has actually decreased during the past year. An examination of the minutes of the General Assembly will show a steady falling off for the last four years and this too in the face of a vast increase of population.

In 1876 those minutes reported an addition of 70,500 members by confession of faith and by dismissal from other churches. In 1877 the number fell to 63,700. In 1878 it went still lower, to 58,000. This year it has sunk to the pitifully small figure of 49,000! The startling claim that is made in the minutes is that the total membership of the whole Church has only increased by 7,000 members within a year! As many church rolls are very carelessly kept the strong probability is that the Presbyterian body numbers no more communicants than it did a year ago!

THE FORMER DAYS AND NOW.

What is true of the venerable Presbyterian denomination is true of all the other evangelical bodies. Honest "tally-keeping" shows but small advances. The veteran editor of the New York Observer has lately declared that "a great spiritual drought is prevailing such as has not been known in the present century. We do not remember the time when revivals of religion were so few and far between; when so few accessions to the churches were reported, and when the Church positively seemed so much in danger of receding before the world." This is a sombre picture, but it is as true to the life as Sir Peter Lely's famous protrait of Oliver Cromwell.

Any one who recalls the moral condition of New York city forty years ago will remember that at that time fully one-half of the population attended some Protestant house of worship. Now the highest claim made by the City Tract Society is that 250,000 are regular or occasional worshippers in Protestant churches and chapels, in a total population of over one million. In the rural districts of New England "there is a marked decline in the numbers who attend habitually on the preaching of the Word." The latest spiritual statistics of Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis show even a more unfavourable outlook of evangelical religion. Brooklyn is styled "The City of Churches," but church-going is on the decline. The crowds that may be drawn to two or three places of worship by the peculiar style of attractions do not invalidate the truth of this statement. A few days ago a friend remarked to Dr. Cuyler that "in this whole block of brown stone houses not more than one half of the people regularly go to church." What then must be said for those streets which are occupied mainly by the more ill-dressed and ill-taught classes?

When three or four Christian ministers come together, in almost any locality, and begin to compare notes, they soon discover a most painful coincidence in their reports. Each one is forced to acknowledge that the tides which set in against the break-water of divine truth are increasingly strong—and that some of the temporary makeshifts which have been often employed to resist these tides are about worthless. Not one of these ministers may have any the less faith in the Word of God, the gospel of Calvary of the ultimate triumphs of the cross. But he cannot shut his eyes to present and patent facts.—N.Y. Herald.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

THE Evangelical Association of North America is to be known hereafter as the Evangelical Church of North America.

THE Russian Missionaries in Japan have succeeded in converting four thousand Japanese to the Christian faith. The St. Petersburg Synod will send a Bishop to Yeddo.

AT Chemainus, B.C., a new Anglican church has been built for the use of three Indian tribes with a population of 500. The Indians themselves hauled the lumber a distance of twelve miles.

A PARTY of twelve Carmelite nuns, whom the people of Guatemala had grown tired of and driven away, have recently established themselves in a vacant cottage in Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, N.Y.

As many as 1,600 Testaments have been sold in London on a single Saturday night, from the Bible carriage of Mr. Henry Moorhouse, the evangelist. For two pence he sells a package which contains a copy of the New Testament, and also some illustrated papers.

Yankee Stories.

A New Englander, riding in a railroad car, off South-west somewhere, seemed particularly disposed to astonish the other passengers with tough stories about Yankeedom. At last he mentioned that one of his neighbors owned an immense dairy, and made a million pounds of butter and a million pounds of cheese yearly. This story produced some sensation; the Yankee seeing that his veracity was in danger of being questioned appealed to a friend as follows: "True, isn't it, Mr. P.? I speak of Deacon Brown?" "Ye-e-s," replied the friend, "that is—yes, I know Deacon Brown. I don't know as I ever heard precisely how many pounds of butter and cheese he makes a year, but I know that he keeps two saw-mills that all go by buttermilk."

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Nov. 29.—The market this morning was a large one. There were many farmers in, some coming from a great distance. The offerings were more diversified than of late, and found ready takers at the advanced rates for many articles. The roads, although frozen, were rough and unpleasant to travel over. It is stated that had the weather changed 12 hours earlier, there would have been the largest market of any that has preceded it this season. Wheat has been for some time very quiet and only a few parcels offering during the few weeks past. To-day, however, there was a perceptible change, and the products of the winter threshings seems to be about to come forward. Several parcels of Spring Wheat were on the market, and, owing to a rivalry among some of the buyers, as high as $1.17 was paid. It does not appear that there has been any improvement in the general wheat markets to warrant this advance, but, as the above rate has been paid, we shall change quotations. There is no change to note in Fall Wheat, and we still quote it at $1.15 to $1.17. There is no barley offering. Rye is not coming in very rapidly, and we still quote it at 50c. to 56c. Oats are more plentiful. There were several lots in to-day, which were freely taken at 31c. to 32c. Some small lots brought 33c. for private use. Peas were in larger quantities than usual and sold at 60c. to 63c. No beans in. Potatoes were in fair supply at 60c. to 65c. per bag. Turnips, for the table, were offering at 15c. per bushel. Onions were scarce. No change in price to note. They sold freely. Carrots, 30c. per bushel. Parsnips and beets for table use at 60c. per bushel. Cabbages were plenty at 40c. per dozen. Apples were in fair supply; common cooking went at 50c. to 60c. per bag; good eating, at 60c. to 70c. per bag, and $1.50 to $2 per barrel. There were some fine Russets sold at 75c. per bag. Sweet apples went at 60c. per bag. Butter was in fair supply, roll butter sold readily at 20c.; keg, at 18c. to 20c. prime. There were few kegs brought in to-day. Eggs brought 18c., they were scarce, we quote 16c. to 18c. Lamb sold at 5c. to 6c. Mutton plenty, at 6c. to 7c. Beef, no change to note. There was plenty of it on the market. Pork was brought forward in large quantities and packers were kept very busy, giving $5.50 for best hogs. Some few porkers were sold to private parties at $5.75; quarter at 6c. to 6½cts. per pound. Lard was plenty, but readily taken at 10c. Chickens were in fair supply at an advance from previous quotations; as high as 40c. per pair being paid for some lots, we quote 30c. to 40c. per pair. Turkeys 40c. to 70c. each. Geese 40c. to 50c. each. Ducks 40c. to 50c. per pair. Beef tongues, sold at 20c. to 25c. each. Sausages made their appearance to-day at 10c. per lb, several lots were offered. Corned beef also appeared upon the market, 6c. to 7c. per lb was asked. Several saddles of venison were in to-day from back of Harvey, and sold at 6c. per pound. Partridges from the same locality went freely at 25c. per pair. They were badly shot, or a better price would have been obtained. Hay was again plenty, and sold mostly at $6.00. Straw sold at $3.00 to $3.50 per load. Seeds are slow coming in, some clover was taken at $4.50 to $4.75. Wood was plenty, but found ready sale at quotations.

HALIFAX.

THE ENGLISH MAIL.—The Allan weekly mail steamer Sardinian, Captain Dutton, arrived on Friday at 9 o'clock from Liverpool with the English mails and 429 passengers, 325 immigrants, 73 intermediate and 34 cabin passengers. She also brought 800 tons of Canadian freight and 1,368 tons for Baltimore, for which port she will sail to-morrow. The Sardinian made the quickest passage ever made by weekly boats from Liverpool to Halifax, beating the best passage of the Peruvian and Moravian by three hours. The mails and passengers will be forwarded immediately by special train.

Hogs want Sulphur.

Whether hogs require sulphur as an essential to health, or whether it is sought by them as a condiment, may not be discovered. But one thing is true, they devour it with greed whenever it is to be found. It is for this purpose probably that they can eat large quantities of soft coal which contains a large amount of sulphur. Perhaps this is the most economical method of supplying hogs with sulphur during the winter when they require a good deal of carbon. But in summer it is best to feed it to them in substances which contain less carbon, on account of their producing less heat. Mustard is one of the best things for this purpose, and some of it should be sown in every pasture into which hogs are turned. If hogs are kept in or on small yards, it is well to supply them with the wild mustard that grows in the fields or highways, or to cultivate some of the better varieties for them. They will eat its leaves, its flowers, seeds and stalks.

He Sleeps with a Revolver Under His Head.

OR A WISE PRECAUTION.

On the borders of civilization it is customary with men to sleep with a revolver within easy grasp. This precaution is deemed necessary to insure the safety of their personal property. The sagacious housewife, to prepare against a sudden attack of sickness in her family of little ones, takes the wise precaution to arm herself with the most potent remedy known to science for the soothing and painless treatment of colic, diarrhœa, inflammation of the bowels caused by colds, or which is more often the case, the eating of green apples or other unripe fruit before retiring. The weapon is SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d108-w45-1m

Aged People.

To pass from poverty to wealth is only changing misery, but to pass from illness to health is like flying from this world to paradise. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Legal Partnership.

We learn that Mr. D. G. Hatton has taken Mr. N. D. Beck into partnership in his law business, and we wish the new firm success.

St. Andrew's Sermon.

We will remind our readers, and particularly our Scotch friends, of the annual sermon to be preached in St. Andrew's Church by the Revd. Alex. Bell on Sabbath evening.

Skating Preparations.

Several skaters are practicing on parlor skates this afternoon. A good opportunity is afforded for them around the promenade gallery of the Rink, where the skaters are practicing.

A Lively Street.

George street has been crowded this afternoon by the farmers and the street has presented a lively scene. From the looks of the waggons it is fair to presume that the store keepers have been well patronized.

Heavy Hogs.

Among the hogs brought in to-day was one weighing 415 pounds. It was raised by Mr. W. M. Fair, of Cavan. There were several others weighing from 300 to 350 pounds each. The pork was very fine.

The Bank Changes.

Mr. Budden has succeded Mr. Braithwaite at the Bank of Montreal, the latter gentleman leaving for Montreal to-day. Mr. J. C. Smith has returned to Peterborough, taking the place of Mr. R. R. Rogers in the Bank of Toronto here.

Misrepresentation.

The Times again repeats its false suggestions that the tax bill of Mr. Jas. Stevenson contains a mistake telling against the Town. The truth, as our dishonest contemporary well knows, is that the only error in the items is one in favour of the town, such error not being carried into the total, which is correct.

Rise in the River.

The warm weather for the past week and the accompanying rains have melted the snow and the streams have been much swollen. The Otonabee River has risen several inches and the water is falling in considerable quantities over the dams. There has been much drift wood and an occasional log running down the river for the last few days.

The Skating Rink.

The warm weather has retarded operations at the Skating Rink. The ground had been well frozen and was ready for flooding when the recent moderate weather set in. The ground is now freezing again and as soon as the frost gives a good foundation it will be flooded. Probably by Monday or Tuesday the formation of ice will be begun, and we may soon look for a good skating surface.

Mechanics' Institute.

There was a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute on Friday evening. Mr. Jas. Bryson was appointed Librarian and caretaker out of a list of nine applicants. A gratuity of three month's salary was voted to the late caretaker. The Property Committee reported that the required alterations were being made in the rooms over the old Ontario Bank, and that they would probably be ready for the removal in a fortnight. They were instructed to proceed with the arrangements. Another $200, making $400 in all, was appropriated for the purchase of books.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are; brisk to high westerly to northerly winds, gradually decreasing; cloudy to partly cloudy weather, with passing snow storms. Storm signals are up throughout Canada. Peterborough has been abundantly supplied with rain and snow of late. The rain storm of yesterday ceased early in the evening after a heavy shower, when the wind changed to the west and colder. The muddy roads suddenly froze, making travel to-day unpleasant. Several snow flurries passed over us during the night. To-day it has been partly cloudy to cloudy weather with occasional snow squalls accompanied with cold north-west wind.

Personal.

We find in the Graaff-Reinet (Cape Colony) Advertiser the following item, which will be interesting to the many relations of the happy couple in Canada, and especially in this town and neighbourhood:

MATRIMONIAL.—On Thursday last there was great merrymaking at the hospitable mountain home, Portlock, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Agnes Rubidge to Mr. Herbert Rubidge. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Steabler. There was a large gathering of friends from the country road and from the town to do honor to the occasion, for the Rubidges are the family of the district and the bride was a favourite ever with all who knew her, that is to say, with all our Graaff-Reinet world. The marriage ceremony and the festivities following it over, the happy couple left for their home at Adendorp accompanied by the best good wishes of their troops of friends.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

Marriage of the King of Spain to an Austrian Archduchess—An Imposing Ceremony.

Special to the Review.

MADRID, Nov. 29.—The marriage of the King will be solemnized this morning. The bands of the regiments quartered in Madrid played the reveille before the royal palace, and afterwards marched through the principal streets. Much animation prevails, and the streets and balconies are thronged with people. Many houses are decorated and triumphal arches have been erected. The weather has improved.

MADRID, Nov. 29. 12.45.—The royal wedding solimnized according to the programme. The King was accompanied by the Arch-Duke Renier to the church, and was preceded by eleven carriages, containing various members of the Spanish Royal Family, Grandees of Spain and Court Dignitaries. The bride was preceded by four carriages, containing Court Dignitaries and ladies of honor. The bride was richly dressed in white and wore a diadem of brilliants and the insignia of the Marie Louise order. The Atocha church was splendidly illuminated, and was decorated with rich silken draperies. The diplomatic body, the Spanish Grandees and deputations from the Senate, and the Chamber of eputies, occupied the nave. The bride was much moved during the ceremony. The nuptial benediction was given on behalf of the Pope by the Cardinal Patriarch of the Indies, who officiated at the mass after the marriage.

BOBCAYGEON.

SHANTIES.—The Independent says, supplies are being forwarded to the shanties in the north. The lumbering operations for the season, are now in full blast and are very extensive.

PORK.—Large quantities of pork are being brought to the village. It sells at five cents per pound.

LINDSAY.

ILLNESS OF THE WARDEN.—The warden, Mr. Fairbairn, is recovering from the severe attack of typhoid fever, from which he was suffering, and is now out of danger. He was at one time in a critical condition. We trust he will be able to meet the county council as strong as ever.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—We understand, says the Post, the warden has decided to call a December session of the county council in order to transact some necessary public business. The council, it will be remembered, decided in June to do away with December sessions, but as this was the first year it was thought advisable to have another meeting. Owing to the illness of the warden, the council meets a week later than the usual time. Tuesday, December 16, is the date fixed.

NEW MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The Post says the meeting in the council chamber on Monday evening to organize a mechanics' institute in town was largely attended. Mayor [illegible] presided and Mr. Wm. [illegible] was elected secretary pro tem. Mr. J. H. Dixon, to whom the credit is mainly due of enlisting public interest in this movement, explained the object of the institute, and the requirements necessary to secure incorporation and government grant. He stated that as soon as a declaration was made and filed that the society had $200 the government would make a grant of $400. He then moved, seconded by Mr. J. Neelands, that we form ourselves into a mechanics' institute and literary association, to be called the Lindsay Mechanics' Institute and Literary Association. The resolution was carried, and provisional officers and directors were appointed.

MARK TWAIN'S BEST JOKE.

From the Chicago Times.

That quaint and original genius, Samuel L. Clemens—Mark Twain—told a story at his own expense while breakfasting with a journalistic friend on Tuesday morning, which is too good to be lost, and which by his consent, is now published for the first time. There has been some talk at the table about the Grant banquet, when Mr. Clemens remarked with a smile and his peculiar drawl:—

"Speaking of banquets remind me of a rather amusing incident that occurred to me during my stop in smoky, dirty, grand old London. I received an invitation to attend a banquet there, and I went. It was one of those tremenduous dinners where there are from 800 to 900 guests invited. I hadn't been used to that sort of a thing, and I didn't feel quite at home. When we took our seats at the tables I noticed that at each plate was a little plan of the hall, with the position of each guest numbered, so that one could see at a glance where a friend was seated by learning his number. Just before we fell to some one—the Lord Mayor, or whoever was bossing the occasion—arose and began to read a list of those present—No. 1, Lord So-and-So; No. 2, the Duke of Something-or-other, and so on. When this individual read the name of some prominent political character or literary celebrity, it would be greeted with more or less applause. The individual who was reading the names did so in so monotonous a manner that I became tired, and began looking about for something to engage my attention. I found the gentleman next to me, on the right, a well informed personage, and I entered into conversation with him. I had never seen him before, but he was a good talker, and I enjoyed it. Suddenly, just as he was giving me his views upon the future religious aspect of Great Britain our ears were assailed by a deafening storm of applause. Such a clapping of hands I never heard before. It sent the blood to my head with a rush, and I got terribly excited. I straightened up and commenced clapping my hands with all my might. I moved about in my chair and clapped harder and harder. "Who is it?" I asked the gentleman on my right. 'Whose name did he read?'

"'Samuel L. Clemens,' he answered.

"I stopped applauding. I didn't clap any more. It kind of took the life out of me, and I sat there like a mummy and didn't even get up and bow. It was one of the most distressing fixes I ever got into, and it will be many a day before I forget it."

Not as the Poet Sings.

If the unfortunate and unhappy Kirk White were alive, it is more than probable that he would have sung his praise commencing "Come Consumption, Ghastly Throng," as the remedy for that fell disease has now been discovered. It is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. Many so called remedies have been offered to the public, but none have proved thoroughly until this preparation was given to suffering humanity. It not only relieves in every case, but in most cases permanently cures; at the same time is perfectly palatable.

THE OPERA HOUSE FIRE.

THREE LIVES LOST, AND ANOTHER MAN BADLY INJURED.

A Terrible Scene—The Caretaker with His Young Wife and Child Burned to Death—Heavy Loss of Property.

The Mail of this morning has the following:

About twenty minute past three o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the Grand Opera House building in Adelaide street. When the firemen arrived the flames had full possession of the building. The caretaker, Wright, his wife and little girl, Mamie and a young man named Thomas Scott slept in the upper part of the building. Scott jumped from a window and escaped with a broken arm. Nothing so far has been heard of the Wrights, and it is supposed that they have been burned to death. The building was erected some years ago by a stock company and was supposed to be one of the finest theatres on this continent. About three years ago it was purchased by Mr. Alexander Manning. As we go to press the building is all ablaze.

LATER PARTICULARS.

Special to the Review.

TORONTO, Nov. 29.—One of the most destructive fires that has ever taken place in Toronto broke out this morning in the Grand Opera House. The front of the building only has been saved. Robert Wright, caretaker, Mrs. Wright, aged 22, and one of their children, Mamie, aged five, who slept in a room at the top of the building, have been

BURNED TO DEATH,

and a man named Scott in attempting to save Wright got severely burned. The first alarm was sounded about three o'clock, and the firemen were soon on the scene, but were unable to save the building. It was not, however, till after hours of hard work that the front of the building was saved. A terrible scene was being enacted while the firemen were busy at their task in the room kept by the caretaker. It appears that the first warning they got of their terrible peril was the crackling of the fire and heavy smoke which rolled from the burning mass in the rear into the front apartments. Consternation seems to have the unfortunate creatures, and rendered them incapable of moving. Scott, who is a stage carpenter, and who rooms in the building was roused by the smell of smoke. He rushed round the building in all directions to find some means of escape, but there was none. He went up stairs and roused Wright, who was so terrified that he seemed not to comprehend the position he was in. Scott coaxed him to go out, but the unfortunate man, from a desire to

COMPLETELY PARALYZED

STAY BY HIS WIFE AND CHILD,

would not stir. Scott had no more time to remonstrate, and after shouting a last warning, he rushed down stairs. By this time the flames had caught the stairways, and he had a hard job to get down at all. With roaring behind him and an iron door in front of him, Scott found himself in a terrible predicament. There was no time to hesitate. As a last resource he went to one of the side windows and boldly

A GIGANTIC FURNACE

JUMPED TO THE GROUND.

In his fall one of his arms was broken and he sustained other injuries. Wright, his wife and child perished. The first of their bodies was recovered this morning and the others later. They were and unrecognizable. What with the building, the theatre and all other items, the loss cannot be much under $120,000. Daniel Bandmann, an actor, now here on an engagement for a week loses $25,000 in dresses and effects. The leading lady, Miss Bennison loses $5,000 and other actors different amounts, which go to swell the total to the sum named.

COUGH AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrible form of Pulmonary Consumption. The latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms [illegible] as soon after as possible. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

CAYUGA, ONT.

Special to the Review, Dec. 1.

CHILDREN DROWNED.—About three miles from Cayuga, on Sunday afternoon, two children of Wm. Leroy, a farmer, a boy and a girl, and a daughter of Benjamin Foster, were found drowned in a small pond near Leroy's dwelling. The pond being partially covered with ice, it is supposed that they went out for amusement and had broken through. The children's ages ranged from 6 to 14 years.

QUEBEC.

Special to the Review, Dec. 1.

CLOSE OF NAVIGATION.—The Government steamer Napoleon III, Captain Desprien, having remained in the traverse until the steamer Bellona passed down, took up the remainder of the buoys and returned to port on Saturday night. There is a large quantity of floating ice on the river.

BUTCHERS IN PRISON.—A number of butchers who were fined for selling meat without licenses are under arrest.

TORONTO.

Special to the Review Dec. 1.

BURGLARY.—The Cigar Factory of Mr. Moss, on Queen street was entered last night and four thousand of a superior quality of cigars were carried off.

HEAVY FINES.—Each of the eleven gamblers arrested on Saturday night were fined $50 and costs at the Police Court this morning.

ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOPRIC.—The report that Rt. Rev. Timothy O'Mahony of Cork, formerly Bishop of Armadale, Australia, has been appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Lynch, is not credited at the Palace, where nothing has been heard of the appointment.

HAMILTON.

Special to the Review, Dec. 1.

FALL OF A CHURCH.—For some days the walls of the new Baptist Church on James St., south, have shown signs of being in a dangerous condition, abut 9 a. m. this morning the front and north side walls, together with the roof, fell in. As the workmen had been warned by small portions falling yesterday, and early this morning there was no one in the building at the time. If it had been otherwise, there would have, no doubt, been a serious loss of life. Whoever is responsible, is being condemned on all sides for the flimsy manner in which the building was put together.

COLLINGWOOD.

Special to the Review, Dec. 1.

A ROUGH TRIP.—The steamer City of Owen Sound, of the Collingwood and Lake Superior Transit Line, arrived down from Duluth and Prince Arthur's landing on Sunday. She had a splendid run from the Sault River. She reports on the up trip having encountered the blow of Tuesday night and Wednesday on Lake Superior. She weathered outa terrible night, and until noon the next day, when Michipicoten Harbor was reached, the ice reaching half way up the truck of the mast. Lying in a sheltered position in the harbor the thermometer indicated 5° below zero. At Prince Arthur's Landing it was 10 below zero.

From the Morning Papers.

LONDON.

DELEGATES PLEASED.—The Scotch agricultural delegates passed through here on Saturday, en route from Winnipeg to Bow Park farms. They will visit Hon. David Christie, at Paris, and afterwards go to Port Elgin, returning in time to sail from Halifax on the 14th. They report Manitoba to be an excellent place for those with money. Mr. Lowe purchased 1,400 acres in that country.

BELLEVILLE

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.—When Geen's drug store, Front street, was opened on Saturday morning, it was discovered that it had been broken into during the night. A panel in the rear door, which opens into a shed, was broken in, and a plank in the outer door of the shed had been forced, thus showing how the thieves had effected an entrance. An inspection of the stock showed that seven boxes of cigars and eleven bottles of scent, together with sundry small articles had been taken. The till had also been robbed of a small amount of money. The police were at once notified, and the result of their enquiries was the arrest of two boys aged 14 years. The goods were found in a shed in rear of one of their father's residences, and the two boys, who confessed the commission of the crime, were lodged in the cells. Both of the young rascals are sons of highly respectable parents.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

STILL A PRISONER.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A despatch from Simla says it is believed that the Afghans at Herat will force Ayub to march on Candahar. Gen. Roberts will despatch a native envoy to Turkestan to represent British authority. Yakoob Khan is still held a prisoner. He is very despondent, and protests his innocence of any complicity in the massacre.

By Telegraph to the Review.

CABUL, Dec. 1.—Under instructions from the Viceroy, Yakoob Khan left Cabul to-day for Peshawur under escort, and will reach his destination in eight marches.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

HAVANA, Nov. 29.—Captain General Blanco and Lieut.-Col. Navarro, with his (Blanco's) escort and 40 cavalry volunteers, defeated and completely dispersed the Sabano Nuevas' party of insurgents under Chief Carillo. The troops killed 23 insurgents, and wounded many others. Among the wounded were two brothers of Carillo. Col. Castillo and the insurgent Bonachea were also captured.

THE BEEFSTEAK CLUB.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Mr. Labouchere's war with the Beefsteak Club seems likely to be added to the list of English causes celebres. His appeal to the Master of the Rolls has been successful. The grounds of the judgment were that the Club members could take no official cognizance of newspaper articles, that two-thirds of those actually present must have voted against him, and that fourteen days' notice, not thirteen, should have been given.

MUKHTAR NOT MURDERED.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—It is officially announced at Constantinople that the report of the assassination of Ahmed Mukhtar Pasha by Arnauts is without foundation. Mukhtar Pasha slept on Friday night at a village near Prizrend en route to Gusinje.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—There was a torchlight procession, composed of 4,000 persons, at Kilrush, county Clare, last night, which was witnessed by an immense crowd, who cheered the prisoners and O'Donovan Rossa. A great demonstration by unemployed labourers has taken place at Ballina, county Mayo. Mr. Daly, on his return to Castlebar, was received with great enthusiasm.

A BISHOP FOR TORONTO.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—His Holiness the Pope has appointed the Right Rev. Timothy O'Mahony, of Cork, coadjutor Bishop of the diocese of Toronto. The reverend Father was Bishop of Arnadale, Australia, in 1869. It is said that he comes to this diocese with administrative powers.

TWENTY PEOPLE KILLED.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Twenty-seven persons were dancing on the ground floor of a factory in course of construction at Foggia, Naples, when the two upper floors fell on them. Seven persons were extricated, but there is no hope of rescuing the others alive.

DESIRES TO ABDICATE.

SOFIA, Nov. 29.—Owing to Parliamentary disagreements Prince Alexander has informed the Czar that he desires to abdicate.

RUSSIA'S POLICY.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The conclave mentioned in a despatch a day or two since as about to transpire, has been arranged for, and will occur here on Saturday next. The Czar has left Livadia and arrived in this city yesterday. Despatches have been sent to all the Russian ambassadors at the various courts and Governments of Europe to hasten home to meet the others in consultation on the political situations. It is understood that the principal question that will come up for discussion will will be whether it should be Russia's policy to act upon the offensive and begin the struggle which is evidently impending, or wait something more definite from the other Powers. Those who assume to be in the secrets of the private opinions of the Emperor and his chief advisers, affirm that the preponderence of feeling is in favour of some immediate steps on the part of Russia, whereby she may gain an advantage by initiating the war. It is urged in some quarters that the excitement of war in the present condition of the Czar's health would be equivalent to his death warrant, and his Majesty is said to hesitate principally upon this ground.

AMERICAN.

RAILWAY CONNECTION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The Tribune says the syndicate is not compelled by the terms of its agreement to pay Vanderbilt in 4 per cents or other securities. The sale was for cash with interest, the syndicate to receive the dividends of the stock. Vanderbilt agreed to retain his remaining stock for one year. It was said that the sale of Central stock by Vanderbilt was controlled absolutely for one year by the syndicate. The absolute control of the Central road has thus passed from Vanderbilt. It is probable that less than a third of the stock will be retained in his family. It was predicted yesterday with great confidence that Vanderbilt would not again be re-elected President. There is nothing in the agreement that can compel the Wabash company to deliver its through freight to the Lake Shore and Central Roads. That company is free to arrange for an exchange of traffic with the Erie and other trunk lines to the seaboard. The fear of losing business that had brought to the Central a considerable part of its revenue compelled Vanderbilt to conciliate the Wabash interest.

A BODY SNATCHER.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 29.—Further investigations indicate that Jackson, the body-snatcher, who was arrested yesterday, has been engaged in the business for some time. The express office shows that a number of boxes has been shipped by him to different points.

DAMAGES FOR A COLLISION.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29.—The United States Commissioners reports that $18,269 is due to the libellants in the case of the French brig Briha which the British ship George Bell ran into and sank off Newfoundland in 1878. The owners of the Briha get $15,600 of the reward.

SUED FOR LIBEL.

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 29.—Mrs. E. W. Hall, daughter of the late Charles F. Hammond, Crownpoint, and sister of Congressman Hammond, sued Elisha A. Martin, President of the Merchants' National Bank, Whitehall, for alleged libel in issuing a circular stating she resorted to a dishonorable legal quibble to escape obligations for her husband's indebtedness.

REVENUE OFFICER WOUNDED.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 29.—A squad of sixteen revenue deputies raiding in Acorn and the county, were surrounded by a large force of armed mountaineers and forced to surrender a person who was alleged to be the leader of the moonshiners. The deputies surrendered without a fight, but one was wounded and left in a fence corner for dead by the mountaineers. The deputies left the county.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The newspapers of this city publish this morning, a long summary of President Hayes' message to Congress. The Times in commenting upon it, trusts that Canada will be glad to arrange a permanent settlement of the fishery disputes. The Times thinks that President Hayes is perfectly right in urging Congress to reverse the law respecting coinage of silver dollars, and hopes that the Government will learn to advance a little further.

SPANISH ROYAL MARRIAGE.

MADRID, Dec. 1.—Twelve thousand persons called upon the king and his bride at their reception yesterday. The scene was incomparably brilliant.

THE FLOW OF SPECIE.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Times discussing the President's message says if legal tender notes in circulation be cancelled, silver dollars must take their place, and the existing plethora be relieved. Further relief will come in due time from the natural action of trade. The money that has flowed in such profusion from Europe to the United States can not always remain there. Its presence will soon be felt in a rise of prices throughout the Union, and as soon as the rise has been established, a demand for European goods will follow, and the current of money from the eastern to the western shores of the Atlantic will be arrested, if not reversed. A process of this kind cannot be completed within a week or month, but its development may be anticipated.

THE BALANCE OF TRADE.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Times points out, among other evidences of the reviving capacity of Europe to counteract the adverse trade balance with the United States the sale of a million hundred weights of steel blocks for shipment to America by Krupp and others in Germany.

REFORMS IN ASIA MINOR.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 1.—Baker Pasha has stated for his past as representative of the Sultan to superintend the introduction of reforms throughout Asia Minor.

FIERCE OPPOSITION.

BALLAGHADEREEN, Dec. 1.—Fifteen thousand people attended the Irish meeting yesterday. A thousand pikemen from Sligo, Roscommon and Mayo surrounded the platform as a guard of honor. The Rev. Father Stenson presided. Father O'Hara advised the people not to pay any rent except the overplus of the years proceeds. A priest exhorted the people to fight the Government even if their leaders were imprisoned in thousands.

AN APPEAL FOR IRELAND.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—An appeal from Cardinal Manning to alleviate the distress in Ireland was read in all the Roman Catholic Churches of the metropolis yesterday. It stated that in the west of Ireland such hunger, poverty, and want had not been known since the great Irish famine.

AMERICAN.

A YOUNG WIFE'S SUICIDE.

BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 1.—Minnie, wife of G. Herzog, a restaurant keeper, committed suicide by taking morphine. She had been married only two months and suspected her husband's infidelity.

BICYCLE RACE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The six day bicycle race, between English and American teams, was won by the Englishmen.

INDIANS WANTED.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Indian Agent at Pine Ridge, Dakota, received a letter from Columbus, Ind., offering employment to Sitting Bull and eight or ten of his braves during the coming summer by exhibiting them. The writer offers to take some Utes if he cannot have Sitting Bull.

NEPHEW AND UNCLE.

SHIELDSTOWN, Tenn., Dec. 1.—Edward Day, aged 15, went on an errand to the house of his uncle, Thomas Day, yesterday. He was ordered out and struck with a shovel. The boy warned his uncle not to repeat the blow, and on its repetition stabbed him fatally. Edward Day has been arrested.

A YOUNG HOMICIDE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Eugene Leonard, aged 9, was arrested yesterday, charged with killing his playmate, Solomon Cohen, on Nov. 18th, by throwing him down stairs.

TERRIBLE DEATH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Bernard Wurm on Saturday was handling carboys containing nitric acid when one exploded. He died yesterday from inhaling the fumes.

RISE OF SECURITIES.

The President of the Newark Savings Bank, which suspended a year ago, states that the securities held by the bank have since advanced over a million, and the bank will soon be able to pay a hundred per cent.

SHOT ON THE STREET.

John H. Donaghy was shot on the street in Brooklyn early yesterday morning by Allen Market. Market claims that he was firing at robbers, who attacked him. Donaghy's condition is critical.

DEATH OF A GENERAL.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—General Jeff C. Davis died yesterday, aged 52. He caught cold at the Army of Cumberland reunion at Washington and died of pneumonia.

THE TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—A Washington special report to the World says that a scheme to place the telegraphs under Government control will be presented in Congress. The real motive is to continue the fight against the Western Union.

STEALING THE MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Sun says:—Publication of the President's message in advance, created considerable excitement. Hayes is very angry, and the entire force of the secret service is here endeavoring to discover the thief.

MEETING OF CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Senate was called to order by the Vice-President at noon. A committee was appointed to join a similar committee of the House to wait upon the President and inform him that Congress was ready to receive his communication. The House was called to order at noon and the roll was called, when 263 members answered, leaving fifty-six absentees. The debt statement shows a decrease in November of $79,062,313.

THE OTTAWA BANQUET.

THE banquet given to the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald and his colleagues at Ottawa on Thursday evening last was certainly, as a political demonstration, never surpassed, if ever equalled in this Dominion. The number in attendance actually exceeded the number provided for, while every province in the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, had its representatives among the number which assembled to do honor to the man who has been not only a prominent figure in Canadian politics for more than a quarter of a century, but under whose guiding hand Canada has risen, almost Phœnix-like, from the ashes of the old and unimportant provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, to the Dominion of to-day—to a nation extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and within whose confines even our Southern neighbors are forced to admit is to be found three-fourths of the wheat-fields of the American continent—the chief granary of the world. It has been too truly said that every rung of the him more and more the target for the venomous political ladder which a man ascends only makes shafts of opponents, who can only hope to rise on the ruin of others, and certainly the career of Sir John Macdonald has been the reverse of an exception to this rule. Maligned and traduced, as perhaps no man ever was before, he is, in spite of all, more popular and more beloved to-day than ever. Indeed, the very detraction and vilification of his opponents, and his temporary banishment from power, has only served to add lustre to his name, and to teach the people of Canada in the bitter school of experience, how invaluable is his guiding hand at the helm of state, how much they owe to him, and how far ahead he is of those who so bitterly assail him, both as a politician and a private individual.

Not only were the numbers present, all that the most ardent admirers of the Government could have desired, but everything else was in keeping therewith. The decorations of the Ottawa skating rink were a marvel of taste, and reflected infinite credit on the willing and loving hands who had discharged the duty allotted to them, while the speeches of Sir John and his colleagues were eloquent and happy in the extreme. With such an array of speakers, it was no wonder that notwithstanding that condensation and briefness was as the watchword of the coming they lasted from nine o'clock in the evening until four o'clock in the morning, or that they will leave room for the carping critics whose business it is to find fault, to complain that matters untouched were not referred to. But upon those who read them, and especially those who heard them, such carping criticism will fall like water on a duck's back. They will only remember how Sir John made every word carry a world of meaning to his hearers—especially to those who are familiar with the political events of the last twenty-five years. How in a single sentence he laid an opponent low, and how he crystalized into a dozen words, an effective reply to the vaporings of his opponents about the N.P. being designed to cut the golden bond of commerce with the motherland, and at the same time, denouncing any attempt to draw the bond closer, as a killing of our own industries, by declaring that the policy of his Government was, "as between English manufacturers and American manufacturers, we prefer English manufacturers. But as between the English manufacturers and the Canadian manufacturers, we prefer Canadian." That was putting their policy in a nutshell, and in a form which will tax all the ingenuity of the Globe, to prove either inconsistant or unbritish. Indeed, we venture the prediction, that such will soon be the principal of the policy of the Empire, as well as of Canada. But space fails us in the attempt to give even the briefest outline of Sir John's speech—it cannot be condensed, because it is itself a condensation, and the same may be said of the speeches of both Sir Leonard Tilley and Sir Charles Tupper.

The first took up one by one the objections urged by the Opposition against the N. P., and proved from actual experience that every one of them were without foundation, while the latter dealt with Mr. Mackenzie's recent Tilsonburg speech in a manner which demolished his arguments by proving them to be unfounded in fact and clinched the whole by declaring that notwithstanding Mr. Mackenzie claimed to be an economical Minister, he would be able to show when Parliament meets that the expenses of the Intercolonial Railway had been decreased to the extent of $200,000 per annum while its business had increased. But of these matters more anon.

THE TORONTO & OTTAWA RAILWAY.

ON Friday last three different by-laws granting aid to this important undertaking were submitted to popular vote, and every one carried, viz.:—Marmora, $10,000; Madoc village, $5,000, and Elzevir, $12,000, or a total of $27,000. It is true neither the amounts nor the majorities by which they have been carried are large, but notwithstanding, these votes are important, inasmuch as these municipalities are already heavily taxed for the Belleville schemes, and the by-laws received the strenuous opposition of both the Belleville and Grand Trunk interests.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—The December number of Harper opens with an interesting account of the various members of the Bonaparte family. "The New York School," and its success are described in a graphic manner. Accounts of "The City of Atlanta," of "Old Days in New London," of the "Palestine of To-day," and of "The Connemara Hills," introduce the reader pleasantly to the various localities named. There are further instalments of the three excellent serial tales, "White Wings," "Young Mrs. Jardine," and "Mary Anerley." There is also an interesting short tale of "Thanksgiving Day," and several poems of merit; "London's Glory and Whittington's Renown," being the fac simile of a manuscript in the British Museum. The numerous illustrations are even more attractive than usual, and the editorial miscellanies maintain their well-deserved reputation.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

EGGS boiled soft are more nutritious than raw eggs; but if a person could really eat raw meat it would prove more nutritious than cooked meat, because a portion of the goodness, or richness, of the meat goes out of it through the process of cooking. Thus the more meat is cooked the less nutritious it becomes.

WEDDING cake should be sent to intimate friends, or to any with whom your are desirous of keeping up a correspondence; cake and cards and white bows and the rest of it; but if there be any with whom you do not wish to continue an acquaintance be careful not to include them in this courtesy. All single friendships die out when the lady or gentleman marries, and must, if sought, be renewed by their attention.

PUTTING AN EGG IN A BOTTLE.—To accomplish this seemingly incredible act requires the following preparation:—You must take an egg and soak it in vinegar, and in process of time its shell will become quite soft, so that it may be extended lengthwise without breaking; then insert it into the neck of a small bottle, and on pouring cold water on it, it will assume its former figure and hardness. This is really a curiosity, and baffles those who are not in the secret to find out how it is accomplished.

BEEF STEAK.—I think there is noway of cooking beef steak like the following:—Pound, it, if you choose, but it is not necessary. Place it in a frying pan over not too hot a fire, and let it steam, having it covered closely. Do not add any water. After half an hour, or more, remove the cover, salt; add a good lump of butter, and fry until done. Care must be taken not to burn it while frying.

SOUP.—The richness of soups, should depend upon the stock, that is, the jelly obtained by boiling the meat, and not at all upon the fat, which should be carefully removed. Many people would as soon think of eating a tallow candle, as soup with grease floating on top. It seems fully as palatable to a civilized palate. All sorts of vegetables may be added to the soup, according to the taste of those who are to eat of it. Onions are extremely disagreeable to many people, and turnips are to others. The vegetables are chopped fine and boiled till well done. Soup may be thickened with rice, barley or vermicelli.

INK ON THE CARPET.—Ink freshly spilled upon the carpet should at once be taken up with soft paper or a slightly damp sponge, or even a damp cloth, care being exercised not to spread the spot. After all this is taken up that can be wet the sponge—after first washing it clean—in warm water, and thoroughly scrub the spot on the carpet. When no more can be washed out, wet the sponge with a weak solution of oxalic acid, and, after a few moments, wash off the cold water, and finally sponge with a weak ammonia water, to neutralize any of the acid that may remain in the carpet.

EXCELLENT GLYCERINE OINTMENT.—A very good preparation of glycerine to have always on hand, can be readily prepared by any apothecary or druggist: In two ounces of sweet oil of almonds melt, by a slow heat, half an ounce of spermaceti, and one drachm of white wax. Then add one ounce of good glycerine, stirring until cold. When cold, scent it by stirring in well a little oil of roses. Keep in small jars or small wide-necked bottles. In hot weather keep closely corked, as it sometimes gets a little rancid if long exposed to warmth. Half or a fourth of the above quantities may be used. Every drug store should keep a jar of it, and recommend its use. It is excellent for softening the skin, for most injured skin surfaces that are not open sores, for chafed places, for moistening corns or callused feet or toes, and especially for chapped face, lips, or hands. When the hands are chapped or cracked, or roughened by cold, wash them clean with soap, and rub them well with this glycerine ointment, wiping it off enough to prevent soiling clothing. If this is done at night, the hands will be soft and in good condition in the morning, except when deeply cracked. It is very good to apply to the hands after "washing-day." This is an excellent preparation to use by those afflicted with the distressing trouble known as hæmorrhoids or piles.

STEAM CANAL TOWING.

The Springfield Republican says:—Steam power for towing has at last been applied on the Erie canal in a satisfactory and substantial manner. A steam tug which left Buffalo on Monday morning made the ninety-six miles to Rochester, with five boats bearing 1,200 tons of grain in tow, in thirty-nine hours, at least twenty-four hours quicker than has been possible by animal power. This is the greatest distance that has been covered by the new system, but its success is assured beyond question. Another season is likely to witness the substitution of steam for horse power throughout the entire length of canals, 345 miles. The method of applying the steam power for towing, which has proved to be perfectly adapted to the requirements of the case, is the well-known and simple Belgian cable system, long in use on the continent of Europe. Its feature is a wire rope, seven-eights of an inch in diameter, extending along the bottom of the canal, which the tug picks up as it progresses, and passes over a wheel. It is a sort of overhand pulling, and affords an average speed more than one-third greater than the animal towing, besides enormously increasing the amount of a single tow. The system was first tried on the Erie six or seven years ago, and has since been in use for a short distance at the west end of the canal, so that its value is proved by thorough experience. In 1872, the New York Steam Cable Towing Company was granted the exclusive right to tow by the Belgian system on the State canals. An entirely new enterprise requiring so much capital has been rather difficult to launch during the late season of depression. Its future now seems to be safe however, and its projector and moving spirit, Emerson Foote, who is well known in this city, is likely to be well rewarded for his long and devoted service in its interests.

WOMAN'S HAND.

The female thumb is said to be an important index of the female character. Women with large thumbs are held by phrenologists, physiognomists, &c., to be more than ordinarily intelligent—what are called sensible women—while women with small thumbs are regarded as romantic. According to certain authors, who profess to have been observers, a woman's hand is more indicative of a woman's character than her face, as the latter is to a certain extent under the control of temporary emotions, or of the will, whereas the former is a fact which exists for any one who understands it to profit by. Consequently, a few hints about the proper reading of a woman's hand may be very useful to certain of our readers, especially married men, or men contemplating matrimony. Women with square hands and small thumbs are said to make good and gentle housewives. These sort of women will make any man happy who is fortunate enough to win them. They are not all romantic, but they are what is better—thoroughly domestic. Women with very large thumbs have a "temper" of their own, and generally a long tongue. There is a hint in this to a lover. Let him, the first time he seizes hold of his mistress's hand, examine, under some pretext, or another, her thumb; and if it be large, let him make up his mind that as soon as he becomes a married man he will have to be a good boy, or else there will be the very deuce to pay. Again, if a young man finds that his lady-love has a large palm, with cone-shaped fingers and a small thumb, let him thank his stars—for in that case she is susceptible to tenderness, readily flattered, easily talked into, or talked out of anything, and can be readily managed. But if she is a woman with a square hand, well proportioned, and only a tolerably-developed thumb, why, then, she is either one of two distinct classes of women—she is either a practical female who will stand no nonsense, or she is a designing female; she is a woman who cannot be duped, or a woman who will dupe him.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

Sermon Preached by The Rev. Alex. Bell at St. Andrew's Church.

On Sunday evening, being St. Andrew's Day, the Rev. Mr. Bell preached a sermon to the members of the St. Andrew's Society. The Rev. gentleman spoke from the text:

"Who is my neighbour?"—Luke X. 29.

After a brief introduction, in which Jesus' wisdom in dealing with cavillers and objectors was the subject of remark, the preacher observed that the surroundings of the question under consideration was a case in point to afford a good illustration.

Three points were then noted:

I. The circumstances out of which the question "Who is my Neighbour?" arose.

II. Jesus' answer to the question.

III. The practical lessons to be drawn from the subject.

Under the first head it was shown how a self-righteous lawyer among the Jews came on purpose either to ensnare Jesus or silence Him by testing the character or the extent of his knowledge, and how, satisfied with his own attainments, and with no misgivings as to the result of an exchange of ideas with Jesus, he put the question: "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" and was immediately by Jesus' double query: "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" thrown back upon his own knowledge to find an answer to his own question. Instead of the lawyer testing Jesus, Jesus tested him by drawing from him his interpretation of the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, with all thy strength, with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." Jesus at once replied "Thou hast answered right, this do and thou shalt live." Thus the lawyer was led to see that his self-confidence had no foundation; that notwithstanding all his knowledge, his life fell far short of the standard of his own teaching, and that all his ability and wisdom, however well directed, could never reach the pure, whole soul mind and strength service which the law required. But, unwilling to admit conviction, and ready as before to justify himself, and hoping, perhaps, to get out of the snare which he laid for Jesus, but in which he now felt himself seriously entangled, he ignores the claims of the first command, love to God, and strives to raise a cavil on the second about love to his neighbour. His fancied strength of knowledge and place has fairly broken down. The conviction of defeat and shame is stealing over him, but his proud spirit will confess to neither one nor other, and with a kind of half defiant challenge to Jesus to point out wherein he had failed to keep the law or do his duty, he asks: "And who is my neighbour?"

Jesus' answer to this question was what is known as the parable of the Good Samaritan, but which, it was remarked, may actually have taken place, and the facts and circumstances still fresh in the public memory, and well known to the lawyer whom Jesus addressed. The bare narrative by Jesus in which the conduct of the Priest and the Levite to the robbed and wounded half-dead man is contrasted with the action of the Samaritan, it was shown, was too clear to be misunderstood, and by it the proud doctor, to Jesus' question: "Which now of the three, thinkest thou was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?" was forced to answer: "He that showed mercy upon him."

The lawyer's humiliation was now complete. When he first approached Jesus he was proud of his attainments, and confident that he had merited eternal life by his obedience, but now his self-righteous hopes are broken and he stands humbled under a clear sense of his ignorance and the clearer conviction that so far from having kept the law he had never yet fairly understood it. The dark veil of prejudice that had hitherto limited all brotherly regard to his own kindred and race was rent, and the duty of benevolence shown to be imperative wherever the need demands. The cloak of self-righteous superiority and exclusiveness which had long been that lawyer's boast was proved to be nothing but the moth-eaten garment of a blind and illiberal fancy, which the spirit of the law so far from supporting wholly condemned. Neither the line of blood nor the accident of colour has any right to limit a neighbour's claims. They are too narrow for the broad requirement of the law—and wide as the need of our common nature may demand—wide as the love cherished in our hearts for our own safety—wide as the desire that others of whatever name or race or color should treat us kindly when distressed and helpless, Jesus here throws open the door of duty, and pointing to the ever widening field for the exercise of benevolence beyond, as to the lawyer then, so now to us, His order is, "Go and do thou likewise."

The lessons,—First, the sin of self-righteousness.

The law requires us to love God with all our hearts and our neighbour as ourselves, and as the law cannot be satisfied with anything short of a perfect obedience, and as no man is able to serve God constantly every day, every hour, and every moment of his life, and to the full extent of all his powers, without lack or failure, in thought, word or deed, by the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in God's sight. For one failure the law brings down its curse upon both head and heart of the offender, so that the man who builds up a hope for himself on the blamelessness of his life—on his own good deeds, or the good deeds of his fathers, is guilty of the worst of all folly—sin against his own soul.

Second,—The true character of Christian benevolence. Grace does not recognise the boundaries set to kingdoms, and the limits of races, the restrictions of men, or the accidents of clime or color, and in its workings it cannot be confined [illegible]. The world is its field, and all classes and [illegible] its subjects, and for them all, it has but one law of brotherhood, "God your father," "all ye are brethren therefore, love one another as I have loved you." Then, wherever grace reigns—wherever Christian love prompts the action—the distinctions of nation, creed or race ought to be forgotten, and the lines which divide sect and party should have no influence in determining either the objects of our charity or the amounts bestowed. Christian charity takes in all mankind, and the more brightly it burns and shines the less shall be heard of those low narrowdences which sects and creeds erect to protect themselves against one another's encroachments, and behind which those of the same nationality or party too frequently entrench themselves, thinking only of their own and caring only for their own. The kindnesses confined to those of our own kindred or creed are like the small hand lamps of men—their usefulness is limited and their light easily extinguished, and readily refused to any one not a special friend—while the Christian grace is like the sun in the sky which visits all lands, and leaping over defences and boundaries and well guarded lines, blesses all people, and without distinction of name or race shines on friend or foe, on both the "evil and the good." The helpless enemy and the helpless friend get alike the benefit of its strength—the help of its arm—the shelter of its house—the bounty of its store and the rich gifts of its good will. It is of God and like God, so that wherever the cry, the groan, the prayer of distress is heard it is there, and a tender heart is ever ready to direct the action of a willing and a liberal hand. Such are the teaching and the lessons which surround the question, "Who is my neighbour?" and given by Jesus himself."

Permit me now, before we close, a few words on the occasion—the anniversary of St. Andrew's Society, the members of which I understand all claim to have the one country as their birthplace, all Scotchmen. Six characters have come before us in the preceding remarks, namely: Jesus, the Lawyer, the Wounded Man, the Priest, the Levite and the Samaritan. It might not be out of keeping with what has often happened elsewhere on such occasions, if we tried, but we don't intend to prove to you that any of those characters named was a Scotchman. Last year it was solemnly gone through in a pulpit in Toronto, and several considerations were advanced to show that St. Andrew himself was a Scotchman, and we have heard of another case in which it was attempted to establish Scotland's claim to David the sweet singer and King of Israel. We don't intend to put your intelligence to any such a test as these cases indicate. We don't know how far those preachers succeeded either to their own satisfaction or in convincing the people, and we are not in the least inclined to follow them; but the question here naturally arises, is the thing worth having that needs such advocacy and must be supported by such pleading? Patriotism is no sin—love of one's country is honorable, and in the glory of the noble deeds of her sons, which have elevated her and given her an honored place in history, fellow-countrymen have a right to share, and when they follow in the footsteps of those noble fathers, they may sing of them and their deeds with pride. But when patriotism descends to the mere accident of a country being a man's birth place, when the bare fact of birth within a certain limit of God's earth, is taken as a mark of superiority and a right to be exclusive, and that notion is carried about and asserted to the offence and perhaps to the injury of others equally as good and worthy, then it becomes a mere ignorant cry, that might well find its counterpart in the spirit of that man who willing to justify himself for neglect and halting, asked: "Who is my neighbor?" Do not misunderstand me, my remarks apply to all national societies like your own. The man who has no love for his country, and for fear of shame is afraid to acknowledge his birth place, has not many noble qualities about him. When a man's country is attacked or defamed, let him by all means defend her. When her sons are spoken of unworthily, let him take their part and wipe out the blot if in his power; but when the thing is carried about and made the basis of a combination for any purpose, and asserted with occasion or without it, it becomes a breeder of offences, a nourisher of distinctions and prejudices, which ought to be buried, and which, when retained, cannot fail to hinder the union of any people, and as a consequence the progress and prosperity of the community in which they exist. In the light of experience the question might be fairly discussed whether some of these societies have not fulfilled their day, and whether they do more good by the dispensing of their gifts, or more evil by their exclusive workings, the fostering of prejudices, and their annual examples. But the Jews were intensely national and exclusive and we have a good example, one might say. True the Jews were national, their law required them to be so, for their nation was their church, but when Jesus threw down the barriers of Canaan and upturned the order of Moses, the exclusiveness of the Jews was thrown down also, and we, because of the barriers broken, have stepped into their inheritance, and the one law "whosoever," black or white, Jew or Greek, whosoever believeth is for all. It was not because of birth inside a prescribed bounds that the Jew loved his country. No, it was because of the promise, the altar, the ark, and the Holy Place. These he could not get any where else, and it was because of his love for these—his church—that he was national. And you, of St. Andrew's Society, sons of Scotland, if you love your country for anything above its being your birth place, is it not because of something special in connection with your church? Your Knoxes, your Flemings, your Melvilles, your Renwicks, and the fortitude and the bravery that maintained psalm singing in glens and caves, when houses for meeting in were denied the worshippers, and the blood shed on moor and scaffold for your covenant, and the liberty of your religion thus secured. For that church—the church of Christ—once the glory of your land, but not now peculiarly your own—be as strong as you please. Her rights, privileges and worship are not confined to any land, and if you are true sons, worthy of right worthy sires, there is field enough for you in this land, and you, if of a superior race, should hold the honour of a superior place, and be foremost in the working for, most liberal in supporting, and most frequent in helping forward the church, without which the glory of your nationality becomes dim, and your strength of [illegible] loses all its rocky firmness, and becomes yielding as a bed of sand. In the spirit of that church dispense your kindness. If you only provide for your own, "What thanks have ye?" Why not rise up to the higher and nobler place? Why not choose the better way? Why take a Jewish lawyer's verdict for your guidance before the judgment of the Lord? and why not give the oil and the wine to the distressed and the needy, instead of under the mask of "a cup of kindness," taking it all to yourselves? One fly spoils the ointment. A very doubtful one was crushed and banished from your celebration two years ago. I regret to see it announced as revived and returned. Beware of its influence. Its presence gives occasion to doubt. Cherish it as in days past, and in one night the savor of a year's work is gone, and not only that, but a fearful mark of blight left on all future effort. Banish it, and let its cost feed some of the hungry and needy poor of our town, and while you make the sacrifice, you can think with satisfaction of such words as these:—"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me."

A Remarkable Emigration.

A correspondent of the Florence Gazette d'Italia, writing from Funchal, in the Island of Madeira, notices a remarkable emigration now going out from that island. A few years ago a small number of natives of Madeira made their way to the Sandwich Islands, and were delighted to find there a climate and scenery very similar to what they had left in their old homes. Their letters induced others to follow, until at last the movement has reached considerable proportions. The causes of the migration are on the one hand the increasing poverty among the inhabitants of Madeira, growing out of repeated failures of the wine crop, and on the other, the fertile soil of the Hawaian Archipelago, the abundance of room for new settlers, and the encouragement held out to immigrants by the Government, which is anxious to check the steady decrease in the population by bringing in a new element of industrious and fruitful people.

The Heaviest, Tallest and Oldest Men.

The tallest men of whom record is made were a German named Hans Bar and a Hungarian soldier, name not given, who lived several centuries ago, each of them being 11 feet high; their weight is not known. The heaviest man of whom record is made was Miles Darden, the Tennessee giant, who was seven and one half feet high and weighed over 1,000 pounds; he died in 1857. Daniel Lambert, the English "mass of flesh," was five feet eleven inches in height, and weighed 739 pounds. In 1566 there was buried at Bengal, India, a man named Cagna, who claimed to be 350 years of age. The oldest person who died during the present century was a Frenchman in Paris, named Jean Golembeski, who was 120 years old. A man named David Kurrison died in Chicago in 1851, who claimed to be 116 years old.—Exchange.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscreation." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. To pass from poverty to wealth is only changing misery, but to pass from illness to health is like flying from this world to paradise. Many aged people who are troubled with derangements of the urinary organs would find relief by using Victoria Buchu and Uva Ursi, which is prepared expressly to meet their cases and cure diseases of the urinary system. $1 per bottle.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

New Post Office.

A new post named Gelert has been opened in the Township of Snowdon.

I. O. G. T.

There will be a meeting of Peterborough Lodge No. 240, I. O. G. T., in the hall on Water Street this (Monday) evening. Members and visitors will please remember that the hour for meeting is half-past seven o'clock.

Wanted!

Will the the person who left a copy of Saturday's issue of the DAILY EVENING REVIEW in the front door entrance to this office, please call at our sanctum. We so highly appreciate his thoroughness, that we would like to thank him for all his trouble, and the lesson it was calculated to give.

An Ice Accident.

Yesterday, Sunday, a young French boy, ventured upon the ice on the Little Lake to have a slide, when he met with a fall and cut his face. Clapping his hand to his head, he started for home on a full run, greatly frightened. It was impossible to ascertain who the boy was, owing to his haste to reach his home.

57th Peterborough Rangers.

The Canada Gazette, of Saturday, contains the following changes in the 57th:—

No. 6 COMPANY, HASTINGS.—To be Lieutenant, provisionally:—Thomas R. Learmouth, Gentleman, vice John Mason, left limits.

2nd Lieutenant Henry Blake Morton being reported as not having done duty with the Company for the past four years, his name is hereby removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia.

Monday's Market.

The market was very light to-day. Several parcels of spring wheat were taken for shipping at $1.16. Wood was abundant, with no change in price to note. A few loads of hay found ready sale at $6.00. Two or three loads of straw were taken at quotations. There was no butter in worth mentioning. Monday's market is generally the poorest of any during the week.

Real Estate Sale.

On Saturday, November 27th, Mr. Charles Stapleton, Auctioneer, sold parcel No. 1, of the O'Connell farm, comprising five acres of Lot No. 33, in the 12th concession of the township of Douro, for $512.50. Mr. J. Welsh became the purchaser. It is said to be eligibly situated for building purposes, being located near the Smith Street Bridge, over the Otonabee river.

Curious Incident.

Yesterday afternoon a young man walking up George Street above Sperry's mill, noticed a goose flapping its wings in a vain endeavour to extricate itself from the ice on the river in which it was frozen. The young man made his way out on the ice and tried to free the goose, but failing in this, he broke the ice on which it was standing and carried goose and ice to the shore.

The Cold Snap and the River.

The cold snap of the last two days has again closed the river, which at all slack points has frozen over, as well as the Little Lake and the several dams. This morning they were covered with about an inch and a half of snow which fell during Sunday night. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock the thermometer indicated 35° with a moderate south-westerly wind, making the ice very dangerous to venture upon.

Started up Again.

The Hamilton Agricultural Works, on George street, corner of King, which have been shut down for three weeks, making repairs, adding improvements, taking stock, and making extensive preparations for another season's business, started up this morning, with a full force of their old hands. These important and extensive agricultural works, will not shut down again this winter. It is expected that they will continue in full operation until after the harvest of next year. This will be gratifying news to the people of Peterborough.

The Curling and Skating Rink.

Every preparation has been made for flooding the rink and Mr. Stewart expects to flood it to-day. The moderating of the temperature interfered greatly with the work, but all the important changes to be made at the rink have been completed. The new entrances from the ladies' and gentlemen's reception rooms to the platform are an important improvement. Another change for the better is being made, that of erecting a partition across the passage way, forming a vestibule with a ticket office on each side close to the main entrance. This will be highly appreciated by the frequenters of the rink, as there will be no more standing outside to freeze while purchasing tickets.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: strong southerly to westerly winds; partly cloudy, mild weather, with showers of rain or snow in northern Ontario, followed by colder north-westerly to northerly winds to-morrow. Peterborough—Sunday—clear and cold north-westerly wind, changing to southwesterly, and moderating towards evening. There was a fall of one and a half inches of snow during the night. To-day, clear to partly cloudy, warmer weather, the thermometer indicating at twelve o'clock, 40°. The snow of last night has all disappeared, and the roads and streets have been muddy throughout the day.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

We are again standing upon the eve of the celebration of St. Andrew's Day: It is an occasion dear to the hearts of Scotsmen the world over; and whilst its recurrence may serve to remind all of the rapidity and certainty with which time performs its revolutions, it enables us also to review the incidents of the year past, and to prepare by suitable plans for vigorous work in the future. How many changes have taken place since the last anniversary of St. Andrew's Day it is difficult if not painful to enumerate. In the St. Andrew's Societies themselves there are presented many marked alterations. Some of those who have taken an active part in their management have succumbed to disease or death; and whilst constant additions have been made to the roll or membership many a tear has been dropped over the removal of old standard-bearers, who had borne the burden and heat of the day. In other cases there have been reverses of fortune, and not a few who at one time never dreamed of being the recipients of charity have thankfully received the aid so generously and wisely offered by the St. Andrew's Societies.

In this respect the value of the societies is specially tested; and it is impossible to review their records in the past without perceiving to what a large extent they have been and may be made useful. In the annual reports of these societies a beautiful picture is portrayed of generosity and sympathy. They furnish abundant proof of the efforts which are made every year, and in almost every place, to exemplify the motto of Scotland's patron saint—to relieve the distressed. Through these societies many a weary heart has been cheered, and many a desolated home has been supplied with the comforts of life. The hapless wanderer has been aided in his journey in search of work and friends. A decent burial has been provided for some of those who otherwise would have been left to the care of strangers. Many a widow and orphan, in the bitterness of their overwhelming loss, when their bread-winner and support had been suddenly smitten down, have here found refuge and help; and thus by words of sympathy and deeds of kindness the St. Andrew's Societies have aided in lessening the sum of human woe, and in fulfilling Heaven's noblest work.

In the record of these generous acts there is ground for congratulation. Not in the proud, boasting spirit of the Pharisee, but under a genuine sentiment of humanity, toned and invigorated by the influence of the Christian religion, the patrons of St. Andrew's Societies can rejoice that they have given of their substance to those of their brethren who are in need, and that in doing this they have followed the example of St. Andrew himself. In this is to be found one of the highest aims and noblest services of the St. Andrew's Societies. On this ground they appeal directly to the sympathy and support of humanity. Nothing is more beautiful and attractive than the manifestation of an intensely human feeling.

The social element is naturally allied with this, and springing out of it, again, is the feeling of national love, or patriotic zeal. No people in the world are more eminent for their national attachments and sympathies than the Scotch. Their patriotic ardour equals, if it does not exceed, that of the old Roman patriots whose proud boast it was that they were citizens of Rome. In whatever part of the world their lot may be cast the Scottish people revel in the recollections of their native land. With glowing pride they recount its deeds of prowess, and eulogise its hero-warriors. The poetry of its bards enkindles their warmest enthusiasm, and the music of the bag-pipes still sends a thrill of joy through their souls. Wherever Scotchmen meet, they will fraternize with each other. They have a oneness of nature, and a oneness of sympathy; and in the development of that they form their national associations, and are sometimes exposed to the reproach of what the people of other nations characterise as clannishness. This in reality is but a higher form in which their patriotic feeling is manifested; and as thus united and inspired Scotchman the world over are ever found ready to sacrifice themselves for the country's good, whilst they glory in the heritage which their forefathers, from Wallace and Bruce to Knox, Burns and Scott have handed down to them by such wealth of genius, and treasures of blood.

In these matters Scotland is rich in its position. No country is so highly favoured. It can boast of natural attractions unrivalled by those of any other country on earth; and, as richer far than even these, it glories in a treasure of unspeakable worth in the love, and faith, and devotion of its people, whether these luxuriate in the sunny south, or brave the rigour of the climate in the frozen north. On St. Andrew's Day all the traditions of the past are revived, and as they reflect their lustre on the historic page they leave an impress on the mind which prompts the Scots of the present to emulate the heroism of their ancestors in the past. This is one of the useful purposes to which the celebrations on St. Andrew's Day are devoted, and if for this alone the national customs of that day are worthy to be perpetrated, and, in all places, to be reverently observed.—Scottish American Journal.

Hygienic Effects of Sea and Mountain Air.

This is the time of year when many families leave their homes in the city for the more invigorating mountain or seashore air, anxious to go where they may derive the most health giving benefit, and still are undecided which way they will go, to the mountains or seaside. To such persons the following extract from a certain work by Dr. C. Alberto, a celebrated Italian physician may be an aid in helping them to decide:—"The marine air," says the learned doctor, "produces the same benefit as that of the mountain, but each has a different modus efficiendi; the former acts more forcibly and energeticaly on the constitution which contains some robustness and internal resources to profit by it, while the second acts gently, with slower efficacy, being thereby more suitable to the weaker and less excitable organizations. From this important distinction, the conscientious physician who takes the safety of his patients much to heart ought to be able to discriminate whether the alpine or the marine atmosphere is the better suited to the case he has before him."

HAPPINESS OF THE NEWLY MARRIED.

It is the happiest and most virtuous state of society in which the husband and wife set out together, make their property together, and with perfect sympathy of souls graduate all their expenses, plans, calculations, and desires, with reference to their present means and to their future and common interest. Nothing delights me more than to enter the neat little tenement of the young people, who, within perhaps two or three years, without any resources, but their own knowledge or industry, have joined heart and hand, and engage to share together the responsibilities, duties, interests, trails, and pleasures of life. The industrious wife is cheerfully employing her own hands in domestic duties, putting her house in order, or mending her husband's clothes, or preparing the dinner; whilst perhaps the little darling sits prattling on the floor or lies sleeping in the cradle, and everything seems preparing to welcome the happiest of husbands and the best of fathers, when he shall come home from his toil to enjoy the sweets of his little paradise. This is the true domestic pleasure. Health, contentment, love, abundance and bright prospects are all here. But it has become a prevalent sentiment that a man must acquire his fortune before he marries—that a wife must have no sympathy nor share with him in the pursuit of it—in which most of the pleasure truly consists—and the young married people must set out with as large and expensive an establishment as is becoming those who have been married for twenty years. This is very unhappy; it fills the community with bachelors, who are waiting to make their fortunes, endangering virtue and promoting vice; it destroys the true economy and design of the domestic institution, and it promotes idleness and inefficiency among females, who are expecting to be taken up by fortune, and passively sustained without any care or concern on their part; and thus many a wife becomes, as a gentleman once remarked, not a "help-mate," but a "help-eat."—Winslow.

THE VOICE.

Socrates divined the quality of a man's voice, mind or soul by the tone of his voice, and all students remember his expression, "Speak that I may see you." Dr. Durant explains character by voice and tells us these facts:—

We perceive in a stutterer one that is easily enraged, and as easily pacified, vain, officious, inconstant and ordinarily quick. A person whose utterance is thick and coarse, is malicious, cunning and disdainful.

A coarse voice indicates a robust physique, a great talker, quick tempered, though conspicuously discreet.

A piercing, fine or weak voice is indicative of timidity, cunning, and generally of quick wit.

An attractive and clear voice expresses a man who is prudent, sincere and ingenuous, but proud and in credulous; whereas, a firm voice, without harshness, denotes a person who is robust, intelligent, circumspect and benevolent.

A man possessing a trembling and hesitating voice is timid, weak, vain and sometimes jealous.

A voice combining great sound and firmness indicates a man who is strong, audacious, rash, obstinate and self important.

A sharp and rude voice in singing as well as in conversation, denotes a course mind, inferior judgment and strong appetites.

A hoarse voice, seemingly the effect of a cold, signifies a person more simple than wise, credulous and untruthful, vain and inconstant.

A full and sweet voice denotes a man who is peaceful, inclined to timidity, discreet and self willed.

A voice at first grave and then sharp and piercing, denotes the quick temper of an impetuous, arrogant and impedent man.

A soft, sweet voice is found in a person of a peaceable and suitable character.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

To give stoves a good polish after blackening them rub with a piece of Brussels carpet.

HALF a pint of buttermilk contains as much nutriment, and is as sustaining a beverage, as many gallons of beer.

To make good starch, after you have boiled it, put a small piece of butter and a teaspoonful of sugar in it and the gloss is obtained.

CHARCOAL has been discovered to be a cure for burns. By laying a piece of cold charcoal upon a burn the pain subsides immediately. By leaving the charcoal on one hour the wound is healed.

SALT should always be put in the last thing in any soup, stew, or fricasse, when milk is used, as it is apt to curdle. Oysters should never be boiled, but only scalded, as it makes them tough and shrinks them all up. If they are to be stewed heat them hot, but don't boil them; always have the soup or gravy hot.

IN making pearl barley pudding, put a quarter of a pound of barley into three pints of water and boil for two hours; add half a teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, and pour it into a pie dish. Pare and cut up two large apples, stir them into the pudding, and bake for an hour. Serve with sweet sauce.

Cost of the "Know How."

There was much gumption evinced by that particularly darkey whose master was a surgeon who had performed on another darky an operation requiring a high degree of skill. The latter darky was well-to-do, and the surgeon charged him twenty-five dollars for the operation. Meeting the doctor's servant afterward, this dialogue occurred:

"Dat was a mighty steep charge of the doctor's for cutting on me tudder day."

"How much did de boss charge?"

"Well, Julius, he charge me twenty-five dollars."

"Go 'long, niggah, dat ain't much charge."

"Well, he wasn't more dan three or four minutes doin' it, and I think five dollars was all he oughter took."

"Look-a-heah, Sam; you don't un'stan 'bout dat ting. You see the boss have to spend a great many year larnin' how to use that knife, an' it cost him heaps o' money. Now the fact am dat he only charge you five dollars for de operation; de tudder twenty he charge for de know how."

That's it—the time and money to learn the know how.—Harper's Magazine.

Arctic Exploration.

Prof. Nordenskjold, announces his intention, in a letter to M. Sibiriakof, the well-known Russian patron of Arctic research, of undertaking shortly a fresh journey of exploration to the Siberian Polar Sea. He will start on this occasion from the River Lena, and make the New Siberian Islands his base of operations. He refers in the same letter to the journey undertaken to these islands in 1809-10 by Hedenstroem, one of the very few explorers who have ever visited this part of the world. Hedenstroem published in 1830 an account of his travels, under the title of "Fragments of Siberia," but in spite of every endeavour the professor has been unable to obtain a copy of this work.

Three Miles of Bookshelves.

Some idea of the capacity of the British Museum Library may be gained from the statement that it contains three miles of bookshelves eight feet high, and, taking them at the ordinary 8vo size, there are twenty-five miles of shelves. The dome of the reading-room is the second largest in the world, the diameter of that of the Parthenon, Rome, exceeding it only two feet, while St. Peter's, being only 139 feet, is less by one foot. We have here an instance of the value of iron; for, while the piers of the British Museum dome occupy 200 feet, those of the Parthenon fill 7,477 feet of area.

OTTAWA.

SCOTCH AGRICULTURISTS.—Mr. Robertson, of Keithslane, Scotland, is in the city, and on Saturday presented to the Minister of Agriculture a scheme for the settlement of a number of Highland small farmers in Manitoba. He asks that the Government set apart a tract of land to be called New Scotland, or the Land of Lorne.

BOGUS HORSE DEALERS.—On Saturday night the officials of the Bank of Montreal received a telegram from New York, pronouncing the cashier's draft for $3,000 a forgery. It was purported to have been drawn by the Commercial Bank of Rochester on the American Exchange of New York. It was presented by two men named Wilson and Smith, horse dealers, who have been in the city for the past ten days, and accepted without inquiry, the sharpers being introduced by an Ottawa man. Both escaped to the United States, but have been heard from in Utica. They drew $2,500 on Thursday and $500 on Friday, but the fraud was not discovered until Saturday night, after they had made good their escape. The fellows bought a number of horses, but only paid $5 earnest money on each of them.

Australian Cattle.

A Liverpool firm of cattle importers have at present on the way a shipment of live cattle from Melbourne, as an experiment. It has been found that sheep and milch cows brought from the Antipodes for use on a voyage have almost invariably improved in condition during the passage, so that the successful importation of Australian cattle into this country reduces itself to a question of freight. The cargo referred to is understood to be purchased in Australia at about £4 a head, and the cost of transport is £10 a head, so that each head of cattle, it is expected, will be laid down in Liverpool for £14. When it is remembered that Australian cattle are "dressed" at about 800 lbs., the carcase, the profitable character of the trade, should this experiment prove successful, cannot fail to ensure its speedy development.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Address,—

The CULVERWELL MEDICAL Co.,
Post Office Box 4586. w3-1y 41 Ann St. New York,

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w48-2w

Misery's Throes.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d120w49-1m

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

AN UNWISE STEP AVOIDED.

VIENNA, Dec. 1.—The news stating that England threatened to send a fleet into the Dardanelles met with little credit among politicians at Vienna. Such a step would place the Porte in so favorable a position from the point of view of international right, that it would be difficult for any of the Powers to follow England in such a course.

COUNT ZICHY'S RESIGNATION.

VIENNA, Dec. 1.—Count Zichy's resignation is the first sign of Baron Haymerle having decided upon great changes in Austrian diplomacy. The conviction prevails that Austria will support all English efforts at Constantinople as far as possible.

DIPLOMATIC CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—An important diplomatic council will be held next Thursday to consider the question of European alliances. Disquieting rumors from Paris are in circulation here of an anticipated early dissolution of the French Cabinet. Despatches from Berlin report that the German army is being largely increased.

MESSRS. PARNELL AND DAVITT.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Mr. Parnell spoke at Birkenhead last evening, while Mr. Davitt spoke at Glasgow. The latter, in his speech, expressed his willingness to accept Home Rule as a settlement for all Irish demands.

DEATH OF A POLITICIAN.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Mr. John Arthur Roebuck, Liberal Member of Parliament for Sheffield, and a prominent political writer, is dead, aged 77.

TURCO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A Vienna correspondent learns that before Prince Lobanoff left Constantinople, he concluded an understanding between Russia and the Porte, which will have the force of an alliance in certain eventualities.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE DEMANDED.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—The French Government have asked the Chambers for a vote of confidence, in consequence of the hostile attitude of the majority, respecting the retention of the Bonapartists in various public services. The Chamber of Deputies have passed to the first reading of the bill repealing the law prohibiting all labour on Sunday and religious fete days.

THE NEW QUEEN AT A BULL-FIGHT.

MADRID, Dec. 1.—The marriage festivities were continued to-day by a grand bull-fight, at which Queen Christine was present, and remained until the finish. Over 20,000 spectators were present.

ILLNESS OF HER MAJESTY.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Queen is reported as suffering from a severe bilious attack, and, although the Court physicians profess to attach but little importance to this illness, many persons are inclined to look upon her Majesty's illness in a much more serious light. Comment upon the news is substantially that the Queen is now sixty years of age, has always enjoyed exceptionally good health, but has a constitution liable to break down suddenly under forms of illness to which she may now be considered subject. Considerable solicitude is publicly expressed over the matter, both for personal reasons and in view of the political effect which might attend her possible demise at the present time.

COLD AND SUFFERING IN SCOTLAND

EDINBURGH, Dec. 1.—The weather in Scotland is intensely cold. Heavy storms prevail, and the Clyde is frozen over for the first time in several years. Much distress is felt among the poorer classes throughout the country.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The Tribune says the message is dignified in tone, and entirely free from partisanship, but its recital of facts and its recommendations cannot fail to strengthen the public confidence in that party by which the President was chosen. The Sun says the message is destitute on any great or important suggestion on any subject whatever. It mainly tattles about getting more money for one thing or another, under one pretext or another, out of the country.

DR. TALMAGE'S CHURCH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The trustees of Dr. Talmage's church at Brooklyn, unanimously adopted a resolution favouring the separation of the Brooklyn tabernacle from the Presbyterian denomination so long as the attack on Talmage by his ministerial brethren continues.

AN INDIAN DUEL.

ATOKA, I.T., Dec. 1.—At Big Blue, near the Texas line, an Indian called Traker and a white man named Fisher quarrelled about a horse and fought a duel in Indian style, each shooting from behind a tree. Several shots had been fired, when Fisher leaped from behind the tree and the Indian shot him through the head, instantly killing him.

THE BELGIAN BISHOPS.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A Paris dispatch says that the Archbishop of Mechlin, Belgium, in a recent pastoral, says that the Pope is not infallible except when he judges questions which rest on the testimony of God, and that of his revealed truth or revealed law. This is intended to refute the charge that the Belgian Bishops are guilty of schism or disobedience in disregarding the Pope's admonition respecting the educational agitation. The Bishop of Tournay, the most violent opponent of the Liberal Cabinet, has been superseded by an administrator appointed by the Pope. The Bishop's mind is believed to be unsound.

AN EMBRYO PARLIAMENT.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—It is stated that the Czar will inform the nobility of Moscow at the reception to-day of his determination to call a number of unofficial advisers to assist him in the Government of the empire. The council will be purely deliberate, without the right to control or interfere. They will be chosen partly by the suffrages of the middle and peasant classes and partly by direct nomination by the Czar from the ranks of the hereditary nobility. Other measures of local reform will also be announced. These innovations have been strongly advocated by the Czarawitch.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

INSURED AND MURDERED.

LEBANON, Pa., Dec. 2.—Henry Wise, one of the murderers of Joseph Raber, was this morning sentenced to be hanged. He attempted to deliver a written statement but was stopped by the judge. A PATENT CASE.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 2.—The United States Court in the case of Matthew Gotfried against the Phillip Best Brewing Company, rendered a decision yesterday sustaining the plaintiff's patent for pitching the inner surface of barrels. The Central bonds, which hitherto have been out of the market, are coming upon it again.

THE ERIE RAILWAY COMPANY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Times says the decline in Erie yesterday was accompanied by rumors, said to emanate from semi-official sources, that the forth-coming report will prove a great disappointment to both the stock and bond holders. "It is freely stated that the Company is not in a position to meet the entire amount of its bonded indebtedness. The deficiency would be over $500,000.

CASE OF BLACKMAIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The complaint of blackmail made by Edward Everett Pray against Dr. Theodore Sayre, was dismissed yesterday. The case has created considerable sensation recently.

SINGULAR ESCAPE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A little child of James Madison, of Guttenberg, N.J., fell over a precipice at the palisades, on Sunday, a distance of 100 feet, and escaped with trifling injuries.

TILDEN'S CANDIDACY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A friend of Tilden says that in January Tilden will make known his purposes, whether to claim the nomination for the Presidency or retire from political life. The Times says many western Republicans express regret that the President has spoken so plainly against continuing United States notes in circulation, and think he has made a mistake which may prove annoying in the next Presidential canvass.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Herald says: We have reason to believe that the schedule prices of coal are considerably above those obtained on actual sale. The wholesale dealers find no difficulty in obtaining a full supply at from 50 to 75 cents per ton below the published prices.

SUICIDE FROM GRIEF.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Dec. 2.—This morning Mrs. Timothy Mee, who was distressed at the death of her child, cut her throat. She will probably die.

THE TRADE OF SIAM.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A private letter from Bangkok, Siam, says that of late the merchants have exhibited a tendency to give the preference to the American manufacturer. During the past week orders amounting to $12,000 have been sent to New York and Boston merchants. Seventeen agencies for the sale of American goods have been established. The Government has ordered 5 steam launches from the United States, and the King is to have an American carriage. Since the visit of Grant there has been a manifest tendency toward commercial intercourse with the United States. The American Consul has been very zealous in promoting the interests of his country, and he is frequently consulted upon questions concerning the development of Siam. T. G. Knox, who has represented the British Government at Siam for 20 years, has been recalled in consequence of inharmonious relations with the Government. His departure is a great advantage to American interests, as he had managed to create almost a monopoly for English products by alternately bullying and carjoling the authorities.

THE MUNRO DOCTRINE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—In the Senate, Gordon introduced a bill, providing that the Government of the United States pledge to accord full and entire protection to a company to which shall be granted a concession by the Government of Nicaraqua for the protection of the Inter-Oceanic Canal, and will secure to said company peaceful enjoyments of the rights conceded by such concession. It was referred to the Committee on Commerce. Burnside then called up his resolution re-affirming the Munro Doctrine, in connection with the proposed Darien Canal. In the house a joint resolution by Ellis, pledging the protection of the Government to the Nicaraguian Inter-Oceanic Canal Company, when it shall have obtained a grant from Nicaraqua was referred to a committee.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—The farm buildings of Robt. Macdonald, on the Lower Lachine road, with 18 valuable cows, 2 horses, and the whole produce of the farm for the season were burned last night. The loss is estimated at $10,000, and is believed to be only partially insured. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an incendiary.

IRISH DISTRESS.—A meeting of St. Patrick's Society was held last night for the purpose of devising means for the relief of the poor in the south-western portion of Ireland. It was decided to give a public entertainment, and to invite the co-operation of the various Irish National Societies in the city to assist in making the affair a success.

THE "HERALD" REPUDIATED.—A meeting of Roman Catholics was held in the Canadian Institute, at which the Herald was repudiated as an organ of Catholic thought and feelings, and the course of Bishop Duhamel and of Rev. Father Hunt was endorsed.

GOOD SLEIGHING.—A heavy snow storm set in early this morning and sleighing is now good.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy, tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

THE HASTINGS RAILWAYS.

A SPECIAL correspondent of the Toronto Globe, writing upon the above subject from Belleville, says that although the North Hastings R. R., just falls short of reaching a number of splendid iron locations, which will be vigorously operated as soon as the branch line is completed, still by the road as it now exists, the shipments now average 800 tons per week, which come from only two mines which are often circumscribed in their operations for want of cars. As to the future of these roads (i. e. the Grand Junction and North Hastings,) he says:—

"As soon as the Grand Junction shall have been completed to Peterborough, it must either be an ally of, or rival to, the Midland. It will open a short route for Peterborough shippers to the Atlantic seaboard, and the east generally, and will enable them to ship grain and lumber for eastern ports to Belleville, where they can be loaded in vessels which will entirely escape the dangers of Lake Ontario navigation, and especially that dreaded portion of it lying off Prince Edward county, which vessels loaded at Port Hope would have to encounter. On the other hand, however, as the lumber business of the Midland is largely drawn from the great pineries tributary to the mills on Georgian Bay, it can still hold the bulk of the lumber business, as well as its share of the Lindsay trade, in which case the business of the Grand Junction, as an independent line from Peterborough, would be somewhat circumscribed. Besides this, should the Grand Junction be run as an entirely independent line, an alliance between the Midland and the Grand Trunk might seriously effect its trade between Peterborough and Bay of Quinte. Should the proprietaries of the two Hastings lines and that of the Midland Railway be merged, the alliance could hardly fail to be a strong and mutually beneficial one. The iron and other ores destined for Buffalo, Cleveland, Wyandotte and other western ports could be shipped direct from the mines via Peterborough to Port Hope, instead of going to Belleville, and thence around the Prince Edward peninsula and through the most objectionable and treacherous portion of Lake Ontario; while the immense shipments of lumber from Georgian Bay, destined for eastern ports could be loaded in vessels at Belleville and escape the dangers of lake navigation altogether. Of course, the construction of the Murray Canal would weaken the force of necessity of such an alliance, but even then such an arrangement might prove beneficial rather than otherwise."

It will naturally suggest itself to our readers that if via Grand Junction to Peterborough and thence to Port Hope would be the best route for the iron ore of North Hastings, the Toronto and Ottawa line being much shorter would be still cheaper. One thing is clear, whatever route carries the ore to market, will carry in the supplies consumed at and about the mines. The mineral resources of the country through which the line passes between here and Ottawa, is undoubtedly a most important factor in the advantages to be derived by this locality from its immediate construction.

OTONABEE.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—On Monday evening when they were quitting work at a threshing at the farm of Mr. Jas. H. Fife, a boy of about 16, named James Bowie, while unhitching a neighbor's horse, received a severe kick on the side, which struck him senseless, and to all appearance dead. Dr. McCrea was called in, under whose care the boy is improving and is in a fair way to recovery. The same horse severely injured a man by a kick a few years ago.

ST. ANDREW'S NIGHT.

Annual Dinner of the St. Andrew's Society at the Choate House.

On Monday evening last, the anniversary of Scotland's Patron Saint, was celebrated by the members of the Society, as in years past, by a dinner at the Choate House. Relying, no doubt, on the maxim, that the "true way to a man's heart is through his stomach," mine host Choate, had provided a spread that was worthy of the occasion, worthy of his reputation as a caterer, and more than worthy of the number who sat down to partake of it. The table running the length of the dining-room was piled with the substantial portion of the feast, while additional tables to the side held the reserves, ready to be be drawn on if necessary. The edibles were served in a manner that left nothing to be desired on that point, and were highly enjoyed by those present. It is to be regretted that the members of the Society did not turn out in larger numbers, more especially after having signified their intention of so doing, and provision having been made for their entertainment. About twenty-five gentlemen sat down to dinner, which was served shortly after nine o'clock.

MR. JOHN CARNEGIE occupied the Chair in the absence of the President, Mr. James Millar, who was unavoidably absent through illness. Mr. Millar had written to express his regret at being away, and to assure the members that he was with them in thought, if not in person. Mr. Wm. Helm, President of St. George's Society, ably represented that body.

After ample justice had been done the substantials, the Chairman ordered all glasses to be filled and gave in succession the usual loyal toasts of "The Queen," and "The Prince of Wales and all the Royal Family." The next toast proposed was that of "The Governor-General of Canada." The Chairman alluded to it as one acceptable to Canadians, and peculiarly so to all Scotchmen. Our Irish friends had been able to felicitate themselves during the last few years that our Governor-General was an Irishman—now the Scotchmen were having their turn.

Song by MR. BOWIE, "Allister McAllister," which was uproarously received.

The "Army and Navy, and Volunteers of Canada," was responded to by Captain E. B. EDWARDS on behalf of the local force. He felt pleasure in being able to speak of the reviving influence which our Volunteer system was now feeling, and trusted that it was but the precursor of better things. The Volunteer system was a necessity in Canada, the practical training so gained by our young men, was worth all the money spent on it. But the funds so appropriated should be thoroughly utilized, aiding the men to become true honest soldiers, not merely sky-larking at drilling once or twice a year. To a large extent the responsibility for such a result depended chiefly on the officers, and he trusted that those holding positions of authority or influence would exert themselves in a right direction.

MR. HEWITT being urged for a song gave "Daylight in the Morning."

The CHAIRMAN, in introducing the toast of the evening, "The Day and a' wha Honor it," took occasion to express himself as having no hesitation in saying what he could in favor of it, and the sentiment it implied. The sons of Scotland, of Canada, or of any country, were the better for meeting together to talk over the past—the better able to assume their duties by looking back on the deeds done by their forefathers. But as citizens of Canada, we all had responsibilities, irrespective of our birth, as Scotch, Irish or Englishmen. It was a fatal error to suppose that we could roll ourselves up in what our forefathers had done, and laying on our oars, drift idly with the tide. The poet has told us that

> "Lives of great men all remind us,
> We may make our lives sublime,
> And departing, leave behind us,
> Foot-prints on the sands of time."

No one, no matter how humble his position, no matter how unpretentious his calling, but could exert an influence for the better, and engrave a lesson for those who followed after. It was well that we should occasionally think of these things, and teach our children sterling truths to make them true men and women. (Hear, hear.) Scotchmen had been called a clannish people, but they were not so clannish as they were said to be. It had been repeatedly affirmed that they stuck together better than the people of any other nationality. Still, as a matter of his own experience, he had never found that Scotchmen had a particularly warm side for him—because they happened to be Scotchmen,—during the heat of a political contest. (Laughter.) A Scotchman, when he believed he was right, voted as he saw fit, and it was right he should do so. Scotch clannishness was honorable and had never been to his acknowledge, turned to a bad account.

The toast was drank with all the honors, amid general enthusiasm.

MR. BOWIE sang "Hame came our Guidman at Een."

Mr. William Telford, of Smith, the Bard of the Society, then read the following lines, composed by himself, which were as usual greeted with loud applause:—

HOW THE PUIR SCOTCH BAIRNS WERE BROUGHT UP.

Brither Scots, we are here, an' I think it's but richt,
That we meet like true Scots on St. Andrew's nicht;
For it drives aff the cares o' this warld sae drear,
An' mak's our hearts light, at least ance in the year.

It stirs up the embers, an' fans up the flame
O' a love still unsmothered—love for our auld hame—
It gars our auld hearts feel as if they were young,
When we sing Auld Lang Syne in our ain mither tongue.

I ken'ed that fra me a few lines you'd expect,
Sae I clawed ma head sair in the search o' a text;
When it just struck my noddle, like the crack o' a whip,
"How the puir Scottish bairns at hame was brought up."

Their first year o' live'n is easy explained,
They were nursed just like others until they were spained;
Then a wee horn spune to supply them their food,
They were fed upon bowls o' guid milk an' bread.

But that food didna last muckle mair than a year,
For the flour, bread an' sugar was rather ower dear;
An' their mither declared that sweet stuff was na guid
To make young bairns grow an' increase flesh an' bluid.

Sae the bolls was stapt, tho' the bairns did squeal,
Then their live'n gae parritch o' good oaten meal;
As years passed awa', an' higher they rose,
At times for a change they were fed upon brose.

It was parritch for breakfast, for supper likewise,
An' if ane tuk the pet an' his parritch despise,
Then the faither's loud voice, wi' authority borne,
Sayin', "Wife, set them past, he will sup them the morn."

Their dinner was varied—but a guid wholesome male—
Ae day tata broth, an' the next it was kail;
You wad needed good specs a bit pork to discern,
For the bairns got nothing but taties an' herrin'.

Some may speer if a mouthful o' bread they did git,
Hand a wee, canny freend—I will tell you that yet—
When hungry a bit oatmeal cake if you please,
Or a piece o' guid bannock made frae barley an' pease.

When the Sunday cam' round, sic a smile on their face,
For they ken'ed on that day a bit feast wad tak place;
Oatmeal dumplin's for dinner, at night, what their glee,
Owre a piece o' flour scone an' a cup o' weak tea.

They needed nae doctors for dyspepsia nor gout;
Dainty bites or flesh meat they ken'd little about,
Just a little bit grumphie was fed in the pen,
To suit a hale year for a family o' ten.

At thae Scotch bairns' livin' some reader may sneer,
But sic fat rosy faces they canna show here.
The sweet cakes, an' tarts an' pies, an' the baker's puffed bread,
Keeps the rose fra their cheek, rots the teeth o'ot their head.

Some Scots fra a pride shakes their head, screws their face,
Sayin': "Stop man, on Scots you are bringin' disgrace."
But I ne'er see a press, nor the crack o' a whip,
Tho' the hale world kens that how I was brought up.

But it wasna the parritch, brose nor bannocks, I say,
That mak's the Scotch shine in the world to-day;
'Twas the fireside instructions, an' the teachin' o' truth,
Strict obedience an' order, instilled in their youth.

There was something so hallowed roond the Scottish fireside,
So deep planted its germ, through life's course to abide,
Tho' they roam to strange land, an' at times step astray,
[illegible]

The carritch, the school book, the Bible was there,
And the voice of a father wi' family in prayer;
The kind words of a mother, they can ne'er be forgot,
But through life yields their fruit in the heart of the Scot.

The auld Scottish fireside shed its lustre of bliss,
An' it aft cheers the Scot in a world like this,
Strict Scottish upbringin' was the stand-point I say,
Unto mak' bricht Scots in this country to-day.

O I wish there was mair pruved a true worthy son,
Our St. Andrew's Society would count ten to one;
Join Scots, show your hearts are made o' auld airn,
Show Canadians how you were taught when a bairn.

Mr. Miller, there's nothing that pleases me mair,
Than to see you three years in that President's chair;
Sir, it is not your frame, though you fill it complete,
Such a noble-souled Scot I am proud here to meet.

There is Scots in this room, if the truth they wad tell,
Was brocht up upon parritch an' brose like mysel';
Think nae shame, brither Scot, but just own it up richt
While we go for the haggis on St. Andrew's nicht.

MR. THOS. TELFORD, the First Vice-President, gave the "House of Commons and Local Legislature."

In default of any gentleman undertaking the responsibility of responding to this toast, Mr. F. H. Dobbin gave a recitation.

Then followed the toast of "Canada, our Home," responded to by Dr. FIFE, who was proud to acknowledge himself a Canadian, while allowing every man to claim his own nationality. He spoke of the progress made by the country in the past, and of the great future opening out before it. Scotchmen had contributed largely to this prosperity by their steady, unflinching efforts and perseverence in hewing out homes and a competence for themselves and families. Our most successful business men, our most prominent statesmen were Scotchmen or of direct Scotch descent. He eulogized the men who had laid off their coats and borne the burden and heat of the day. He would not discuss the points of party government, but would urge a policy that should do the utmost towards developing the country. (Hear, hear.)

MR. WM. CUMMING, the Second Vice-President, gave "The Learned Professions." He humorously alluded to the lawyers as gentlemen whose acquaintance we were sometimes compelled to cultivate, whether we wished to or not. He knew a good many of them, and they were not such bad fellows after all—if you kept on the right side of them. (Laughter)

MR. MCGREGOR sang "Farewell to Caledonia."

MR. E. B. EDWARDS returned thanks for the Legal profession, and gave some amusing incidents connected with a visit which he made to Scotland.

DR. FIFE said that he belonged to a profession whose duty it was to practice, not to preach. Now, it was popularly supposed to be easier to preach than to practice, but he inclined to prefer the latter. (Cheers). He was proud of his profession for it was a noble duty that of relieving suffering humanity. There was not so much eclat to be gained as in the other professions, no judgeships or other positions to incite a man's ambition to be thus raised above his fellows. But the medical profession offered a wide field for the employment of individual energy and intelligence, and to those who persevered the possibility was open of grasping the highest rounds in the medical ladder, and sharing in the emoluments accuring to the position. (Cheers).

MR. JOHN PATTERSON, Third Vice-President gave "Our Agricultural Commercial and Manufacturing Interests."

The CHAIRMAN called on Mr. Tanner to reply to this toast. Mr. TANNER after giving a few words of explanation with regard to his position in connection with manufactures, went on to give his views with regard to what he defined as the "Financial Starvation," from which the country was suffering. Mr. Tanner was convinced that all that was necessary to bring on a perfect innundation of prosperity was the issue of a National Currency. Unlimited paper money, he argued would grease the wheels of the manufacturer, bolster up commerce and do a tremendous amount of good. Just give us a circulating medium of our own and free us from continually borrowing in Europe, and things would become perfectly lively. People might laugh and sneer at this innovation, but it had to come.

MR. WM. TELFORD in a few pleasant remarks, replied for the Agricultural Interests.

MR. CUMMINGS proposed "Our Guests," coupling with it the name of Mr. Wm. Helm, President of St. George's Society, who made a brief response to the sentiment.

Song by Mr. J. ARMOUR.

"THE PRESIDENT of St. Andrew's Society, Mr. James Millar," proposed by the Chairman and received with cheers.

Song "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Mr. CARNEGIE, proposed "The Ladies," and after passing a high encomium on the sex, called on Mr. John Jameson, whom he further identified as the youngest bachelor in the room, to reply to the toast, adding that he hoped it would be the last time such duty would fall on Mr. Jameson.

Mr. JAMESON made a suitable reply, as also did Mr. JAS. MACDONNELL, who was dragged in from the anti-room for that purpose, amid great laughter.

Mr. E. B. EDWARDS was also urged to respond, and complied with the request in a few happy remarks.

"The Press" was given by Mr. Telford, and responded to by the representatives of the DAILY EVENING REVIEW, of the Examiner, and of the Times.

"The Chairman of the evening" was proposed by Mr. W. Telford and suitably acknowledged by Mr. Carnegie.

"Our Host and Hostess" was given by the Chairman, and replied to by Mr. Choate, who assured the Society that he should always esteem it a privilege to cater for their Annual Dinner.

After singing "Auld Lang Syne," and "The Queen," the meeting broke up.

LET IT PASS.

Be not swift to take offence;
Let it pass!
Anger is a foe to peace!
Let it pass!
Brood not darkly o'er a wrong;
Which will disappear ere long;
Rather sing this cherry song —
Let it pass!
Let it pass!

Strife corrodes the purest mind;
Let it pass!
As the unregarded wind,
Let it pass!
Any vulgar soul that live,
May condemn without reprieve.
'Tis the noble who forgive.
Let it pass!
Let it pass!

Echo not an angry word;
Let it pass!
Think how often you have erred;
Let it pass!
Since our joys must pass away
Like the dew-drops on the spray,
Wherefore should our sorrows stay?
Let it pass!
Let it pass!

If for good you've taken ill;
Let it pass!
Oh, be kind and gentle still!
Let it pass!
Time at last makes all things straight;
Let us not resent but wait,
And our triumph shall be great;
Let it pass!
Let it pass!

FALLING IN LOVE.

It would be interesting to know what part of the process of falling in love is destined to play in the future history of mankind. A review of the past development of the custom, from primitive times to our own enlightened age, suggests the reflection that it has tended to become a slower and more conscious question. It is not many people who now tumble suddenly and recklessly into this condition of mind. Culture seems have the effect of transforming the process of falling into one of sliding. To refer again to a somewhat analagous mental experience, culture seems to be less frequent both sudden forms of falling in love and sudden conversions. And this change is plainly due in a large measure to the growth of volitional force. All falling in love is, of course, the direct effect of an involuntary and emotional impulse; yet a negative act of will may prehaps be said to be involved in the non-repression of this impulse. As people advance in intellect and character, the ascendancy of the will increases, and the amatory sentiment is only allowed to attach itself to an object very slowly, and after the fullest critical investigation. It is not necessary for us to adopt the ultra-prosaic supposition that sexual selection will ever become a purely voluntary action. It is commonly said that more and more persons now marry for definite objects, such as wealth, social position, or domestic adornment; yet the normal mode of selection is still held to include the play of an instinctive emotion as well. What the higher culture seems to do, over and above strengthening the controlling power of will, is to make this emotion more reflective and self-conscious. People learn to understand more clearly their own feelings and tastes, and to know better beforehand what kind of objects is likely to satisfy them. The emotional impulse now shows itself as a conscious wish to possess an object of a certain definite character. Still the actual conception of a strong affection is a process that goes on outside the will, though the will may be said to approve of it in a new sense when its result is recognised as agreeing with a pre-existing wish and desire. We hardly think, then, that there is ground for the cynical prediction that falling in love is rapidly becoming an absolete custom. The experience will probably grow much less violent and catastrophic in its character by being brought into closer relation to the intellectual and volitional parts of the mind. And the same influences which bring about this effect will no doubt tend to tone down people's rapturous faith in the occult and transcendent nature of the process.—The Saturday Review.

MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC

MYOPY IN RUSSIA.—The Russian Society of Hygiene proposes to print books in white letters on a black ground, in order to check the increase of myopy in scholars.

ALOES AS A DRESSING FOR WOUNDS.—Dr. Millet, a French army surgeon, recommends powdered aloes as a dressing for wounds, both as a means of favouring cicatrization and for closing them. It is said to relieve the severe pain of wounds immediately, and requires to be renewed only at long intervals.

GLANDERS.—Two girls, daughters of a cab-driver, recently died of diseased throat caught from a horse with glanders. A correspondent of the papers, reporting the cases, said:—"It may be worth while to call attention to the fact that a sneeze from a glandered horse in the shafts of a hansom cab is certain death; that the drinking troughs are in many cases infected; and that the inspection of cab horses is a mystery needing solution."

WINDOW TRANSPARENCY.—A beautiful window transparency can be made by arranging pressed ferns, grasses and autumn leaves on a pane of glass, laying another pane the same size over it, and binding the edges with ribbon. Use gum tragacanth in putting on the binding. It is best to bind with a narrow strip of paper first. The binding should be gummed all around the edge of the first pane and dried before the leaves, &c., are arranged; then it can be neatly folded over the second pane without difficulty. Fasten the cord for hanging at the corners.

WHOOPING-COUGH.—The prevalence of whooping-cough led Dr. H. A. Mott to lecture on the subject before the Academy of Science in New York on Monday last. He showed that the disease was the result of a funguid growth, and that the best treatment for it was the use of quinine. It arrests the coholic fermentation caused by the fungi, prevents their development, and generally acts as a poison to them. The best way of taking quinine for whooping-cough is by placing it in the form of powder upon the tongue, and letting it dissolve there. The doses are two to five grains for children, and three to five grains for adults.

WINE FROM ORANGES.—Experiments have recently been in progress in countries ravaged by the phylloxera, in regard to the substitution of orange juice for grape juice in wine making. The first wine made from oranges, in Spain, has made its appearance in the market of Valencia. Four kinds have been produced, one of them a sparkling wine. They are all said to be of an attractive color, perfectly clear, of an agreeable, sweet, slightly acid flavor, and of an alcoholic strength of about 15 per cent.

MAGGOTS IN CHEESE. The maggots are the larvæ of the cheese-fly, and among steady cheese eaters are merely picked out of the cheese when the cheese is eaten. In England where cheese is largely consumed, maggoty cheese is not objected to by many persons, but cheese and skippers are eaten together with mustard and vinegar. Keep your cheese from the fly by covering it with paper well buttered, not only over the outside but the cut part of the cheese as well.

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrible form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w 60-2w

AN INTERESTING BUTTER TEST.

It so happened that six or seven prominent butter dealers met to-day in a store on William street, where the conversation casually turned upon the merits and demerits of certain kinds of butter. One stated that he had some Kamouraska in his cellar, which he would defy the best judge to tell from Eastern Townships. This challenge was no sooner made than accepted by one who is considered a first-class connoisseur of fine butter, and the party at once repaired to the cellar to witness the test. Arriving among the piled up packages of Eastern Townships, Brockvilles, Morrisburghs, Hemingfords, and Kamouraskas, it was agreed that the judge who was about to make the interesting test should be blind-folded, as otherwise his conclusions might be drawn from the style of package the samples were taken from. Accordingly the operation of blindfolding was performed and the judge, full of confidence, cried "ready." A package was then bored and the tryer handed him, which, after careful inspection, by passing his nasal organ from one end of it to the other, and mouthing it for flavor, he pronounced, with some emphasis, Eastern Townships. Another sample was handed him which was promptly adjudged good Kamouraska, while a third sample, after a little extra scrutiny, was termed Brockville. Tryer-full after tryer-full was then given him to decide upon, until his vocabulary for the different grades that he thought were being served up to him was fairly exhausted, and he would have no more, as he found there was too much giggling around. But upon his sight being released from bondage, he beheld on the cellar floor before him a package of genuine Kamouraska bored nine times, which he had called by so many different names.—Montreal Gazette.

A Break in the Irish Cloud.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Late advices from several important points in Ireland indicate a better feeling prevailing, and there is reason to believe the culminating point of the agitation has been passed. There is a marked increase in the disposition on the part of the tenants to pay rents, and it is believed but for the terrorism of lawless anti-rent leaders, the tenantry would very generally respond to the extent of their ability. Reports of agrarian outrages have been vastly exaggerated, and there is extraordinary demand for relief at the various poor houses. In his sermon in this city on Sunday, Cardinal Manning strongly appealed for the maintenance of Christian order throughout Ireland, and asked for the hearty assistance of the clergy in quieting the people.

Germans and Jews.

An Anti-Semitic League has been formed in Berlin, composed of non-Hebrew Germans, who pledge themselves "to lay aside all differences of party and religion, and unite with all possible energy, earnestness and diligence to save the German Fatherland from being completely Judaized, and to make existence there endurable for their descendants." They agree not to patronize Jewish merchants nor Jewish newspapers, to agitate against putting Jews in public offices, and to found clubs and social circles from which Jews will be excluded. This singular society seems to have no better basis than envy. By their education, industry, and superior business talent, the Hebrews have made their way into prominent positions in politics, law, and trade, and the people who have suffered in the competition with them want to revive the prejudices of the dark ages against a race which has given to Continental Europe much of its wealth and culture.

Cleansing Trees With Soap.

A carpenter who worked for me some five years ago, first called my attention to the effect of soft soap when applied to the bark of young apple trees. He had a young orchard to which he paid considerable attention. One of his trees was smaller than the rest; looked badly and was full of ants. He supposed (though no doubt erroneously) that the ants were injuring the tree and determined either to clear them out or kill the tree, with soft soap. He put it all over the tree, on the body, limbs, and even on the young growth. In a short time the leaves dropped off, and he thought he had killed it sure enough. But to his surprise it entirely recovered, put on new growth, and grew more vigorously than it had before. In a few years it had outstripped every other tree in the orchard. He has been applying soap regularly to all his trees, and finds them all benefited by it.—Evangelist.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. Invaluable Liniment.

For all purposes of a family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found invaluable. Immediate relief will follow its use in all cases of pain in the stomach, bowels, or side: Rheumatism, Colic Colds, Sprains and Bruises. For internal and external use, it has no equal in the world for what it is recommended. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

Aged People.

To pass from poverty to wealth is only changing misery, but to pass from illness to health is like flying from this world to paradise. Many aged people who are troubled with derangements of the urinary organs would find relief by using Victoria Buchu and Uva Ursi, which is prepared expressly to meet their cases and cure diseases of the secretory system. $1 per bottle.

POLICE COURT.

SELLING LIQUOR WITHOUT LICENSE.

TUESDAY, Dec. 2.—The Police Court was again occupied with liquor cases. The case of Inspector Cox vs. Francis Quinn, enlarged from Nov. 27th, was called. The defendant was not present, but the case was allowed to proceed without him, as it was the second enlargement at the defendant's own request.

Only one witness was examined, who stated that he was in defendant's house on Sunday, the 16th of November, with a friend, and sought to obtain something to drink without asking for it, as was his usual custom. He could not find what he wanted, and seeing the defendant with a bottle, asked him to give him some out of it. He said he did not pay for it, nor did he intend paying for it. It was not ginger ale. It was some kind of liquor, but he could not say what it was, as he did not know the difference between brandy and whiskey. He knew the difference between whiskey and gin. There were others in the place. He afterwards asked the defendant to give the boys a drink. Quinn said he had nothing but "ginger ale." The witness and his friend took cigars and went out. Did not see the others who were there drink. He had liquor in his own house and would treat his friends in the same way when they called to see him. He always had it in his house and always expected to, so long as he could earn the money to pay for it. Quinn's house was a private one. He did not know if he kept anything for sale. There were no other witnesses called.

The Magistrate found the defendant guilty and imposed a penalty of $20.00 and costs $4.00, to be paid on or before the 8th inst., or 14 days in the common jail.

COUNTY COURT

JUDGE DENNISTOUN held a session of the County Court and General Sessions this morning. The following were the cases:—

BERTRAM VS. KERR.—This was an undefended suit. Verdict for plaintiff. J. F. Dennistoun for plaintiff; T. McNaughton for defendant.

DEAN VS. CHAMBERLAIN. An action as assignee of Richard Martyn, on account of keep of horses, &c. Defendant's counsel moved for a non-suit. The judge held the objections good, and on plaintiff refusing to accept non-suit, he directed the jury to find a verdict for the defendant. D. W. Dumble for plaintiff. J. F. Dennistoun and H. H. Smith for defendant.

WATSON VS. MENZIES.—Case enlarged for convenience of counsel. D. W. Dumble for plaintiff; J. F. Dennistoun and W. H. Moore for defendant.

FITZGERALD VS. PARNELL.—Verdict by consent for plaintiff for $800, subject to award. E. [illegible] for defendant.

A NIGHT OF HORROR.

Terrible Experiences in a Storm on Lake Ontario.

Thomas Smith, of Montreal, one of the survivors of the ill-fated dredge J. Gordon, which was sunk in the late terrible disaster on Lake Ontario, furnishes the following statement, which I transmit:—

The first indication of serious danger received by this trusty crew was when the tug Philip Becker ran into the side of the Gordon bow first, causing the Gordon to leak badly. The tug made fast to the Gordon, but Arnoldt made them let go. The tug disappeared for a short time, but soon returned and landed broadside of the Gordon, inflicting more damage. The leaks caused by the collision were being stopped by Smith with Mr. Arnoldt's underclothing, which he took off for the purpose. The Becker was again ordered away, but soon returned in a sinking condition. When Mr. Arnoldt directed them to abandon the tug and come on board of the Gordon, George Palmer, the husband of the Mrs. Palmer previously spoken of, and the Logan brothers, came aboard, the tug sinking immediately.

THE STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

The men from the Becker and the crew of the Gordon set to bailing the water from the fire-hold; but the water kept gaining. Arnoldt became convinced that he could not keep his boat afloat, and ordered Smith to blow three whistles for the Seymour to come to their assistance. The tug Seymour not responding, he ordered the whistle sounded again; Smith could only sound it twice. Being up to his waist in water he had to abandon the attempt. Then he ran on deck to where Arnoldt and Eagan stood, and Arnoldt said, "Tom, I guess it is all up with us." Then they all started for the stern, and Patrick Eagan ripped off the door of the closet after a futile attempt to rip off the hatch. Eagan proceeded with the door and a wave took it from his grasp. Smith called to Arnoldt and Eagan to come with him to the Seymour's towing line; but they came not. Smith crawled out on the towing line fifteen to twenty feet, but had to abandon it and return to the Gordon. Smith asked Samuel Logan were Arnoldt and Eagan were. His reply was that they were washed overboard. Smith then sought the stern of the dredge and clasped his arms around the fantail of the boat, an oak timber 4x12 inches square. Mrs. Palmer then asked Smith to take hold of her hand. Smith took her hand and held on—all standing in water to their necks, with the seas breaking violently over their heads. Palmer clasped his wife around the waste, and she said—"George, we must go." He, replying, said—"Libbie, can't you stand it a while longer? The Seymour may come to our rescue." Palmer instantly exclaimed, "Oh, my God!" kissed his wife, and the next wave from the grip of Smith, who saw them unitedly plunge into eternity. The Logan brothers were also clinging to the fantail, and maintained their hold until the fatal morning began to dawn; but being completely chilled and exhausted, they, too, had to submit to fatigue and exposure, and the next wave that came folded them in its mad embrace, consigned them to a watery grave. This left only three on the Gordon, viz., the two Danish sailors and Smith, who clung to the fantail from 4.30 o'clock a.m., until 7 o'clock a.m., when the Seymour rounded to and rescued them from their perilous position. The Seymour could not land alongside of the Gordon, and they hove a line to Smith, who lashed it around the Danes. They were hauled on board, and he subsequently climbed on board the propellor himself, hand over hand on a tow line.—London Free Press.

WRENCHED THE LOVING COUPLE

REBELLIOUS BOERS.

Failure of England's Peace Policy in South Africa—Further Fighting Anticipated.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Intelligence from Cape Town, received through German sources, under date Nov. 11th, is to the effect that the troubles between the representatives of the English Government and the Boers, Caffres, and other native tribes, so far from being in the way of peaceable settlement, are liable to develop into an open war at any moment. Col. Baker Russell, with a strong force of about two thousand cavalry and infantry, has marched from Middlebury to attack Sococoeni, who, it is believed, means to fight having rejected all overtures towards a compromise thus far proffered by the Colonial Secretary. The peace policy of the Government is reported to have wholly broken down, and the proposed wholesale disarmament of the native race has proved a failure. The Boers are taking a warlike attitude, and evince a growing distaste to the existence of English authority among them. At Koonati, they are reported to be in pronounced rebellion, and have formed a military compact to take Chrissie, having in possession about 5,000 pounds of powder besides the military stores of which they robbed the storehouses at Middlebury some weeks ago. A force of 600 Boers are assembled at a point near Olyphant's river, awaiting the arrival of Paul Kruger, one of the men against whom warrants were issued for the storehouse robbery, to lead them in the contemplated attack upon Middlebury. The Government hesitates attempting the forcible arrest of the leaders of these insurrectionary parties through fear of an immediate and extensive revolt. The general opinion at Cape Town is that another war like the late struggle in Zululand is likely to ensue. An alliance between the Boers and Caffres is believed to have been effected.

ENNISMORE.

CASE OF INSANITY.—On Friday last Helen Moloney, a resident of this Township, was conveyed to gaol for safe keeping, being insane. Application was made on oath to Mr. Thomas Tellford, J. P., stating her condition, who requested Daniel Costello, J.P., to be associated with him. They summoned Dr. Kincaid from Peterborough to give medical evidence. An examination being held on her on Thursday at the residence of Francis Moloney, there was not the least doubt both from the evidence and from her own actions of her insanity and unfitness to be at large. She was accordingly placed in Peterborough gaol for safety.

RETURN OF O'KEEFE'S PARTY.

A Splendid Country Reported—Another Contradiction of the Alarmists.

The exploring party under Mr. D. C. O'Keefe C.E., consisting of Mr. E. L. Clark, assistant engineer, with Messrs. J. Watters, J. R. B. Smith, J. Dillon, D. Hall, R. S. Hodgins, and Brady, arrived in this city, on Tuesday evening, having accomplished a thorough exploration of the territory extending north from Carlton to Isle la Crosse, and west from Beaver Lake to Pelican Lake.

They report very favorably on the fertile character of the land, the number of rivers and lakes, the value and extent of the great forests, and the happy condition of the natives.

Notwithstanding the various sensational rumors which have been propagated by some journals, the members of the party are positive that nothing whatever has been seen or heard to justify such reports. The Sioux, with whom they met, appeared to be thoroughly frank in the good will which they bear the settlers, and only desire that it be reciprocated.—Winnipeg Times.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE TREACHEROUS AMEER.

SIMLA, Dec. 1.—Since the Ameer's captivity in his own capital, suspicions of his complicity in the massacre of Major Cavagnari and his band at the British Residency, have been increasing in the minds of the commanders and of the Home Government. Although Yakoob Khan has steadily denied any complicity, the investigation has developed facts which render it impossible to place any further reliance on his loyalty or on his word. All disguise as to the purpose of the Government concerning his relation to it are now thrown off, and he will be held as prisoner until final action can be taken upon his case. It is quietly asserted in military and official circles here and in Calcutta, that it is the intention of the Foreign Office to set up an open protectorate in Afghanistan, in which the native princes or chiefs will have the only semblance of authority. Notwithstanding the small reliance placed upon the Ameer by his own followers and people, the temper of the tribes is so uncertain and Russian emissaries are so numerous and alert, that it is deemed best to incarcerate him across the frontier. The authorities are officially reticent as to the state of affairs at the various military stations of the great passes. Winter is now upon the country, and nothing but compulsory military operations may be anticipated before spring.

PORT HOPE.

INSPECTION.—The Guide says:—Mr. Walter Shanley, who was was reported as being registered at the St. Lawrence Hall, has, we understand, made a careful inspection of the Midland railway with a view of reporting to the directors the cost of placing the line in a condition equal to that of the Grand Trunk; and if the plans contemplated can be carried out, we may expect to see a first-class road in every particular, and with such a man at its head as Mr. Cox, we have no fear but it will be done.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—As a number of boys were playing among the empty cars lying on the siding of the Midland Railway, west of the Queen's wharf, on Sunday morning, one of their number, Thos. Lorden, attempted to couple two flat cars which the other boys were shoving together. In the attempt his left hand was caught between the buffers, and the first and second fingers so badly crushed that they required to be amputated, which operation was, shortly after the occurrence, performed by a surgeon.

It is always a sad thing when a man is compelled to apologize for his actions and to prove to every new comer that they were not as bad as they appeared to be. A good life, the result of an honest purpose, will generally take care of itself, and needs very little apology of apparent incongruities, because there will be none. We remember a story which illustrates this point. A minister who was accused of a great many imprudences, told one of the deacons of his church that he could easily explain away every charge. So one day when he and the old deacon were together he began the task. This charge arose from a very simple and perfectly natural act on his part, and that charge, and the other, and the other were magnified by gossip until they really seemed to be quite grave. At the end of the talk the minister said, "There, deacon, have I not explained everything to your satisfaction!" The simple-minded deacon replied, "Yes, my dear friend; your explanation has been beautiful and perfect, and to tell the truth I have only one difficulty left, but that bothers me a great deal." "Ah, and pray what may that be?" enquired the minister. "Well," said the deacon, twirling his thumbs, "my difficulty is that there should be so many things which need to be explained."

MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

THE LAST OF THE AMEERS

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Post, commenting upon Yakoob Khan's departure from Cabul, says this news is of great significance. It probably means that Afghanistan has seen the last of its Ameers. It also points to the restraint, if not actual punishment, in store for Yakoob, for his carelessness, if not connivance in the massacre of the Embassy. A Cabul despatch says the suddenness of the removal from Cabul to Peshawur was calculated upon to thwart any attempts of tribes along the road to rescue him from the British.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—Yesterday a man forced his way into the hall of the Medical Council of the War Ministry and wounded four persons with a dagger. His motive was private vengeance. The affair has no political significance.

SWISS DEPUTATION TO CANADA.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Swiss Federal Council are about to send a deputation of workmen to Canada to investigate its suitability for Swiss emigrants.

THE HEALTH OF HER MAJESTY.

The reports that the Queen is alarmingly ill have no foundation other than a slight cold. Numerous inquiries have been received from Foreign Courts.

JOHN DUNN'S REWARD.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—John Dunn, of South African fame, the influential adviser of King Cetewayo, and now one of the tribal chiefs, is to receive the order of St. Michael and St. George, in recognition of his services to the British Government in Zululand.

KING JOHN IMPRISONS A BISHOP.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Bishop of Massia, vicar apostolic over a portion of Abyssinia, has been imprisoned by King John. The Vatican has earnestly requested France and other Governments, through the intermediacy of France, to obtain his liberation. The Pope will also send delegates to the King to intercede for the Bishop's release.

A MINING HORROR.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A Chemnitz, Saxony, telegram says an explosion of fire damp occurred in a mine in this district last evening. It is feared seventy to eighty persons have perished. The recovery of the corpses is actively proceeding. Chemnitz is the seat of the principal cotton mills of the kingdom, and is situated on the Chemnitz river, an affluent of the Mulde.

BRITISH DOCKYARDS.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—At length the British authorities have determined to come to a very sage decision respecting foreigners visiting the royal dockyards and arsenals. Unless under very exceptional circumstances the privilege is not to be accorded.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

THE MINISTER RESIDENT.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Times announces that the Canadian Government has decided to appoint a Minister resident in London, who will always be a member of the Cabinet and says that Sir A. T. Galt has been appointed. The Times, in commenting on the appointment of Sir A. T. Galt, considers it opportune in view of the revival of the fisheries dispute. He will also endeavour to have the embargo on the importation of American cattle into England removed, and will also immediately give his attention to other important matters relating to the Dominion of Canada.

Vanderbilt said he did not own, and has not owned, a share of Erie directly or indirectly. ATTEMPTING THE CZAR'S LIFE.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—The explosives which destroyed the Imperial baggage train are stated to have been placed on Monday evening under the rails at a point over which the Imperial train would pass just before entering Moscow railway station. The Czar arrived safely at eleven o'clock on Monday night. The explosion occurred on the passage of the baggage train half an hour afterwards. The house whence the mine was exploded, has been discovered. A search is being made for the perpetrators. To-day a deputation proceeded to the the Kremlin to congratulate his Majesty upon his visit to Moscow. Previous to the Emperor's arrival in the Hall of Audience, the Lord Marshall gave the deputation news of the catastrophe of the previous evening. His hearer's appeared thunderstruck, but immediately afterwards broke into loud cheers at the Emperor's escape. The Emperor appeared in the hall at noon, and was presented by the municipal authorities with bread and salt, when he spoke as follows:—"Gentlemen, —I am very glad to see you again, remembering the loyal attachment which you evinced on the occasion of the sad event of April 14th. Similar assurance then reached me from all parts."

He has submitted his scheme to the Minister of Agriculture to carry out his design.

A CHILD named Pierce, while being punished by her teacher in one of the Norwich, Conn., schools a fortnight ago, attempted to break away and run home. The teacher caught her at the door, and, in shutting it, caught her head between the door and the jamb, inflicting severe bruises. Last week she died, and a post mortem examination by a Montville physician is said to have revealed clots of blood on the brain, believed to have been caused by the accident. There is a great deal of excitement in the district.

A LARGE BLOCK OF ICE has been made in the house itself, by making a frame of boards in the center, and gradually filling it up, so that the water freezes solidly each night. Additions in height are made to the frame as required, and the sawdust is packed around it. In this way is solid block of ice, 10 feet each way weighing over 30 tons, has been made during the winter by means of a hose from a pump. Such a block of ice wastes very little in the summer.

Aged People.

To pass from poverty to wealth is only changing misery, but to pass from illness to health is like flying from this world to paradise. Many aged people who are troubled with derangements of the urinary organs would find relief by using Victoria Buchu and Uva Ursi, which is prepared expressly to meet their case and cure diseases of the secretory system. $1 per bottle.

St. Joseph's Home, in the city of New York, is an institution for the care of the aged and feeble under the Good Sisters and for the cure of those under their care. Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, by advice of their medical adviser, Dr. Kerrigan, directs its use in cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, swollen joints of the hands or feet; for it always cures.

FALSE PROPHETS.

As the proof of the pudding is in the eating, so experience is the best test of what the National Policy is doing. The Grit prophets told us, and for that matter continue to tell us, that the National Policy would destroy our trade with Great Britain. Well, it has now been in operation some months, and let us examine the results: During the months of July and August, as compared with the same months of last year, there was only a falling off of nine per cent. in the imports from Great Britain, while there was a falling off of forty-seven per cent, in the same articles from the United States. Turning to particular items, and taking the imports at the principal ports of the Dominion, during the months of July, August and September, it is found that cotton goods have increased eight per cent, as compared with the same months of 1878, while the importations of the same goods from the United States have decreased forty-three per cent. During the same period the total importations of iron and steel increased forty per cent as compared with the preceding year, and yet those from the United States decreased thirty-three per cent. Again, leather and leather work show an increase of twenty per cent from Great Britain, and a decrease of forty per cent from the States. So much for Grit prophecies about the effect of the N.P. on the source from whence our imports would be drawn. Another prophecy, and one which Mr. Bertram made much of during the campaign, was that a duty on grain would kill our carrying trade. Well a season has come and gone with a duty on grain and the result is that the receipts and shipments of grain at the port of Montreal this year much exceed those of any of the preceding former years. And thus it is that the test of experience is rapidly exploding, one after another, the bubbles of Grit prophecy, until soon not one of them will be left with a shadow of foundation whereon to stand.

THE ENGLISH MAILS.

The Post-Master-General has sent the following answer to a memorial of the Toronto Board of Trade, in regard to the detention of the English mails for the west at Montreal:—

"I beg to say that the question is one wholly of expense. No doubt it would be a great convenience to the cities named in the memorial to have a special train sent on to Montreal with Ocean mails, as far west as London, immediately after the arrival of the steamer; but the expense would be very heavy, and the convenience not one effecting the community of Ontario at large. I will, however, give the representation of your Board my attentive consideration."

LEGISLATURE OF ONTARIO.

The Legislature of Ontario has been summoned for the despatch of business on Wednesday, the 7th January. As the Mowat Government have a large majority at their back, have had six months to prepare their measures, and not much to do, the session should be an exceedingly short one.

THE MACDONALD BANQUET.

We find the following letter in the Ottawa Citizen:—

"Banquet to the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald and Colleagues, by the Conservatives of Ottawa:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE,—Allow me to thank you very sincerely for your invitation to the above banquet, and to express my exceeding regret at my inability to attend. Circumstances over which I have no control prevent it. Let me say, however, as a priest of the diocese of Kingston—the mother see of Ontario, and also the fruitful mother of Conservative bishops and Conservative priests—that I should esteem it an honor to be present on the interesting occasion. The country owes a vast debt of gratitude to the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald clarum et venerabile nomen—and it should be our patriotic wish as Canadians that no Marius may ever sit amid the ruins of a country which the consummate ability of Sir John has tended so much to build up and consolidate. A statesman that any nation under the sun might well feel proud of, he has shed a halo of glory around this "Canada of ours," and its institutions. With the intuition of genius, he beheld, as it were, in rapt vision, the future greatness of our youthful nation among the nations of the earth, and with the god-like energy of genius he entered, and has continued to this day, upon the task allotted him. Well and nobly has he succeeded, triumphing by his powers of mind, "which to him, indeed, a kingdom is," over almost insuperable obstacles. His distinguished, dazzling career as "Canada's first and greatest statesman," is his best eulogy. Submitting that career to the most approved canons of criticism, can we forbear to proudly proclaim that the right honourable gentleman has, indeed, succeeded in erecting a monument perennius aere. Standing around that monument, and gazing upon its pyramidal dimensions, let us not hush the voice pregnant with the solemn utterance:—Words are the daughters of earth; things are the sons of heaven. Standing around that monument sacred to genius, let us with one accord cry out: Sir John Macdonald found Canada "a skeleton, and clothed it with life, color and complexion; he embraced the cold statue, and by his touch it grew into youth, health and beauty." Standing around that monument and gratefully recalling the recent legislation which rescued Canada magic-like from languor and decay, let paeans of praise burst forth, for "He smote the rock of the national resources, and abundant streams of revenue gushed forth. He touched the dead corpse of public credit, and it sprung upon its feet." Standing around that monument in view of the benefits innumerable conferred by Sir John upon our common country, let us record "right solemnly" Canada's vow for "Canada's most illustrious son—vivat in aeternum. In spirit I will pledge at your banquet on Thursday evening: The Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, veteran jurisconsult and statesman par excellence—may his tenure of office be commensurate with life, and may a life so precious be prolonged ad multos annos.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Yours very sincerely,
WM. J. KEILTY, Pt.

The CHAIRMAN replied that a communication had been received from Mr. Stratton, the School Inspector, stating that the necessary qualifications had been granted by the Minister of Education, and were in the possession of the teachers.

From Mr. J. P. Metheral, asking that the Board take some action to meet his case, he being a heavy tax payer on property in the town, and yet living only a short distance outside the Town limits, was unable to send his children to the Public School without having to pay the usual fees paid by bona-fide county pupils.

The resignation of Mr. C. D. Macdonald was on motion, accepted.

The request of Mr. J. C. Brown was granted by the Board.

The communications of Messrs. Russell, Smart, from the Inspector, from the Department and from the Steam Users' Association were all received.

The communications of Mr. Metheral and from the Clinton High School Board, were received, and action taken thereon at a further stage of the proceedings of the Board.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Mr. ERRETT, Chairman of the Committee, stated he had entered into a contract with a party for the supplying of a large quantity of cut tamarac wood, at the price of $1.25 per cord. They could have either one or two hundred cords at that figure.

Moved by Mr. TOOLE, seconded by Mr. MENZIES,—That this Board approve of the action of the Property Committee in reference to the purchase of wood, and that the Chairman of that Committee be authorized to purchase from 100 to 200 cords of tamarac at $1.25 per cord.—Carried.

Mr. EDMISON asked for a report of the expenses incurred in the West Ward School.

Mr. ERRETT said that the instructions of the Board had been carried out, with regard to purchasing the stoves, &c. needed. He added that everything had been paid for as it was furnished.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTIONS.

Mr. ERRETT introduced the following motion in accordance with the amended School Act, [illegible] for the election of Trustees for the ensuing year. By the new law, the Returning Officers have to make their returns to the Board on the day after the elections, and the Board on the following day should post up lists and notices of the result of the election.

Moved by R. W. ERRETT, seconded by Mr. TOOLE,—That the elections for School Trustees be held at the places in town where the same were held last year, and that the following persons be and are hereby appointed Returning Officers thereat respectively:—First Ward, Jas. Lundy; Second Ward, C. D. Macdonald; Third Ward, John Irwin; Fourth Ward, John Lee; and that the first meeting of the new Board be held on the first Thursday in January to receive reports from returning officers, and to take all necessary steps to complete the elections as by law required.

THE AGGRIEVED RATEPAYERS.

Moved by Mr. TOOLE, seconded by Mr MENZIES,—That the communication of Mr. Jno. Metheral be referred to a special committee consisting of Messrs. Edmison, Errett and the mover.

Mr. DUMBLE said that he would move in amendment that the Board do now discuss this matter at once. It would have to be approved of by the Board before any steps could be taken in the matter, and might just as well be settled at once. They could make no exceptions, and to attempt to do so would open up the whole question.

MR. TOOLE maintained that the relief asked for by Mr. Metheral was nothing more than any freeholder or property holder was entitled to. He instanced the case of parties who had come in from the country and on the strength of renting a house and paying taxes thereon, were enjoying the advantages of giving their family a good education, while the ratepayers of the Town footed the bill. The Committee asked for were not given power to deal with the matter, but to see what action it would be judicious or prudent to take.

MR. DUMBLE saw no way of meeting the difficulty but that made use of by the School Board of Hamilton, who had construed the definition "ratepayer," to mean one who paid taxes irrespective of his actually being a resident of the city.

MR. ERRETT pointed out that residents of Ashburnham had gone so far as to rent a small lot in town, paying the taxes thereon, and on the strength of such nominal outlay, obtaining the right to send their children to the town schools.

MR. EDMISON thought that such cases as that of Mr. Metheral were entitled to consideration. He instanced several others who were in much the same predicament, and considered it an injustice to make parties living just outside the town limits pay an extra school fee for their children's education.

MR. ERRETT suggested that steps should be taken to annex the property of those parties to our school section, then the Town would have the benefit of their school taxes—a much larger sum in the aggregate than what they would have to pay in the shape of fees.

MR. MENZIES would be happy to withdraw his support to the motion if Mr. Dumble would embody his views in another motion, so as to give the Board something to go by in the future.

MR. DUMBLE pointed out that as the property of those persons who felt themselves aggrieved was already giving school privileges to the tenants renting such premises, and who were the actual tax-payers, it would not be much of a hardship if these outsiders had their children educated at the expense of the usual fees paid by pupils from the County.

MR. TOOLE's motion was amended by adding both the names of Messrs. Shaw and Dumble, and passed.

AN INCREASE OF SALARY WANTED.

Mr. TOOLE said he had been given an application to hand to the Board, made by the Janitor of the Third Ward School, asking for an increase of salary, as his duties had increased.

Mr. ERRETT objected to entertaining any such proposition or request. The place of this or any other Janitor could be filled for much less than the salary the present Janitors were getting, and by good, reliable men.

The application was allowed to be referred to the Property Committee to consider, and on suggestion it was decided to include an enquiry into the way in which the Janitors performed their duties. Several of the Board said that complaints had been made of incivility by Janitors to the children.

DISTURBING THE PUPILS.

Mr. MENZIES drew the attention of the Board to the trouble that was being caused to pupils attending the South Ward School, owing to their being interfered with while on their way from school, by some unruly boys living in the neighbourhood, who did not attend the school, but were continually interfering with and abusing the school children.

MR. STEVENSON said he had sent the constables immediately upon complaint having been made, to warn the parents of the boys complained of, that such proceedings must be stopped.

MR. MENZIES said that it was well to bring the matter publically before the Board, and he moved, seconded by Mr. TOOLE,—That the Chairman of this Board be authorised to take steps to protect the pupils attending the South Ward School, or any other of the Ward schools, from being molested by disorderly boys living in the neighborhood.—Carried.

THOSE PETITIONS.

Moved by MR. ERRETT, seconded by Mr. TOOLE,—That the copy of a petition to the Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, relating to Collegiate Institute Grants be referred to the Finance Committee with power to make any alterations or additions that they may consider right, and that the Chairman and Secretary be and are hereby authorized to sign the petition adopted by said committee, and attach the official seal thereto.

The Board then adjourned.

TORONTO OPERA HOUSE FIRE.

Heart Rending Account by the Gas Engineer of the Wright Family who Perished in the Flames.

Thomas Scott, gas engineer of the theatre, was found by a Globe reporter at 37 Richmond-street East, where he is suffering from burns and other injuries received at the fire. He slept in a room in the building, and is the last person who saw the unfortunate Wright family alive. Mr. Scott was quite willing to tell all he knew about the disaster, and said:—This is my third season at the Grand Opera House, where I was employed as gas engineer. It was my duty to examine all portions of the theatre every night; and last night I made a more minute examination than usual, being over the entire house three times. The first time I went alone, and afterwards I was accompanied by Mr. Bandmann's dresser. The third and last time was a few minutes before two, when the deceased, Wright, accompanied me. We found everything all right. I then went to bed, and being [illegible] fell asleep. I occupied a room over the [illegible] office, in the top of the building, and Wright's room opened off mine. About three o'clock I was aroused by a rushing, roaring sound, which at first I thought was the wind, but the clouds of smoke rolling past the window, and a feeling of suffocation told me that it was a fire. At the same time I heard the Wrights moving around, and in a moment more they rushed frantically into my room. Wright had his pants and coat on, and Mrs. Wright held Mamie in her arms. I opened the door leading to the stairs, but saw the flames bursting through at the bottom, and the draft carried volumes of smoke into the room. I shut the door, and we all ran into the kitchen, where I raised the window. I said to Wright, "Throw yourself from the window; it's the only way we'll ever get out." He seemed panic-stricken, and did not answer me. The child was screaming in Mrs. Wright's arms, and I tried to get it away, but she held on too tightly. They all crowded to the window, and I told them to jump. They seemed as if they wished to, but were afraid. I said, "It's jump or burn." The smoke coming thicker than ever, flames increasing in intensity, I threw myself from the window. I did not know where I was going, nor did I try to drop. I just rolled out in a heap. When I struck the slanting roof I heard them call from the window, but could not make out what they said. I called back, but never heard them again. I think they must have been suffocated. I must have been three or four minutes on the roof before the firemen reached the scene, and brought me to the ground. It was about 20 feet from the window to the roof. If I had dropped from either of the other windows I would have fallen about 80 feet. I told the firemen that there were three people in the burning building. I then went to Dr. Pollard's office and he dressed my wounds, and afterwards I returned to the fire, where I remained until the bodies were found. It is my positive belief that the place was set on fire. It could not have originated at the furnaces, as the preservation of the boilers will prove, and if it had been the gas, Wright and I would have noticed it at two o'clock when we went round.

THE WRIGHT FAMILY.

Robert Wright was stage carpenter of the theatre. He had been employed there for about three years, and is said to have been quiet and steady at his business. "A better man never walked the streets of Toronto," said his mate, Joe Cohen, and this was the testimony of many others. Wright was about 35 years of age. His relatives live in Philadelphia. Mrs. Wright was a young woman, but very stout, and well liked by all who knew her. The child, Mamie, was a bright little girl, five years of age.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

These are very well in their way, sometimes very well indeed, but I do think the tree business is often overdone. We found that we could not manage the tree in our family, for many reasons. We love to keep all our little secrets from each other until the time for the grand jubilation. And then we want to make such presents as will give the most lasting pleasure, considering their cost, and often these are quite unsuitable for a tree. The tree tempts to extravagance, or to an outlay for merely showy toys. If one family of children have a gaily decked Christmas tree, their neighbors feel that they must have one, as no one wishes to be outdone by others. I do not know the origin of the Christmas tree. Within the last twenty years it has grown from very small beginnings, and spread itself wonderfully in this country, until of late its popularity appears to be somewhat on the wane. Yet present-giving is as popular as ever. There is room for great improvement in this, all in the way of consulting the happiness of others, rather than our own praise and pleasure.

But I do not like to be thought wholly opposed to Christmas trees. They are sometimes so well managed that no fault can be found with them. In some families, the same decorations and ornaments are kept and used from year to year, and very pretty effects are produced by the arrangement of the dolls, soldiers, horses, and other animals about the grounds underneath the tree, where bits of looking glass simulate water and where flowers seem to grow among the moss. Trees arranged in this artistic manner are often kept on exhibition through the Holiday Week, with pleasing effect.

I like the Christmas stockings best of all, perhaps because of long habit and early associations. But there is every year much happy expectation and genuine wish to please among my little flock as each one hangs up a clean stocking on going to bed, and puts parcels done up in paper so as not to show the shape of the contents into the other stockings, or hang them on the same nail as the stockings if they are too large to go inside. Then what happy shouts and rejoicings together as these stockings are taken down and explored on Christmas morning! It often happens that a little one is so engaged in watching the others as they open the gifts he made, that he forgets his own stocking until reminded of it by the others. One of the best things Christmas does for us is to strengthen our family love, one for another, and at the same time it enlarges our sympathies, making us feel more than at any other time of the year, that we are all one kind of kindred, all one great human family who should love and help each other.

A Sanitary Board.

Nobody will say that too much attention is given by either the provincial or municipal authorities to sanitary affairs. As a rule, the public health is left to take care of itself. This should not be. Dr. Brouse, a former member of Parliament, was very enthusiastic in the cause of sanitary reform, but he was unable to get the Government to take practical measures for the preservation of the public health. The statement is made on the authority of a medical man that five hundred persons die annually in Ontario alone through lack of sanitary information. The experiment of a National Board of Health is being tried by the United States Government, and seems to be giving out good results. The main duty of the Board is obviously to glean all possible information in regard to disease, to co-operate and advise the various municipal authorities, and to look after the public health generally. As the care of the public health is a matter of great importance, the Canadian Government should gravely consider the advisability of appointing a National Health Board.—Toronto Telegram.

CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS.

Meeting of the High Court in the City of Brantford.

A large and influential gathering of the Canadian Order of Foresters took place in the city of Brantford on Thursday, Nov. 27th. Twenty-three Ontario Courts were represented. The meeting was held in the Foresters' Hall, Market Square.

Rev. G. G. McRobbie, of Tilsonburg, the High Chief Ranger, occupied the chair, and G. Lindley, of this city, High Secretary of the Order in Canada, acted as Secretary of the Convention. It would appear from the remarks made, that for a long time past the members of the Order throughout the country have been complaining of the excessive demands made upon them on account of endowments. A large number of the members in Canada had allowed themselves to be suspended, from the fact that they could not afford to pay the amounts which were called for. Many Courts had their membership reduced from over fifty or sixty members to fifteen and twenty.

Last spring it became necessary to call a special meeting of the H. C. of Ontario to carefully consider the situation. And then it was found, that on account of the loose manner in which the affairs of the Order had been conducted, together with the apparent unwillingness of the M. W. H. Officers to give necessary information, all confidence in the minds of Foresters had gone, and it was with difficulty that they could be kept from seceding there and then, but it was resolved to ask the proper officers to call a special meeting of the M. W. H. C. that their request might be granted in a legal and proper manner. This was denied. But the denial was coupled with a promise that the request should be granted at the next meeting of the M. W. H. C. This was accepted, but confidence was not restored. Many of the Courts dragged out a miserable existence for some months, and some became defunct. At the meeting of the H. C. in Toronto, it was again resolved to press the request, as it was found the prosperity, in fact the life, of the Order had become listless, and the only appearance of life was found in new Courts recently instituted, who were yet in happy ignorance of the ruinous tendencies of American rule.

At the meeting of the M. W. H. Court the request was almost unanimously refused, and the only other alternatives left was to collapse or declare for independence. The latter was determined on, and the Canadian Foresters struck for independence, and cut loose from American dictation and oppression, and established the Canadian Order of Foresters on a basis acceptible to Canadians, and in conformity to the liberality and freedom of Canadian institutions.

The working and benefits of the Order were briefly explained as follows:

"Immediately upon becoming a member of one of the Subordinate Courts, the widow or legal heirs upon the death of a member, are entitled to the benefit of the endowment law, which provides for them $1,000. In addition to this, members have the services of a first-class physician; and receive also a benefit of at least $3 per week during illness, to be paid weekly.

If a member one year, in case of death, the widow or heirs become entitled to a funeral benefit of at least $30, which insures to each member a decent burial, and when taken in connection with our endowment of $1,000, assures us that the loved ones will not be left to the cold charity of the world, for by the practice of a little economy they may live comfortably.

These benefits are assured by the payment of $6 for admission to membership ($5 to the treasury of the Court and $1 for examination by the physician), and a payment of $5 yearly in quarterly payments. In addition to this the payment of the sum of 50 cents per month into the endowment fund, out of which the sum of $1,000 is paid to the wife or legal heirs of any deceased brother."

The meeting was very harmonious throughout and the greatest good feeling and enthusiasm prevailed. Considerable business was transacted in the interests of the Order, and from the spirit manifested in the meeting we are satisfied that the Order in Canada will increase, and that it will soon take first rank among our benevolent institutions. We heartily wish the Canadian Order of Foresters God speed.

The following are the officers elect for the ensuing year:—

High Chief Ranger, Rev. G. G. McRobbie, Tilsonburg.
" Vice-Chief Ranger, J. Greenfield, Hamilton.
" Secretary, G. Lindley, Brantford.
" Treasurer, Nelson Green, Waterford.
" Senior Woodward, E. C. Clark, Listowell.
" Junior Woodward, Peter Robb, Clinton.
" Senior Beadle, E. Field, Toronto.
" Junior Beadle, E. H. Raymour, St. Thomas.
" Chaplain, J. H. Colville, Watford.
" Physician, J. J. Esmond, M. D., Peterborough.
Chairman of Medical Board of Referees, Dr. U. M. Stanley, Watford.
High Conductor, J. T. Cooper, Londesboro.
Auditors,—Messrs. R. J. Halle, Chatham, and G. Glasco, Brantford.

DECEMBER NOTES.

TOP DRESSING.—If manure is needed for winter grain, now is the time to apply it. It may be used fresh and coarse, without losing much in value. Even straw spread over the wheat is of great benefit. Mulching is a protection against extremes of both heat and cold, and preserves the crop during sudden and severe changes of the weather.

FATTENING SHEEP.—Sheep that are being fattened for market and for the sake of manure, need to be fed with great regularity. A variation of half an hour in their foddering time makes them fretful and uneasy, and this causes loss of flesh and fat. If well littered, the manure may be left to collect in the shed until spring; the solid packing of the manure will prevent undue heating.

SWAMP MUCK.—Where there is a supply of swamp muck, as much of it as convenient may be usefully spread over the yards, pens and stables, as an absorbent. If swamp muck contains 2 per cent. of nitrogen, some has been found to contain even more, a ton is worth $10 for this ingredient alone at its market price. No ordinary stable manure is so rich in nitrogen as that. A muck bed may well be said to be invaluable, for one acre 3 feet deep furnishes 2,500 tons, having a value, at the above figures, equal to twenty-five thousand dollars.

HOW SWAMP MUCK MAY BE USED.—Muck dug in the winter will freeze and fall into a fine powder. If put in heaps, with lime or ashes, it will heat and ferment, and will not freeze, but will be changed to a loose texture, and can then be handled with ease. In this condition it is best fitted for use in composts as an absorbent, or to put on the land.

THE GRANARY AND CRIBS.—A large quantity of grain is stored, awaiting higher prices. This may be wise or otherwise. One thing to be considered, is, the loss by shrinkage, and waste in the granary and crib. Wheat in the granary is subject to injury by the weevil and grain moth. This damage may be prevented to some extent, by shifting the grain, and running it through the fanning mill. Corn cribs are almost always infested by rats and mice. A vermin-proof crib may be made by covering the posts and lower corners with tin or sheet iron, which may be painted for preservation. The loss by these causes will average 10 per cent, and often more, of the value of the grain, but it may be, in part, or wholly, avoided by care and precaution.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 3.—The market this morning was rather slimly attended by the towns-people, although there were many farmers in. The offerings were mostly of beef, pork and potatoes. Pork took the lead, and a large number of hogs were disposed of to packers at good prices, ranging from $5.00 @ $5.50 per hundred. Some few choice hogs brought $5.75; these, however, were scarce. Quarters were sold at 5½ cts. per lb. Some very choice quarters brought 6c. Beef was in excess of the demand, and found slow sale at $3.00 @ $3.75 for fore quarters, and $4.00 @ $5.00 for hind quarters. Potatoes were plentiful at 60 @ 65 cents per bag; some farmers asked 70 cents, without takers. The supply of butter was very light. The market for butter was weak at quotations, with a disposition downward. Roll butter weakened and sold from one to two cents lower than quotations. Eggs were in fair supply, at 16 cents. There were several parcels of peas offered and taken at 62 @ 64 cents. A few lots of oats brought 33 cts. Wheat advanced to $1.16 @ $18 for spring, and $1.16 @ $1.20 for fall; there were several loads in to-day. Hay found slow sale at $6.00; there were several fine loads on the stand. The farmers say that the changeableness of the weather interferes with the sale of beef for family use, and they can make no calculation as to sales. Poultry sold cheap to-day, chickens going at 20 @ 30 cents, and ducks at 40 cents per pair; turkeys 40 @ 70, according to size, and geese 35 to 40 cents each.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the usual victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

C. O. F.

Court Peterborough, of the Canadian Order of Foresters will meet this evening, and will nominate officers for the coming term.

Partridges, Ducks and Turkeys.

Mr. Geo. Chamberlain is exhibiting for sale a fine lot of partridges, turkeys and ducks, at his store on George street.

Free From Ice Again.

The Otonabee River and the Little Lake below Peterborough are again free from ice. The rain storm and mild weather of the past few days melted the ice and caused it to disappear.

A Singular Coincidence.

Yesterday, Mr. McMullin, of Asphodel, brought to market two hogs, "brother and sister," weighing 422 pounds each. A remarkable coincidence of two hogs, raised side by side, weighing exactly alike. Mr. McMullin sold the hogs at $5.75 per hundred.

The Lecture on Friday Evening.

The lecture on "The Kindergarten," by Mr. James Hughes, Provincial School Inspector, of Toronto, on Friday evening next, before the Teachers' Association, will be given in the County Court Room of the Court House. Admission free.

Skating and the Rink.

The young people may now, with some degree of surety, get their skates in readiness for use at the Skating and Curling Rink. The ground is in good condition, and everything is in readiness for flooding. Should the present cold weather continue, an attempt will be made to-morrow.

Muddy Sidewalk.

Hunter Street, near the Otonabee river bridge, has a muddy spot whenever it rains, which is anything but agreeable. Those living in Ashburnham would no doubt be glad to have the nuisance abated. The sidewalk at this point is below the road bed, and every rain storm carries the street dirt across it.

Weasels Prowling About.

Yesterday afternoon, a large sized white weasel, made its appearance under the sidewalk, near the entrance to the yard of Mr. Yelland, on George Street. Its actions attracted the attention of several passers by, some of whom thought it might be a ferret. Those having chickens, had better look well to their henerys, or they may wake up some morning to find a sad havoc committed.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: Fresh to brisk easterly to north-easterly winds; cloudy weather with light snow. The rain storm in Peterborough yesterday changed to snow about 9 o'clock last night, and continued throughout the night. This morning the thermometer indicated 26°, raising to 29° at 12 o'clock and falling again to 26° by two o'clock this afternoon. Snow has continued to fall during the day and has formed a good bottom for sleighing.

Christmas and New Years' Cards.

We have had the pleasure of inspecting a collection of cards for Christmas and the New Year, in Mr. Little's Art Gallery. Besides the beautiful and well-known embossed floral cards from Germany, there are a great variety of cards designed this year in a most artistic and tasteful manner by O. R. W., and selected by Mr. G. B. Sproule from the large stock of Prang & Co., of Boston. Mr. Little's stock of cards, being always thus carefully selected, are invariably sold out before Christmas, so our readers would do well to make an early selection.

From Peterborough to Liverpool.

Mr. George. C. Rogers, Otonabee Mills, Ashburnham, is shipping direct to Liverpool, England, 1,000 barrels of super-extra flour. On Tuesday one-half of the shipment was delivered to the Midland Railway, the remainder is to be sent to-day, and on Thursday the ten cars will be united at Port Hope and conveyed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company and its connections to Boston, where the flour is to be shipped to Liverpool. The barrels are stamped "Otonabee Mills, Sup.-Extra, Geo. C. Rogers, Peterborough, Ont." The flour is milled from fine fall wheat grown in the County of Peterborough.

Knight, P. S. Inspector for East Victoria, are to be present and take part in the proceedings of the Association. Teachers are requested to bring their notebooks with them.

Beautiful Bibles and Albums.

Peterborough can boast of a number of bookstores which are really first-class, with proprietors who take pride in their calling and evince first-rate taste in the selection of their goods. The young and enterprising firm of Wilson & Davis are fast establishing themselves as booksellers and dealers in substantial fancy goods and seem to have a faculty of attracting a continued patronage from those who commenced their trade with them. One of the distinguished features of Wilson & Davis is the individuality that is manifested in their advertisements. Their manifestos are plain, convincing, and perfectly intelligible. Their special lines consist chiefly of the more expensive and elaborate styles of Bibles for family and pocket use; also handsome Albums for photographs, autographs, and scraps. They usually carry a well-selected stock of these lines, and parties requiring such can have no difficulty in making their selections, unless, like the boy at the fair, the customers do not know which to admire most.

THE SNOW BY-LAW.

Its Provisions for Removal of Snow &c., from Sidewalks and Roofs of Buildings.

The recently passed Snow By-law has now been published, and we reproduce it for the convenience of our readers. The fire limits, which are also adopted as the limits for clearing snow, extend from Charlotte Street northward to Murray Street, and from Queen Street westward to Aylmer Street, both sides of the street being included in each instance. The following is the By-law:—

A BY-LAW to compel Owners and Occupants of premises to remove Snow or Ice from the Sidewalks adjoining of in front of such premises and upon the Roofs of Houses.

WHEREAS great inconvenience is felt and great danger exists to pedestrians, owing to the accumulations of Snow and Ice upon the Sidewalks and upon the Roofs of Houses in the Town of Peterborough, and whereas it is deemed necessary to provide for the removal of such Snow and Ice.

The Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. That every occupant of a House or Shop and every person having charge of any Church, Chapel, or other building, and every owner of a Vacant Lot or unoccupied building, within the Fire Limits in the Town of Peterborough, shall before Eight o'clock P.M. of every day (Sunday excepted), remove or cause to be removed, the Snow or Ice off the sidewalk in front of his or her premises, and in case the Snow or Ice is so frozen that it cannot be removed without injury to the sidewalk, every such person shall from time to time, as may be necessary, strew the sidewalk with ashes.

2. That it shall be the duty of the Street Inspector to cause the Snow or Ice to be removed from the sidewalk in front of the property belonging to or used by the Corporation, except when occupied by any of the officials in a private capacity.

3. That no person shall allow any Snow or Ice to remain on the roof of any building he or she may occupy, own, or have charge of, within the said limits, so as to cause any reasonable apprehension of danger therefrom.

4. That in case Snow or Ice be not removed from off the sidewalks, or from off the roof of any building within the said Fire Limits, as hereinbefore provided by Eight o'clock P. M. (Sunday excepted), it shall be the duty of the Street Inspector to cause such Snow or Ice to be removed at the expense of the said Corporation, and to give information and prosecute such person so neglecting to remove the Snow or Ice as aforesaid, and in such case the fine to be imposed upon such person shall not be less than the expense so incurred, provided always that such expense shall not exceed the sum of Twenty Dollars.

5. That any person or persons guilty of an infraction of any of the provisions of this By-law, shall on conviction before the Police Magistrate, or other Magistrate having jurisdiction, forfeit and pay at the discretion of the convicting Magistrate, a sum of money not exceeding Twenty Dollars exclusive of costs, and in default of payment of fine and cost, it shall and may be lawful for the Magistrate convicting as aforesaid to issue a warrant under his hand and seal to levy the amount of the said fine and costs by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattles, and in case no sufficient distress is found, then to commit the offender to the Common Gaol of the County of Peterborough, for a period of not more than Twenty-one Days, unless such fine and costs be sooner paid.

THE SPECIAL AUDIT.

To the Editor of the Review

DEAR SIR,—I am one of those who heartily approve of the action of the Council in appointing Messrs. Mills and Hogan to make a special audit of the Collector's Rolls, and I feel satisfied that they will perform their duties thoroughly and impartially unless influenced by parties having some sinister object to serve. I am also one of those who think that the investigations of the auditors should be conducted in private, and the result of their labours first made public when reported to the Council. I regret to learn, Mr. Editor, that a certain Councillor of one year's standing, with that brazen assurance which so characterizes him, forces his presence upon the auditors on every possible occasion. If this individual so acted out of mere curiosity, one might overlook such conduct in his particular case, but when it is well known that he, not caring for the interests of the town in which he has little stake, but simply wishing to injure Mr. Edwards, I think it is high time that steps should be taken to prevent any further interference on his part. If Messrs. Mills and Hogan desire that their report should be received as impartial, and complete, they will at once assert their right to conduct their future investigations without outside interference. Should they fail to do so, then I say the council should interfere and take the proper means to have this councillor removed whenever he forces his presence where it is not only not desired, but where he would not be, had he any regard for his own position.

Yours, &c.,

A RATEPAYER.

TORONTO.

SAD CASE.—On Saturday last a barrister of this city who had been down to the Ottawa banquet was brought home in a state of mental aberration. The train on its arrival halted at the foot of York street, where a cab and several friends were in waiting, and into it by the united strength of a number of men the unfortunate gentleman was placed and ultimately conveyed to his home.

THE CUSTOMS SCANDAL.—On Saturday Mr. Johnston, Commissioner of Customs, continued his investigation into the past management of the Customs at this port with a view if possible to throw some further light on the disappearance of the money from the coffers of the institution. A number of the clerks were examined under oath, and the examination will be continued to-day. Mr. James E. Smith was in the office as usual throughout the day. Mr. Newburn, Inspector of Ports, will continue the investigation after Mr. Johnston leaves.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY'S ANNUAL SERMON.—The annual sermon was preached to the members of the St. Andrew's Society on Sunday evening in St. James'-square Presbyterian Church, by the pastor, Rev. J. M. King. The rev. gentleman choose for his text, the 4th verse of the 22nd Psalm, "Our fathers trusted in Thee; they trusted, and Thou didst deliver them." The speaker proceeded to say that the St. Andrew's Society was not a distinctive religious organization. It aimed at the promotion of good feeling and kindly intercourse among Scotchmen and the descendants of Scotchmen living in a foreign land, and at reviving and perpetuating the worthy memories and traditions of their native land more than in building up a religious life. But while the Society was not a strictly religious one, its aims were surely in accordance with the aims of religion, and the methods which it employed were, or ought to be, such as the religion of Jesus Christ sanctions. One of these aims was the preservation of the worthy traditions and memories of our native land, and among these must surely be counted the memories of its religious life, and the struggles which have helped to give that life its shape and character. It would be in keeping, therefore, with the design of the Society and with the spirit of the Sabbath evening worship to recall some of the more prominent characteristics of the piety of the Scottish people, and to commend the perpetuation of those characteristics among ourselves in so far as they deserve to be perpetuated.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The full text of the Message occupies eight and a half columns of the New York Times. Among other things the President refers to the establishment in 1871 of a Civil Service Commission to take charge of the examination of competitors for office. Congress for two years appropriated money for the support of that Commission. In 1874 the Commission reported and asked for an appropriation of $25,000. Their work was approved in the Presidental Message that year, and an appropriation recommended, but that appropriation was not made, and as a consequence the active work of the Commission was suspended, leaving the Commission itself still in existence without means of causing qualifications to be tested in any manner, or of securing for the public service the advantages of competition on any extensive plan. The President says:—I recommended in my annual message of 1877 the making of an appropriation for the resumption of work of the Commission. In the meantime, however, competitive examinations, under many embarrassments, have been conducted within limited spheres in the executive departments in Washington, and in a number of custom houses and post offices in the country, with the view to further test their effects, and in every instance they have been found to be salutary, as they are stated to have been under the administration of my predecessor. I think economy, purity, and the efficiency of the public service would be greatly promoted by their systematic introduction wherever practical throughout the entire civil service of the Government, together with ample provision for their general supervision, in order to secure consistency and uniform justice. The reports of the Government officers, in the city of New York especially, bear decided testimony to the utility of competitive examinations in their respective offices, showing the examinations, and the excellent qualifications of those admitted to the service through them, have had a marked incidental effect on persons previously in the service, and particularly on those aspiring to promotion. I deem it my duty to renew recommendations requesting Congress to make the necessary appropriation for the resumption of the work of the Civil Service Commission. Economy will be promoted by authorizing moderate compensation to persons in public service who may perform extra labour upon or under commission, as the Executive may direct. It may not be easy and it may never be necessary to define with precision the proper limit of political action on the part of the federal officers; but while their right to hold and freely express their opinions cannot be questioned, it is very plain they should neither be allowed to devote to other subjects the time needed for the proper discharge of their official duties, nor use the authority of their office to enforce their own opinions, or to coerce the political action of those who hold different political opinions. The President deprecates arbitrary enactments from the Civil Service, giving to it the utmost possible freedom. He says the United States Minister at London has been instructed to present a demand for $105,305, in view of damages received by American citizens at Fortune Bay on the 6th January, 1878. The subject has been taken into consideration by the British Government, and an early reply is anticipated. Endeavor will be made to have an early permanent settlement of the Fisheries question. Increased appropriations for representation at the Melbourne Exhibition are recommended. Allusion is made to the landing of the new French Cable. The attention of Congress is drawn to the propriety of the general regulation of the whole subject of transmarine cables. Various questions pending between the United States and the different foreign powers are in the way to a satisfactory settlement. The President considers the Nicaragua Canal will be a benefit to Central America, the United States, and the commerce of the civilized world, and should the work be undertaken under the auspices of the United States the capital for its completion will readily be furnished. The President favors provision for regular and more frequent mail communicationships between the United States and South America, and says a naval [illegible] has been sent to the Samoan Islands to take [illegible] of the privileges ceded to the United States.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

Mr. McNaughton, until the last year or two, took an active part in town affairs. He at one time published a newspaper in this town called the Sun, which was afterwards sold to a man in Collingwood. He was a member of the Town Council for several years, and was at one time a candidate for the office of Mayor, but since his defeat on that occasion he has taken no special interest in municipal matters. He was also very active in the advocacy of temperance. He leaves a wife and one (an adopted) child.

TWO MEN'S LIVES

The Man of Purpose and the Man of None Compared.

The careers of two men in one of our Connecticut cities, writes a Hartford correspondent, afford subject for thought, whatever the moral deduced. Not twenty years ago one of the most promising Episcopalian clergymen in Connecticut was Rev. Mr.——. Settled in a beautiful city with a parish that adored him, young, handsome and talented, he easily married into one of the oldest and wealthiest families of the town, and all seemed bright before him.

To-day I hear of him as staggering through the streets of a rural town, with a helpless invalid wife and a half starved family. The wheel has turned very fast with him, for while his progress was upward for awhile, so far as promotion to larger and larger cities is concerned, yet his degradation has of late years been no less rapid. Not that he is altogether to blame for his mischances that have befallen him, for there have been some domestic misfortunes, and there were some unfortunate influences in some of the churches, over which he had ministered, that did not help him. Yet a stronger man would have overcome these, and the fact remains true that to-day a brilliant writer and able clergyman has gone all to wreck for lack of moral principles.

To the same city some thirty years ago, came a young physician, who accidently stumbled upon town, dined there, liked the looks of things and stuck up his shingle without a single acquaintance save a druggist, who told him he was a fool to settle there.

"We shall see," was the response.

The first Sunday of his stay he attended church, and on his return said to his land lady:

"I saw my wife at church to-day."

"What do you mean? I understood you to be a bachelor."

"So I am, but I saw in church the lady that I shall marry."

"Who is she?"

"I don't know. I never saw her before, but she sat in the centre of the middle aisle and was dressed so and so."

"Goodness, that is Miss——, one of our oldest families. She wouldn't look at a poor doctor like you."

"We shall see," said the doctor, who in less than two years made a bride of the lady in question, rose to a fine practice in town, and is to-day, as he has been for years, the leading physician of one of the largest cities in America, in possession of a princely income, a man whose name would be recognized by two-thirds of your readers were it given here.

The man had a purpose, the clergyman had none.

[illegible] Tupper to meet the Deputation [illegible] on the 23rd Instant.

The Secretary of the Trent Valley Canal Committee has received a letter from the Minister of Canals and Railways, stating that he will be happy to receive the Canal Deputation on Tuesday, the 23rd of December next. It is therefore to be hoped that every municipality along the whole route will make it a point to send representatives to Ottawa on the 23rd instant—more than most of them may think depends upon their doing so. The following is the official letter:—

OFFICE OF THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS, CANADA.

OTTAWA, 3rd Dec., 1879.

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your note of the 29th instant, Sir Charles Tupper instructs me to say that he will be happy to see the delegation on the Trent Valley Canal on Tuesday, the 23rd day of December instant.

Yours truly,
A. P. BRADLEY,
Private Secretary.

HENRY H. SMITH, Esq., Barrister, Peterboro'.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

A Large and Enthusiastic Meeting in Lakefield—Everybody Wants the Canal.

On Wednesday evening last, in response to the call of the Council, the ratepayers of Lakefield turned out en masse to take into consideration, the propriety of sending a deputation from the Village along with the other deputations about to proceed to Ottawa to urge upon the Government, the propriety of proceeding with the immediate construction of the Trent Valley Canal.

JOHN DINWOODIE, Esq., Reeve, was called to the chair and explained the object of the meeting, neither Conservative nor Reform, but to secure the construction of the Canal in which they were all so much interested, and expressed the hope that there would be a full and free discussion.

MR. CARNEGIE, who was present was then called upon and explained the obstacles, which were likely to be encountered in pressing this work upon the attention of the Government, and the many advantages which were likely to flow from its construction.

MR. HULL said there could be no two opinions about the building of this canal and expressed the opinion, that its construction was only a matter of time, as it was the natural outlet for the trade of the West. He agreed largely with what had been said by Mr. Carnegie, and as an evidence that railways could not compete with water, he instanced the fact that from about the 15th May to the 20th Sept., the Grand Trunk carried flour from Port Hope for twenty cents a barrel, whereas the moment the stormy season set in they raised freights to forty-five cents, or more than double, and making a difference equivalent to about six cents a bushel on wheat. It might be said that it did not pay the steamers to carry it so low, but one thing was certain they paid good dividends to their stockholders, while railways did not. Nor was it difficult to see the cause of this: Railways required a continual outlay for repairs, while water ways cost little or nothing to keep in order after they were once built. He was prepared to do all in his power to secure its construction, and he thought they should do all they could to press it upon the attention of the Government. Lakefield had much to gain by it as it would be the means of rendering many articles in the neighborhood valuable, which were now worthless. Looking to the Nor'-west, which he believed was destined to be the granary of the continent, this was undoubtedly the natural outlet, and must be adopted sooner or later. It did not matter what was the object for which the engineer was sent over the route, the great fact to them was that he had made a favourable report. He advised them to vote to send a deputation to Ottawa.

MR. URQUHART would like to know what the expense would be. To this the Chairman replied, the expenses of the delegates they sent to Ottawa. The other expenses connected with the agitation it was expected would be defrayed by the county along with other municipalities on the route.

MR. R. C. STRICKLAND being called for, said he was strongly in favor of the canal, and of their doing any thing in their power to advance it. Mr. Tully, who had made the surveys for the Toronto scheme, had told him that it was only the influence of the Toronto people that had given that scheme prominence, as the Trent was the natural route for such a canal. If they looked at the map they would find it to be on the direct line and therefore the shortest to the seaboard. Moreover, the fact that the creeks for a considerable distance, both north and south of the main channels, emptied themselves into this channel, proved that it was the lowest ground to be found between the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. He instanced the fact that the railways could not take the lumber traffic from the Oswego Canal, as an evidence that railways could not compete with canals for the carriage of heavy freight. He was convinced that sooner or later this canal would be built, but as the sooner the better for us, he thought they should join in the deputation to Ottawa.

MR. GARBUTT was next called for and said this scheme had been agitated for 40 years. He well recollected old Mr. Strickland often saying to him "by George, Garbutt, you'll see it yet," and he was beginning to think he would. The late Zacheous Burnham had also predicted that the day would come when there would be a sidewalk from Peterborough to Lakefield, and he thought that would come if we had the Canal. He thought the deputation should be sent.

MR. G. S. GALVIN was then called for and said he thought it was unnecessary to discuss the advantages of the Canal, as they must be admitted by everybody, and a look at the map showed it to be the natural outlet for the great west. As to the cost, even supposing it cost four instead of the three millions named, it would just be a dollar a head of the population. For his part, he had nine in his family, and he would gladly pay, not nine, but eighteen dollars, and even more, to secure its construction. As to politics, every one should go in for the improvement of the country.

MR. SANDERS was the next speaker, and said he thought now was the opportune time to press the matter. The trade of our own Nor'West required it, the engineer had reported in favour of it, the Georgian Bay Branch had been abandoned, and we could fairly ask the Government to undertake this work in place of it. We should all join hand in hand in pressing the claims of Ontario upon the Government, as we had not received our fair share in the past. The deputation when they go to Ottawa should demand it not as a favour, but as a right. Of course in agitating the matter, expense must be incurred, and they should be prepared to incur their share of it.

Messrs. ISBISTER, GRIFFIN and JOSEPH NELSON were also called for and expressed themselves of the same mind as previous speakers, Mr. Griffin, in addition pointing out the great advantage which would be derived by Lakefield while the work was in progress.

It was moved by Mr. HULL, seconded by Mr. R. C. STRICKLAND, and unanimously resolved,—That the Council be requested to appoint a deputation to go to Ottawa, and to pay the expenses of the same.

The meeting then closed with cheers for the Queen.

WEASEL OR STOAT!

To the Editor of the Review

DEAR SIR,—The animal referred to in your impression this evening as having made its appearance under the sidewalk on George Street, is, in all probability, a stoat, putorius ermineus, and not a "weasel." Now, although the stoat, belonging, as it does, to the order Carnivora, may "make havoc of a hennery," it would prove an acquisition in rat-infested cellars. When I lived in Lakefield, where rats abounded, a stoat suddenly appeared in our cellar, and, being never intentionally disturbed, became almost tame, and as the rats incontinently left the cellar on the advent of the little fellow, we looked upon their natural enemy as our very good friend.

The stoat is about one-third larger than the weasel. A stuffed specimen now before me measures between 14 and 15 inches from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail.

FIRE AT BOW PARK.

Seven Buildings Burned, with a Number of Animals—Loss Thirty Thousand Dollars.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 3.—About eleven last night a bright light suddenly sprung up, apparently in the south-eastern part of the city. The fire bells rang, the engines turned out, and the citizens rushed forth. It was soon ascertained that the fire was outside of the city limits, and was very large. Shortly after the reflection was seen the news arrived that the fire was at Bow Park, the stock farm of Hon. Geo. Brown, Toronto. This proved to be correct, and the firemen returned to the stations, as the distance was too great to think of going out. Your correspondent this morning visited the scene, and found things in a bad shape. There were ten long stables, which were full of cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, grain of all kinds, roots, farming implements, &c., out of which seven are burnt to the ground. The remaining three contained nearly all the valuable cows and bulls, which were all got out safely by the men. The next building to the three saved was one in which the fire started, and the wind being from the east, was the only thing that saved the whole lot from destruction. All the building west and opposite the one in which the flames began are gone, burnt to the ground. Two very valuable imported mares, ten farm horses, six well-bred pigs, twelve sheep, and two calves were burnt. The loss must reach $30,000 at least. The buildings are pretty well covered by insurance. Word was sent last night to Mr. Brown, and he arrived here this afternoon. About 10 minutes before the fire broke out, the herdsman had gone his rounds and everything appeared secure.—Mail.

THE following passage from Sir A. T. Galt's speech at the Ottawa banquet will meet with very general approval:—

"It was idle to think of throwing open our markets to other countries, whose markets are not thrown open to us, and from his own recent observations in England he was certain that even there a great change is coming over public opinion on that question. He did not care for abstract notions of political economy, so far as that subject was concerned. As a practical man, who had all his life watched the trade and commerce of this country, he said that if we permit the products of other nations to come in here free, while they tax our products going into their markets, they will grow rich, and we will continue to be poor."

Reviving Industries.

Undoubtedly a time of prosperity is at hand for the people of this Dominion; industries are reviving on every side, although the Globe continues to make wild assertions to the contrary. We should launch out again carefully: keep down expenses; give short credits, and generally be reasonable.—Canadian Spectator.

PORT HOPE.

A WATERLOO VETERAN.—The Times says:—The remains of the late Mr. Trainor, who was one of the few survivors of those who were present at the battle of Waterloo, were buried on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Union Cemetery. We are sure the officers and members of the militia force would willingly have arranged to bury him with military honors had the family requested it. Col. Williams, Major Dingwall, Capt. Ward and the officers of the local corps of militia were present at the funeral.

ACCIDENTS.—On Tuesday a son of Mr. E. A. Powers met with a painful accident. He was working at a threshing, and fell through the loft. No bones were broken, however, and he will soon be around again. Sergt. Lowrie, the care-taker of the Drill Shed, accidentally fell down the cellar stairs of Henry Shepherd's store, inflicting a serious injury to his ankle and foot, which will confine him to his room for some time to come.

THE INFANTICIDE CASE.—The Guide says:—Government Detective Murray, of Toronto, on Tuesday arrested James Wetherup and wife, the parents of the young woman now awaiting her trial at Cobourg. The arrest was made at Port Elgin, and the parties were conveyed to Cobourg.

LAKEFIELD.

From our Own Correspondent.

MUNICIPAL.

It seems now definitely settled that we are to have two candidates for the office of Reeve, viz: Messrs. John Hull, and R. C. Strickland; two good safe men. They have both had experience in municipal matters, Mr. Hull having been a councillor for some time, since the incorporation of the village, and Mr. Strickland for some time before it, and either will no doubt make a good Reeve. Matters with regard to councillors are not in so settled a form. No one has, as yet, come forward as a candidate for the office of councillor. It has been reported during the week, that both Mr. T. J. Nelson, and Mr. J. [illegible] Council Board. This would be a very serious determination, as just such men are needed at the present time to conduct the affairs of the village. The present necessities of Lakefield require as councillors, men of fairness, men who think for themselves, but, who at the same time will concede to others the privilege of their opinions, instead of being autocrats. For the last two years at least, the village council have had disputes and differences, and have taken sides, but in every case the councillors have risen from the Council Board as friendly as when they sat down. This is as it should be, especially in a place like Lakefield. Union should exist as is the case at present. Nothing disturbs the friendly and united sentiments of a village more than electing men as councillors to go to the Council Board or any other Board, only to quarrel and wrangle over matters, requiring merely fair consideration and common sense. One or two shallow-brained, crotchety individuals elected to a Council, make the whole business disagreeable to fair-minded, thinking men; in consequence of which the best men refuse to have anything to do with municipal affairs. Lakefield points with pride to this year's Council, and if the same men were to offer for re-election, no others need apply. A great many of the electors still hope that the present members of the Council may be induced to allow themselves to be entrusted with our affairs for another year.

ORANGE LODGE MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of Lakefield Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 122, was held on Monday evening last and was attended by a large number of members. The following are the office-bearers for the ensuing year:—Bro. Richard Waram, sr., W. Master, (re-elected); Bro. W. C. Sanders Deputy Master, (re-elected); Bro. S. A. McKee, Chaplain, (re-elected); Bro. W. H. O'Neal, Secretary, (re-elected); Bro. James Horner, Treasurer, (re-elected); Bro. S. Nelson, Director of Ceremonies, (re-elected); Lodge Committee—Bros. Solomon Northey, Alex. Fitzgerald, R. Chapins, Dr. Bell, and Christopher Quinn.

On Tuesday evening last the December meeting of Young Canadian Loyal Orange Lodge, of Lakefield, was held in the Orange Hall. The attendance was good, and the interest lively. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Bro. James Moore, W. Master; Bro. [illegible] Preston, Deputy Master, (re-elected); Bro. W. D. Thornton, Chaplain; Bro. Thomas Horner, Treasurer; Bro. Wellington McDonald, Secretary. Lodge Committee:—Bros. John Preston, R. Waram, jr., Robt. Carter and Hugh Fitzgerald.

LOWERING OF THE LAKEFIELD DAM.

It is said that a decree of the Court of Chancery has been issued to compel the lowering of the dam 11 inches, which means to close navigation north of Lakefield. It is now time the Government took control of this dam. The Provincial Government have erected a canal and locks at Young's Point at a cost of about $30,000, besides improving the river navigation. All this expenditure will be useless unless the dam at Lakefield is kept at its present height, in fact it would be a great advantage to all concerned if it were raised instead of lowered.

SKATING RINK.

Captain Secret will have his skating rink open for the public in the course of a few days. The rink will be formed in Strickland's Bay, north of the steam mill, at the place where it was two years ago. Mr. Secret is spending considerable labor and money to provide good skating for the citizens of Lakefield, and no doubt his exertions will be appreciated, and the rink patronised sufficiently to remunerate him for his labour.

EDUCATIONAL ENTERTAINMENT.

Prof. Gardiner gave his lecture on astronomy in the school house, on Saturday last, in the forenoon. Although the hour appointed was an inconvenient one, a large number of people, children and members of the School Board assembled. The Professor was listened to with marked attention for over two hours. The lecture on astronomy was interesting, and was appreciated by the audience, but the illustrations of the peculiar properties of numbers as given by the lecturer, were not so well received.

CLEMENTI LODGE.

The Free Masons, of Lakefield, held their regular meeting for the election of officers on Tuesday evening last in the Music Hall, on Queen street, when the following were elected: Bro. Dr. Caldwell, W. M.; Bro. John Hull, I. P. M.; Bro. George Cochrane, S. W.; Bro. T. Secret, J.W.; R.W. Bro. the Rev. V. Clementi, Chaplain; Robert Graham, Treasurer; F. Lillicrap, Secretary; W. Bro. J. Hull, Tyler.

GRAIN BUYING.

Mr. R. C. Strickland is preparing a storehouse for grain storage at the foot of Queen street, for the use of Mr. Samuel Nelson, who intends to buy all kinds of grain very largely. Mr. Nelson is so well known and popular with the people of the north part of the country of Peterborough, that there can be no doubt but that this undertaking will be a decided success and highly beneficially to Lakefield and the surrounding country.

BEARS.

During last week bears have been quite plentiful in the country back of Lakefield. Three different parties back of Burleigh have had bear hunts, but were not successful, i. e., the bears were, but the hunters were not.

LAKEFIELD SPORTS.

The Cotton Brigade made a turn out on Saturday last, and after travelling a number of miles, a rabbit and a partridge were bagged, but on Wednesday there was another hunt, bagging six times that number of game, under the leadership of the Captain.

LEARNING FAST.

A young lad in Lakefield, last week collected a bag of bones, and finding it rather slow work making the collection, put a large stone in the bag. He then went to the bone man and sold at so much per pound. The fraud was not discovered until after the money was paid. The bone man says he will not buy again from "that boy," but "that boy" still collects bones, and gets another boy to sell them.

PORK AND BEEF.

The supply of pork and beef is not equal to the demand in Lakefield. Messrs. Sherin and Graham are taking all they can get at prices above Peterborough market rates. On Wednesday last a party took his pork through Lakefield to Peterborough, and sold it to a Lakefield man on condition that he would take it back again to Lakefield.

CHANGE OF TIME.

The recent change in the Midland Railway time table causes considerable inconvenience, on account of the short period the mail train remains in Lakefield. The out-going mail is now closed before the in-coming mail arrives, so that it is impossible to answer a letter the same day that it is received.

LUMBERING.

Mr. R. C. Strickland's foreman, Mr. A. Bertrand, went north, through Lakefield, on Wednesday, with quite a large number of men to start a shanty.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Village Council will take place next Monday evening in the Council Room. [illegible] will not come up for discussion at this meeting, as a month must elapse after the notices are posted before the by-laws can be passed.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Board will be held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening next.

GETTING OUT TIES.

Mr. Geo. Chalmers, of Young's Point, is starting a large shanty next Monday for the purpose of getting out ties and saw logs.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The meeting on Wednesday evening was very enthusiastic in favour of the canal. A report of the proceedings will be found in another column.

THE WITCHES' CAULDRON.

Theories as to the Burning of the Grand Opera House.

Mr. Manning, proprietor of the Grand Opera House, Toronto, just destroyed by fire with a sad loss of human life, leans to the opinion that the fire was the work of an incendiary. He was at the fire and made enquiries and found that Constable Vaughan, who sounded the alarm, had first observed the fire in the rear part of the building where the stage was. This is far from the boilers, which are in the front of the building. Some are of opinion that spontaneous combustion may have been the cause; and a great many more point to the number of theatres which have been burned after the representation of Macbeth, as an argument in favor of accident. All who have seen Macbeth remember the cauldron scene, in which the witches dance round the fire. To further the magical effect, the cauldron is so constructed that the fire instantly disappears through the stage. Some sparks may have lurked under the stage, and escaped the notice of the night watchman when he made his rounds. Where there is so much oil and inflammable scenery, a fire can find plenty of material to feed upon.

PYCTURES OF SOCIETIE.

BY ASPER.

One of our correspondents recently in sorting over a number of old papers and letters which had been brought by his great grandfather from England many years ago, found among them a bundle of papers evidently written by some dabbler in literature a long time back. They were descriptions of different classes of society of the period in which the papers were composed, and as many of them are adapted in a wonderful manner to Canadian society of the present day we reproduce them for our readers. The first was entitled

NO. 1.—YE BANKKE CLERKE.

Ye Bankke Clerke is one of ye upper stratum of all ye inhabitants of ye worlde. A man on whom ye kindest Providence has been most lavish in bestowing its blessings. So well do they know that they are not as the rest of mankinde that it is said—of course that is known to a humble writer only by hearsay—that they do not object to being called clerkes and do insist on men calling them ye Bankke Officers and not ye clerkes.

A man may always know one of these proud gentlemen by ye haughty stride with which they do preambulate ye by-ways of ye city. At ye hour of four of ye clock they do issue forth from their offices and it is a most pleasant sight to see them as with swinging cayne they do brush past all ye lower classes. It is most refreshing to see them accost with graceful bow ye damsels in ye streets.

By them they are most favored—and it is said that ye maidens do delight in their societie, so entertaining is their discourse and so full of wit and knowledge is their conversation. They do pride themselves on their comely figures, and do take especial delight in a most wonderful, difficult and intricate daunce which they do perform before the lords and ladies with ye damsels at ye entertainments called balls. This daunce is called ye Bostonne, and is remarkable for ye easy graceful glide assumed by ye partakers therein. Of all ye daunces in ye worlde this is said by ye highest authorities to be ye most difficult to master. Ye Bankke Officers do in ye afternoon frequent ye clubs and in ye evening ye pit in ye theater, but never do they take any interest in ye performance of ye actors, as it is contrary to ye manners and customes of ye higher classes to exhibit any indications of mental excitement. They do all things by rule and in order, and are not to be agitated by any occurrence of ever so extraordinary a nature. They do set themselves up to be critics of ye actors and of ye playwrights—and do criticise as they do indeed comport themselves in all things—by rule and order. They do describe all publick performances as "not so bad, by Jove," but to go beyond that much in praise of anything would be to overstep ye bounds of that decorum by which in their deportment they are limited. Men also do say that these gentlemen do in these countries where no soldiers are to be found take ye place of ye captains and ye ensigns in ye regiments of Her Majesty, and this is the reason why they do insist on being called officers. Although they do not wear uniform or livery of ye King, yet they do display in their bearing and presence that martial appearance which is by ye vulgar supposed to be confined to men of war.—Grip.

Mr. SPURGEON, it appears, "makes no bones" of taking what material he wants from the sermons of others. Dr. Armitage is quoted as saying that he heard Mr. Spurgeon preach a beautiful sermon one day, and at its close the famous English [illegible] announced to his congregation that half of the discourse that he had just preached he had got from Jukes, an excellent English divine, adding, "Next Sunday we will be indebted to him for two-thirds of the sermon you will hear." And he finished with a commendation of the book to his people.

The Markets.

REVIEW OFFICE,
THURSDAY, December 4th, 1879.

The general tone of the market is quiet but firm. In butter, the tendency is clearly downward, as the recent high prices have naturally curtailed consumption. In wheat, bottom seems not only to have been touched, but a turn upwards has been established, although, if it be true, as reported, that France has already imported all that is required to make up the deficiency, in the crop holders need not look for a large advance. However, until after the holidays, speculation will be at a stand still, and the demand for grains limited to actual requirements. By reference to our Liverpool reports, it will be observed that during the week, an ad[illegible] bacon. On the other hand, however, it appears that Portugal, Italy, and Greece have already prohibited the importation of American pork, on account of trichinia, and that an agitation has set in in France, for the same purpose. Should American pork be excluded from any considerable portion of the continent of Europe it must have a depressing effect on prices on this side of the Atlantic, as the American pork crop is above an average this year.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

THURSDAY, Dec. 4.—Several parcels of wheat made its appearance on the market to-day, and found ready anxious buyers. We noticed one load of spring wheat as it approached the line designated by the by-law when the cry was raised, "What have you got?" Answer, "Spring." Immediately a rush was made, with the cry, "I will give you 20!" from three buyers in a breath, as though their lives depended on the purchase of that particular load. We did not wait to ascertain who got the wheat, or if more than $1.20 was paid. There were several lots of pork in, and taken at $5.00 to $5.50. Hay and straw found slow sale at quotations. Wood was largely in excess of requirements and lower prices had to be accepted. There is a large quantity of dry wood to come in and it is thought that prices would not advance from the present quotations. Oats are bringing 33 cents, with only a few small lots in to-day. Some small parcels of peas were taken at 63 cts.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscreation." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Lost None of its Freshness.

The Cobourg Star says:—

"The Peterborough DAILY REVIEW has entered upon its second year of publication. It has lost none of the freshness which characterized its first issue, but has been steadily improving, and is now a first-class sheet."

No. 1 Company, 57th Battalion.

Every member is expected to be present at drill to-night. Any member who does not attend to drill during the winter must return his clothing and accoutrements. All rifles and belts must be brought in.

Large Deer.

Messrs. Baily & Co., bought to-day, from Mr. Jas. Cleary, Apsley, a buck, weighing 225 lbs. This large and handsome deer was killed about 15 miles north of Apsley. It is to be cut up and sold to the lovers of venison.

Paying the Volunteers.

Capt. Geo. C. Rogers will pay off the members of Company No. 3, of the 57th Rangers this evening at the Drill Shed, in Ashburnham. It is hardly necessary to request the members to be present especially when there is money to be received.

St. John's Church.

The ladies of this congregation intend giving an entertainment in Bradburn's Hall on Thursday, the 11th inst., in aid of the Sunday School Building Fund. The entertainment will consist of a charade, recitations, and vocal and instrumental music.

Fine Heavy Pork.

Among the large number of hogs brought to market yesterday, were two fine ones, raised at Mount Pleasant by Messrs. Gardner and Best. The hogs weighed respectively 431 and 403 lbs. There were other very fine hogs on the market, but they fell below four hundred pounds in weight.

Special Religious Services.

The special services at the Bible Christian Church are still continued, and are largely attended nightly by eager listners to the interesting sermons and exhortations of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Roberts. The services begin at half-past seven o'clock. The public are invited.

Settling in Peterborough.

We find the following paragraph in the Port Hope Times:—

"The many friends of Dr. King, of Bailliebor o, will bear with gladness that he is about to resume his practice in Peterborough. Since he left this portion of the country he has been through all the hospitals worth seeing in the old and new lands, and has now a very ripened experience."

The Snow By-law.

The Fire Limits within which the new Snow By-law is operative includes, in addition to the block between Charlotte and Murray Streets Aylmer and Queen Streets, the following:—Lots 1 and 2, north of Murray and east of George Street, and Lots 1 and 2, south of McDonnell Street and east of George Street.

Removal of Snow by the Plough.

Mr. Chas. Stapleton, with his snow plough started out last night about 10 o'clock and cleared off several of the sidewalks in his section of the town. The sidewalk around the Agricultural Grounds, Drill Shed, and the Catholic School property were included in his route, and were very nicely cleaned, making the walking quite easy.

Fine Display.

The fine display in Messrs. Rush & Elliott's windows, of sugar in the hogshead, raisins in boxes, wines in cases, and a variety of groceries in original packages, is as unusual, as it is attractive. The exhibition of goods in this display is well worth a trip from any part of the town to witness. Their extensive and growing business enables them, not only to make a fine exhibit, but to sell cheap.

Deer for England.

Mr. Henry Denne, Town Councillor, has purchased of Mr. A. H. R. Sproule two very fine deer, a buck and a doe, which he is preparing to ship to his brother in England for Christmas presents. The buck weighs 200 pounds and the doe 150 pounds. They are said to be the largest and handsomest of this season's take. They were shot in the neighborhood of Burleigh during Mr. Sproule's recent hunting trip.

The Effect of the Snow By-law.

The distributing of the printed snow by-law yesterday, and its publication in the EVENING REVIEW, had a wonderful effect. The storm, not ceasing until late in the evening, the cleaning could not be effected until to-day. The snow disappeared from the sidewalks this morning, early, with wonderful celerity, and the walks, by 9 o'clock, were in a pleasant walking condition. This is as it should be always, and it is hoped that it will be kept up.

In this locality snow continued to fall throughout yesterday, and until after nine o'clock in the evening, when it ceased. Six inches of snow covered the ground, making good sleighing. ◆

Funny!

The reporter of our up-town cotem. "reaches" for our scribe with one of those ancient, attenuated, anti-Confederation jokes which have been sand-papered, puttyed up and passed off as original wit times without number by every second-hand scribbler in the land. Some men are born jokers, some acquire jokes (vide our cotem.,) and some have jokes thrust upon them, and that too often. If, with the assistance of the imported talent lately acquired, they can't wring out anything more funny or ridiculous than the last effort, let them do as they have always had to do before—Examiner like—trust altogether to their memory, and then we will have fun in earnest.

BISCUIT FACTORY.

An Enterprising Firm and an Important Industry.

Mr. George Dunsford having purchased the old Post Office block last autumn, proceeded to improve the already valuable property. On the open yard space to the south he erected a three-storey building, with a Mansard roof, intending later to roof the whole block in a similar manner. This new building, with the portion of the ground floor formerly used for the Post Office, is now occupied by Messrs. Hall & Ostrom as a biscuit and candy factory, having been planned with that view. This enterprising firm has procured the latest and most improved machinery for their business, and it is now running, though some minor improvements are still in progress. In the basement is the very compact steam engine manufactured for them by Mr. William Hamilton. The boiler self-feeds itself from a tank supplied from the well in the yard by the wind-mill. Here also is the firing chamber for the biscuit oven. This is so set in solid brick-work as to be safe. It is heated with coal, while the engine boiler takes wood.

On the ground floor of the new building are the various machines for making biscuit, from that in which the dough is mixed to that in which the biscuits are cut ready for the oven. As an instance of the outlay that has not been stinted, we may state that the cutter in use at the time of our visit cost $70, and it could be replaced in the machine by 7 or 8 other cutters of various patterns which stood close at hand. Close by is the capacious oven for baking the biscuits. It is one of Rayney's patent reel ovens, and is capable of turning out eight barrels of flour into biscuits a day.

On the floor above are all the apparatus for making candies, from the simplest sugar plums up to colored fruits, statuettes, &c. The upper floor is devoted to finishing and colouring these finer classes of candies and to packing them for market.

The old post office is now devoted to the purposes of the offices of the firm and of rooms for weighing and packing the biscuits. Here also will be the salesroom for biscuits, confectionery, and the complete stock of cigars in which they deal very largely.

Messrs. Hall & Ostrom have two waggons in which to carry out their goods, and two sleighs, the latter of which have just started with loads. They are handsome vehicles, and designed so as to carry safely a large quantity of goods, as is necessary, for the firm have an extensive wholesale trade, which they are steadily increasing throughout the neighbourhood.

At present they employ [illegible]teen hands, and they will soon be in a po[illegible] to increase the number.

Altogether, it is an in[illegible] which is a credit and benefit to the town, [illegible] we hope to see it increase and flourish.

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

THURSDAY, Dec. 4.—The Police Court this morning was presided over by Mr. J. Edwards, J. P., assisted by Mr. James Stevenson, J. P., the Police Magistrate being absent in Toronto on business connected with the Courts. Constable McGhee presented Wm. Watson and Mary, his wife, two interesting looking individuals, who had passed the night in the lock-up. The constable arrested them for being drunk and using improper and blasphemous language upon the public streets. In reply to the charge they stated that they were from Lindsay, and were in Peterborough looking for work. The justice issued a warrant for their commitment to the jail if found within the town limits after 12 o'clock to-day. They agreed to leave at once, and left the Court room to enter upon their homeward tramp.

MAGICAL HOLIDAY TOYS.

The Pleasures that are in Store for the Children and Family Circles.

Already the new Christmas toys are making their appearance on the counters of our fancy goods stores and toy shops, but what is seen there is nothing to the wonders that are in course of preparation, and held in reserve for the holiday season, which usually begins, commercially at least, immediately after Thanksgiving Day. While the old toys are greatly improved, there have been additions to the list of novelties embracing wonders unheard of before. The zoetrope, which has so long been, next to the magic lantern, the favorite amusement of the domestic and social circle, has been improved upon until it now rises into the region of the magical apparatus toys. The revolving wheel of this invention is now provided with a series of mirrors in the centre of the wheel, in which the figures within the outer wheel are reflected in a way that creates the illusion of their live and motion to perfection. In the hands of a good operator, who understands his subject, his zoetrope becomes an optical toy, affording the best means of instruction on the subject of optics that could possibly be devised. But in magical apparatus proper there will be all the trick goods sold this season that heretofore could only be bought at stores which dealt exclusively in these goods, and whose proprietors sold them only to buyers who would purchase from $10 to $100 worth of tricks, and at the same time pledge themselves not to reveal the methods of performing the feats of legerdemain. A few of these were shown a representative of the Sun by a salesman and performer.

The first exhibition was of an enchanted tumbler, or rather a large wine-glass. The glass exhibited was just like any other wine-glass. It was turned upside down and thoroughly examined. There was certainly no trick in the glass itself. A little water was poured into it, and it was placed on a table; a handkerchief and a half dollar were borrowed. Then the half dollar being placed in the centre of the handkerchief, the performer requested the representative of the Sun to grasp the half dollar; and holding the handkerchief over the glass to drop the coin therefrom into the wine-glass. The coin was dropped, splashed into the water apparently, settled on the bottom of the glass with a silvery click, the handkerchief was removed, and behold, there was nothing but the water in the glass. The coin had disappeared.

"Where shall I find it?" asked the performer. "I will produce it from any place in the room that you may choose."

"From under the table, then," was requested.

From under the table the performer drew out the half dollar.

A hat was next taken up by the salesman, and he, seemingly by main force, using both hands in the operation, thrust one of his fingers through the crown of the hat. Then withdrawing the finger with almost as much force apparently required for the act, he had held up the hat uninjured.

Then the salesman borrowed a pocket handkerchief, which he burned up in a polished brass globe, and put the globe containing the ashes in the hand of a spectator. The top of the globe was then placed on it, and the holder requested to open it. He did so, and found the handkerchief within, restored and not even scorched by the fire.

He next ignited a mass of tow, in full view of the few spectators, crammed it into his mouth, and, groaning as if in great pain, breathed out sparks and smoke for a few seconds. Next he took up a spotted handkerchief, and, raising it by the centre from the table, drew from under it eggs, boxes, rings, toys of various kinds, and unnumbered queer things.

But the greatest thing of all that this wizard salesman did was with another borrowed hat, an ordinary silk hat, with a kid or morocco lining, such as any silk hat has. He pulled the lining out, and diving with his hand into the depths of the hat he drew forth, one by one one dozen oblong square satchels, or reticules, each one so large as to be apparently drawn forth with difficulty through the hat and its lining. This was done, too, with great rapidity the whole feat being performed in less time than it takes to write, or even read, the account of the same.—American Paper.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA.

To say that the relations between England and Russia are not strained to the utmost tension at the present moment, is to close one's eyes to the most portentous affairs now engrossing the two Courts of St. James and St. Petersburg. In diplomatic circles, it is universally declared that war is imminent. Lord Beaconsfield and Count Schouvaloff have lately been on such terms of diplomatic intimacy; that it has called forth comments from the denizens of Pall Mall in no unremarkable manner. It is now stated that to Count Schouvaloff and Lord Derby is to be ascribed the peace of Europe when a rupture was not unlikely looked for some time since, and these two representatives of this country and Russia were on such terms of inseparable friendship. The Queen's Foreign Office messengers, who travel between Whitehall and the Russian capital, say that all the Romanoffs and diplomatists are very angry with England because she has scored ahead of Russia in an unusually unequal contest.

A CONTRIBUTOR to Good Words writes of a recent visit to a great scavenging contractor's yard. The firm employs 300 hands, owns 120 well-conditioned horses, and the earnings of the men they employ average $3.75, and those of the women $3 a week. Many earn much more. As a class they are inexplicably healthy. In cholera times they have got off scot free, and it is a tradition that in the great plague of London they ran the dead carts, and yet none died. This cannot be by any means attributed to an abstinence from alcohol. The regulation charge for emptying a dust bin is four cents; but for this the dustman, as he is called in London, goes down and fetches up the refuse. For this purpose he wears a low-crowned hat with a long flap behind to protect his neck. He brings up the refuge in a huge close-woven basket. The fine dust is found particularly valuable for marsh land. The cinders are mixed with brick clay for brick making. Vegetable refuse known as "soft core," goes to farmers for manure. The rags are sold in lump to Jewish dealers in such articles. Broken glass goes back for remelting to factories, and more 1,000 tons are re-used.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

LUCKNOW.

Special to the Review, Dec. 5.

BURGLARY.—Between 12 and 4 o'clock this morning the shop of Mr. Chas. Second of this village was entered, the safe was broken open and about $300 was stolen. The supposed thieves left here by the 4.58 a. m. train and were captured at Listowel.

CARLETON JUNCTION.

Special to the Review, Dec. 5.

MANGLED ON THE TRACK.—The mangled body of a man was found on the track by the sectionmen, about one mile and a half south of this Junction this morning. The section foreman reports that the body was not recognizable.

COBOURG.

Special to the Review Dec. 5.

COMMITTED.—The charge of infanticide against Mary Ann Weatherup was investigated at Cobourg yesterday, before W. J. Stanton, Esq., P. M. The case was conducted by J. N. Kerr, Esq., County Attorney, on behalf of the Crown. Some thirty witnesses were present, including the father and mother of the accused. Only about half of them were examined, however. The evidence taken was very voluminous, occupying the Court nearly five hours, and was considered sufficient to warrant a commitment for trial.

QUEBEC.

Special to the Review, Dec. 5.

A DISCOVERY.—It is reported that a young lady of this city, who was married some few weeks ago, returned home on Wednesday, having discovered that her husband was already the possessor of another wife and two children.

A POOR MUNICIPALITY.—Judgments have been given in the Superior Court this week for damages against the municipality of St. Bridget de Laval. The actions arose out of an accident caused two years ago by a defective bridge within the municipality, on which account the late Baroness Falkenberg lost her life. The heirs of the deceased lady sued for damages, and were awarded $900 and costs. Mr. D. Driscoll, whose vehicle was smashed and harness injured, has been awarded $100 damages. The municipality is so miserably poor that it is probable that all the real estate it contains will have to be sold in order to pay the damages, unless it can obtain Government assistance.

TORONTO.

Special to the Review, Dec. 5.

ANOTHER VICTIM.—The brother of Thomas Scott, the Orangeman, who was killed at Fort Garry, died yesterday, in the Provincial Lunatic Asylum. His mind became so unhinged by the circumstances attending his brother's murder, and the consequent excitement, that he finally became raving mad, and for several years has been an inmate of the asylum. The Orangemen will probably attend his funeral in one large body.

DIAMOND ROBBERY.—A. R. M. Michael, who was robbed of $25,000 worth of diamonds a [illegible] ago, offers $200 for the conviction of the culprit. The detectives have had the matter in hand since the night of the robbery, but have failed to gain the slightest clue.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.—It is considered almost certain that the Local Government will insert an item in the estimates for the next [illegible] year for the erection of a new parliament building, probably in the Queen's Park. Mayor Beaty had an interview with the Hon. Mr. Pardee yesterday regarding the matter. The latter was non-committal, but acknowledged that new buildings was necessary.

THE CUSTOMS FRAUDS.—The general opinion of the Customs officials is that McKay, the suspended [illegible] is being made a scapegoat, and is in reality innocent of any more serious offence than failing to inform the authorities of his superiors' short comings. Pressure is being brought to bear on the city members to induce them to persuade the Gov. to make an open investigation. If this is not done one of McKay's friends will lodge a complaint against him and get out a warrant for his arrest, and have the matter investigated in open Court. McKay still strongly asserts his innocence of any intent and still maintains that he is a victim. People are arguing that it is not likely that after twenty-five years' service he would forget himself and steal.

CHINESE AND NEGROES.—The Court of Sessions was crowded this morning to witness the trial of Wm. and Henry Edmunds, colored men, for stealing a bundle of shirts from a Chinese laundry. Sam Ching was called and took the Chinese oath. Sam Ching broke the saucer. After hearing their testimony in broken English the prisoners were acquitted.

From the Morning Papers.

THE GRAND OPERA.—Work will be commenced on the Grand Opera House at the earliest moment and will be pushed with such vigor that Mr. Manning and his manager hope to have it ready for opening by Miss Neilson on 14th Feb. next.

FACTORY RE-OPENED.—The large piano and organ factory of R. S. Williams, which has been closed for several years, has been re-opened with orders sufficient to keep it going till next summer.

OPERA HOUSE FIRE.—The jury, after an hour's consultation, returned the following verdict:—That the said Robert, Hannah and Marie Wright, on the 29th of Nov., in the Grand Opera House, came to their death by being burned during the conflagration that destroyed the said Opera House. They are of opinion that the fire originated within the said Opera House, and was not discovered in time for those within to have effected their escape or for any successful attempt on the part of those without to have saved them. The jury would recommend that some law be enacted compelling that provision be made for all persons occupying rooms in the upper stories of high buildings to escape with facility in case of fire.

EGYPT AND ABYSSINIA.

VIENNA, Dec. 5.—Accounts from Egypt state that the Government is actively completing preparations for a war with Abyssinia. If hostilities are resumed the Egyptian forces will be divided into two armies, an offensive army of eight thousand men, and a defensive army of twelve thousand men. The offensive army will be directed on the Egyptian harbor of Adulis, the capital of Abyssinia. The defensive army will take up two entrenched positions commanding the two main roads of Abyssinia.

ANOTHER ARREST IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Dec. 5.—Thomas Brennan, an employee of the Dublin City Bakery Company, a leading land agitator and member of the Land League, has been arrested and conveyed to Castlebar, charged with using seditious language at Balla and with endeavoring to seduce the police from their allegiance.

TRADE ITEMS.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Industry Cotton Spinning Company, owners of large mills at Oldham, have gone into liquidation in consequence of the depression of trade. The report of the Cleveland Iron Masters' Association for November shows that the revival of the iron trade is well maintained. The issue of prior lien bonds by the Atlantic Great Western Railway Re-organization Trustees is stated to have been successfully completed in Holland. The amount issued there and here is $6,000,000, but it is contemplated to increase that amount by two millions to complete the road, to narrow the gauge and to pay off all existing prior liens.

THE "ARIZONA" ARRIVED.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 5.—The Arizona from New York, which was seriously damaged by a collision with an iceberg off the banks of Newfoundland, on Nov. 7th, has arrived.

INUNDATION EXPECTED.

MADRID, Dec. 5.—The Guadiana river has risen considerably and fresh inundations are apprehended.

AMERICAN.

STRIKE AGAINST NEGROES.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 5.—Two employees at the [illegible] Iron Works objected to working at a mill where negro rollers were employed, and 200 rollers and puddlers struck. By this 350 men are thrown out of employment.

A STEAMER STRANDED.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The steamer Anglia, from New York, for Glasgow, was stranded in a snow storm, near Pladda, a low rocky island off Scotland, in the Frith of Clyde, off the south end of the Island of Arran. It is expected that she will be got off. The vessel makes no water.

CLAIMING A WIFE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Erhard Zapf, a longshoreman, aged 26, claims to be the husband of Lotta, the well known actress. He says he married her in 1872 and makes a demand for money to support their three children. Her lawyer calls the man a blackmailer.

BANK OFFICERS MOBBED.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 5.—The officers and directors of the defunct Mechanics' and Labourers' Savings Bank are on trial for fraud. While leaving court at the recess on Wednesday, they were assailed by an angry mob of depositors, mostly women. Threats of violence were made and at one time a riot was feared.

A POLITICAL AFFRAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 5.—Squire McMullen, who led the gang which broke up two Democrat conventions because they were against Randall, has been arrested charged with assault and battery with intent to kill Michael Lyons.

A STRANGE FUNERAL.

NORWICH, Conn., Dec. 5.—The funeral of Mrs. Gilman, the wife of the forger recently pardoned from Auburn, occurred yesterday. Gilman and his two sons were present. Henry Ward Beecher and the Rev. Dr. Houghton officiated. The latter grasped Gilman's hand at the grave and kissed him. Gilman seemed utterly broken down.

A DETERMINED MURDERER.

ELKTON, Ind., Dec. 5.—The Governor has refused to commute the sentence of Medford Waters, who will be hanged to-day, for the murder of a fellow laborer, during a dispute in a cornfield. When asked yesterday if he was prepared to die, Waters replied, "If they would let me out to kill that nigger woman, who testified against me, I should then be prepared."

BULL-DOZING VOTERS.

NEW YORK Dec. 5.—The Times's New Orleans despatch says, the fact that Madison Parish, formerly giving 2,500 Republican majority, now returns 2,[illegible] Democrat majority, has been explained. Some days before the election bull-dozers from the country made hostile demonstrations. They picked out the colored men with whom the management of the campaign rested and systematically got rid of them. On Saturday Dave Armstrong was hanged at Mormons, R. H. Brown, late postmaster, was hanged on Monday night, and ex-Sheriff Peck was whipped. All other Republican election officers fled. The Parish vote was deposited in boxes in bulk, all Democrat, and counted as above. The negroes and Republicans did not vote except in one precinct, where only 160 votes were cast. This operation alone makes a difference of $5,000 in favor of Wiltz. The robbing of polls in Jefferson and the capture of one in Algiers destroyed about 2,000 Republican majority. New Orleans polled only half her registered vote. The parish of St. Mary's gave 600 majority for Beattie, a Republican. Before the returns could be compiled the Clerk's office was entered and the ballot boxes were destroyed.

MORMONS TALKING FIGHT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Herald's Salt Lake despatch says that at the Mormon Conference on Sunday, Apostle Taylor, chief of the Mormon church, while discussing the President's message concerning polygamy, said:—"The courts have decided against our institution. The laws of God are at variance with the laws of man. Which shall we obey?" The congregation responded unanimously in favor of obeying the laws of God. The Herald says that President Taylor "talks fight."

THE GREAT DIAMOND FRAUDS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—The old Arnold diamond fraud case has been revived by a suit brought yesterday in the United States Court against Mary Arnold, wife of the late Philip Arnold, and executrix of his will, by Samuel L. M. Barlow, of New York, for $143,000 advanced on Arnold's representations of a discovery of immense diamond fields in New Mexico and Arizona. These fields were afterwards found to have been "salted" to deceive the experts.

IMPORTANT BANK CASE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The case of Frank and Hirsch against the Chemical National Bank for $10,000, the amount of 37 forged checks paid by the bank and charged to plaintiffs' account, was decided yesterday. The forgeries were executed by plaintiffs' bookkeeper. The court decides that the bank paid its own money and not plaintiffs', who had given no order for payment and were guilty of no gross negligence. The judgment in favor of the plaintiffs was affirmed.

MORMON POLYGAMY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A Washington special despatch to the Tribune says that Willets, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, to which was referred that part of the President's message concerning polygamy, expresses a determination to labor for such a modification of the laws as may be necessary to break up polygamy. Delegate Cannon, a polygamist, expresses much surprise at the tone of the President's message. He indignantly resents the charge that the Mormons had anything to do with inciting the Ute troubles.

SCARLET FEVER IN SCHOOLS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Long Island villages are suffering severely from scarlet fever. The schools in Hempstead closed yesterday. It is stated that 20 cases existed among the children.

BESIDE HIMSELF WITH GRIEF.

A farmer named Newton, residing at Fort Edward, arrived on Tuesday to attend his son's funeral. He seemed beside himself with grief, suddenly left the body and has been missing ever since.

IMPORTING CHILD BEGGARS.

At a meeting yesterday for the prevention of cruelty to children, a letter was read from Milan Italy, stating that a society had been formed there to aid the New York society in suppressing the system of importing children by padrones for begging purposes.

LOTTERIES AT FAIRS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It is reported that yesterday the police commissioners ordered the lotteries and raffles at the 7th Regiment fair to be stopped. It is claimed that the drawings do not differ from those at all church fairs.

THE CURRENCY LAWS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Senate Republican Caucus Committee met yesterday. The members are pledged to secrecy, but it is understood that an interchange of views disclosed that the party is harmonious. It is believed that the Republicans in Congress are, without a single exception, united in the opinion that no Legislature whatever affecting the currency should be undertaken at the present session. The Democrats are rapidly committing themselves to the same policy.

ENGLISH AND RUSSIAN MISSIONS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 5.—The report that representative Morton has been tendered the English mission is denied. The delay in filling the English and Russian missions is owing to the difficulty in finding gentlemen whom the President and Secretary of State are willing to appoint and who will accept.

TAX COLLECTOR ABSCONDED.

LOS ANGELOS, Dec. 5.—A. J. Hamilton, the city tax collector, has absconded with $9,000. This is the fourth defalcation of the city officials in the last five years.

STEAM LINE TO TAHITI.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Reports from Tahiti state that the Government has granted a subsidy of $150,000 yearly, for a line of steamers between Papeete and San Francisco. The line will be started next spring.

ATTEMPT TO KILL.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Select Councilman McMullen was arraigned to-day for assault with intent to kill Michael Lyon, at the Fourth Ward Democratic Convention, on Tuesday. Complainant failed to appear, and McMullen entered into bail in $2,000 for his appearance.

FINANCIAL QUESTION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A Washington despatch says that Sherman thinks Wood's proposition to limit the interest on the bonds to be used for refunding to three and a half per cent., is impracticable. Holders of fives and sixes would not make the exchange. Sherman added that it would be less of a shock to settle the legal tender question now than to wait a year or two and perhaps have the Supreme Court suddenly decide that greenbacks issued since the war are not legal tenders.

A WORLD'S FAIR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It is stated that Grant has accepted an invitation to preside over a mass meeting, which is soon to be held in this city in favor of holding a world's fair in New York in 1883.

ELECTION FRAUD PUNISHED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Thomas Boland, Inspector of an election, for falsely issuing certificates of votes for Aldermen has been sentenced to two year's imprisonment.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

MURDER OF A GOVERNOR.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A Cabul despatch says the Governor of Maidan was killed by Afghan regulars and hill men yesterday. The Governors of Kohistan and Logar Valley have been menaced with the same fate.

By Telegraph to the Review.

GOVERNOR THREATENED.

CABUL, Dec. 5.—The Governor of Maidan is reported to have been killed by Afghan regulars and hill men, the Governors of Kohistan and Logar Valley are reported to have been threatened with the same fate. Probably they are Mahomed Hussein, Abdullah Khan and Shabaz Khan, who have recently appointed Governors of Maidan, Logar and Kohistan. The regulars mentioned are probably part of the ex-Ameers army.

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1879.

COMPARATIVE VALUES, &c., OF BARGES, SCHOONERS AND PROPELLORS.

THE following figures with reference to the relative value of barges, schooners and propellors, cost of working, &c., were obtained from D. D. Calvin, Esq., M.P.P., Wolfe Island, who has had probably more experience than any other man in Canada with regard to such matters. With regard to the first cost, he says the usual price for buildings is fifty cents per bushel for barges, one dollar per bushel for schooners, and two dollars per bushel for propellers of their carrying capacity. With regard to the working expenses, he says that the monthly cost of a barge is $100, of a schooner $400, and of a propeller $1,500, assuming them all to be of the same carrying capacity. To the cost of the barge and schooner, as compared with the propeller, however, must be added the cost of towage. The charge for towage between Kingston and Montreal is so much per foot for every foot of water the vessel draws, the up charge, on account of the heavy current, being three times that going down. The relative carrying capacity of a barge and schooner drawing the same depth of water, is 20,000 bushels in the barge, to 16,000 in the schooner, or a difference of twenty-five per cent in favor of the barge. Not only is the barge the cheapest to build, the cheapest to work, the cheapest to haul, but it possesses other very important advantages over either schooners or propellers. Taking the life of a barge at twelve years, its average value would be twenty-five cents per bushel, while an elevator costs thirty-seven-and-a-half cents per bushel of its capacity to build, so that barges for storage purposes alone, can do the work cheaper than elevators, while they can be moved wherever wanted. Perhaps the clearest way of showing the advantage they possess in this respect is to state that a barge holding 20,000 bushels can afford to remain in port until the sea-going vessel is ready to receive its cargo, at $10 per day. Were this same cargo to go into an elevator, it would, at one cent per bushel, cost $200, or equal to twenty days' demurrage on the barge. Then, besides, there is a great advantage in being able to take the grain to wherever the sea-going vessel is discharging its cargo—as it saves time and towage about the harbor from one dock to another. As this whole matter is one purely of dollars and cents, it will be obvious that our barge route offers very great advantages for the Western grain trade in this one respect alone.

T. V. C.

A LETTER has been received by the Secretary of the Trent Valley Canal Committee from Mr. J. Keeler, M. P. for East Northumberland. He has just returned from the different townships along the Trent, getting petitions signed and delegates appointed. He has already accomplished this in all but two townships, and these he will have by the end of the week. He announces his intention of attending the County Councils of Northumberland and Durham next week with a view of obtaining a grant towards the preliminary expenses, and has no doubt of his success. Letters have also been received from other prominent men in different localities interested in this project, all offering assistance and speaking of the great interest taken in the matter. Let the ball be kept rolling until this great project is an accomplished fact.

GOING FOR THE COUNTY.

The Grand Junction Company, not having had a lawsuit for some time before the Courts, and fearing perhaps to lose their well-known and unenviable reputation in this respect, have succeeded in obtaining rule nisi for a mandamus to compel the County of Peterborough to issue $75,000 of debentures as a bonus to the Grand Junction. It is hard to say what decision may be arrived at in this suit, but certainly, if it is adverse to this County, the people thereof will be compelled to pay a bonus which, for many reasons, they have no right to pay; and, moreover, the people of this County were deceived regarding some of its principal provisions, an important one, which fixed the line of route as now pursued on the entrance of the road into this County, was, it is well-known, inserted clandestinely after the separation of the Committee who had prepared the by-law for submission to the ratepayers, a piece of underhand work which we hope will be thoroughly unmasked at the hearing in Court about to be given this matter. Several gentlemen of this village, and a prominent gentleman from a distance who had considerable to do with the wording and framing of the by-law in question, and who has strong reasons for objecting to this County being compelled to pay away $75,000 without deriving any benefit therefrom, have been subpœnaed in behalf of the defence in this suit, and are prepared to give such evidence as will prove the utter invalidity of the by-law granting this sum to the Grand Junction. If there is any justice in the Court hearing this case, there is no possibility of the company obtaining a verdict in it favor.—Norwood Register.

PORT HOPE.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.—The Times says:—Quite an animated and learned discussion on truancy and compulsory education took place at the Board of Education meeting last night. It was brought on by Mr. Budge remarking that a large number of lads, who should be at school were in danger of becoming loafers. That is, if they did not voluntarily give up the practice of playing "hookey" from school. The board and head master discussed the subject very fully, considering that no resolution was before it, and it was evident that they, one and all, really desired to advance the true welfare of the erring boys. Nothing was done formally, however, but it was understood that the secretary should at once have some slips, containing the sections of the compulsory education act, printed for the information of parents. Parents should thank them for this, inasmuch as they are not bound in any way to spread abroad the law on the subject. In fact, ignorance of the law, especially on such a vital subject, is not only no excuse, but absolutely criminal. We trust that there will be a paucity of complaints such as this for the future.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

The Attempt to Wreck His Train at Moscow—His Reception in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—An official account states that the explosion occurred as the baggage train was entering the Rogach quarter of Moscow. The train was thrown off the rails, the baggage van overturned, and two passenger carriages thrown across the line. The explosion caused a gap in the permanent roadway over four feet deep, sixteen feet long, and eighteen broad. The house where the mine was exploded has been discovered, and search is being made for the perpetrators.

Previous to the Emperor's arrival in the Hall of Audience the Lord Marshal gave the deputation the news of the catastrophe of the previous evening. The Emperor spoke as follows:—"Gentlemen, I am very glad to see you again, remembering the loyal attachment which you evinced on the occasion of the sad event of April 14. Similar assurances then reached me from all parts. You are already acquainted with the events of yesterday. God preserved me as well as those travelling with me. I am anxious only for the welfare of Russia. I have placed myself in the hands of Providence, but sedition must be extirpated. I appeal, therefore, to you, and all right-minded people, to aid me in the eradication of this evil which has taken root in Russia. I address myself to parents, and urge them to conduct their children in the paths of truth and righteousness, in order that they may become, not miscreants, but useful men and good citizens." The Emperor's words were received with loud cheers.

A person in the baggage train at the time of the explosion says the baggage train of fourteen carriages and two locomotives was despatched half an hour before the train carrying the Emperor, but by a fortunate chance the Czar's train overtook the baggage train, and passed and left it some distance behind. The explosion attracted the police and crowd, who were loud in their expressions of horror. Telegraphic communication was interrupted for a time, the explosion having thrown the posts down. Two railway officials in the immediate vicinity were badly injured. The perpetrators doubtless thought the Czar was in the second train. The public prosecutor and magistrates soon arrived. The latter discovered in the court-yard of an empty house concealed wires connected with a battery placed in an outhouse from which passing trains could be easily seen. The house was bought in September by a young man who stated that he was a citizen of Samara. He had been observed digging in the cellar by neighbors, but he disarmed suspicion by declaring that the reason for doing so was to obtain sand. From this cellar was dug a passageway in which a train of powder was laid connecting with a mine under the railway. More wires were found behind the wall proper. From the quantity of clothing found in the house it is supposed several persons have been engaged in the work.

The tunnel containing the powder train ran a hundred and fifty feet underneath the permanent roadway. The first part of the tunnel was built of stone. Some persons standing on the embankment as the baggage train passed, imagining it was the Czar's train, cheered, which was the signal for exploding the mine.

REVIEWS.

CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE for December. Rev. W. Briggs, Methodist Book Room, Toronto. $2 a year, $1 for six months; single number, 20c. This number has quite a Christmas flavour. It has a capital Cornish Christmas story, Christmas poems, and a fine Christmas anthem. The illustrated articles are "Montreal Past and Present," "China and the Chinese." The other articles make up an interesting number, which concludes the tenth volume of this successful magazine. The editor claims that it has published more high class engravings than all that were ever published in Canada before, the number of late being about 200 a year. The story of the war will be republished in book form.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL ENSIGN is a first class illustrated paper, edited and published by Mr. C. Barker, King street, Bomanville. The specimen copies now on our table justify us in heartily recommending it to our Sunday School friends. Send for a specimen copy before ordering elsewhere. A gratis supplement, containing Notes on the International Lessons, is given with each number.

PLEASANT HOURS.—8 pages 4to, twice a month, 30 cents a year; in quantities, 25 cents. Wm. Briggs, Publisher, Methodist Book Room, Toronto. This is a new and handsome illustrated paper, edited by the Rev. W. H. Withrow, M.A. The December numbers are largely made up of Christmas stories. With the new year will begin a tale of Canadian Village Life, which in book form sells for $1.25. A stirring Temperance Serial Story, and a full series of illustrated articles, are announced. For Sunday-schools it is a marvel of cheapness.

THE SUNBEAM.—4 pages, twice a month, 15 cents a year; in quantities, 12 cents. Same publisher. This bright little paper is printed in large type, with plenty of pictures and sample Lesson Notes for the very little folk. They are just the thing for advanced and primary Sunday-school classes, and have the advantage of being thoroughly Canadian in every respect. Specimens are offered free.

A NEW AFRICAN EXPEDITION

From the Cape Argus of Oct. 14 we learn that a new expedition had been preparing for the previous two months for what the Argus considers, one of the most hazardous of African exploration yet attempted. Mr. C. F. H. Bagot and Mr. H. E. C. Beaver left England on July 11 last, and arrived at the Cape in the Walmer Castle in due course. Since their arrival they had been very busy in organizing their expedition, and, everything being ready, expected to start on October 14 or 15. The object of the expedition is to make a complete astronomical and general survey, we are told, of the countries lying between the Zambezi and the Albert and Victoria Nyanzas. At the latter it was anticipated that a junction will be formed with Gordon Pasha, an anticipation very likely to be disappointed. The whole work of the expedition will, it is thought, occupy four years. Messrs. Bagot and Beaver were to leave with two waggons and the necessary drivers and leaders. "Nothing that foresight can suggest has been neglected, and the explorers start in good health and the highest spirits on a task of stupendous difficulty." Mr. Gill, the Cape Astronomer Royal, had been most kind in every way in furnishing information and instruments, and Sir Bartle Frere had placed at the disposal of the expedition all his knowledge and means of obtaining knowledge, while evincing in other ways his great interest in the success of the explorers. The expedition is undertaken at the cost of Messrs. Bagot and Beaver, who, we are told, have had a world-wide experience in travelling. They will be the only Europeans with the expedition, and the only others will be a few coloured men, the usual attendants in waggon travelling. Though fully prepared to adopt strong measures, Messrs. Bagot and Beaver will first try the efficacy of presents, and take with them a large number of articles for barter. We wish the expedition all success; but if Messrs. Bagot and Beaver are responsible for the statement in the Argus, we fear they have but a very inadequate idea of the stupendous task before them. Moreover, the country they are to traverse is by no means almost unexplored. In recent years even very much has been done for its exploration. Still, if in four years the two young men manage to make a complete astronomical and general survey, they will certainly have accomplished an unparalleled feat.

SCANDAL.

A women to the holy father went,
Confession of sins was her intent;
And so, her misdemeanors great and small
She faithfully rehearsed them all;
And, chiefest in her catalogue of sin
She owned that she a tale bearer had been,
And borne a bit of scandal up and down
To all the long-tongued gossips in the town.
The holy father for her other sin
Granted the absolution asked of him;
But while for all the rest he pardon gave,
He told her this offence was very grave;
And that to do fit penance she must go
Out by the wayside where the thistles grow,
And, gathering the largest, ripest one,
Scatter its seeds, and then when this was done,
She must come back again another day,
To tell him his commands she did obey.
The women thought this penance light,
Hastened to do his will that very night,
Feeling right glad she had escaped so well.
Next day but one she went the priest to tell;
The priest sat still and heard her story thro'
And said, "There is something still for you to do;
Those little thistle-seeds which you have sown,
I bid you go re-gather every one."
The woman said, "But, Father, it would be vain
To gather up those seeds again;
The winds have scattered them both far and wide,
Over the meadowed vale and mountain side,
The Father answered, "Now I hope from this
The lesson I have taught, you will not miss;
You cannot gather back the scattered seeds,
Which far and wide will grow to noxious weeds.
Nor can the mischief once by scandal sown,
By any penance be again undone."

NARCOTICS.

BY DR. BENJ. W. RICHARDSON, F. R. S.

Mandragora, opium, chloral, ether, chloroform, chlorodyne, are medical agents used in the first instance mechanically, and used in a second instance socially, and by habit in certain instances, for the purpose of making the mind oblivious, or, in other and more frequently used words, for securing repose or rest. These agents do not stand alone in respect to the list of toxicants, which are assumed to be useful to mankind. To them must be added many others which have not necessarily had an origin from medical science or art, but have sprung into general use from their first application. Under this head may be included the commoner members of the chemical families known as the alcohols: hasheesh from the Cannabis indica (Indian hemp), yerba de nunca, or red thorn apple, almanitine, coca, absinthe, arsenic, tobacco.

It will be seen that the toxical agents are a numerous class, and, if I had not chosen to refrain, I might have added some further. In one notable instance, and in one or two less notable, nitrous-oxide gas, the gas now so commonly used by dentists as an anæsthetic, has been resorted to as an habitual stimulant and narcotic; but the rarity of its use prevents the necessity of doing more than referring to it in this place, and once perhaps again in the sequel. Of the other agents it may be said, in limine, respecting the extent of their use, that the alcohols and tobacco stand first on the list of our civilized life. Next after these come opium, absinthe, chloral hydrate, chlorodyne, ether, and chloroform. The other substances are local in the range of their employment. Hasheesh is an eastern luxury, amanitine a Kamtschatkan luxury; arsenic a Styrian luxury; red-thorn apple a luxury of the Indians of the Andes, under the sweet influence of which they enter into communion, as they believe, with the spirits of their departed dead—the best excuse I have ever heard given for the use of any of these indulgences whatsoever.

The toxicants have variation of action in their early stages. Alcohol excites the mind and quickens the pulses before they depress. Opium excites before it depresses. Tobacco does not in the strict sense excite, but depresses and soothes from the first, so that there are stages, which some persons always feel, when alcohol is antidotal to tobacco. Among those persons who are total abstainers from alcohol, few are found who can bear tobacco in the most moderate use of it. Under tobacco the heart seems rapidly to run down in power, and alcohol is called for to whip it up again, alas, as it seems. The fact is, that the heart is not the organ primarily concerned at all, but the minute vessels at the termination of the aterial circuit. These minute vessels are under a nervous influence by which the passage of the blood through them is regulated, and which influence is readily modified by very refined causes acting through the organic or emotional nervous centres. The effect of tobacco on these minute vessels, through the nervous system, is to cause contraction of them, as a primary fact, so that the face of the person affected becomes pale and the surface of the body cold, while the heart labors to force on the supply of blood until its own vascular system comes under the influence; then the stomach involuntarily contracts, and after a time, the voluntary muscels, deprived of blood, convulse tremulously, or pass into active convulsions, as in tetanus. Alcohol, on the other hand, through its influence or nervous functions relaxes the vessels of the minute circulation, sets free the heart, reduces the muscular power, and in every particular counteracts the tobacco. When a person receives a stun, or is shocked by some intelligence, or sight, or sound, that thereby stuns him, so that, like Hamlet, he is bechilled

> "Almost to jelly, by the act of fear, > Stands dumb and speaks not,"

he if for the moment in the same state as the man who first tries to smoke tobacco, and who, with pallid face, cold surface and reeling brain, is to his sense and feeling, stricken with all but mortal suffering and prostration. In each of these cases alcohol, for a moment, acts an as antidote—not necessarily the best antidote, but as a fair one. When, therefore, we see a man smoking and drinking, quaffing off the cup of wine or spirit to quiet the qualm which would otherwise be inflicted by the fumes of the cigar or pipe, we really observe the facts of a most excellently though innocently devised physiological experiment on a living animal. The man is, unconsciously to his knowledge, if not to his sensation—unless he be a physiologist—inducing a balance in the tension of his arterial circuit.

In process of time, the nervous system becoming accustomed to these influences, one or both, in a certain degree, tolerates them, for a period. The tolerance while it lasts is an advantage to the habit, and, if the habit were a necessity, it would be a blessing. But the advantage is not permanent. In the end the nutrition of the organic parts which are under the influence of the same nervous regulation is sure to suffer, and in many organizations to suffer rapidly and fatally.—Contemporary Review.

NAPOLEON'S SISTERS!

The sisters of Napoleon were too valuable as counters in his game to be allowed to give their hands where they liked. Elisa, is is true, chose for herself before his period of omnipotence, and became the wife of young Bacciochi, a poor Corsican officer, who lived to share with her a throne which was scarcely wide enough for two. She was made Princess of Piombino and Lucca, and Grand Duchess of Tuscany, and left a family who afterward held positions at the court of Napoleon III. The wife of Pauline, the second sister, if written as only herself or the recording angel might have done it, would probably have surpassed anything that the Sieur De Brantome has left for the wonder and the scandalized amusement of mankind. While she was yet little more than a child her hand was disputed by Junot, Duphot, Freron, and Leclerc. She chose the last, and accompanied him to Santo Domingo, undeterred by pestilence and massacres, and after faithfully nursing him through his fatal illness, she brought his remains back to France for burial. She was then taken in hand by her brother, who needed to strengthen his interest in Rome, and married to Prince Camillo Borghese—a union happy from the wedding benediction. Perhaps she had loved Leclerc—she certainly adored her brother—but the rest of the world of men, with the exception of poor Borghese, seemed to her alike creatures of her conquest and her insatiable curiosity. She was one of the most beautiful women of her time. She posed to Canova for his "Venus Victrix," and the great sculptor was reported to have said that, with such models, statues could be made by journeymen. She had many virtues: she was amiable, generous, enlightened and intelligent; she loved letters and art, and, as Duchess of Guastalla, kept a brilliant and popular court. The ablest politician of the three sisters, and the least personally interesting, was Caroline, who married Murat, and became successively Duchess of Cleves and Queen of Naples. She was splendidly educated, brave as a lioness in battle, and possessed of a singular administrative ability; but she betrayed her brother too readily when fortune frowned, and she married General MacDonald too soon after her husband's tragic death.—Harper's Magazine.

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE EYES OF THE HORSE.—If we were to name the worst of common arrangements for the eyes of the horse, it would be blinders; but another source of injury is when his hair is allowed to fall into them. This happens often from thoughtlessness. Consider what such neglect would do to human eyes? Please think of and protect the eyes of your horse!

TILE DRAINING may be carried on more or less all through a mild winter in latitude of 40, and sometimes even 41 degrees, provided the work is properly laid out beforehand. All surveying, leveling and locating should be done, and the ground should be staked and mapped, if necessary, in dry, pleasant weather. Also a very deep furrow, or dead furrow, should be cut wherever a tile drain is to be sunk. This serves two purposes:—it saves nearly half of the hand-digging, and it makes a place for a light snow to lodge and prevent the ground from freezing so hard that it cannot be dug. Even without snow, the loose earth at the bottom of the furrow is a protection, except in quite severe weather. The tiles, too, should be distributed before the ground is too wet, in snug piles of about 30 tiles each, at proper distances along the furrows. Then the tilling can go on whenever the cold is not so severe as to freeze the earth to the tools. This will not be until the thermometer is three or four degrees below the freezing point, since the warm earth constantly warms the spade as it is thrust down through it. But in cold or "catching" weather, and we must cut the "gutter" or "groove," lay the tile and fill the ditch as fast as it is dug, or at least before the clay thrown out has time to freeze. Especially at night we must finish up all work begun, put a wad of straw or grass in the upper and unfinished end of the tile, and dam the furrow above, so as to prevent wash in case of rain. If we do this, a hard freeze or a heavy rain will do no harm, and as soon as suitable weather returns, even if not till March, the wad of straw can be removed and the work proceed without delay. In filling, only the part thrown out by the spade need be shoveled in. The bottom half foot, at least, should be thoroughly packed or "tamped." The surface earth thrown out by the plow may be plowed back in the spring, and thus much hand work be avoided. The draining thus done, involves little actual expense, except the cash paid for tile, which will be from $12 to $15 per acre for two-inch laterals and three or four inch mains, the laterals being 33 feet apart.

Tricks, Instincts, and Queer Habits of Some Animals.

A swarm of bees entered the dwelling of S. D. Bradley, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and lighting on a dish of honey that was on the table where they were dining, took full possession of the sweets.

At the daily devotions of a Yarmouth, Me., family, a favorite cat would always insist upon being present, until her kittens were drowned one day in her presence. From that hour the cat has refused to attend service.

A cow that had been bitten by a rabid dog at Glen Mills, Pa., attacked its owner and gored him severely. He caught the animal by the nose and roared for help, the cow meantime stamping upon him, when the other cows of the field rushed upon their companion and drove her away after a severe battle.

At a seminary not many miles from London a huge mastiff exhibits wonderful powers. At 6 o'clock every week day morning he will ring the school bell to awaken the inmates, by tugging at the rope that hangs within his reach, and on Sunday's one hour later. He is soon admitted in the building, when his task is the distribution of twenty pairs of boots to their proper rooms. A new pair at first perplexes him, but after putting around all the others has no trouble in deciding to whom the new ones belong.

At the foot of the steep hill which leads to the Boulevard Bessiers, London, three horses stopped recently, after they had dragged sixteen tons of coal to the spot. No amount of punishment could induce the animals to move another step, when the driver began kicking with hobnailed shoes. The leader of the horses rebelled immediately, and, turning about, seized the driver's arm with his teeth, tossed him to the ground, and trampled him with his hoofs, then picked him up again, threw him about, and would have killed him had not bystanders thought his punishment was sufficient and released him.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MRS. RUTH RICHMORE, of Browsington, Vermont, ninety-four years old, has given up her pipe, after smoking constantly for thirty years, and thus far has experienced no ill effects. Had she continued using the weed, however, it is not unlikely she might have died of it in another dozen years or so.

POOR little Prince Elmayou, son of the late unlucky King Theodore, of Abyssinia, died last week at Leeds, England, of broncho pleuro-pneumonia. PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

FRIDAY, Dec. 5.—There was more animation on the Peterborough market this morning than for some days past. Pork is coming forward in increased quantities, and the offerings are of a fairer grade. Packers are paying $5.00 to $5.25, while some very choice lots bring $5.50. Mr. Archibald Davidson, of Otonabee, brought in four Berkshires weighing 355, 361, 369 and 390 pounds, making 1,495 pounds, for which he received from Mr. J. Flavelle $5.50 per cwt. Some few parcels of keg butter, of prime grade, were freely taken at 20cts. per pound. There were several lots of peas in, which were taken at 60c. to 65c., according to quality. Hay found slow sale at $6.00 to $6.50; consumers seeming to be abundantly supplied, and there is little demand for baling. Wood was again plentiful, soft selling slowly at $1.25 for unsawed, and $1.50 for sawed; hardwood showed the same dullness and went at $2.25 for unsawed, and $2.50 sawed. Wheat held the advance of the past few days, and we change quotations. Several parcels of spring wheat were readily taken at $1.20 for shipment. The millers are holding off at this price as they deem it to be above the market. Although flour has receded from our quotations for a short period, we do not change them in the face of the late advance in wheat.

A Conundrum Propounded.

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible, Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w49-2w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Postponement.

Mr. Jas. Hughes was unavoidably detained this morning, and will not be able to reach Peterborough till the late train, consequently his lecture promised for this evening on the "Kindergarten" has been postponed.

Sale of Horses, Sleighs, &c.,

A sale will take place at Mr. Stapleton's auction rooms to-morrow, commencing at 10 o'clock a.m., of horses, sleighs, buffalo robes, harness, fanning mills, second-hand furniture, straw cutter, &c.

Sale of Valuable Furniture, &c.

On Wednesday next, 10th instant, Mr. Stapleton will sell by auction the handsome walnut parlor, hall and dining-room furniture, piano forte and gold-plated mirror, as well as the kitchen and bedroom furniture, of Mr. P. D. Doran, at his residence on Water street, north.

Military Supper.

Company No. 1, of the 57th Peterborough Rangers, after being paid off for their annual drill last night had an oyster supper in the Choate House, to which they invited their officers. Their host catered in a most satisfactory manner for them after such a short notice. Speeches and songs enlivened the entertainment, and they broke up at an early hour.

The Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club.

The "Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club" met at the Choate House on Wednesday evening for the first time this season. The notice of the meeting was so short that few were present, and the Club adjourned to meet on Tuesday evening, Dec. 9th, at the same place. All the members are requested to be present as business of importance will be brought before the meeting.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: increasing north-easterly to south easterly winds; cloudy mild weather; rain, possibly snow to-night in North-Western Canada. The weather in Peterborough to-day has been cloudy, without rain or snow, although threatening rain. The thermometer at 9 o'clock this morning indicated 27°, and at two o'clock it indicated 30°, three degrees warmer.

L. O. L. No. 49.

At the annual meeting of L. O. L., No. 49, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Bro. Robert Weir	W. M.
Bro. Joseph Hatton	D. M.
Bro. John Mowry	Sec.
Bro. Henderson Nesbitt	Treas.
Bro. Robert Baker	Chaplin
Bro. J. G. Weir	D. of C.

COMMITTEE.—Bros. Francis Weir, Wilton Tennison, Isaac Dormer, Henry Baker, James McIntyre.

I. O. G. T.

Carswell Lodge, No. 411, I. O. G. T., held a very large and interesting meeting last evening. There were, besides a goodly number of their own members and town visitors, a large delegation from Lakefield, who, taking advantage of the good sleighing, paid the lodge a fraternal visit. The evening passed pleasantly with speeches, songs, recitations and readings. The Lakefield visitors started for home about half past ten o'clock.

Company No. 2, 57th Battalion.

Company No. 2, of the 57th Peterborough Rangers met at the drill shed last evening and spent an hour at street movement drill. The attendance was small, much smaller than it should have been. Although they are well drilled and feel that they can take things easy, they had better look to their laurels, for if they play while the other companies work they will find themselves behind. It would seem to be better if the companies would select different nights for drilling. There is too much confusion created while drilling together and the attention of the members is continually being taken from their work. There was some talk on the subject last night and the officers seemed favourable to a change.

The Firemen.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Fire Brigade, held on Tuesday evening, several changes were made of officers, and new members were elected. There was a good attendance. The meeting was harmonious, and deep interest was manifested. Messrs. W. Heatherington and George Pappin were elected members of the Brigade. Mr. E. Hughes was elected Captain of the Hook and Ladder Company, and Mr. W. S. Cocks Lieutenant. Mr. D. Bellegham having tendered his resignation as Treasurer, Mr. F. Hall was elected to fill his place. Mr. T. Goldie was appointed Chairman of the Finance Committee. The meeting was said to be the most successful one held for a long time.

Company No. 1, 57th Battalion.

Company No. 1, of the 57th Peterborough Rangers met at the Drill Shed last evening for their regular weekly drill. There were 35 members present and they made a very creditable appearance. The evening's drill consisted of Company field movements without arms. Capt. Edwards paid off the Company for their annual drill. The captain then suggested the formation of a club either for snow-shoeing, gymnastic exercises, or fencing and boxing. During the short discussion that followed the foil and broad sword exercises and [illegible] seemed to have a preference, especially among the elder ones, who desire to attain a proficiency in the use of arms that may at some future day become useful. Some advocated snow-shoeing. As a gymnasium is already established, and the foils and swords would prove the most useful, it would seem to be the most wise to select the latter, connecting the practice with the regular weekly drills. Nothing was determined last evening, but the subject is now before the company, and an opportunity is thus afforded them of maturing some plan that will result in the adoption of a system that will be satisfactory to all.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

The Decayed Body of an Old Man Found in a Garret.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—A terrible discovery was made this afternoon in the upper part of the Exchange Bank building. It clears up the mysterious disappearance of a retired grocer named Smith, which was reported in the Globe, in September last. The gas pipes it appears, had some flaw in them, and Mr. C. G. Black, caretaker of the building, set out shortly after noon to discover it. He had not gone far in ascending the ladder that leads to the loft, or space between the roof of the building and the ceiling of the top flat, when a disagreeable odour, which he thought was gas, assailed the most terrible stench which emanates from putrid human flesh. Beating a hasty retreat, Mr. Black called in the assistance of Mr. J. W. Hargreaves, the ex-caretaker, and procuring a light, the pair started to investigate. Having reached the loft, the light was held up, when to their horror, they discovered the dead body of a human being, lying in a part of the loft with scarce thirty-three inches of room between the roof and flooring. Looking more closely at the ghastly object, they found it to be the body of an old man, reclining on his back and his shoulder resting upon a beam. His right arm was thrown across his body, with a handkerchief resting upon the arm, and his right leg was drawn back, the whole giving him the appearance of a man who has attempted to rise but could not. His chin rested upon his chest, while the long white locks hung loosely about his face, which was perfectly black. Their first belief was that they had found a dead negro; the flesh had dried from the face, which the skin covered loosely. Mr. Hargreaves suddenly remembered the disappearance of Mr. Smith, with whom he had been acquainted, and although the features were unrecognizable, the clothing corresponded with Mr. Smith's attire when last seen. One of the sons was sent for, who came in a short time, and there could be no mistake. The young man saw that it was his father, and went down to wait for his brother's arrival. He said that his father had felt very keenly the loss of his money in some stock speculation, but that he had not believed that it affected his reason. His brother, having arrived, also recognized the deceased as his father. Mrs. Smith, with four sons, resides on Lagauchetiere street, and the news was soon broken to her. The police informed the coroner, who said he had no power to act. The Police Magistrate upon being approached referred those who came to him to the Chief of Police. The caretaker, Mr. Black says that the ladder was frequently standing in position, and a man could easily ascend it. During the afternoon a number of friends of the deceased, and others attracted by curiosity, were about the corridors of the Exchange Bank building awaiting the arrival of Mr. Coroner Jones, that an inquest might be held. Late in the afternoon that official arrived and viewed the body preparatory to holding an inquest. Opinion is divided as to whether the deceased committed suicide, or having become ill, crawled into the loft to die.—Globe Cor.

CABLE.

WEST AFRICAN WARFARE.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The conflict in New Calabar, West Africa, is between King Amachree, of New Calabar, and his followers on the one hand and a powerful chief called Willbraid and adherents on the other. Since the king of New Calabar died, the accension to the throne of Amachree has not given satisfaction. During the conflict mentioned the wounded or prisoners were immediately killed and in many cases eaten by the lower classes. It was thought the British Naval Commander would not interfere unless British subjects were molested. Bonny is suffering almost equally with New Calabar and the trade of the district is almost at a stand still. King Jaja is also reported as collecting forces to join in the struggle. In such event the inhabitants of all the Three Rivers would be drawn into the conflict. Her Majesty's ship Dido was outside the bar at Bonny ready to enter.

THE CZAR AT HIS CAPITAL.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 4.—The Czar arrived this afternoon, and was most enthusiastically received by the populace. He proceeded to the Kazan Cathedral, where he prayed for his safe deliverance from death. Thanksgiving services were also held in the private chapel, after which the Czar proceeded to the winter palace in an open sleigh. On his arrival at the palace dense crowds gathered, and he was enthusiastically cheered. Congratulations are said to be pouring in from all quarters at his providential escape.

REORGANIZATION OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Great preparations are being made for increasing the efficiency of the Russian army. The artillery is to be completely reorganized, the cavalry improved and strengthened, and the supply of arms considerably increased. It is remarkable that both in the military schools and the regiments increased attention is given to the study of the geography of Austria-Hungary.

FAVOURABLE NEW ZEALAND LOAN.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Banking circles are very much surprised at the issue of a five million pounds five per cent New Zealand loan at 97½. They consider that New Zealand's borrowings are altogether out of proportion to the importance of that colony. Notwithstanding that the loan is issued by the Bank of England.

SNOW STORM IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Heavy snow is falling here and all over the country. Railway traffic is partially suspended in some districts. At Cherbourg a terrible storm is blowing off the coast. Disasters to shipping are reported.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—After a debate on the Floquet-Brisson interpellation and explanations by M. M. Waddington and Ferry, the Chamber of Deputies passed by 249 to 107, an order of the day favorable to the Government. Almost all the members of the Extreme Left abstained from voting. The minority consisted of Deputies belonging to nearly all the groups of the Right. In the debate, M. Paul de Cassagnac was formally censured by the House for refusing to retract an insult offered to the Minister of Public Instruction.

LORD-LIEUTENANT'S PROGRAMME.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—At the Cabinet Council yesterday a programme was decided upon by the Government for the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. The details are kept from the public, but it is understood the Government, while extending aid and employment to the suffering, will not modify its demands that the agitation be conducted within the strict letter of the law.

APPEAL FOR A DEFENCE FUND.

DUBLIN, Dec. 4.—Mr. Parnell appeals for assistance to defray the expenses of the defence of the Sligo prisoners. The Government will apply to move the trials to Dublin.

LAND MEETING IN TIPPERARY.

A land meeting was held to-day at Menagh, County Tipperary. Three thousand were present. Messrs. Gray and [illegible], members of Parliament, were among the speakers. Resolutions were passed, calling for abatement of rents and a peasant proprietary.

EXPEDITION TO AFRICA.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The French Government has directed the Governor of Senegal, Western Africa, to send an expedition to explore the region between the Upper Senegal and Niger rivers, and report on the feasibility of a railway between the two rivers.

POLISH ANTAGONISM TO RUSSIA.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The attempts made from St. Petersburg to gain over the Poles to Russia have proved a decided failure. Even the party which has hitherto been regarded as the most favourable to Russia, turns a deaf ear to these overtures. Nor is this surprising when the nature of them is considered. The Golos, which spoke for Russia, coolly told the Poles they should now make friends with Russia in order that the two nations may unite against the Austro-German alliance, while the Russian Government does not take the slightest step to alleviate the system of repression which prevails in Russian Poland. Under such circumstances it is evident that the Russian overtures are merely a manœuvre to put pressure upon Berlin, and the Poles are under no illusions on the subject.

AN INSURRECTION.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A Philippopolis despatch says 20 villages in Kirdschali, in the district of the Rhodope mountains, have risen in arms. Five hundred insurgents have seized the local funds and also made prisoners of the gendarmes.

HOW THE CZAR ESCAPED.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Times' Berlin correspondent explains that the Czar's railway journeys are generally made with two trains, one for himself and suite, and the other for his servants and baggage. Hitherto it has been customary to use the latter train as a kind of eclaireur. On the present journey this order somehow became reversed and the Imperial train took the front position. Unaware of this change, the assassins calculated upon the Czar being in the second train, and exploded their mine accordingly.

AMERICAN.

ROBBING THE MAILS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Post-Master Van Horne, of Marksboro, N.J., was arrested yesterday, charged with robbing the mails. Van Horne claims to be innocent.

A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 4.—A man named Upton has been arrested in Ansonia. He came home drunk a few nights ago, and while quarreling with his wife he hurled a lamp at her. It fell into the cradle and set fire to the clothing over the baby. The wife endeavored to extinguish the flames, when her clothing caught fire, and she will probably die. The infant lived a few hours. The couple has been married two years and had hitherto lived happily.

LABOR UNION RULES.

PATERSON, N.J., Dec. 4.—A strike of the silk weavers is in progress at the Murray Mill against the running of two Jacquarde looms by one weaver. The weavers are sustained by the International Labor Union.

CHIEF JACK ON THE STAND.

LOS PINOS, Dec. 4.—Jack arrived this morning unattended. The Commission is now in session with Jack on the stand. Jack promised Ouray to give full particulars of the trouble at White River and the cause that led to the outbreak. Ouray says with the co-operation of Jack and the Commission he will be able to settle definitely to the satisfaction of the Department. The success of the commission is thought to be assured.

MINERS' STRIKE.

ARCHBALD, Pa., Dec. 4.—The miners of Sampson & Co. are striking because the Company refuses to permit their weighmaster to inspect the Company's books.

ADVANCE OF WAGES.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—The employees of the Delaware and W. Car Shops, numbering 600, have been notified of an advance of 5 to 10 per cent in their wages, without their request.

INCREASED PAY.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—About 1,500 men of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Company, employed in the iron and steel works, have just been given an increase of 10 per cent without any demand.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

A SEA SERPENT'S BONES

What a Kansas Farmer Discovered While Ploughing the Soil.

Ellworth County, Kansas, furnishes a new contribution to natural history in the shape of the remains of a fossilized sea serpent of the prehistoric period. The discovery was made three miles north of Wilson, the other day, by a Mr. Sylvester, while ploughing preparatory to opening a stone quarry, having turned over what he supposed was a piece of petrified wood nearly four feet in length, but which proved to belong to the animal kingdom. Further search was made, following up other pieces in continuity, varying in length from one to three feet, until thirty-six feet in all were secured. Not until the head was exhumed was the character of the monster apparent. No one seeing the reconstructed segment of the snake placed in their natural order can for a moment doubt the genuineness of the discovery. The remains were found only a few inches below the surface, with a thin layer of earth between them and the underlying rock. The length of the head is seventeen inches; width of head, eleven inches; greatest thickness of body about one foot. The line demarcation between the upper and lower jaws, the head and taper of the neck, all look serpentine. The passage of the œsophagus through the neck, as well as the alimentary canal, some fifteen feet further on in the body, is clearly traceable. The outline of the backbone is distinctly seen in a number of the section composing the remains. Some of the larger vertebræ are four inches across, and it is about the same distance between the vertebral spaces, or, comparatively speaking, they are the size of the vertebræ of a large horse, a portion of the caudal extremity—some ten or fifteen feet—is missing, having been removed by a previous quarryman, so that the original length of the monster was probably fifty feet.—Cincinnati Gazette.

ON A WAR FOOTING.

Vienna, Dec. 5.—The Lower House of the Reichsrath has rejected the motion for a reduction of the standing army, and adopted the first clause of the Government's bill, fixing the strength of the army on a war footing at 800,000. The clause prolonging the operation of the bill for two years failed to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority. An amendment prolonging it three years was also rejected.

WAR VESSELS FOR CUBA.

Madrid, Dec. 5.—The Government has despatched several small war vessels to Cuba, with instructions to watch the development of events in that island, but not to inaugurate a war, or shed blood, excepting the troubles cannot be otherwise adjusted. A Council of Ministers today discussed the report of the Senate Committee on the bill for the abolition of slavery in Cuba, and approved the modifications proposed by the Committee. The report on the bill was afterwards read in the Senate.

A FARMER SHOT.

Dublin, Dec. 5.—A farmer, returning from Mullingar market last night, was shot by an unknown person, who was lying in wait for him at the roadside. The provocation for the deed is supposed to have resided in the act that the farmer had taken a holding from which a tenant, whose family had occupied it for many generations, had been evicted. The assassins have not been arrested.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED.

Dublin, Dec. 5.—The Court of Queen's Bench has granted the application of the Crown, that if the Grand Jury of Sligo found true bills against Davitt, Daly, and Killen, accused of sedition, the indictments should be removed for trial to Dublin.

WHY BRENNAN WAS TAKEN.

Dublin, Dec. 5.—The expressions which caused the arrest of Brennan were to the effect that he adopted the words of Davitt, that the time for resolve and action had arrived. Brennan was informed of the issue of the warrant, but made no effort to avoid arrest. He was received enthusiastically by a large crowd on his arrival at Castlebar, under an escort of soldiery. He was taken to the Court House and examined. The indictment was read over to him, after which he was remanded until Monday, to allow time to secure the attendance of the short-hand writer who took down his remarks. Bail was refused. The prisoner was defended by Charles O'Malley.

THE REPORTED BALKAN ALLIANCE.

Vienna, Dec. 4.—The denial of M. Ristics in the Skouptchina of the existence of a "Balkan Alliance," has been received with complete indifference in the Austrian capital. Such an alliance could only be alarming to Austria-Hungary in so far as it might be a symptom of the plans of Russia, and on this point M. Ristics' statement could, of course, not afford any information. The news from Russia on the other hand is far from reassuring. Six new forts are being erected round the fortress of Ivangorod, on the Vistula, and the roads in Podolia, near the Galician frontier, are being repaired with such speed that the farmers complain of the excessive requisitions made upon them by the Government.

STILL TALKING OF RESISTANCE.

London, Dec. 5.—A correspondent at Fort Webster, South Africa, on November 15th, reports that the Boers still talk of resistance. The same correspondent says Secocoeni shows no wish to make peace.

LOYAL BOERS.

London, Dec. 5.—A despatch from Cape Town says that at a meeting of loyal Boers and Englishmen resident in the Transvaal, resolutions were passed supporting the Government and denouncing disloyalty, and also asking for a constitution.

A SEDITIOUS MEETING.

London, Dec. 6.—Arrangements are being made for a monster meeting at Castlereagh Market place, which is capable of holding sixty thousand persons. All the great leaders will be there, Parnell, Dillon, Daley, Davitt and Brennan. It is openly declared that they intend to make seditious speeches.

NEWSPAPER SUSPENDED.

Paris, Dec. 6.—The Marseilles newspaper has been suspended for six months, and its manager sentenced to a month's imprisonment and to a fine of five thousand francs, for publishing a statement of Humbert, in which he stigmatised the acts of the Versailles courts martial as a prostitution of justice.

SENTENCE CONFIRMED.

Paris, Dec. 6.—The sentence of six months' imprisonment upon Humbert, for calling the acts of the Versailles courts martial a prostitution of justice has been confirmed.

THE EX-EMPRESS.

Paris, Dec. 6.—The Gaulois states that the ex-Empress Eugenie will proceed from Spain to Zululand.

AMERICAN.

GERMAN TRADE.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The commercial agent at Gristemunde reports that the great article of import from the United States is petroleum. The sudden rise of iron in America has caused a large exportation of German iron.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Oil City, Pa., Dec. 6.—The Buffalo express leaving Pittsburg last evening on the Alleghany Valley Railway ran into a land slide two miles below here. The engine was turned into the river and eight coal cars crushed. The passengers and coal cars escaped. Fireman Arthur Simpson, of Pittsburg, was crushed badly in the wreck.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.

New York, Dec. 6.—The Egypt and the Devonia from Europe. The latter brought $070,000 in gold.

BANK ROBBERY PLANNED.

Flushing, Dec. 6.—Geo. Hendrickson, alias Geo. Stecker, was arrested yesterday for attempting to negotiate forged papers. The developments disclosed that he was concerned with a gang in a plot to rob the Flushing and Queen's County Bank by decoying the President and the cashier away, leaving the bank in charge of one person, who would have been easily overpowered.

COLONIZING COLORED VOTERS.

Washington, Dec. 6.—State Senator Foster, of Indiana reports that 2,000 negroes arrived in that State recently, some deplorably destitute. The people of the State are beginning to look upon the whole project as a scheme to colonize voters. The feeling is so strong that farmers who employ these people find themselves in a measure ostracised.

GRANT'S RECEPTION.

New York, Dec. 6.—Mayor Howell of Brooklyn, is opposed to spending the city's money for a reception to Grant, and has not approved of the common council resolution tendering a public reception. The Mayor has invited Grant to visit the city, his plan being to have him at the City Hall for an hour or two.

HAYES ON LEGAL TENDER.

The Herald publishes a letter from the President to a personal friend, dated Dec. 4th, in which he says:—"If the Legal Tender for debts depends on the uncertain action of Congress there will be want of confidence. The only constitutional legal tender is gold and silver depart from that and confidence is gone. All the world now believes that investments in America are likely to be profitable. A sound financial policy will bring us money from all the commercial nations of the earth. In good times prepare for hard times, in good times pay debts. Legal tender notes are debts; let them be paid by the coin in the treasury and with that coming in from abroad and it will not contract the circulation.

A PILOT'S SUICIDE.

INFANTICIDE.

Dr. Gabriel Wolf was arrested yesterday, charged with prescribing poison for a sick infant left in his care by its mother, a servant girl. The infant cannot recover.

A SUCCESSFUL FAIR.

The Seventh Regiment Fair closes to-night. The estimated net profits are $100,000.

INDIAN LANDS.

A delegation of Ponca Indians is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. They arrived yesterday to seek aid in securing the restoration of their lands.

WHOLESALE THEFTS.

James Ellinger, a clerk of Chaffin & Co., was arrested yesterday charged with thefts of merchandise amounting, since August, to $2,000. Isaac Morse, who bought the stolen property, was also arrested. Ellinger asserts that Morse repeatedly threatened to expose him on his expressing his wish to discontinue the thefts.

A SUSPICIOUS CASE.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Christopher Kegel, a farmer, aged 65, died on November 19th. Daniel Zimell, a horse doctor, who has since been living with Kegel's widow, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of having poisoned Kegel. The widow, who is only 30, is also suspected.

RESTRICTING THE COAL OUTPUT.

New York, Dec. 6.—The Tribune says that President Sloan, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway, refused positively to sign the compact to suspend mining during the holidays. He proposed to restrict the production during this month by working two-thirds time. An officer of one of the companies said:—"I am willing to sign anything that will bring about some restriction of output. The companies are winning too much coal, and in the face of the light demand this cannot go on long without a reduction of prices."

THE UTE NEGOTIATIONS.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Schurz has requested Scoles, the Chairman of the House Indian Committee, not to press his request for all the correspondence relating to the Ute troubles as this might seriously embarrass the Department in its pending negotiations.

A CORPS OF SKATERS.

The corps of skaters, a force peculiar to the Norwegian army, has been lately re-organized, and consists now of 5 companies, each of 110 men, which in time of war can be reinforced by calling in 270 skaters belonging to Landwehr. The men of this corps are armed with rifles, and can be manœuvred upon ice or over the snow fields of the mountains with a rapidity equal to that of the best trained cavalry. The skates they use are admirably adapted for travelling over rough and broken ice or frozen snow, being 3 ins. broad and between 9 and 10 ins. long. In ascending a steep slope the men take a zig-zag course, taking up the mountain side as a ship does a head wind. As an instance of the speed at which they can go, it is mentioned that last winter a messenger despatched from Roeraas at 3 o'clock in the morning arrived at Drontheim at 9:30 in the evening of the same day, having day, having consequently accomplished 120 mls. in 18½ hours. It must be added, however, that Roeraas lies some 2,000 feet higher than Drontheim, so that the course of the skater was down hill the whole way. On the return journey the same man took 34 hours to reach Roeraas from Drontheim, but the route he took led him over very rough and broken snow fields, which rendered great caution and slow skating necessary.

THE QUEBEC MINISTRY.

THE election by acclamation of Mr. Flynn for Gaspe completes the re-election and acceptation by the people of the new Quebec Ministry. Now that half of them have been elected by acclamation and the other half have been returned by large majorities, it is impossible to doubt that the popular verdict is in their favour, and that they are sustained by the Province of Quebec.

ON THE MAIN LINE.

THE Lindsay Post, in an article on "Our mail and passenger arrangements," concludes as follows:—

"One great difficulty in connection with the Midland is the Peterborough branch; and no time-table ever will be thoroughly satisfactory and arranged on the most economical basis until Peterborough is on the main line."

RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

We extract from the Ottawa Citizen the following letter, which lays down very clearly, and with evidently full knowledge, the advantages of barge navigation on such waters as the proposed Trent Valley Canal:—

SIR,—I have perused with interest the leading article in your issue of this morning.

In view of the coming opening up of our great wheat fields in the North-West, and the constantly increasing demand in Europe for the wheat they will produce, it becomes, indeed, an absorbing point of interest with Canadians, that of the best and most efficient mode of transport from them to the seaboard.

As you remark, I am aware of an impression existing in the minds of many that (to use their own language) "the day for canals has gone by," and railways will henceforward reign in their stead! And, no doubt, the introduction of steel rails, and the greater durability they bestow on the permanent way, has done much to increase a railway's carrying power, but, granting this fact, and admitting all that can be said as to their superiority in speed, &c., railways can no more compete with canals in such a carrying trade, as Canada will then become the arena of, than could the horse and cart of our ancestors with the locomotive and train of to-day.

From the wheat fields ourselves, or rather from some convenient depots in their neighborhood, railways will, no doubt, be the means of conveyance to the nearest shipping port, but this will always be the nearest one available, and the shortest railway, other things being equal, will command the largest trade. It will do this, if for no other reason than its higher charge for freight, which, in comparison with its carriage by water, is as about a cent to a mill.

We are not now making any comparison between water routes, so let us suppose such a thing between the great lakes and the St. Lawrence, by the Trent completed. At Port Severn, or Midland City, a fleet of say a dozen vessels is waiting to be unloaded, we will let each vessel carry 1,500 tons, or the fleet in all 18,000 tons. This, by railway transit, and supposing a train to consist of 15 cars (a good load,) would require 120 trains, or 1,800 cars to carry it.

With the barges on the canal, each capable of carrying 500 tons, the same amount of wheat could be delivered at Montreal, or any other port, by 36 barges or two tows.

Now, to a railway doing (as let us hope it would be doing) a large business independently of this altogether, it might become no easy matter to furnish 120 locomotive engines and 1,800 cars for the accommodation of a through traffic, going one way only, and which, to destroy the benefit of the canal at all, it would have to carry at impossible rates; rates certainly impossible in view of the cost still remaining upon the empty return train.

Besides, we are dealing not with the discharge of a single fleet only. No sooner has this been sent away than another appears, then another and another, dozens and hundreds carrying the the millions of bushels required for the European market alone. The question in such a case becomes one of not how many engines or cars may be required, but how many railways will have to be built to meet such a call.

With regard to your instance of the Erie Canal, it must be borne in mind that the traffic is almost purely a local one, an entirely different matter, and which, in view of short and speedy transit and many trips, may be accommodated by railways in a populous country, and where the additional cost of freight is not regarded by the consumers in connection with its ministration to their convenience.

The traffic we are here dealing with is an enormous one of export, export from the granaries of the Western States and the Saskatchewan to Eastern Canada, the Eastern States and Europe.

For many years, at all events, such a traffic must needs be, to a large extent, one of "one way only," and must, therefore, be carried at rates which it will be a hard thing to render paying ones.

We can little judge now of the tremendous carrying trade the opening up of our great west will produce through Canada, but that it will require all the avenues we can open up for it, is an indisputable fact.

In any case, however, I can only regard a railway's competition with a canal, in such a traffic, and a traffic of such a nature, as very much resembling a striving between a pigmy and a giant.

Methinks I can already see the time when Montreal will be one of the largest depots in the world.

Yours truly,
PROSPERO.

RED RIVER NAVIGATION.

The people of Moorhead, we notice, are taking active steps for the improvement of the Red River, in the navigation of which they have a mutual interest with the citizens of Winnipeg and farmers of Manitoba. A meeting of the business men of that place was held on the 25th November to take action upon the improvement of Goose Rapids of the Red River by a lock and dam. There is an average fall of two feet to the mile on these rapids. Mr. F. G. Burnham was president of the meeting. Remarks were made by Capt. Wanser, who explained the importance of the work, and said the Minnesota side of the valley will make a hard pull for the lock and dam. To make the river navigable that improvement must be made. With it the Red River would at once become the Erie canal of the North-West. It is the only improvement looking to a navigable stream of six hundred miles. Should the contemplated works be carried out there will be therein provided another means of chiefly exporting wheat raised in Manitoba.—Winnipeg Times.

HYMENIAL.

Interesting Marriage Ceremony at St. Mark's Church, Port Hope.

The marriage of Miss Carrie Burton, second daughter of the late F. H. Burton, M.P., to Mr. Robt. B. Lundy, of Peterborough, was solemnized in St. Mark's Church, Port Hope, on Thursday evening, under the most auspicious surroundings. The spacious edifice was filled with the many friends of the bride long before the hour—seven o'clock—appointed for the interesting event to transpire. The high esteem in which the bride-elect was held in this town, and a similar feeling being entertained for the bridegroom, Mr. Lundy, a son of one of the oldest and most esteemed residents of that flourishing town, were the main contributants to so large an audience. Almost every one present had a personal interest in the beautiful young bride, and the position held by the groom as brother of Peterborough's Mayor no doubt contributed a moiety to the attendance.

At precisely seven o'clock the bride, Miss Carrie Curton, looking exceedingly well, entered the church, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. E. J. W. Burton, Collector of Customs at this port. As they moved up the aisle, Mrs. Read, the organist, played an appropriate selection on the organ. The bridesmaids were Miss Eugenia and Miss Mary Burton, sisters of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Douglas Lundy, brother of the groom. The very impressive marriage services of the church were performed by Rev. J. S. Baker, incumbent of St. Mark's. Mr. E. J. W. Burton, the Bride's brother, gave her away. At the conclusion of the interesting ceremony, the choir sang the beautiful matrimonial hymn, "A Three-fold Cord is not Easily Broken," after which followed the hearty congratulations and wishes of the numerous friends of the happy couple. As they left the church, the organist played the "Wedding March."

The bride was dressed in a rich travelling suit of brown silk, trimmed with a darker shade of brown silk velvet. Hat, beaver, gold ornaments. Jewelry, gold.

The bridesmaids' dresses were of navy blue cashmere and velvet.

The happy couple left almost immediately on the conclusion of the ceremony for Peterborough, their future home, where their friends trust they may long live and enjoy a happy future.—Port Hope Times.

THE MONTREAL MYSTERY.

Coroner's Inquest on the Body of James Smith—Some Suspicions of Foul Play—Strange Conduct of a Witness.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—The coroner's jury upon the body of the unfortunate man, James Smith, found in the Exchange Bank building yesterday, held their inquest to-day, and it is reported that Paris green was the immediate cause of death.

WILLIAM SMITH, harness maker, who was examined, said he had not heard of his father after the 19th of September, on the morning of which day, Mrs. Smith, widow of the deceased, had found two phials of Paris green in his coat pocket. He had heard his father say that he was tired of life, and he seemed down-hearted, owing to pecuniary losses.

DR. MOUNT found no violence upon the body, and was ordered to take the stomach for analysis.

CHARLES G. BLACK testified to finding the body.

JOHN THOMPSON saw deceased on Sept. 23rd, in the passage near his office sitting upon the stairs, and bade him good afternoon. Having learned that he had not been home and that his people were anxious about him, he told him to go home. Deceased had asked witness to discount a note, but he (Thomson) refused to do it. He had discounted several notes for deceased before and he had always honored them. This man Thomson gave rather strange answers, one of which was that the nature of his last communication to deceased was calculated to raise rather than to depress his spirits; but when asked by the coroner if refusing to discount a note was calculated to relieve his drooping spirits, he replied, "No, I suppose not."

G. M. LAWDER, accountant, had seen deceased on the top of the stairs of the 23rd of September, but noticed nothing unusual in his manner.

MR. J. THOMSON, on being re-called, acted in a rather confused manner, and was as confused as to his dates, having mixed up the 23rd with the 24th. He remarked that what the coroner was asking did not amount to a row of pins.

A JUROR—You said he came to you on the 23rd with a note. What was the amount of it?

WITNESS—It was for $650; he was the endorser.

A JUROR—If he had it, then where is it now?

WITNESS—I don't know; that's for you to find out.

A JUROR—You say in your deposition that you gave him his answer about the note on the 23rd?

WITNESS—No; it wasn't; I gave him his answer about a week before.

A JUROR—We would like to find out the maker of the note. Do you know who it was?

WITNESS—Mr. McIntyre was the maker; it was for 4 months; I don't know where the note is, or whether it was negotiated at the bank, or not, a broker named Wm. Walters returned the note to Mr. Smith in my presence; I had brought him there to try and get the note discounted, but he could not on account of his not being in business.

The sons of the deceased suspect foul play in the father's case, and the note of $650 is missing.

R. J. SMITH, son of deceased, thought it very strange that both Mr. Lawder and Mr. Thomson came to him on the 24th to tell him that they had seen his father, and also singular that, knowing he had been advertised as missing, both had passed him at the head of the stairs near Thomson's office.

The inquest meantime is adjourned until the 15th to allow time for the chemical analysis to be made.—Globe Cor.

LINDSAY.

MAIL ARRANGEMENTS.—On the invitation of Mr. C. E. L. Porteous, manager of the bank of Montreal, a number of leading merchants and citizens met Mr. Spry, P. O. Inspector, last Friday morning in the Benson House, to discuss the mail facilities of the town under the new time tables. The mails arrive at mid-day, and leave so early in the afternoon that there is no time to write replies. After hearing various suggestions Mr. Spry agreed to put a mail on the train reaching Lindsay at 9 a.m., giving letters from the east and Toronto mailed up to seven the previous evening. He also promised to recommend a mail service for the 4.30 train leaving Lindsay, which was put on by Mr. Cox, it appeared, expressly for the accommodation of Lindsay. It was then decided to have the early morning mail-bag south discontinued, but we believe this decision is not to be carried out. Mr. Spry was unanimously accorded a vote of thanks for his courtesy in the matter.

A NIHILIST'S ESCAPE.

A Remarkable Adventure of a Russian Revolutionist.

Fomin, the Nihilist, who escaped from the citadel of Wilna a few days ago, was no ordinary conspirator. When only seventeen he joined the revolutionary association, although little is known of his operations until he arrived in Odessa in 1877. He then went by the name of Matvaeff, and acted as Deputy Chief to Capt. Tchuberoff, the Nihilist leader, who was hanged at Odessa a few weeks ago. One of his early escapades was an attempt upon the life of Goronovitch, the spy, which resulted in the recovery of the wretched victim—who was beaten and then drenched with vitriol—and a confession that led to the arrest of three hundred revolutionists. Fomin escaped, being included in this number, and shortly afterward was sent by his "Captain" to Kharkoff to release the conspirator Volnogalsky. Assisted by several members of the revolutionary league, Fomin established an ambush outside the town, and when the Cossack convoy passed by with the prisoner, the Nihilists poured several volleys into them. Some of the gendarmes fell dead, others set spurs to their horses and dashed back to Karkoff for assistance, and Volnogalsky disguised in the clothing of one of the victims, rode off with the Kharkoff Nihilists and effected his escape. Fomin alone returned to Kharkoff, and was arrested while in the act of taking a return ticket to Odessa. After his incarceration in the Kharkoff prison a series of audacious attempts were made to obtain a release. A band of Nihilists came to succour him from Kieff, and two of them, dressed as gendarmes, presented themselves at the door of the gaol with an order to convey him to the presence of the Governor. The Chief Warder was on the point of removing Fomin from the cell, when, by a curious coincidence, two real gendarmes arrived with a genuine order, and exposed the plot. The Nihilists then hired a house opposite the prison, and began burrowing under the road to Fomin's cell. This was discovered during the mending of a drain, and the excavators had to fly to escape arrest. Fomin himself now tried to break out of prison, and, with the aid of some of the seventy criminals who shared a room with himself, he dug out the inside of the chimney, and climbed up the channel to the roof. Six of his companions escaped with him, but the entire party was recaptured a few miles from Kharkoff. Last March Fomin was put on his trial, and the day that the order was signed summoning the Court-martial, the Governor, Prince Krapotkin, out of revenge, was assassinated. The trial ended in the condemnation of Fomin to the mines of Siberia for life, but, as it was imagined that the careless trans-Ural officers would not keep him in safe custody, he was removed to perpetual imprisonment in the Citadel at Wilna. From this confinement he has now successfully escaped, and by this time has probably joined the Nihilist refugees in Switzerland.

TWO THOUSAND YEARS AGO.

Two thousand years, two thousand years,
Our bark o'er billowy seas,
Has onward kept her steady course
Thro' hurricane and breeze.
Her Captain was the Risen One—
He braved the stormy foe,
And still He guides Who guided her
Two thousand years ago.

Still onward rides our gallant bark,
With all her canvas set,
In some few nations still unknown,
To plant her standard yet—
Her flag shall float where'er a breath
From human life shall glow;
And millions bless the bark that sailed
Two thousand years ago.

Not unto us, not unto us,
Be praise or glory given.
But unto Him who watch and ward
Hath kept for her in heaven;
Who quelled the whirlwind in its wrath,
Bade tempests cease to blow,
The Lord Who launch'd our vessels forth,
Two thousand years ago!

Then onward, speed thee, brave old bark,
Speed onward in thy pride,
O'er sunny seas and billows dark,
The Holy One thy guide.
And sacred be each plank and spar,
Unchang'd by friend or foe,
Just as she left Jerusalem,
Two thousand years ago!

BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM.

F. B.

The religious beliefs and creeds of the world are now on trial, and by many persons they have been found wanting and retired with other matters which have been outgrown. The present unsettled state of religion has, perhaps, little effect on those of mature life whose convictions are not likely to be "blown about by every wind of doctrine," but with young people the case is different. They have never thought over matters of conscience for themselves, but have simply accepted the faith of their fathers, on trust, and when the narrow creeds have been trained in, are intelligently assailed, they immediately conclude that Christianity itself must be a lie, since particular church tenets have been proven false.

So far as a man's moral nature is concerned, what matters it whether the opening chapters of Genesis contain a scientifically accurate account of the creation or are simply a pictorial way of accounting for the material world as we find it? Why quibble with scientists and liberals over matters of this class? The questions which are of vital concern to Christians are not, whether the Bible is infallible and inspired, or whether Moses did or did not write the books ascribed to him, but was there a Christ and what were His doctrines?

That Christ really lived we have the testimony of profane as well as sacred writers; about that there can be no question. As to His doctrines, or His system of morals, it is: "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbour as thyself." The whole duty of Christians is thus epitomized by Christ Himself. The man who conscientiously follows the commandment, "Love the Lord thy God," must strive to make himself more like the object of his affectionate devotion; to elevate, refine, and spiritualize his nature. To "Love thy neighbor as thyself," a man may neither lie nor steal, for by so much is his neighbor defrauded out of the truth or of his property; neither may he covet and, least of all, can he give free reign to his baser nature. For by his example he may tempt others to sin, and he does encourage wickedness in the already vicious.

Looked at in a common sense way Christianity appeals to the noblest part of man and stimulates him to be truthful, honorable and righteous. Its most determined opponent cannot charge that Christianity degrades man. Can as much be said for any one of the various systems which are offered to us as modern improvements on the Christian religion, and whose founders and apostles expend most of their energies in picking flaws in the old faith?

An avowed Agnostic—Agnosticism is the word now used to designate a hostile attitude to Christianity—has given to the world in a recent issue of the British North American Review, a sketch of himself for the express purpose of showing the actual outcome of liberal ideas as exemplified in his own life. His most salient characteristics, by his own showing, are a colossal egotism, an intense selfishness, and a decided tendency to pander to his most ignoble passions. Space will not admit of a review of his "Confessions" but as an example of his selfishness the following is given. He does not believe in matrimony and so he persuaded an attractive respectable young woman to live with him, without the usual formal ceremony. They had been living together for some time, when he fell ill. The woman nursed him tenderly and patiently through a tedious sickness and when he was convalescent she pleaded with him to make her his wife before the law, and he refused. If he held the priest in contempt the magistrate was still left and he could without sacrificing any principle have had a civil marriage, but no! Not even to please the woman who had sacrificed so much for him nor for the sake of his innocent little children would he consent.

That woman occupies a position which places her on the level with the most degraded of her sex, and the children are dishonored from their birth, and for what? To gratify the whim of a man whose God is himself. An application of the Golden Rule of the religion we are said "to have outgrown" would have made that woman a respected wife and her children a blessing and an honor.

No clearer evidence of the measureless superiority of the christian religion over any system of morality invented by man, could possibly be given than this contrast between the life of Christ and that of the Agnostic.

Verily, "by their fruits shall ye know" both men and systems.

Macaulay on Sunday.

Man! man! this is the great creator of wealth. The difference between the soil of Campania and Spitzbergen is insignificant compared with the difference presented by two countries, the one inhabited by men, full of moral and physical vigor, the other by beings plunged in an intellectual decreptitude. Hence it is that we are not impoverished, but on the contrary enriched by this seventh day, which we have for so many years devoted to rest. This day is not lost. While the machinery is stopped, while the car rests on the road, while the treasury is silent, while the smoke ceases to rise from the chimney of the factory, the nation enriches itself none the less than during the working days of the week. Man, the machine of all machines, the one by the side of which all the inventions of the Watts and the Arkwrights are as nothing, is recuperating and gaining strength so well, that on Monday he returns to his work with his mind clearer, with more courage for his work, and with renewed vigor. I will never believe that that which renders a people stronger, wiser and better, can ever turn to its impoverishment.

SCOTLAND.

MR. DUNCAN MCLAREN, the senior member for Edinburgh, has just received a return he moved for last session, of the taxation paid by England, Scotland and Ireland respectively. The gross products of the revenue in excise, customs, stamps, income tax and land and house tax in the year ending 31st March last, is stated at £68,792,673, of which England contributed £54,456,718, Scotland, £7,719,500, and Ireland, £6,616,455; and the estimated population of each country was: England, 25,165,336; Scotland, 3,627,453; Ireland, 5,363,324.

AN ELOPEMENT.

There was recently a sensational elopement from Paris, the nephew of Musurus Pasha, Turkish Ambassador to the Republic, having carried off a young lady of sixteen, daughter of one of the haughtiest residents of the noble Faubourg, who is also one of the wealthiest proprietors in the Gironde. The young lady left her house in the morning for mass, accompanied by her governess, an ex-nun. This lady missed her charge when divine service was over, and on inquiry, it was found that the girl had slipped out and been met near the church by a young man, with whom she entered a fiacre and drove away. An enormous row ensued. The truth was at once suspected, and was confirmed on inquiry at the Turkish Embassy—how is not stated. It was known that a tenderness existed between the nephew of Musurus Pasha and the daughter of the Baron, and it was notorious in the salons of Paris that the Sultan's envoy, who, outside of his salary is a poor man, was as anxious for the match as the titled Frenchman and his family were opposed to it. As soon as it was discovered that the Turk had run away with the Christian, the hue and cry was at once set on foot. But the fugitives had many hours' start by the London express, and are supposed to have arrived there the same night, and to be still perdu till the "stern parient" relents as he does in the novel and comedy. At present, however, the Baron does not look like giving in, and if he be at all of the same material as his ancestor, old "Rights o' man" Marquis Mirabeau, the Musulman and Mandemoiselle will see clouds in the honeymoon.

PURE AIR FOR CHILDREN.

Parents often render their infants tender by injudiciously protecting them from variations of temperature. In guarding them against cold outer air, they increase the temperature of their homes too much. Double windows, listed doors, furnaces and gas burners, no adequate ventilators, the retention of the impure air, and the emanations from living bodies—all contribute to induce sad results. The lungs of infancy are injured by air, densely and deeply vitiated, and lose their power of resistance they once possessed so that even slight vicissitudes of temperature impair the natural action and normal condition of the lungs, and induce inflammation of the air tubes, or the air cells.

Any observer may notice how harmful is a nursery life to infants. The close rooms and vitiated air of most nurseries, even in the higher walks of life, are destructive to good health. In the lower walks, among the poor and ignorant classes of society, in cities and larger towns, we often find, when we enter their humble dwellings, fetid air, gas from the decomposition of human filth, that the delicate creatures of a few months are compelled to beathe. We do not wonder they are pale, feeble, susceptible and yielding to the influences of even a mild form of some human malady. Infectious diseases, as diphtheria, scarletina and measles, hold the second rank among the causes of mortality among infants. This is not true in all sections of the earth. In some parts, they are rarely absent, while in others they are rarely present. Their severity and fatality depend upon the condition of the subjects as well as upon the nature of the disease. Children are sometimes cured of severe diseases by change of climate. In dysentery, diarrhœa, whooping cough, infants are often cured by leaving a city for a rural life. So that it is not the disease alone that makes it fatal, but the condition in which the subjects of it are found. Recovery from some diseases depends much upon temperature, good air and a change of diet. Under all the circumstances in which the youngest of mankind are placed we wonder that so many infants live. We are not sure but those who pass the pearly gates and walk the golden street in the morning of their days are among the most favored of our race.

SPLITTING PAPER.

It is one of the most remarkable properties of that wonderful product, paper, that it can be split into two or even three parts, however thin the sheet. We have seen a sheet of the Illustrated News thus divided into three thin leaves. One contained the surface on which the engravings are printed, another was the side containing the letterpress, and a perfectly blank piece on each side was the piece that lay between. Many people who have not seen this done might think it impossible; yet it is not only possible, but extremely easy, as we shall show. Get a piece of plate glass and place it on a sheet of paper; then let the latter be thoroughly soaked. With care and a little dexterity the sheet can be split by the top surface being removed. But the best plan is to paste a piece of cloth or strong paper to each side of the sheet to be split. When dry, violently and without hesitation pull the two pieces asunder, when part of the sheet will be found to have adhered to one and part to the other. Soften the paste in water and the pieces can be easily removed from the cloth. The process is generally demonstrated as a matter of curiosity, yet it can be utilized in various ways. If we want to paste in a scrapbook a newspaper article printed on both sides of the paper, and possess only one copy, it is very convenient to know how to detach the one side from the other. The paper, when split, as may be imagined, is more transparent than it was before being subjected to the operation, and the printing ink is somewhat duller; otherwise the two pieces present the appearance of the original if again brought together.

IRELAND.

A STRIKE of tailors has occurred in Limerick, and the cause alleged is the introduction of new machinery.

THE Town Commissioners of Bandon adopted on Nov. 4th, the memorial to the Lord Lieutenant in favor of the institution of reproductive public works.

SEVENTY private streets in Belfast have been yearly sewered, paved and completed since 1865; and twenty thousand six hundred and sixty-five buildings have been erected during the last seventeen years, exclusive of all corporation works proper.

A SHOCKING murder was perpetrated on the 19th November, near the village of Mosside, between Ballymoney and Ballycastle, county Antrim. The victim was a farmer, named James McVicker, and the murderer was his nephew, Robert McVicker, who committed suicide yesterday morning, by throwing himself head foremost in a narrow well close to the house. The parties are said to have had a dispute about money. The murder was committed with a hatchet.

THE Duke and Duchess of Connaught, it is stated, contemplate making a prolonged stay in Ireland in the spring. Their visits will include a sojourn of some weeks in the Irish capital, to be followed by a round of visits in various parts of the country.

THE Cavan Town Commissioners met on Nov. 4th, and after some discussion as to providing employment for the poor laborers during the present trying times, it was unanimously agreed to borrow a sum of £200 from the Board of Works to be expended on the present fair green.

ON Nov. 6th, the dwelling-house of a man named Ferguson, of Largay, near Letterkenny, was completely burned down during his absence in Letterkenny. The house and farm, from which a man named Robert Fletcher was evicted a few years ago, lay waste ever since, until Ferguson, who was previously a bailiff on the Leitrim estate, was recently put into possession of the house as a carpenter by Mr. W. D. Porter, J. P., agent of Sir Samuel Hayes. It is alleged that the burning has been malicious, and the necessary steps are being taken to recover compensation.

W. FAIRWEATHER & CO.

My Sheaves.

The time for toil is past, and night has come
The last and saddest of the harvest eves;
Worn out with labor, long and wearisome,
Drooping and faint the reapers hasten home,
Each laden with his sheaves.

Last of the labourers, Thy feet I gain,
Lord of the harvest! and my spirit grieves
That I am burdened not so much with grain
As with the heaviness of heart and brain;
"Master, behold my sheaves!"

Full well I know I have more tares than wheat,
Brambles and flowers, dry stalks and whithered leaves;
Wherefore I blush and weep, as at Thy feet
I kneel down reverently and repeat,
"Master, behold my sheaves."

Few, light and worthless, yet their trifling weight,
Through all my frame a weary aching leaves;
For long I struggled with my helpless fate,
And stayed and toiled till it was dark and late,
Yet these are all my sheaves.

And yet I gathered strength and hope anew,
For well I know Thy patient love perceives
Not what I did, but what I strove to do;
And though the full, ripe ears be sadly few,
Thou wilt accept my sheaves.

Invaluable Liniment.

For all purposes of a family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found invaluable. Immediate relief will follow its use in all cases of pain in the stomach, bowels, or side: Rheumatism, Colic Colds, Sprains and Bruises. For internal and external use, it has no equal in the world for what it is recommended. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

A Conundrum Propounded.

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible, Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w49-2w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Peterborough vs. Hatton.

This case as to Magistrate's fees was argued before the Court of Common Pleas on Friday. Judgment was reserved.

Lecture.

The Rev. Alex. Bell will deliver the first of a series of lectures to his Bible Class to-morrow (Sabbath) evening. Subject—"Apostolic Succession"—as set forth in the Bible.

The Mails.

The mails for the Grand Trunk, East and West, will close at the Peterborough Post Office at 2.15 p.m. instead of 5 p.m. as heretofore, to commence on Monday, the 8th instant.

Mailing Invoices.

The Postmaster-General has issued instructions to Postmasters to allow all invoices not sealed to go through for one cent—the same as circulars.

Congratulatory.

The Cobourg Sentinel says:—

"We congratulate the Peterborough DAILY REVIEW on its first birthday, and we wish it the compliments of the season and many happy returns of the day. As a daily it ranks among the very best outside of the city dailies."

St. John's Church.

We learn that the entertainment in Bradburn's Hall on Thursday evening in aid of the building fund of St. John's Church is to be unusually attractive. The programme will be announced shortly.

Town Council.

There will be a meeting of the Town Council on Monday evening, when, in view of the approaching elections we may expect some more oratory addressed to the ratepayers. Now, when the work is nearly over is the time to bid for votes.

"Beat This."

The Lindsay Post says:—

"The Peterborough REVIEW has "beat this" paragraphs that it would be hard to surpass. One is a hog from Cavan weighing 415 lbs., brought in by Mr. Wm. Fair, of Cavan, and the other is a young widow who danced 19 hours on a Golden-Eye excursion, and called on the band for 'just one more tune. Can our farmers or young ladies beat these?"

Election of Officers.

At the regular Communication of Peterborough Lodge, No. 155, A. F. & A. M., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Bro. William Toole.......................W. M.
" William Menzies.......................S. W.
" Robert S. Davidson.......................J. W.
" David Wallace.......................Secretary.
" Walter Paterson, Jr.......................Treasurer.
" Thomas Tucker.......................Chaplain.
" Joseph Newbold.......................Tyler.

Further Enquiry.

In regard to the death of Mr. Francis C. Taggart, who was found lying dead on the road near Lindsay, the Post, of the 5th of December, says:—

"On Tuesday last the wife of the late Francis C. Taggart, who was recently found dead on the road near Lindsay, laid information before the Police Magistrate against Wm. Maguire as having caused the death of the deceased. The Police Magistrate has had the matter under consideration for a couple of days, and will probably decide to-day whether there is sufficient grounds for re-opening the case. There is a strong feeling among the friends of the deceased that the investigation held was not thorough."

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: strong easterly to southerly, followed by westerly winds; cloudy mild weather with rain areas. Peterborough has experienced two days of easterly to north-easterly light winds, mostly cloudy weather. Last night we were favored with partly cloudy to clear weather. This morning, cloudy, with rain at near 10 o'clock, which continued with more or less severity throughout the day; wind easterly. The thermometer indicated at 12 o'clock, noon, 44°. Sleighing has all disappeared.

PORT HOPE.

MASONIC.—At the regular monthly meeting of Hope Lodge, No. 114, A. F. & A. M., held on Thursday evening, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year:—W. M., V. W. Bro. Robt. Nicholls; S. W., Bro. A. W. Pringle; J. W., Bro. John A. Cheer; Treas., W. Bro. A. Purslow; Secretary, Bro. Wm. Gethwaite; Tyler, Bro. Geo. Reading.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Convention of the Teachers' Association of the Town and County of Peterborough.

FIRST DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The Peterborough Town and County Teachers' Association met in convention in the Collegiate Institute building on Friday morning, December 5th, at 10 o'clock. The attendance was large, and great interest was manifested. The importance of these conventions is becoming every year more apparent, not so much because of the work done, but, as "iron sharpeneth iron," each teacher is imbued with fresh zeal in returning to their duties. It remains to be hoped that purely theoretical ideas may not clash with the practical.

MR. J. COYLE BROWN, the President, occupied the chair, and Mr. Wright, the Secretary, read the minutes of the preceding meeting, which were approved.

The PRESIDENT called upon Mr. I. J. Metcalfe to introduce the subject of "Music in our Schools."

MR. METCALFE dwelt upon the influence of music upon the human mind, the class of music now used by many of our young people, and the fact that what might be wielded as a mighty influence for good is really used as an instrument for evil.

Mr. BARTON EARL gave an exhaustive and interesting explanation of some eighty or more difficult points in parsing, occupying an hour, and receiving the closest attention.

At the conclusion of Mr. Earl's illustrations, the convention adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention reassembled at two o'clock.

MR. DIXON introduced the subject of "Algebra" by working some eight or nine examples. Mr. Dixon's working is rapid but clear.

MR. SHEARER of Lakefield Public School, with his class, which he had brought with him, illustrated his method of conducting a reading lesson, the selection chosen being the "Downfall of Poland." Our Lakefield visitors deservedly earned the vote of thanks so heartily accorded them.

MR. HALLET of Lindsay then gave his method of teaching geography. His plan was decidedly well received by many of the teachers.

The convention then adjourned to meet again this Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

Unfortunately, Mr. Hughes, Inspector of Public Schools for Toronto, was unable to be present, as announced, there being no afternoon train from Toronto to reach Peterborough before late in the evening.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The Convention re-assembled at half-past 9 o'clock. Though the attendance was not so large as yesterday, the room was comfortably full. The President was in the chair.

MR. BROWN took up "Symbolic Exercises in Arithmetic." Much discussion was elicited on this subject, Mr. James Stratton taking a prominent part.

MR. KNIGHT, I.P.S., for East Victoria, read a very interesting paper on Composition.

MR. CAMPBELL, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, compared the system of education as now adopted with that of times gone by. He deprecated the system of "cramming," so prevalent now, as tending to produce a class of scholars not thoroughly versed in the details of a subject.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Knight for his paper on Composition, and to the Peterborough Board of Education for the room in the Institute so kindly placed at the disposal of the Convention.

The convention then adjourned to meet again in May, 1880.

A Committee was appointed at the last meeting of the Association to apportion the Government Grant to the convention which amounts to $60.00 annually. The Committee have not as yet completed their labours. It is the intention, we believe, to form a reference library to be placed in the Inspector's room in the Court House; such library to be open to all teacher's for reference.

HALIBURTON.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The Cricket Club will give a Public Dramatic Performance in the Town Hall, on the 19th Dec. They will play "The Toodles," and conclude with a Black Opera Burlesque.

THE MAGISTRATE.—Mr. Niven, has departed from this village for Minden, where he will reside in future. A farewell supper was given to him previous to his departure.

COBOURG.

INCREASED BUSINESS.—The Sentinel says:—Mr. Crossen's men have been busily engaged this week in removing the machinery, tools, &c. from the old foundry to the new building near the station.

AN IMPROVEMENT.—The old Alexander House has had a passage cut throughthe middle of it. Mr. O'Neil did it for the purpose of making a passage from the stables in the rear to Division street. It will be a great convenience.

FENELON FALLS.

A SMASH.—A correspondent of the Post says: on Tuesday of last week as Mr. H. Fowler was engaged cleaning and putting the lamps in one of the large chandeliers of the Methodist church, the screw to which the rod of the chandelier was attached, gave way, causing the whole concern to fall to the floor, by which the four globes, four burners and two lamps and chimneys were utterly demolished. This is the second time an accident of this nature has occurred in the Methodist church here.

"T & B." TOBACCO.

Among the factories of Hamilton there are few, if any, which can point to such a record of success as the tobacco manufacturing establishment of Messrs Tuckett and Billings, situated on King Street West. Throughout the long years of depression the output of this factory steadily increased, and now that the revival of good times has made an increased demand, the sales are larger than ever. This cannot be the result of accident or luck. There must be something in the system of conducting the business to explain the known result. First, there is the fact that the proprietors buy only the best Virginia tobacco that money can obtain. Dealing in large quantities, they have every advantage in cheap freights. Their factory, which is commodious and well arranged, has every known appliance for working up the raw material economically, expeditiously and without waste. Lastly—and this is the key to the whole secret—the tobacco is sold to the consumer at such a narrow margin of profit that no rival can place an equally good article upon the market at a less price. These things being so, the proprietors of the Myrtle Navy tobacco have not the slightest fears of injurious competition, nor are they in any way dependent upon the good will of the wholesale or retail grocery trade. By a liberal and systematic use of printers' ink they have made their brand of tobacco known to the consumers of Canada, and by rigidly guarding against any deterioration of the quality or any increase of the price, they have secured the adherence of their ultimate customers. A man who gets into the habit of using Myrtle Navy sticks to it, asks his grocer for it, and will have no other. So it has come that the sales of "T. & B." in 1879 are about 12½ per cent higher than in the corresponding months of 1878, and Hamilton is benefitted by the presence of a factory giving steady employment to two hundred hands.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Dec. 6.—At an early hour this morning the market bid fair to be one of the best of the season. The attendance of the towns-people and farmers was large, and the offerings were extensive and diversified. The soft weather did not deter the farmers from coming in, although they wisely left their runners at home, using wheels. At 10 o'clock the scene was an animated one, and throng of people were moving about inspecting and making their purchases, when the rain made its appearance in copious showers, scattering the people in all directions to seek shelter anywhere. The rain also drove many of the farmers from the square, thus breaking up the profitable business then at its height. Provisions of all kinds were in abundance. Beef was in excess of the demand, but prices were well maintained. Fore quarters, towards the close, went at $3.00; hind quarters at $4.00, while $4.50 was paid for the bulk of purchases. Mutton and lamb sold freely at 5 to 6 cents. There seems to be a more uniform supply of mutton and lamb, and hence less fluctuations. Pork was plentiful, and some very fine hogs were offered, among them being two by Mr. John Sullivan, of the Poplar's, Douro, weighing respectively 570 lbs. and 475 lbs. Mr. Sullivan has long been noted for fine pigs. On previous occasions, he realized for two pigs $100.80 and for three $140. A Mr. Benson from near Port Hope had also two on sale, weighing respectively 455 lbs, and 415 lbs. Showing that Peterborough is ahead of Port Hope as a market, as well as for big pigs. There was no change in quotations, prices ranging from $5.00 to $5.50 for the hog, and 6 cents per lb. for quarters. Poultry was largely in excess of requirements, and the prices were not maintained. Chickens went as low as 20cts. per pair, while choice lots were sold at 25c. to 30c. per pair. Ducks were in fair supply, and sold readily at 40cts. per pair, some less desirable lots selling as low as 30cts, while very choice lots brought as high as 50 cents. Geese were far in excess of demand and sold at a price varying from 30 to 60cts. each. Several lots were taken home unsold at an offer of 40cts. while large quantities were sold at that figure. A fine lot of venison went into store at Chamberlain's, at $5 per cwt., not on the market. Butter was in fair supply and met with ready sale at 18 to 20cts. for roll. Keg fair to prime at 12 to 15cts.; prime 16 to 19cts., and choice 20 to 21 cts. Some extra choice lots brought 21½cts. There was an increased supply of keg butter which was freely taken for shipping. Lard was plenty to-day at 9 to 10cts. Eggs were in fair supply at 16 to 18cts. It is surprising to note the diversity of prices in many articles. Some were offering eggs at 16cts. per doz., while others were asking and getting 17 to 18cts. Sausages were plenty at 9 to 10cts. Potatoes, plenty at 60cts. per bag. Several lots were sold at 65cts. and some as high as 75cts. One lot we heard of was sold at 80cts. The market rate, however, may be quoted at 60 to 70cts. per bag. Turnips were selling at 12½cts. per bushel. Apples were in fair supply but slow of sale. Dried apples made their appearance and were offering at 6cts. per pound. Pickled cucumbers were also among the offerings to-day and sold at 40cts. per pail. One lot of butternuts were also offered at 50cts. per bag. Sheep skins sold readily at $1.00. Several lots of oats brought 31 to 33 cts. Wheat made an advance to-day, both millers and shippers paying $1.19 to $1.21 for spring, and $1.20 to $1.25 for fall. Several loads were taken to-day, mostly for milling. The millers have not advanced the price of flour, and are still selling spring wheat at $5.50, and fall wheat at $6.00 per bbl. There were a few bags of peas, some hay, straw, and wood on the market, but there are no changes to note.

Preserving Eggs.

The most certain and most lasting mode of preservation consists in covering the eggs in a jar filled with water, and keep them in a cool place. The lime-water is prepared from quick-lime, or that which has been slacked but lately, by placing it in a quantity of water greater than would cover the eggs. The milk of lime which is thus formed is allowed to stand several hours. The clear liquid that separates itself from the excess of lime used in the lime water, not only prevents the evaporation, since the eggs are plunged in the liquid, but the alkali which it holds in solution closes the pores of the shell and prevents all fermentation, either of the eggs or of the organic matter which the water might contain. Eggs kept in this way are good for puddings, &c. twelve or fourteen months after they are laid.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1879.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

ST. CATHARINES.

Special to the Review, Dec. 8.

FIRE AT AN HOTEL.—The Welland House was damaged by fire this morning. The estimated loss is about $1,000. The amount of insurance is not known.

MONTREAL.

Special to the Review, Dec. 8.

DEATH IN THE GARRET.—The evidence obtained shows that the late Mr. Smith, who died in the garret of the Exchange Bank building, was in the habit of going out and in there for some time before his disappearance.

IMMIGRANTS.—Thirty-six immigrants arrived last night, from Halifax, en route for the West.

TORONTO.

Special to the Review, Dec. 8.

HOSPITAL ADMISSIONS.—Charges of an abuse of the hospital appropriations are made against the Mayor. It seems that His Worship is so humane that he is unable to resist applications, and the number of free admissions is, perhaps, larger than should be.

THE NEXT SPEAKER.—Politicians are speculating as to who will be Speaker for the next Legislature. Col. Clarke, member for West Wellington, appears to be most in favor.

PARK SOLD.—Victoria Park has been sold to a company for $9,500.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.—At the City Council to-night a letter will be submitted from the Attorney-General, Mowat, suggesting that a resolution of the Council be passed, agreeing to the proposition to erect new Parliament Buildings in the Park.

OTTAWA.

Special to the Review, Dec. 8.

THE FINANCE MINISTER.—Sir Leonard Tilley left to-day for Quebec, and will be absent from the Capital about ten days.

DROWNED FROM A CANOE.—A boy named Rollick was drowned in the Gatineau River yesterday afternoon by the upsetting of a bark canoe. An Indian made a desperate attempt to save him but was unsuccessful.

NEXT REVIEW.—It is thought that the next grand military review will be held at Quebec. The General is said to be favorable to a concentration of the forces there.

SERGEANT GRAYBURN'S DEATH.—No official news has yet been received from Fort Walsh in reference to the shooting of Sergeant Grayburn. A gentleman writing to a friend in this city, says that he was in charge of a herd of cattle when he was shot, it is supposed by an Indian.

From the Morning Papers.

BELLEVILLE.

EXPORT OF TURKEYS.—The Intelligencer says:—Mr. Dunn, of Madoc, has shipped for Liverpool a large consignment of turkeys, and Mr. Job Lingham is purchasing fowls for the English market. The export trade in poultry is growing rapidly, and seems likely to attain large proportions.

IRON ORE.—Five cars loaded with iron ore, from Madoc for Buffalo, left here on Friday night.

TRENTON.

TARRED AND FEATHERED.—The Advocate says:—"A man between here and Brighton, who was in the habit of beating his mother and sister (not his mother-in-law) was invited out by some of the boys in the neighborhood last Saturday evening to have a tar bath. He was called out and two of them very politely caught and held him while the others stripped him and applied the tar and feathers. It is to be hoped he enjoyed it very much, as the thermometer was several degrees below zero at the time. The old lady is about 80 years of age."

MONTREAL.

A SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.—Michael Flanagan, who was tried with Susan Kennedy for the murder of Ann Conolly in Griffinton and acquitted, was drowned on Friday in the canal. It is remarked as a singular coincidence that this was the day appointed by the judge for the execution of Susan Kennedy, who is now undergoing a life sentence.

GIRL JAIL BREAKERS.—Two young girls named Maggie Shaw and Lizzie Carrol, who were committed to Montreal jail for 6 months for stealing a lady's hat from the owner's possession on the public street, made their escape from the female jail on Thursday night by scaling the outer wall by means of a ladder.

LINDSAY.

THRESHING MACHINE ACCIDENT.—The Post says:—A very sad accident occurred on Thursday morning at the farm of Mr. James Lehane, of Emily, by which Thomas Houlihan had his leg so badly crushed in the horsepower that amputation was necessary. He was on the stack and jumped down to relieve the driver, when his foot slipped and his leg caught in the gearing with the above results. Drs. Poole and DeGrassi were at once summoned and dressed the injured limb.

BARN BURNED.—On Thursday night about 9 o'clock the barn of Mr. Rickaby, on west Kent-st., was burned, together with its contents, which consisted of a quantity of unthreshed wheat and oats and several tons of hay. There was a small insurance on the contents. Mr. Rickaby's loss is about $800. The building belonged to Mrs. Doheny. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Invaluable Liniment.

For all purposes of a family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found invaluable. Immediate relief will follow its use in all cases of pain in the stomach, bowels, or side: Rheumatism, Colic Colds, Sprains and Bruises. For internal and external use, it has no equal in the world for what it is recommended. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

AROUSED AT LAST.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 6.—The British Ambassador has received satisfactory intelligence from Asia Minor that affairs there have considerably improved, owing to the energy of the Ottoman authorities.

MONTENEGRINS AND ALBANIANS.

CETTINGE, Dec. 6.—300 Montenegrins at Velika yesterday were attacked by several thousand Albanians. The Montenegrins were being closely pressed when they were reinforced by five battalions. The Albanians were finally defeated, but with great loss on both sides. Two more battalions of Montenegrins are being sent to Velika.

FAMINE IN UPPER SILESIA.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—150,000 persons are suffering from famine in Upper Silesia. The Government is working energetically for their relief.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN HUNGARY.

A Pesth despatch says the Koros River has risen rapidly in consequence of severe snow storms and inundated the city of Grosswardein. Thousands of fugitives are in need of shelter. Many houses are destroyed. The neighbouring villages are threatened with destruction. The general distress in Hungary is increasing rapidly.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN SPAIN.

MADRID, Dec. 6.—A thousand additional troops sailed for Cuba yesterday. The Cabinet to-day discussed Cuban reforms. There were decided differences of opinion among the members, and the King asked General Campos to reconstitute the Cabinet. Subsequently the whole Cabinet placed their resignation in the hands of his Majesty.

A CRUEL OUTRAGE.

DUBLIN Dec. 6.—Many outrages have taken place on this and other estates in County Mayo, which local correspondents of Irish papers carefully suppress. The latest occurred yesterday on one of Sir Roger Palmer's estates, whose agent a few days ago, in exhorting the tenants to pay their rent, told them that all Sir Roger's poor tenants paid, while only those who were well to-do refused. The result was that yesterday night widow Murray, one of the poorest tenants who was supposed to be among those who had paid, had a straw rick and a stack of oats burned, which were worth £10, and were equal to three years rent. Threatening letters have been received constantly by the landlords' agents but it is believed in the end most rents were paid.

HONORS FROM THE QUEEN.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The Queen will to-day at Windsor Castle receive the officers and men who distinguished themselves in the Zulu war, and will confer the Victoria Cross and other decorations on a corporal and three privates of O'Rourkes garrison. Generals Newdegate, Crealock, Pearson and other African commanders will attend.

CUBAN AUTONOMY.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A Madrid correspondent learns from the Cuban members of the Cortes that the course pursued by the Premier in submitting to the amendment of the Cuban Reform Bill may lead to the serious development of an autonomist movement in Cuba, when the Cortes become convinced that nothing can induce Spanish statesmen to depart from the fatal colonial policy which caused the first rising in Cuba and the loss of the American main.

AMERICAN.

SEVERAL HUNDRED DROWNED.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 6.—During a recent heavy cyclone in the Bay of Bengal, a storm wave swept over Mankishhall Island, drowning several hundred persons.

THE BURMESE MISSION.

EXCITEMENT AT CASTLEBAR.

DUBLIN, Dec. 8.—On the removal of Brennan to prison from the Court House last night, great crowds with blazing tar barrels followed the car in which he was conveyed, cheering the prisoner and hooting the police. The crowd stopped the car, but it was well guarded, and no rescue was attempted. Subsequently the police, by order of a magistrate, seized the tar barrels, and the crowd dispersed precipitately. There is great excitement at Castlebar and neighbourhood.

MORMON POLYGAMY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—Delegate Cannon, from Utah, is reported as saying, "I believe that among the Mormons not more than one man in seven, I might say in ten, has more than one wife. There are about 150,000 Mormons altogether; about 3,000, and not more than 4,000, have a plurality of wives. Over this small number all this fuss is made. While the Mormons belive polygamy was a revelation from God, they are not going to violate the law of their country by practicing it. None of us intend to violate the law of 1862, but there is no law to forbid us our faith in our principles. There is no inducement that could be offered that could lead the Mormons to abandon their faith."

ASHORE IN THE HUDSON.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Dec. 7.—The steamer Thomas Cornell, from New York, in a dense fog four miles north of here last night, ran ashore on the east side of the river, nearly opposite Crum Elbow. The bow penetrated five feet of masonry, which lines the Hudson River railway track, and brought up within six feet of the rail. She was heavily loaded with freight and had a large number of passengers. The Minnie Cornell, bound south, came alongside, and took the passengers to Rondout. No one was injured. Tugs have been ordered to the spot from Rondout and the freight will be taken off. The amount of damage to the vessel is unknown, though it is believed her bow has been seriously damaged. There was much excitement among the passengers when the accident occurred, but the officers soon quieted them.

WESLEY'S CHAPEL AND PULPIT.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—By a fire yesterday which threatened the destruction of the Wesleyan Chapel in the City Road, the main chapel was greatly injured. The historic building, Wesley's Morning Chapel, was gutted, but Wesley's pulpit was saved. The beautiful frescoed ceiling is irreparably injured. Great doubts are entertained whether the roof can be restored.

IN THE BAY OF BISCAY.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The British India Steam Navigation Company's ship Eldorado, with 93 passengers and a Lascar crew of about 60, put into Plymouth on Saturday after a hairbreadth escape from total loss in the Bay of Biscay, where she lay for 30 hours during the storm of Wednesday and Thursday, totally disabled. Nearly all the crew were incapacitated by fear; but for the exertions of the passengers there is little question that she would have gone down. The waves broke one of her shafts and flooded the engine rooms till all the fires were extinguished. The crew abandoned their posts, and the male passengers, at the captain's call bailed and pumped water from Wednesday night to Thursday night, when the storm abated and the fires were re-lit.

KING JOHN'S CLAIMS.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A Cairo despatch says that King John is reported to be marching forward with the main body of the Abyssinian army and 40 guns, being determined to occupy Sennvr and Galabat in the Blue Nile territory. He declares that European intervention will not prevent him from enforcing his just claims, including an indemnity for Egyptian aggression.

SLAVERY IN CUBA.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A Madrid despatch says that the leaders of the Conservative party threatened to abandon and defeat the Ministers if the scheme of the rapid abolition of slavery and reforms in Cuba was persisted in. Under these threats Premier Martinez Campos permitted alterations in the draft of the bill, which changed the whole tenor of the measure to such an extent as to convince the Liberals that the Premier has completely surrendered to the Conservatives.

There are cases of it here and there, but they are exceptional and becoming less frequent.

OUR MAILS.

A memorial has been influentially signed and has been transmitted to-day to the Postmaster-General, pointing out the inconvenience that would be caused by carrying out the recent order of the department for the transmission of our mails by the early instead of the late afternoon train. It asked for a return to the former arrangement.

We have no doubt that this request will be granted. Though economy is of course of great importance, the saving of the double payment for the Lindsay and Peterborough mails between Millbrook and Port Hope, by sending them on one train, which the change was intended to effect is so small in comparison with the inconvenience that would be caused to our business men by the short time they would have to answer their letters, as to warrant the Government in the small additional outlay.

The difficulty, like many others, really arises from our being on a branch line, and the Lindsay Post points out the remedy when it says:—"No time-table will ever be thoroughly satisfactory and arranged on the most economical basis until Peterborough is on the main line."

THE CANAL DEPUTATIONS.

THE minor municipalities seem awake to the importance of the projected Trent Valley Canal. The Township Council of Harvey has appointed their Reeve, Mr. James Hicks, as their delegate to the Minister of Canals and Railways. Bobcaygeon has appointed their Reeve, Mr. Geo. Buck. Verulum has named their Reeve and the Warden of Victoria, Mr. Charles Fairbairn. Smithtown and Ennismore have sent their Reeves, Messrs. Sanderson and Costello, and Ashburnham has chosen Mr. H. Calcutt.

Other municipalities east and west, have appointed delegates, but their names have not yet reached us.

The delegates will require to leave Peterborough not later than Monday, Dec. 22nd, in order to be in time for the interview with Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper on the 23rd.

A special delegation will proceed to Montreal on the 17th inst, for the purpose of addressing the Board of Trade and the City Council, and otherwise interesting the people of that city in the project. Messrs. Hector Cameron, M. P., and John McLennan, M. P., are expected to accompany the delegates.

HOW IT HUMS HERE.

The Port Hope Times of Saturday has the following editorial:—

Mr. Peck, the United States Consul at Port Hope, yesterday gave us for publication a statement of the exports from this port to the United States, for the month of October and November, just closed. The statement shows as the value of the exports a total amount of $630,780, as against $480,000 for the corresponding two months last year, the difference in favor of this year being $150,200, or an increase of over twenty-five per cent. The local free traders might find it very profitable work to attempt to square this statement with one of favourite theories—that as a result of the adoption of a protective trade policy we would be shut out of the United States market. They were never tired of telling the farmers that the Yankees would retaliate, and we would be deprived of the American market for our barley and live stock. So have our cousins across the line done by allowing us to export no less than $11,755 worth of cattle, and $413,947 worth of barley from this one port alone in only two months of the year. Truly the facts are unkind to our free trade friends, and it is beginning to dawn upon some of them even at this late day, that the protection bugaboo is not quite so perverted a character as the Globe painted him. Time and circumstance are alike friendly to the protectionists and hostile to the free traders. While the exports of Port Hope show the gratifying increase of over $150,000, the revenue derived from duties upon imports also show a considerable advance in the right direction. According to the statement furnished us by Mr. Burton, Collector of Customs at this port, and published in yesterday's paper, November of this year outstrips November of last year by $724.57. This scarcely chimes with the theory that protection will destroy the revenue.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTIONS.

THE following is the new law regarding the election of School Trustees in cities, towns and villages. In rural sections the method of election remains as before, but the annual school meeting is to be held on the last Wednesday of December instead of on the second Wednesday in January, as heretofore:—

1. A meeting of the electors for the nomination of Candidates for the office of Public School Trustees shall take place at noon on the last Wednesday in the month of December, annually, or if a holiday, on the day following, at such place as shall from time to time be fixed by resolution of the Public School Board; and in municipalities divided into wards, in each ward thereof if the Board in its discretion thinks fit.

2. The Public School Board shall by resolution name the returning officer or officers to preside at the meeting or meetings for the nomination of candidates, and in case of the absence of such officer, the chairman chosen by the meeting shall preside, and the Public School Board shall give at least six days notice of such meeting.

3. If at the said meeting only the necessary number of candidates to fill the vacant offices are proposed and seconded, the returning officer or person presiding, shall, after the lapse of one hour, declare such candidates duly elected; but if two or more candidates are proposed for any one office and a poll, in respect of any such office, is demanded by any candidate or elector, the returning officer or chairman shall adjourn the proceedings for filling such office until the first Wednesday of January then next, when a poll or polls shall be opened at such places, and in each ward, where such exist as shall be determined by resolution of said Trustees.

4. The poll or polls shall be opened at the hour of ten of the clock in the forenoon, and shall continue open until five o'clock in the afternoon; and no longer, and any poll may close at any time after eleven o'clock in the forenoon when a full hour has elapsed without any vote having been polled.

5. The Public School Board shall before the second Wednesday in December in each year, by resolution, fix the place or places for the nomination meeting, and also for holding the election in case of a poll, and also name the returning officer who shall preside at the polling places and forthwith give public notice thereof.

6. The returning officer or person presiding shall, on the day after the close of the election, return the poll book to the Public School Board with a solemn declaration thereto annexed, that the poll book has been correctly kept and contains a true record of the votes given at the polling places for which he was returning officer.

7. The Public School Board shall add up the number of votes for each candidate for an office as appears from the poll book so returned, and shall declare elected the candidate or candidates having the highest number of votes and shall at noon, on the day following the return of the poll books put up in some conspicious place in the municipality, and at one or more of the school houses therein, a statement showing the number of votes for each candidate, and a majority in number of trustees remaining in office, shall be a quorum for the forgoing purposes.

8. In case two or more candidates have an equal number of votes the member of the Board present who is assessed highest as a ratepayer on the last revised assessment roll, shall at the time of declaring the result of the poll give a vote for one or more of such candidates so as to decide the election.

WOOLLEN MANUFACTURERS' NOTES.

The woollen mill proprietors and representatives held a meeting on Saturday last in this city, to discuss the situation, especially the continued rise in the price of wool. It was decided, we are informed, not to raise the price of any goods which have been long on hand, or of which the cost has not been enhanced by recent events. The effect of this resolve was at once felt in the purchase by wholesale merchants here of $30,000 to $40,000 worth of various goods at former prices. The regular list of goods, however, are held at firm prices, and orders are frequently refused, makers being sold ahead.

The Kingston woollen mills of Thewton & Hughes are working over-time to fill orders. They have orders ahead to February.

Taylor & Sanderson's woollen mills, to which Napanee voted a bonus, is at work, four stories in height, and fully equipped with machinery. The place has been inspected by a committee of the council, and the debentures were to be handed over on Monday last.

The Cowansville Woollen Factory has for some time been run to its fullest capacity night and day, and is still unable to keep pace with orders for their woollen blankets.

Mr. B. Rosamond, himself a large employer of labor in his extensive mills, says that all the woollen mills he knows of there are working overtime, and have long been, except those closed last month for lack of water. His own mills are actively employed having full orders ahead up to 15th February, and Messrs. Elliott, Routh & Sheard, cannot keep pace with orders.

The Campbellford Woollen Mill, burned down in 1877, was re-built last summer and re-opened in October last, E. Senior, proprietor. It is a stone building of five stories, capable of employing 100 people, and will use mainly Cape wool for the manufacture of tweeds.—Monetary Times.

A PEN PICTURE OF THE CALF.

Wilkes says:—The aquatic Charles Ross, otherwise known as Charles E. Courtney, has at last been found. A former friend and backer girded up his loins for the search, and, after many days of patient plodding, treed his coon in the mountain fastnesses of Central New York, miles away from any human habitation. The intrepid discoverer returned to the haunts of civilization without his man, but brought back instead a surgeon's certificate that "C. E. Courtney was totally unfit to row, being afflicted with sub-acute lumbago and chronic nephritis." This diagnosis is absolutely perfect, and the rural sawbones who penned it is a veritable "Daniel come to judgment." For the benefit of such of our readers as do not understand medical lingo, we will translate. The dictionary defines "sub-acute" as "acute in a slight degree," which means that the man to whom it is applied is not half so acute or smart as he thinks himself to be. "Lumbago" means a weak back. "Chronic" is applied to ailments which stick to a man perpetually, and "nephritis" is, undoubtedly, a misprint, and should have been written "ne—fright—us" with both accent and emphasis on the "fright." This pen-picture of Courtney is more marvellously and minutely correct than a photograph, and its author, hitherto "to fortune and to fame alike unknown," deserves an appointment as Surgeon-General of the world. It is evident that Courtney should hereafter sit on an hospital chair instead of a sliding seat, and he is, no doubt, the original Jacobs, about whom was written that mournful hymn, commencing:—

> "Afflictions sore
> Long time he bore."

The American people, heartless though they may be in their love of cruel sport, will hardly urge into new rowing contests the aquatic job, covered with boils and ashes. Mr. Blaikie, that most persistent of all possible and probably referees, now escapes from trial, tribulation, and turmoil, and will spend his future leisure in the peaceful practice of his profession. And as the giant sculler of Union Springs sinks below the horizon of notoriety, a thankful nation will chant in unison the pathetic refrain:—

> "Good-bye, faint heart, good-bye."

A CANADIAN SHIPMENT.

It is deserving of notice, in this era of "big things," and competitive enterprises, that the biggest thing of the kind known, one which made even Bostonians stare and underwriters hesitate, has just been accomplished by a Canadian firm. The steamship Hooper, next to the Great Eastern, the largest freight ship in the world, capacity of 4,900 tons, has just been loaded at Boston, by Messrs. T. Howland & Co., of this city, with 150,000 bushels of grain, the largest single cargo ever shipped, we believe, by one firm. The insurance on it reached $220,000. The enormous capacity of this vessel may be gathered from the fact that besides this great quantity of grain, it was found possible to put on board of the Hooper 500 head of cattle, 800 sheep, 5,000 sacks of flour, and several hundred tons of other freight.—Monetary Times.

CANADIAN WHEAT LAND.

The New York Sun says:—"Supposing that the Canadians are right about the extent and richness of their wheat growing territory in the North-west, the mind recoils from a computation of its productive capacity. Man has never before contemplated such an agricultural fact. Should this enormous Canadian wheat garden be successfully cultivated, its annual crop in favourable years would come into the business and interests of the entire globe with a revolutionary force and masterly power heretofore unknown to finance and trade."

IRELAND.

COLONEL SERGEANT, commanding the 57th Brigade Depot at Birr, has received information that the barracks would be attacked, and the magazines blown up.

LORD LONGFORD, who wrote in the London Times that the distress in Ireland, though severe enough, gave no occasion for alarm, and that all there was in dispute between landlords and their tenants could be easily arranged by mutual concessions, has had his answer in a raid upon his estates by men with blackened faces, who fired shots into farm houses, and warned the tenants not to pay any rent except under deduction of 25 per cent.

SMOTHERED IN GRAIN.

Fall of the Floor of an Elevator and Three Men Killed.

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 5.—At the grain and flour mill of Ellis Packard to-night C. Nourse Dennis Lynch, and Dennis Reardon were on the second floor shovelling corn, they had transferred 5,000 bushels from the elevator to the floor, where it lay. Suddenly the flooring gave way. The men were precipitated nearly 20 feet into the cellar and buried deeply by 5,000 bushels of corn, which fell with them. The news spread like wildfire. The building was surrounded by hundreds of people. A force was immediately set to work to shovel the men out. Another gang commenced and removed the timbers and debris. In an hour and half the men were all found dead. The excitement of the crowd was intense. The grief of the widow of Lynch was terrible. The exact cause of the disaster is difficult to ascertain. The building was 25 years old. Probably the timbers were somewhat rotten and weakened, although the flooring had lately been strengthened by additional supports. Packard states that he has before had a much larger amount of grain on the floor at one time, and therefore considered it perfectly safe. Nourse leaves a wife and one child Reardon leaves a wife and two children.

REVIEWS.

ALBUM VERSES.—The Toronto News Company have published a volume of original album verses and acrostics with poetical selections. This little work will prove a welcome aid to many, who may be called upon to inscribe some verse in a lady's album.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE JOURNAL.—We have received the current number of the Kingston Queen's College Journal, which is equally well edited and printed. It contains a portrait, and a sketch of the career of John R. Dickson, M. D., President of the Medical Faculty, who at one time, many years ago, practised in Peterborough. He then settled in Kingston, where he took a high position in his profession. There is also a report of the proceedings at the annual dinner of the Medical Students.

CANADIAN JOURNAL OF MEDICAL SCIENCE.—The December number of this periodical contains a number of papers original and selected. Dr. Riddel gives a detailed account of cases of small-pox in Toronto, with brief reports from other parts of Ontario, all showing the importance of vaccination as a safeguard. There is also a report of the dinner of the Toronto School of Medicine, some of the speakers objecting to the recognition of British qualifications in Canada unless reciprocity is granted.

ROSE-BELFORD'S CANADIAN MONTHLY.—The current number of the Canadian Monthly closes the sixteenth volume of that excellent magazine, which has now flourished for eight years. Mr. Watson concludes his investigation into "The powers of Canadian Parliaments." Mr. Wedd gives us a charming Canadian Idyl, with the unpromising title, "Toots." The Rev. Mr. Stone continues his extracts from "The Diary of Samuel Pepys, Esq.," with very readable comments. Mr. Boodle shows the growth of "Modern Pessimism." The two serial tales, Wilkie Collins' "Fallen Leaves," and Jas Payne's "Under One Roof," progress with increasing interest. There is another paper on the "Newfangle" views of the woman question. Spencer's "Data of Ethics" is reviewed by Mr. Gundry. The article by Goldwin Smith in the Atlantic Monthly on "The Prospect of a Moral Interregnum" is reproduced, and is criticized by G. A. M. "Round the Table" deals with a variety of subjects, and several new books are reviewed. Various poems of considerable merit are interspersed, the most striking being "Ballads of Fair Faces," by C. P. Mulvaney.

HALIBURTON.

A BEAR KILLED.—As Mr. Austin, a well-known hunter of this neighborhood, when hunting lately, broke through a hollow log which he was crossing. Immediately a bear, which he had thus suddenly disturbed, poked out its head from the end of the log, when he was quickly stretched out by a shot from Austin's rifle. As he was dragging Bruin's carcass away he speedily found a purchaser in a large hunting party from Toronto, the majority of whom are said to be knights of the quill.

THE FUNERAL OF CHAKA'S MOTHER.

The horrors that attended the funeral of the mother of Utshaka, or Chaka, the first great chief of the Zulus, show in an exaggerated form the universal idea that the spirits of departed relatives are pleased by things done in their honour by their living descendants; and that they will be more pleased the greater the thing is, that is given up:—"When told that his mother was dead he and his principal chiefs put on their war apparel, and went to the hut in which the body lay. He stood silent for some time in a mournful attitude, with his head bowed upon his shield. At length his feelings seemed to become ungovernable, and he broke out into frantic yells. The assembled people sympathised with their chief by filling the air with loud lamentations. During the day great numbers of natives from the surrounding country came to the place of weeping, and joined in the terrible outcry. By noon of the next day, it is said that not less than 60,000 persons, male and female, had assembled, hundreds of whom were lying on the ground, faint from excessive fatigue and want of nourishment, for none had dared to cease from their lamentations, or to refresh themselves with food or water. Soon after midday the whole assemblage formed a circle, with Chaka in their centre, and sung a war-song, at the close of which he ordered several men to be executed on the spot, when the cries of woe became more violent than ever. Then, as if bent on convincing their chief of the reality of their grief, the people began an indiscriminate massacre among themselves, many of them receiving the blow of death while inflicting it on others. Those who were found near the river, panting for water, were beaten to death by men and women who were mad with excitement. 7,000 people, it is said, perished on this occasion. On the second day after her death the body of Chaka's mother was placed in a large grave near the spot where she had died, and ten of the handsomest girls in the neighbourhood were buried alive in the same grave. Twelve thousand men, all fully armed, attended this horrible funeral, and were stationed as a guard over the grave for a whole year. But extravagant as these rites were, they were not thought to be sufficient, and regiments of soldiers were sent through the country for the purpose of putting to death all those who had not been present at the funeral, and several thousand more were thus killed. Then it was decreed that the earth should not be cultivated for a whole year, and that the milk of all the cattle should be poured out upon the ground, but at the end of three months, in consideration of receiving a present of much cattle from the chiefs and great men, the king annulled this decree, which really condemned the people to a state of starvation. Lastly, it was ordered that if during the year of mourning children should be born, both parents and children should be put to death. This order was enforced with cruel stringency, and led to the deaths of many persons. When the year of mourning had expired the people, in obedience to the king's mandate, assembled in great numbers at the royal kraal, and 100,000 oxen were brought together to grace the crowning ceremony, their bellowing being thought to be peculiarly acceptable to the dead. Standing in the midst of these herds, Chaka began to weep aloud, and the lamentations at once became general. This manifestation of sorrow was continued till sunset when a great number of cattle were sacrificed. Next morning, the people being marshalled in military order, the king took his place in the centre of the kraal, every man who possessed cattle had brought at least one calf and tore out the gall bladder. Regiment after regiment then marched before the king, and every man as he passed sprinkled him with gall. After this he submitted himself to certain religious ablutions, and with these proceedings he was released from his state of mourning.—Mission Life.

HOAXING THE YOUNG LADIES.

This story comes from Milan. A young nobleman of that city, of marriageable age, and master of a fortune of 10,000 francs a year, not long ago came to the conclusion that it was time for him to look out for a wife. He advertised his want in a newspaper, requesting that every answer to the advertisement might be accompanied by the portrait of the lady who replied. A collateral result of this notice was that two or three of the best photograph artists of the city had more work on hand than they could attend to. The direct result was sixty-five letters, with as many fair maidenly countenances as would furnish a good sized album. The answers were in some cases accompanied by parental certificates, setting forth in touching language the charms and virtues of the daughters. The young man replied to each of his correspondents that, before coming to a final decision, a personal view would be of advantage. To each of the ladies, without the knowledge of the others, he sent a ticket for an orchestra stall in the Scala theatre, announcing that he himself would be in a particular box, the number and situation of which he stated. A few evenings later the play going public of Milan were perplexed to explain the appearance of one of the rows of stalls in that immense building. A long line of beauties, in toilettes of extreme elegance, unbroken by a single black coat, was observed. Furtively, and with trepidation, did each from time to time raise her opera-glass to that box—the cynosure of many bright eyes—in which the graceful youth responded. Suspiciously, and with darkened brow, did each damsel turn to the long file of her neighbors, and wonder at the magnetism which drew each glass to the one central spot. By-and-by the audience, to whom some hint of the secret had leaked out, began to give audible signs that they enjoyed the joke. The sporadic laughter of the theatre increased the confusion of the young ladies, and the contagion of fun turned the sporadic mirth into a general roar. At this point our informant drops a veil over the scene, concluding his narrative with the trumpet call, "daughters of Eve, revenge." We question if that young man will get married in Milan.

Correct Speech.

Lord George Hamilton, addressing the boys of the Church School at Bolton one day last week, gave them the sensible advice to try and speak English correctly. The advice to Lancashire lads is doubtless more needful than it is easy to follow; but Lord George was careful to say that he did not think it was wanted exclusively in remote provincial districts. He was bound to say that the House of Commons was no exception to the general rule of careless speaking. The utterances which were dignified by the name of speeches were very slovenly and very slatternly performances. It seems from the report that the boys cheered at this piece of information, and then proceeded to say that there was a very remarkable contrast between the speaking of the young men and that of the old men in the House, and the advantage was entirely in favour of the older generation. Lord George appears to mean by the old men the seniors at present in the House of Commons; but if he has formed his opinion on the speaking of the past in any degree from printed reports of speeches, it is well he should bear in mind that if speaking has deteriorated, reporting has deteriorated in at least an equal degree. Fifty years ago or less the gallery held itself responsible for the grammar at least of its members; to-day no such responsibility appears to be acknowledged, and the result is what we see every morning during the session.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Two menagerie lions, which were liberated some time ago by the train on which they were travelling, being smashed up, have taken to their old habits, and are roaming about the woods near St. Louis, Mo. They have already victimised a farmer and two children, and yesterday a large body of men started out to interview the beasts.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

To Restore Morocco.—Varnish with the white of an egg. Apply with a sponge.

Wax for Furniture.—Put one ounce each of white and yellow wax in a clean dish over a slow fire. When melted, take from the fire and add four ounces of spirts of turpentine. Stir until cold.

To Scour Zinc.—Housekeepers will find that zincs may be scoured with great economy of time and strength by using either glycerine or creosote mixed with a little diluted sulphuric acid.

To Make Boots Water-proof.—Melt together four ounces of beef tallow, one ounce of resin, one ounce of beeswax. When cold add a quantity of neat's-foot oil equal to the mass. Warm the boots or shoes before a fire, and apply with a rag to the soles as well as uppers. Two applications will make them thoroughly waterproof.

Furniture Spots—Cleaning Stove Mica.—One whom we know to be an excellent housekeeper, sends to the American Agriculturist the following, which, she writes, were new to her, and may be to some others at least: Spots on varnished furniture are readily removed by rubbing them with essence of peppermint, and afterwards with "furniture polish," or oil. (Spirits of camphor answers similarly to the essence of peppermint.—Ed.) .... Mica in stoves (often wrongly called "ising-glass,") when smoked, is readily cleaned by taking it out and thoroughly washing with vinegar, a little diluted. If it does not come off at once let it soak a little.

Varnish for Drawings.—Dissolve one ounce of good isinglass in a pint of water over a slow fire. Strain through muslin. Try first on a piece of paper. The mixture should be moderately warm. If the size glistens, it is too thick, and should be thinned with water. If it soaks into the paper it requires more isinglass—it should merely dull the surface. Give the drawing two or three coats, letting it dry between each. Apply with a flat, camel's-hair brush, and be careful, particularly in the first coat, to bear very lightly on the brush. Finish by giving three coats with the best mastick varnish.

Glue.—The hotter the glue when applied, the stronger the parts glued together. As glue loses much of its strength by reheating, that newly made is perferable where great strength is required. It is a very good plan to add salt to the water in outer vessel, for then the water will not boil until heated above the ordinary boiling point, and as a consequence, the heat is retained instead of passing off by evaporation and when the water boils, the glue will be thoroughly melted. A little glycerine added to glue will prevent its cracking, and a small quantity of muriatic acid added to dissolve glue will keep it in that condition for some time—it will neither dry up nor ferment.

How to Cook a Pig's Head.—An economical eastern lady writes to an exchange:—"Not long since I bought a hog's head, costing four cents a pound, cut off the jowls and salted them, and they furnished pork for two messes of baked beans, enough for two meals for a family of six, and it was much more delicious and tender than the ordinary side pork. After divesting the remainder of eyes, ears and snout, it was soaked in water for fifty-four hours, scraped thoroughly, then boiled until the meat was ready to drop from the bones, chopped fine, seasoned with salt, pepper and sage, and pressed. When cold, cut into slices and fry slowly in a batter made of eggs, milk and flour. I prefer sour milk, one egg to a cup of milk, and use a little soda. This makes an excellent breakfast dish. Enough fat presses out and rises on the surface of the water in which it is boiled to pay for the work."

SCOTLAND.

The first game of curling for the season was played on the 18th Nov., at Irvine on Mr. Stewart of Heathfield's pond. The ice was in fine condition.

The Ayr Harbour Trustees are to proceed with the proposed new slip dock, on the south side of the harbour, behind the barracks. It is to be in length 500 feet, and is estimated to cost £18,000.

A canoe which was found in the nursery of Mr. George Drummond, of Oban, in May last was lifted on the 12th Nov. in the presence of several gentlemen interested in antiquarian matters.

A numerous-attended private meeting of gentlemen interested in the southern district of Glasgow has been held to consider the propriety of forming a circular line of railway for the suburbs to the south of Glasgow.

Grouse has been very numerous on the Duke of Portland's property in Caithness this season, close on 5000 head of grouse and other game have been killed, though 40,000 acres of moor had not a gun fired on it. In the forest thirty-seven stags were killed.

It is rumoured that the Marquis of Bute is about to try his hand upon a new translation of the Bible. He cannot use the "Protestant version," for it is admittedly incorrect, and is being revised. Nor can he use the Catholic version, for it is more imperfect than the Protestant.

Mr. J. C. Mackenzie, the veteran antiquarian and teetotaller of Kircudbright, has presented an ancient bottle to the Curling Club of the burgh, and at the dinner that took place the other evening the magistrates present actually had it filled with whiskey "in honor of the donor!"

A few days since a valuable liquid case was found floating in the river off the Esplanade, Greenock. About the same time a silver salver was also found in the river. An owner soon turned up for the case, which had been a marriage present to a son of one of the late chief magistrates, whose house had been entered by thieves.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Chest and Lung Diseases.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w49-2w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil combined with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1879.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Town Council.

There will be a meeting of the Town Council this evening.

I. O. G. T.

Peterborough Lodge No. 340, I.O.G.T., will meet in the Orange Hall, on Water Street, this evening, at half-past seven o'clock. A large turnout of members and visitors is expected.

T. V. C.

The Trenton Courier after quoting from us an account of the action of our Town Council in support of the Trent Valley Canal adds:—"Trenton should also make a move in this matter."

Indications.

We notice the arrival of seventeen large boxes and bales of new goods at Fairweather & Co's, which, we are informed, is about one half of what is expected to arrive this week. Such business indications as these are encouraging.

57th Battalion.

The Canada Gazette contains the following:—"57th "Peterborough" Battalion of Infantry.—No. 4 Company.—To be Captain, Marshall M. P. Dean, Esq., M. S., formerly Lieutenant in the same Company, vice William John Green, whose resignation is hereby accepted. To be Lieutenant, provisionally, William Campbell, Gentleman.

P. C. I. L. A.

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute Literary Association, propose giving an entertainment on Friday evening, December 19th, at Bradburn's Opera House. The occasion will be one of great interest to the parents and friends of the members, and will prove entertaining to the public. Songs, recitations, dialogues and debates will constitute the programme.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: moderate to fresh north-easterly to north-westerly winds; partly cloudy to colder weather, with light snow in some localities. The above predictions suit Peterborough, to-day, perfectly. The weather yesterday was noted for being partly clouded to clear; westerly to northerly winds, changing to north-easterly during the night.

Election of Officers.

At the regular meeting of the Catholic Literary and Beneficial Association of Peterborough, which was held in their hall, on George Street, on Tuesday, December 2, the following members were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Mr. J. Griffin, President; A. B. Hourigan, M. D., Vice-President; D. A. McDonald, Recording-Secretary; T. B. McGraw, Financial-Secretary; M. J. Sullivan, Treasurer; T. Dolan, Librarian; and J. Primoe, Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Market.

The market, to-day, has been exceedingly quiet. The few loads of spring wheat that made their appearance were taken at $1.21 without excitement of any kind. The principal commodity on the market to-day was wood, which found takers at lowest rates quoted. A little rye, two or three parcels of peas, and a few loads of hay, were all, except two lots of turkeys which were taken at 40 @ 50 cts. each according to size.

Money Lost.

Mr. Maurice Lane, of Bobcaygeon, was in town to-day looking after over $100 which he states he lost in some unaccountable way from his pocket on Friday or Saturday last. Mr. Lane had just been paid the balance of his wages from M. Boyd, Esq., and had gone to Lindsay to settle some bills, and returned to Peterborough on Friday. He carried the money during this time in a plain sheepskin pocket-book in the hip pocket of his trousers and only missed it late on Saturday.

PORT HOPE.

A Savage Dog.—The Port Hope Times says:—A very painful accident happened to Mr. Fred Quay, son of Mr. Wm. Quay, while he was coasting on Pine Street. A large Newfoundland attacked him, and put his teeth into Freddie's right thigh. It left four ugly punctures, just as though four teeth had been forced into the flesh. He was at once taken to Dr. Herriman's office, when the wounds were dressed. On returning home the little fellow was compelled to go to bed, where he now is. Fred thinks the dog which bit him belongs to Mr. Holmes, and his parents have applied to the authorities to have the animal, alleged to be vicious, destroyed.

SCHOOL VOLUNTEER COMPANY.

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—What are our school authorities doing with regard to the formation of a company for the purpose of drill under the orders recently issued? I learn that the Principal has organized a company, and even commenced to drill, but I have not learned that anything has been done to obtain arms and accoutrements from the Government or to provide uniforms. The matter is one of no little importance, and the Trustees should take it in hand, if they have not already done so.

It appears from the orders issued that "these "companies are intended to be instructed in "military drill and training only, and upon no "account to be employed in active service." The services of a Drill Instructor will be supplied and paid for by the Government during one month in each year. Arms and accoutrements will be furnished upon the school authorities—presumably the Trustees—complying with certain conditions, the chief of which are that they will become responsible for the arms and accoutrements and the proper care of them, and provide a suitable room for keeping them, that a company of at least forty boys over 14 years of age be formed, and that the members supply themselves with a suitable uniform. This last seems to be the chief difficulty, but there is no reason why it should be so. There is no reason why the uniform should not be as cheap as any other clothing the boys may wear, and such as could be regularly worn at school on all occasions. I would suggest as most suitable either a dark blue or rifle-green "Norfolk" jacket and trousers to correspond, and a "Glengarry" or "Scotch" cap. Parents will soon find that these can be furnished as cheaply and economically as the various styles of clothing now worn by our school boys. Or better still, if the Trustees would take the matter in hand, they could probably obtain a quantity of clothing by contract at reduced rates, and let the boys have it at cost. In such case there would always be some extra clothing on hand for "recruits" joining, and if it happened that a boy left school shortly after joining or before his uniform was worn out, it could be taken off his hands at a valuation.

In any event, the opportunity should be improved, for this training for boys as they are growing up will be found to be one of the best parts of their education, both physical and mental.

Yours truly,
VOLUNTEER.

Peterborough, Dec. 8, 1879.

A FOOLISH WAGER.

On a Bet of Five Dollars a Young Man Suffers the Tortures of Hanging.

The following affair occurred a day or two since at a mining shaft on the Big Evans, in Colorado. Three young men interested in the property had gone out to look at their claim and indulge in the anticipations of the prospective millions in the hole, and, while their workmen were discussing their dinner in a neighbouring cabin, sat at the mouth of the hole conversing in general topics. In the course of the talk death by strangulation came up; and one of the party expressed the opinion that by the exercise of a little judgment and nerve a man could sustain life for a considerable length of time even when suspended by the neck from the end of a rope. Of course, this position was vigorously combated by his companions, who said that a man when undergoing the hanging process had no control whatever over his muscles, and that therefore he could not prevent the rope from cutting off his wind. The proponent of the idea insisted that he was right, and instanced several cases of which he had read, in which the parties hanged had prevented the rope from compressing the blood-vessels by a vigorous exercise of muscular power, a hole in the wind-pipe giving the air necessary to sustain life. He claimed that all that was necessary was to hold the head in such a position that the pressure of the rope should come upon the back of the head, instancing the acts of trapeze performers, who hung unharmed from a noose by simply holding the head well back. To a challenge to illustrate his theory in his own person, he replied that he was perfectly willing to do so, and offered to bet $5 that he would permit his companions to haul him, suspended by the neck from the end of the bucket-rope, from the bottom of the shaft, seventy feet deep, to the surface, and that he would then walk off unharmed, except for the abrasion of the skin. The bet was foolishly taken, and the foolhardy theorist at once descended the shaft and commenced preparations for his hazardous experiment. Tying the rope around his neck, he threw his head back firmly on the knot and gave the signal to hoist away. The signal was obeyed, and in an instant he was swinging in the air. Instead of the pressure of his head upon the knot having the effect anticipated, however, it caused the noose to contract, as any one gifted with common sense could have told him, and in a few seconds he became painfully aware that he was in immediate danger of sacrificing his life to an idiotic theory. He tried to call out to his associates, but the pressure of the rope upon his throat made this impossible. The rope still contracted; the blood, impeded in its passage, filled his head almost to bursting; his eyes protruded from their sockets, his swollen tongue began to make its way between his lips, and then he became unconscious.

His friends, to do them justice, having no faith in the experiment, hoisted as fast as possible, and the ascent was made in a much shorter time than is usually occupied in the passage of a bucket of ore for the same distance. By the time, however, that their inanimate burden reached the surface, it presented an appearance of the most horrible character, and, almost paralysed with fear, as well as worn out by the violent and unaccustomed exertion, they were unable to draw their friend from the mouth of the shaft. Fortunately, the cabin was but a short distance off, and, by a vigorous yell, they brought out the workman, who dragged the body out upon the platform.

At first it was thought the young man was dead, but a careful examination of the body convinced a miner of experience that life was not extinct, and a vigorous rubbing, with the additional influence of liquor poured down the throat, had the effect of restoring consciousness in the course of half an hour. After a rest of several hours, the young man recovered sufficiently from the fatigue of his perilous journey to ride to the city. One more experience has been gained, and he is now convinced that hanging will produce death as certainly as the bullet, and when a man has a rope around his neck and is suspended thereby, he has no control whatever over his situation.

FENELON FALLS.

Dog Power.—The Gazette says:—The churning at Mr. Wm. Jordan's, south of the Falls, is now done by a dog, which, after some little trouble, has been trained to do the work satisfactorily. The "power" (if that is the right name of the machine in which the animal runs) was made by Mr. D. McDermid of this village, and answers the purpose admirably; but we have not seen it and do not know whether it is on a new principle or an old one. It only cost a few dollars, however, and we should think it would pay any farmers who milks two or three cows and owns fifty pounds of a tractable dog to get get one like it. Mr. Jordan's dog is black, but some people would prefer a yellow one, as any of its hairs which might get into the churn would not be noticed.

LUNG CULTURE BY SINGING.

Some interesting researches by Professor Monassien, as cited in the medical Wochenschrift of St. Petersburg, show that the practice of singing merely as a physical exercise, is one of the most healthful in which a person of any age can employ himself. He examined 222 singers from nine to fifty-three years of age, with reference to the pneumatometric and spirometric condition of the singers, and proved that the circumference of the chest is greater, relatively and absolutely, among singers than among those who do not sing, and that it increases with the age and growth of the singer. This fact is corroborated by the experience of skilful trainers of the voice, who combine with tone building a physical training based upon thorough anatomical and hygienic science. It is asserted by some of these that many of the ills which afflict human kind, and particularly the female portion, arise from faulty breathing, by which the lungs are partially inflated, and as a consequence, the poisons which should be thrown off by the breath are absorbed into the system, causing all manner of mysterious diseases. In fact, many cases can be cited in which diseases, not only of the pulmonary organs but of others remote from them, have been cured, apparently by the improved respiration which singing enforces. One cannot sing without breathing deeply. The muscles of the chest and abdomen must have full play, the body must be erect, and every facility must be given for the egress and ingress of the air to the lungs. A fine voice is of little consequence if the singer cannot breathe freely and to the very bottom of the lungs. Everybody knows the comfortable and stimulating effect of a long-drawn breath after sitting in a cramped position. This stimulating effect, reproduced by frequent practice in singing, strengthens the lungs, enlarges the chest, and by admitting large accessions of oxygen to the lungs, purifies the blood, and sends its healing and strengthening streams to every part of the body.

An Alligator's Meal.

The following horrible tale comes from Lahore:—Last Friday morning, the 19th November, the Messrs. Harris went out shooting to the River Ravi, and happened to see an alligator basking in the sun, about a mile below the bridge of boats, and over two hundred and fifty yards from the shore, whereupon Mr. Sam Harris fired at him, and shot him through the side. The animal plunged into the water and disappeared, but on their securing a boat and approaching him, they found him near an adjoining island, severely wounded. Five more shots were fired into him before he was completely overcome. He was found to measure fourteen feet ten inches in length, and about six feet in girth. Next day, on the beast being cut open, a most loathsome sight presented itself. The bodies of two children were discovered—one was a mere infant, while the other was a fine young boy of about six, who had a pretty large bundle of corn wrapped in a cloth round his shoulders. The boy may have perhaps been grazing cattle on the banks when he was surprised by this huge monster. These alligators can traverse dry ground pretty easily. The bodies were in a partial state of decomposition, the heads were half crunched, but they were in other respects perfect.—English Paper.

Feeding Bees.

The Edinburgh Scotsman says that Mr. John Allen, of Galashields, a devoted apiarian, had a young hive, the condition of which he wished to improve. Owing to the bad season, the skep did not contain enough of honey to keep the bees over winter. Mr. Allen filled a fumigator with burning fungi—blind man's snuff is the popular name—and having secured the bees inside, inserted the pipe in the box, and blew in the fumes of the fungi. In a short time the bees were unconscious, and were shaken out on a clean board. Full combs, taken from another hive, were then fixed in the skep, and the still unconscious bees were returned to their now well-replenished house, and in a short time were as lively as ever.

ENGLAND.

The Agent-General in London for South Australia, learns by telegram from that colony that there will be 375,000 tons of wheat for exportation.

Londoners have tired of drab-colored houses and everything is now couleur de rose. The Builder says that Lord John Manners's pillar posts look like drummer-boys.

Erasmus Wilson, the great English authority on skin diseases, who paid the cost of erecting Cleopatra's Needle in London, is about to spend $100,000 on a sea-bathing infirmary for the scrofulous.

There are thirty-seven women in attendance at the London School of Medicine for women. Of the seventy students who have entered the school since its foundation, some are in practice and others are preparing for the examination of the University of London, or of the King and Queen's College of Physicians, Ireland.

Martin F. Tupper writes to the London Standard, complaining that the revision of the Scriptures proceeds so slowly, and suggesting that the revised version be published in instalments, and that fly-leaves of the most needful errata and corrigenda be furnished to be interleaved in old Bibles which people will not wish to part with.

The Earl of Sefton would be to-day almost the wealthiest man in England if his ancestor had not sold, for a comparative trifle, his harbor rights, held under an ancient grant, to the town of Liverpool; and the Marquis of Donegal would to-day be thrice as rich as the richest man in Ireland, had he not recklessly leased the town of Belfast on perpetual leases at nominal rents, receiving in so doing heavy "fines," or payments. About the whole town is nominally his property.

For mere brutality and roughness the people of Afghanistan have no rivals in the world. Though they may be the most pious of Moslem, they discriminate among the injunctions of the prophet. To exterminate the infidel is a duty welcomed with enthusiasm, but the command to bathe is quietly ignored. It may be regarded as an invasion of private life not to be tolerated by any independent Pathan. Accordingly, he does not wash his face in a month, his body never. His great head has never known the comb. His clothing of felt or sheepskin is generations old. No savage half-human is so dirty, none so shameless in vice. Looking on those ferocious giants, one must shudder to think of their forefathers' part in history. Imagine their foul rush upon the delicate peoples of India, like a swooping of foetid vultures on a sick lamb! Imagine the sack of Delhi by these brutes! I have seen the worst savages of every continent, and I aver that there are none so hideous as the Pathan. In his eye, large but furtive, his marked features and set mouth, the gentle feelings of humanity have not a trace of expression. The child scowls and strikes; the man has no thought but of plunder and blood. His laugh is ready enough, a hoarse, rude guffaw, which shows the black fangs through his unkempt beard; no one ever saw the Afghan peasant smile.—All the Year Round.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1879.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.

THE Globe of Monday is responsible for giving currency to a rumour that the Grand Trunk is about to purchase or lease the Midland railway, and extend it, from Cold Water to the Sault St. Marie, there to connect with the proposed road to Duluth. Should this report prove true even in part, it cannot fail to have an important influence upon this section of the Province and render the Toronto and Ottawa road and the Trent Valley Canal of increased importance to us. We must confess that we have been surprised that the Grand Trunk did not long ago take hold of it, looking at it simply from a Grand Trunk stand point. With direct connection by the Midland with the Georgian Bay it seems to us it would be in as good a position as any railway can be to compete for the grain trade of the West. The run from Chicago, Milwaukee or Duluth by water to Midland is so incomparibly superior to that to Buffalo, while that point is closer to tide water at Montreal than the latter is to tide water at New York, thereby giving such a route through Canada a decided advantage over the one to Buffalo by water and thence by rail to New York, as to surprise us that the Grand Trunk has not long ago taken advantage of it.

While, however, the reasons given by the Globe may be among the causes which will lead the Grand Trunk to take hold of the Midland, we have little doubt but that the vitality shown by the Toronto and Ottawa project has much to do with it. No one knows better than the Grand Trunk people, that, as matters now stand, the construction of the Toronto and Ottawa road means the loss to them of the trade of a large and important section of the Province—a trade which it is evident they will not permit a rival to compete for without a desperate struggle. With control of the Midland, however, the control of the trade west of Peterborough at least would be as firmly in their grasp as ever, and the Toronto and Ottawa scheme would be shut out from competition for all traffic coming over the Midland. While we have every confidence in the construction of the Toronto and Ottawa road, in spite of all the Grand Trunk can do, it is evident that what this section of Ontario requires, and what alone will keep any or all of the railways upon which we may be dependent in order, is the Trent Valley Canal. With that completed we can defy combinations, pooling arrangements, and every kind of railway scheme to take the cream off the milk of the labors of our farmers and manufacturers, and the canal is the only thing which, under all circumstances, will effectually accomplish so all-important a purpose. We trust, therefore, while energetically supporting the Toronto and Ottawa project in this, the hour of its greatest trial, our people will also give an energetic support to the Canal project. We want both, and we believe we can have both if we only do our duty.

MORE BUNGLING.

THAT hasty and unconsidered action on the part of public bodies, nearly always leads to bungling and injustice, has received another illustration in the history of our town affairs, in the matter of the imposition of five per cent. on all taxes remaining unpaid on the 1st instant. It now turns out that where the taxes are made payable in a single instalment, towns have no power to impose a penalty of five per cent. on their non-payment by a certain date, and that, as a consequence, that portion of the by-law levying the rate for the current year is illegal and cannot be enforced. It has therefore been the means of causing unnecessary hardship to many who have strained themselves to make up the amount of their taxes before the 1st December, while the more knowing ones have taken things coolly, and will therefore have additional time to pay their taxes, without paying the dreaded addition. That the saddle for this blunder may be put upon the right horse, we reproduce our report of the proceedings of the Council of July 7th.

PAYMENT OF TAXES.

Councillor DENNE moved, seconded by Councillor ROBERTSON,—That the taxes should be paid in one instalment on the 1st day of October, and that to all taxes not paid within two months from that date there should be added a percentage of five per cent.

Councillor SMITH moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee, which were now considering the question. It was of too great importance to be decided so hastily.

Councillor RUTHERFORD agreed with Mr. Smith, that the matter should be referred to the Finance Committee, though he partly agreed with Mr. Denne's motion.

Councillor CAHILL said it was very desirable to collect the taxes within the year, but he thought the matter should be referred to the Finance Committee.

The motion was carried.

The Wheat Crop of 1879.

E. H. Walker, statistician of the New York Produce Exchange, after a careful estimate from authoritative reports, places the wheat crop of the United States for 1879 at about 425,000,000 bushels. The spring wheat crop will not be as large as was at first expected, that of Minnesota being no more than 25,000,000 bushels, instead of 40,000,000 as estimated early in the season. The amount consumed by 48,000,000 persons, plus the amount required for seed and other purposes, is placed at 250,000,000 bushels, leaving 175,000,000 bushels for export, 160,000,000 bushels for Europe, and 15,000,000 for other parts. The deficient wheat crop in Europe this year makes the demand there—provided the people are able to pay for so much—above [illegible] bushels, two-thirds of which will be required in France and the United Kingdom.

BRACING WEATHER.

At last the misty days give place
To those more keen and glancing,
That stir the blood and mend the pace
And set the thoughts a-dancing.
Youth, health and hope and confidence
Are keeping step together,
With harmony of soul and sense,
For it is bracing weather.

Visions of snow forts, skates and sleds
In boyish brains are ranging,
While sleighing-dreams through girlish heads,
Like frost work scenes, are changing
From waltzing airs to rhythmic beat
Of hoofs and bells together—
In-door and out, with flying feet—
For it is bracing weather.

In country byways, firmer grown,
A cheerier life is bustling,
With stirrup cups, and steeds well blown,
And dainty habits rustling,
While whip and spur and bridle gear
And creaking harness leather
Flash in the sunlight, far and near,
Athwart the bracing weather.

The huntsman takes the field to start
The timid game a-springing,
All cramping cares of life and art
Behind him gayly flinging;
While speaks his gun and sweeps his stride
In brushwood, brake, and heather,
With health and strength a happy tide,
For it is bracing weather.

To help the poor and warm the cold
Let us not be forgetful,
But meanwhile, with free hearts and bold,
And ne'er a fancy fretful,
Let's live and let live merrily,
And try to pull together
Without a break, for verily
'Tis fine and bracing weather.

HENRY GANNON.

Death at the Alms House of a Man Claiming to be from Peterborough.

The Rochester Morning Herald of Saturday contains the following strange tale:—

On the 22nd of last July a young man giving his name as Henry Gannon applied to Nicholas L. Brayer, school commissioner from the fifteenth ward, for assistance. He said that at Oswego, while on his way to this city, he had been robbed of $212 in cash, a trunk and a suit of clothes. He said that he had been in the meat business, and as he seemed to be needy the commissioner took pity on him and employed him in his meat market. Gannon seemed to be decidedly uncommunicative, and it was rarely that he would refer to his past life in any manner. About a month ago he seemed to be suffering from consumption; and thought he was not able to work, Mr. Brayer retained him and took care of him until a week ago Tuesday, when the man was seen to be in a very bad condition. Mr. Brayer advised him to go to the hospital, but Gannon did not wish to, and finally determined to go to the alms house. Knowing that Gannon was liable to die at any moment, efforts were made to induce him to reveal his history. He obstinately refused to tell any more than that he had a mother in Peterborough who had defrauded him out of about $1,800, and who had refused to allow him to marry the girl of his choice. When it was seen that he was almost on the edge of the grave, he was asked if he wanted to leave word for any friends. He said that he did not, and yesterday morning at half-past three he died at the alms house, probably under an assumed name, with his history unknown, and no word of remembrance for any one. There are numerous theories as to his identity, but none are worthy of reproduction. Word will be sent to Peterborough to ascertain whether there are any people of that name there.

An Electric Light.

The locomotive electric light recently introduced in England for railway use, is said to operate satisfactorily. To a light six-horse power four-wheel locomotive a dynamo-electric machine, is attached; any electric light can be used. When the engine is moving along the line, the electric machine rotates at its proper speed, and when it is necessary to stop, in order that the light may be directed on some particular spot, the driving wheels are thrown out of gear by means of the disengaging handle attached to the pinion on the crank shaft, and the machine ceases to be locomotive, while the engine continues to move the dynamo machine at its proper velocity. The engine is furnished with sensitive governors, so that the dynamo machine may be accurately regulated, this being very important in order to insure a bright and continuous light.

The Kashgar Revolt.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—It is reported that the Kashgar Revolt is ended by the complete defeat of Hakim Khan, of Tura. Hakim Khan besieged Tashkourgan with 5,000 men, the Chinese garrison numbering only two thousand, but all of Hakim Khan's Kirghiz force deserted, leaving only 1,000 Sarts. Hakim retired with these into the country of the Kirghiz, which he ravaged and then started for Russia laden with booty. The Chinese from Tashkourgan overtook Hakim on the 21st September in the Khaikart defile, and slew thousands.

THE WOOLLEN INTEREST.

Mills Running Full Time—Their Number and Manufacturing Capacity.

From the Montreal Witness

It is gratifying to be able to state that among the reviving industries of the Dominion that of woollen manfacture is at present conspicuous. Some weeks ago an account of the cotton interest of Canada, including a list of the mills in operation in the several provinces, appeared in the columns of the Witness, and to-day we are able to give the like details regarding the woollen manufactories of the country, gathered from thoroughly reliable sources. During the past twelve months the manufacture of woollen fabrics has been steadily increasing; mills that for a considerable time previously had been running on half time, now put in the full complement of hours, and pay their hands an ample day's wage. It would appear that the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario may boast pre-eminence to represent the woollen trade of the Dominion since Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and the other provinces possess numerous small factories known as "Custom Mills," but not any on a scale that could be said to effect the trade generally or be in any degree an index regarding it. The following factories in Quebec and Ontario are representative ones engaged in manufacturing home and foreign trade, and the list given below may be taken as a fair indication of the industry as it at present exists in the whole Dominion. We give the locality of each of the mills with the estimate of the product in value of same for twelve months.

It will be seen by the forgoing that there are twelve mills in the Province of Quebec, the aggregate value of whose products the past year has been one million four hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The total number in Ontairo is forty-four, turning out an aggregate value of work during the past year of three million three hundred and ninety-five dollars; making a total for both provinces or for the Dominion of OVER FOUR MILLION EIGHT HUNDRED DOLLARS.

These mills are all running on full time, and have at present orders sufficient to keep them fully employed up to the first of March next at least, and how long beyond it is not clearly known. In the words of one whose transactions with several of the mills is large and continuous, "They are fairly choked with work."

The feeling appears to be general in Montreal that the demand for Canadian woollens will be greater the coming season, than has been known in the last seven years. Several reasons for this are alleged, among others the advance of raw wool within the last few weeks from twenty-two to thirty-five cents per pound. The price of chemicals used in the manufacture has also risen materially within three weeks. These features have made buyers anxious to place their orders promptly ere an advance takes place. There can be no doubt also that the trade from the United States here is

FOR THE PRESENT AT AN END.

The representative of a Boston house, which for years past had done many thousand dollars worth of trade annually with one house in the city (Messrs. Gault Brothers), said to a member of the firm on Tuesday, "We can do no more business with you; your tariff has killed us." It is the opinion of Mr. Morrice, whose extensive connection with the woollen and cotton manufacture in this Province need not be mentioned, that the tariff has been beneficial, or, in his own words to our reporter, "There can be no doubt, although the tendency is greatly to exaggerate the benefit that benefit has arisen to the woollen trade from the new tariff, and the benefit will continue."

The stocks of woollens in all the Montreal warehouses are said to be very low just now.

A Conundrum Expounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as I give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians at the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed [illegible] of colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims of the greatest sufferers. There is no panacea, comfort safety in the family unless the head provides a sure remedy. [illegible] EXTRACT OF [illegible] CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. 4129-w49-1m

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold or whether we view them in the terrible form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible, Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. 4127-w49-2w

Misery's Theme.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none worse than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon becomes a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only true remedy tested in innumerable cases is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the invalid is restored, and the embryo seeds of consumption destroyed. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. 4128w49-1m

An Excellent Paper.

The Kingston Daily News says:—

"The Peterborough REVIEW has completed its first year as a daily. The REVIEW is an excellent Conservative paper."

St. John's Church.

The programme for the concert on Thursday in aid of the Building Fund of St. John's Church is now before us, and we can commend it to our readers.

I. O. G. T.

The members and friends of Friendship Lodge No. 146, I.O.G.T., will bear in mind that the Lodge meets at Friendship Hall, George Street, this evening, at half past seven o'clock.

Snow Shoe Club.

The Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club will meet at the Choate House, this evening, at half past seven o'clock. A general and early attendance is desired, as business of importance is to be transacted.

Personal.

Mr. Joseph Pentland, L.D.S., formerly of Peterborough, but for some time a resident of Lindsay, is about to return and connect himself with his brother, Mr. D. Pentland, in the dental surgery business.

Ice in the River and Lake.

This morning ice was rapidly forming on the river below the town and on the Little Lake. Unless the weather moderates there will be a complete covering before morning, and soon there will be good skating unless snow follows and covers it up.

Baggage Master.

The Omemee Herald has the following:—

"By a new regulation, baggage masters will hereafter be dispensed with at small stations along the line of the Midland Railway. Mr. Geo. Shaw, the baggage master at this station, on account of diligent and long time service in the Company's employ has, however, been removed to a similar position at Peterborough."

A New Telephone Line.

The Montreal Telegraph Company are erecting a line of telegraph from the office of Messrs. Irwin & Boyd to their mills at Nassau to be worked on the telephone principle. This will be a great help to the firm and save much time that is now spent in passing up and down by teams.

Coming Events.

Any one who had lost his almanac might have learned from the resolutions and the speeches of some of our city fathers that the new year and the new elections were not far distant. Certain members of the Council, who have not done much for the past year, are now very anxious to set things right for the future.

Finger Taken off.

Yesterday afternoon while a horse belonging to Dr. Kincaid was being backed out of the shed in connection with German's Hotel, Lakefield, by the hostler, the horse snapped at a team standing near, but caught the fore-finger of the right hand of the hostler between its teeth, completely severing it. The doctor was on hand and soon dressed the wound.

The Trent Valley Canal.

The Town Council have made a good selection of delegates to Ottawa, to advocate the Trent Valley Canal. They have appointed the Mayor and Councillor Smith, who are Chairman and Secretary of the committee, and Messrs. Dennistoun, Dumble and Carnegie. We learn that Mr. S.S. Peck, M.P.P., has signified his readiness to join the deputation.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: brisk to high, easterly to southerly winds; cloudy weather, followed by snow and rain. At Peterborough, the day opened, partly cloudy to clear, with the wind north-easterly, changing to easterly, and cloudy threatening weather. The thermometer keeping below the freezing point.

Small-Pox at Marmora.

From a paper read by A. A. Riddel, M. D., before the Toronto Medical Society, and published in the December number of the Canadian Journal of Medical Science, we learn that during the late outbreak of small-pox there were twenty-two cases, with six deaths in the village of Marmora, seven cases with one death in the township of Marmora, and thirteen cases with one death in the adjoining township of Rawdon.

True Blues.

At the regular monthly meeting of McWilliams True Blue Lodge, held in the O.Y.B. Hall, on Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Bro. D. Jameson	W. M.
" F. King	D. M.
" R. Clegg	Secretary.
" M. Jameson	Treasurer.
" W. McDowell	Chaplain.
" W. King	D of C.

Committee—Bros. Chas. Robinson, John Cleary, R. Rowson, Geo. Davidson, G. Sharpe. Tyler, W. Trollope.

The Skating and Curling Rink.

The managers of the Skating and Curling Rink Company have been busy all day assisting Mr. Stewart in preparing the foundation for the ice formation. Should the weather continue another 24 hours like the past, the flooding will take place to-morrow. Probabilities slips in, however, and frustrates their plans by predicting rain, which, of course, means more soft weather. Everything is ready for the convenience and comfort of the skaters and curlers.

T. V. C.

The following delegates, in addition to those previously noticed, have been chosen to accompany the deputation to Ottawa to urge on the Ministry the construction of the Trent Valley Canal:—Midland City, Samuel Hayes, Reeve; Fenelon Falls, Jas. Dickson, Reeve, Rev. Mr. Logan, and J. D. Smith; Hastings Village, J. Fowlis, Reeve; Carden and Dalton, J. Taylor, Reeve. A special meeting of the North Monaghan Council has been called for Friday afternoon at two o'clock, for the purpose of choosing their delegate.

Almost a Fire.

Last evening, between five and six o'clock, an accident occurred in the basement of Messrs. Fairweather & Co's. dry goods store, which nearly resulted in a disastrous fire. A great portion of the day had been occupied by the employees in unpacking and carrying into the basement the new goods just received from the Midland Railway. These goods, amounting to some $4,000 in value, consisted of domestics and dress goods, and among them was a lot of cotton batts. The batts had been carefully piled up on a counter in the rear part of the basement, preparatory to counting. A lamp was being lighted by a match, when the pile of batts fell over upon it, and in an instant they were in flames. With great presence of mind, large blankets were at once thrown over the burning pile and the flames were smothered, while buckets of water were being brought, with which the fire was extinguished, after tedious labor. Cotton is one of the most difficult articles to deal with when fire once gets started in it, and it was several hours before all was deemed safe. The several storey, with some $25,000 worth of goods, were filled with smoke for a short time, but no serious damage was sustained beyond that to the cotton batts, amounting to $50, which are rendered worthless. Messrs. Fairweather & Co. may congratulate themselves upon their escape from a total loss, through their coolness and prompt action. We understand they were insured on only about one-third of the stock.

Ministerial.

The Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A., of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, occupied the pulpit in Knox's Church, Toronto, last Sunday morning. The Globe gives the following review of the service:—

KNOX CHURCH.—Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A., of Peterborough, preached in the morning from the 21st and 22nd verses of the 1st chapter of Colossians. In his opening remarks the reverend gentlemen referred to the deep interest ever shown by the Apostle Paul in the different churches to which the epistles were addressed. In the text he speaks of the great atoning work of the Gospel. He sets it forth not as a work to be done by us, but as done for us by the Lord Jesus Christ. Three points were considered in relation to the text:—First, the means by which the atonement was completed. It was by the blood of His cross. Second, the blessings which the atonement secures. It secures peace and reconciliation. Third, the grand object at which the atonement aims. It aims to present us holy, unblamable in God's sight. The blood of Christ upon the cross was the price paid for our redemption. This was the great doctrine running like a golden thread through the Old and New Testaments, and binding them together. Righteousness was founded upon the shedding of blood. It was exemplified in the service of the Tabernacle and on the great day of atonement, but still more strikingly exemplified in the institution of the Paschal Lamb, commemorating the passover of the children of Israel. And these were only types of Him who, when the fulness of time arrived, became the propitiation for the sins of the world. The atonement secures to us the blessings of peace and reconciliation with God. It secures harmony with God, harmony with our fellowmen, and harmony with ourselves. And then its grand object is to present us holy in the sight of God. Like the prodigal of old, when the sinner returns to God he not only receives this spirit as the pledge of reconciliation, but he is clothed with the garment of salvation. Christ loved the Church, and gave himself for it that He might cleanse and purify it, and the text speaks rather of the presentation by Christ of the Church to Himself. The Rev. gentleman reminded his hearers that the text was to them either "the Saviour of life unto life, or of death unto death," and exhorted them to turn their feet in the ways of God's testimonies.

POLICE COURT.

SELLING LIQUOR WITHOUT A LICENSE.

TUESDAY, Dec. 9.—The Police Court this morning was again occupied with the liquor case, Inspector Cox vs. Francis Quinn. The complaint sets forth that Quinn did on the 15th of November last keep and expose for sale intoxicating drinks without the proper license therefor. The defendant pleaded not guilty; and allowed the case to go on.

FRANCIS QUINN, the defendant, was sworn for the complainant and said,—He did not keep a public house; he did not do much business of any kind except occasionally to trade horses. He did not keep liquors for sale and had no recollection of selling or giving any away. He remembered the instance of McCarthy and others being in his house on Sunday the 16th; but did not remember to have given them anything. He did not keep a bar and has no regular place for keeping liquors. Remembered Mr. Woods being in his house, but could not say when. Could not fix a date. He had no knowledge of his getting anything to drink. He had sold ginger beer and kept soft drink and cigars, but does not keep a public house. He was intending to keep a grocery store. He had no intoxicating liquor in his house to his knowledge. When soft drinks were served he generally served them himself. Upon his oath he did not keep or sell intoxicating liquors.

Mr. WOODS, sen., said he had been in Quinn's house frequently, but couldn't say if he was in there on 15th of November. Knew positively he was there on Sunday, the 16th because he did not go from home at all on that day. He was positive he was not there on the 14th. He was there one day with a man who had given him a drink, but could not say when it was. The man gave him something to drink out of a pop bottle. Could not say where it came from—whether it was out of his pocket or from some part of the house. They were in there to write a letter when the drink was offered to him. Remembered to have been in there one day when he was too heavy to tell whether he got anything to drink or not. He did not know where Quinn kept his liquors.

Another witness could not remember if he was in Quinn's house more than once, and that was one morning when he went there with a washtub.

No further witnesses were examined, as Mr. Quinn, the defendant, had been first examined for the prosecution and thus far the complainant had failed to make out a case. The case was dismissed without costs.

THE NUISANCE CASE AGAIN.

The nuisance case of McDonald vs. Dunsford was again before the Magistrate. The statement was made in the defence that the committee of the Council having the matter of a sewer in charge, contended that a majority of the property owners to petition was necessary to ensure action. They were of opinion that the lane in question is not corporation property, and that it was necessary for the Council to take action. There was considerable discussion, in which it appeared some of the property owners contended that nothing more was required than to have a cart remove the dirt, &c., once a week. This would create a weekly nuisance in addition to the standing one. The Magistrate enlarged the case again until after another meeting of the council, and in the meantime Mr. Dunsford was to see the Mayor and other owners of property and secure a majority to the petition for a proper drain to be built.

DEDICATION OF THE MASONIC HALL.—The dedication of the Masonic Hall took place on Wednesday afternoon, His Honor Judge Dartnell, of Whitby, D.D.M., Ontario District, conducting the ceremonies. In the evening the public concert, under the auspices of Lorne Lodge, in the Bourn Hall, was largely attended, many of those present being from Lindsay, Bethany and other places in this vicinity. The chair was occupied by Judge Dartnell, who in no small degree contributed to the pleasantness of the occasion by the agreeable manner in which he performed his duties as chairman. His opening address, which treated of advantages to be derived from Masonry, was well received. The instrumental duets by Miss Gallon and Miss Macley delighted the audience, who expressed their approval by hearty applause. That they were encored was not to be wondered at. The instrumental selections by Miss Seale, of Barrie, was also well received. Mrs. Harris, with marked effect, gave "O'wn," and "Rock of Ages" while Miss Netti Martin, of Peterborough; fairly brought down the house with her familiar songs, being encored twice in the third part of the programme. The comic songs given by Mr. H. V. Sanders and Mr. T. Monaghan, of Port Hope, created much merriment, encores being required of them. Master Charlie Monaghan amused his hearers in "I've only been down to the club," and "Mary Ann"; and Mr. Haggart, of Peterborough, made a decided 'hit' with his comic songs. The accompaniments for the various songs were played by Miss Seale and Miss Ettie Sanders, who performed that somewhat onerous duty in a manner that reflected great credit on themselves and that materially assisted the singers. The Band also acquitted themselves very creditably. Shortly before the conclusion, an expression of thanks, moved by Mr. Dandrett, seconded by Mr. Miller, was unanimously voted by the audience to those who had taken part in the entertainment. The singing of the National Anthem brought the entertainment to a close.—Herald.

INISMORE.

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met in the Town Hall on Saturday the 29th November. All the members of the Council present except Cornelius Conners. The Reeve in the Chair. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Moved by Paul Costello, seconded by Robert Calvert,—That $3 be refunded to C. B. Smith for overcharge of statute labour in 1879.—Carried. Moved by Paul Costello, seconded by Robert Calvert,—That Jas Sullivan be paid the sum of $4 for building culvert near Collins' Hotel.—Carried. Moved by Michael Crough, seconded by Robert Calvert,—That John Twomy be paid the sum of for work done on his division.—Carried. Moved by Michael Crough, seconded by Paul Costello,—That a memorial be forwarded to the Hon. the Minister of Railways and Canals and to the House of Commons at Ottawa, urging the necessity of action on the Trent Valley Canal as early as possible, and that Daniel Costello, Esq., Reeve, be appointed a delegate to go to Ottawa along with other municipal delegates of the County, and that his necessary expenses be paid by the township.—Carried. Moved by Paul Costello, seconded by Robert Calvert,—That Michael Crough be paid the sum of $3 for bridging the creek near his house.—Carried. Moved by Michael Crough, seconded by Robt Calvert,—That Jno. Young be paid the sum of $12 for work done on his road.—Carried. On motion of Michael Crough the Council then adjourned to the call of the Reeve.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Trent Valley Canal is of vital importance to the country at large, and more so to the municipalities through which it will pass, and four-fifths of the boundaries of this township being surrounded by water, part of which will be traversed by the heavily loaded vessels with freight from the far west, besides other local business, there can be no other opinion than that our Council did wisely in appointing our Reeve as a delegate to proceed to Ottawa along with others to impress upon the Government the early commencement of such an important work.

The Jesuit Church, on West 16th street, celebrated all over the continent not only for the zeal and piety of its clergy, but for the excellence of its music. CHILI, PERU AND BOLIVIA.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A despatch from Valparaiso says on November 16th the Chilians defeated the Bolivians at Aqua Santa, and captured 2,000 mules. The Chilians were marching on Novia. Peruvian advices assert that the Chilians were defeated near Loaloaing, with 2,000 killed and 1,500 wounded. The Chilians deny this report. A new Peruvian Cabinet has been formed.

WINTER SPORTS IN ENGLAND.

The sports of winter have been fairly commenced. The lakes and ponds are covered with ice and are in splendid condition for skating. It is estimated that on Sunday in the vicinity of London 10,000 people participated in the sport.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The Prussian Diet has passed clauses in the railway bill empowering the Government to purchase and work certain railways.

POLITICAL SITUATION IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—That France is on the verge of a Government crisis there is no room for doubt. The Ministry and the Chambers are torn by discordant and contending factions, and these discussions extend to, and are participated in, by all classes of the people. A dissolution of the Cabinet is imminent, and in some quarters it is considered probable that President Grevy will invite the Senate to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies. The reserve of the President, the reticence of Gambetta, and the verbosity of M. Waddington are alike ominously discussed, and there is very general anxiety and distrust of the future.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—There is a vigorous renewal to-day of the rumours which have obtained currency before, that the Czar is seriously considering the propriety of an early abdication of his throne. It is well-known he has gradually grown weaker, both in body and mind for some time past, and especially since the attack made upon his person last spring. The recent attempt on his life is known to have materially increased this tendency. He spends most of his time indulging in a kind of melancholy, abruptly refusing to grant audiences to anybody except a favoured few who are his personal friends and councillors.

BELGIUM AND THE VATICAN.

ROME, Dec. 9.—Cardinal Nina writes to the Papal Nuncio at Brussels that further overtures are inconsistent with the dignity of the Holy See. The Cardinal instructs the Papal Nuncio to return to Rome at once if the Belgian Government recalls it's ambassador to the Vatican.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAR.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A despatch from Valparaiso states that negotiations between Peru and Chili representing the guano trade, already mentioned in these despatches, have resulted in an arrangement by which Chili undertakes to protect the guano deposits on all the islands of the coast of Peru for a royalty of 30 shillings per ton, and allows Peruvian bondholders whatever profit may remain after the deduction has been made. This arrangement is regarded by the Peruvian Government as one of unfortunate necessity forced upon it by the result of the war.

A JUDGE'S TOAST.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The Court of Cassation has suspended a Toulouse judge for a year for toasting the Count de Chambord as King at a Legitimist banquet.

ARRESTS AT MOSCOW.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Up to the 5th inst. there were 170 arrests in Moscow and its neighbourhood, for supposed connection with the attempt on the life of the Czar.

THE ORDER OF ST. GEORGE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 9.—A grand review took place at St. Petersburg to-day, to commemorate the founding of the order of St. George. This evening a banquet was given, at which the Czar proposed the health of the Emperor William, saying, "My constant friend, the oldest knight of St. George."

A SANGUINARY ENGAGEMENT.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Intelligence received here states that the recent battle between Montenegrins and Albanians was one of the bloodiest and most destructive in the history of war. Not less than 1,500 troops are reported killed, and a vast additional number wounded. The fight was fought in the bitterest spirit, no quarter being given on either side. The troops exposed themselves recklessly, disdaining in many cases to avail themselves of the covers which the mountainous region in which the battle occurred offered. On almost all sides the scene when hostilities closed for the day was frightful. The ground was strewn with slain, and wagons are still employed day and night carrying off the dead for hasty burial, and the wounded into improvised hospitals. All the terrible fighting abilities of the warlike Albanians were brought out with magnificent effect, while their enemies were scarcely behind them in valour and dash. It is expected that later reports will rather increase than diminish the list of losses on both sides.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 9.—The municipal election resulted in the re-election of Mayor Prince, Democrat. At all points in the State where women voted for school commissioner, they voted nearly up to their full registration, which in Boston was nearly a thousand. They generally voted early in the day and came to the polls prepared already with ballots, an association of ladies favorable to the cause having sent by mail to all registered lady voters tickets headed with the names of the members of school commissioners. The decorum at the polls and courtesy shown the new element in the voting population was a noticeable feature of the day.

THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION.

FLOODS IN HUNGARY.

PESTH, Dec. 10.—The destruction of the dams on nearly all the principal rivers in Hungary and Transylvania and the terrible inundations are again filling the public mind with anxiety. But for the intense cold, Groswardein and several villages would share the fate of Szegedin. Temesvar, Arad and several towns in Transylvania were partly inundated on Monday, and a great number of houses fell in. So suddenly came the flood that hardly any preventive measures had been taken, and great damage to property are reported. There was no loss of life. The continuance of frost alone can prevent the most serious disasters.

RAILWAY COMPLETION.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 10.—The Cincinnati Southern Railway, upon which the city has lavished $18,600,000, was completed yesterday. A movement is on foot for bringing to the city an excursion party of 15,000 southern merchants to celebrate its completion.

TILDEN'S RAILWAY PROJECT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The Herald publishes a long statement intimating that Tilden has bought the New York and Oswego Midland Railway, and is securing control of the New Jersey Midland, intending to create a through route from New York to the west three or four hours shorter than the Central. Vanderbilt, it is said, to head off this scheme, found it necessary to combine with the Wabash people.

ROBBING THE INDIANS.

The Tribune says that the discussion yesterday of Belden's resolution for the removal of the Utes to the Indian Territory, a member of the committee raised the question whether it would be right to deprive the Utes of their land. Belden replied that when he came to Washington he had to cross five or six great States of which the Indians had been "deprived," and that it was too late in the day to discuss the moral phases of that subject.

A PRIZE FIGHT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Paddy Ryan, the Trojan pugilist, and Dwyer, of Brooklyn, champion of America, in Salem yesterday, fought for seven minutes. Dwyer was badly whipped. A UNITED STATES PRISON WANTED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The United States Grand jury yesterday called attention to the necessity for a Government prison for the confinement of offenders against the United States laws. LEFT TO STARVE.—A shocking case of neglect has just come to light in Hull. A youth of 17 years was taken down with small pox, and his family were so scared of the disease that no one would go near him. Some neighbors hearing of it went to the house with a bowl of soup. On entering they found the youth covered with blood, and almost at the point of death. The soup being placed to his lips, he ravenously swallowed it. An examination showed that he had eaten the flesh from one of his arms in his agony of hunger. He died in a few minutes.

THE CENTRAL PRISON WARDEN.—At the County Court, on Tuesday morning, Captain Prince, Warden of the Central Prison, appeared to answer a charge of assaulting a Mrs. Campbell, wife of a prison guard. It appears that the captain accused the woman of writing a certain letter in the Mail. She asked him what he meant, whereupon he roughly took hold of her and pushed her out of the room, considerably bruising her arm. The complainant's husband testified to bruises on his wife's arm, after which the counsel for the defendant claimed there was no case. During the remarks of counsel, Mrs. Campbell showed her vindictiveness by declaring she would live to see the Warden removed from his position as sure as there was a sky above his bald head.

NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

While we have no desire to carp at any reasonable expenditure for suitable Parliament Buildings for this Province, and while we think it is a wise proposition to sell the lands and buildings now used for this purpose in Toronto, and erect new ones in the University Park, we must enter our protest against the expenditure of a million of dollars for such a purpose. Surely the proceeds of the present site—estimated at $250,000—ought to be ample to provide accommodation for our Provincial Legislature, and the six departments of which the Provincial Government is composed, or we should rather say for five departments, inasmuch as the Department of Education will continue to be located, where it always has been, at the Normal School. The wanton extravagance of this proposal of Mr. Mowat's will be manifest when we mention that the total expenditure on the Ottawa buildings up to the 1st of July 1867, including furniture, architect's fees, arbitrations connected with their construction, &c., &c., was $2,723,981, and that the sum voted for their erection, when the Queen was asked to select the site was $900,000, or $100,000 less than the economical Mr. Mowat now proposes to spend on Parliament buildings for this Province alone. Of course, in this, as in everything else that interests Toronto—that is likely to benefit that city, no matter at what cost to the rest of the Province—the Mail and Globe equally approve of the expenditure. It is to be spent in Toronto; it will give employment to Toronto workmen; it will contribute to the prosperity of the Toronto merchant and land owner. And then, when built, they will hope to make the rest of the Province contribute to their municipal revenue just so much the more because it has already spent more than it ought on buildings, only required for a couple of months in the year for Provincial purposes, to beautify that selfish city. The whole scheme is such an extravagant one that if there were any independence in the country representatives in the Local Legislature, it would be at once voted down, but Mr. Mowat is so strong, and has such a meek and obedient following, that those of the Opposition who may feel disposed to oppose such wanton extravagance will not receive the support of even such economical gentlemen as the member for East Peterborough. Just think of it, eighty-eight gentlemen spending nearly $114,000 a piece of the people's money to enable them to "swell it" as legislators for a couple of months every year!

IMPORTANT RAILWAY ENTERPRISE.

From the Parry Sound North Star.

The citizens of Parry Sound District will be pleased to learn that the Midland Railway Company have given notice of an intended application at the next session of the Ontario Legislation for a charter to extend their line to Lake Nipissing, and also for power to sell or lease the road.

Within the past few months the Grand Trunk Railway has made traffic and other arrangements with the Midland and Whitby and Port Perry Railways, whereby freight from Toronto, Montreal, and other points on the Grand Trunk passes over these lines without change of cars when necessary, and it is generally understood that the Grand Trunk is desirous of buying or obtaining control of the Midland and that the power to sell or lease which the latter Company now desires is in order to facilitate such an arrangement. It is also known that the Grand Trunk feels the great importance of securing, in advance of the Canada Pacific Railway, the immense traffic now seeking ingress and egress to and from the Great North-west, which can only be effectually done by tapping the foot of navigation on Lake Superior at the Sault Ste. Marie, and at the same time making connections with the American line being pushed from the great wheat fields of Minnesota and the West to that point. The Midland being in nearly the shortest possible line from Montreal to the Sault, forms a very important link in the connection. Having once secured control of the Midland, and with it one of the finest harbors at the foot of the Georgian Bay, the Grand Trunk would only require to cause the construction of 250 miles of easily built road through a country being rapidly settled, and affording along the entire line an enormous traffic in supplying settlers and lumbermen and carrying a respectable portion of the great lumber product of the region.

The contemplated line would start from Coldwater on the Midland, cross the Severn River at the large mills bearing the same name, where some 15,000,000 feet of lumber is now produced annually, and proceed thence to Bala, a distance of thirty miles. Here the line would tap navigation in the Muskoka Lake and compete with the Northern in the large and growing trade of the Muskoka District. From Bala to this village is about thirty-five miles, and here the road would secure the great traffic now flowing into the Parry Sound district, and also the carrying of some thirty million feet of lumber annually manufactured here, which production is certain to largely increase, and which, in seeking an eastern market would nearly all pass over the road to Port Hope, paying for its transport from fifty to seventy-five thousand dollars annually. From Parry Sound the line would pass through a good agricultural country to the west end of Lake Nipissing, a distance of some forty-five miles, and would secure on its way the entire trade of the valley of the Magnetawan, rapidly growing in importance. At the crossing of the Magnetawan and French rivers, a lumber trade would immediately spring up which would tax the energies of the road to accommodate, as so many thousand square miles of timber lands yet untouched by the lumberman's axe are to be found on these two streams and their tributaries. From the crossing of the French River near Lake Nipissing, the line would follow as it would from Bala, the preliminary line prospected by Mr. Murdock, C. E., for the Old Pacific Junction Railway, and would cross on the way the Sault, the Wahnapitate, the Whitefish, the Spanish, the Serpent, the Blind, the Tessalon and the Garden rivers, all rapidly becoming more important lumber districts, and which, it is estimated by competent authority, will, combined, produce within the next ten years at least one thousand million feet of lumber annually, at a minimum cost each year of seven million dollars, the freight on which will aggregate some twenty million dollars annually.

It is true a large part of the lumber freight would go by water, and necessarily so, for no railway could accommodate it. These figures may be doubted by those unacquainted with the vast proportions of the lumber trade of this continent; but when we state that the official returns to October 28th show that no less than twelve hundred and sixty-nine million feet of lumber has been received during the present season at Chicago alone, and that the State of Michigan has for years produced over three thousand million feet per annum, it will be conceded by those acquainted with our vast lumber regions that our figures are more likely to be a few below than above the mark.

It is therefore not surprising that the able managers of the Grand Trunk contemplate solving the vexed question of how best to accommodate the growing traffic of the North-west by building the shortest, most natural, and only common-sense line of railway yet discussed, which will not only compete the colonization of Ontario proper, and accommodate the great lumber interests, but at the same time secure the trade of Lake Superior, Manitoba and Minnesota.

The Ontario Government which so generously offered a bonus of $4,000 per mile to aid in the construction of a railway "from some point in Muskoka District as far north as Gravenhurst to a point in the Georgian Bay Branch west of the east side of Lake Nipissing," is known to be anxious to secure the construction of a line to the Sault Ste. Marie, and in case the Grand Trunk push the proposed extension, will no doubt give substantial aid—enough in fact to place the scheme on a sound financial basis.

THE TRENT CANAL.

A telegram to the Globe from Montreal says:

"Ald. Nelson in the City Council this afternoon invited the attention of the aldermen and the citizens generally to a request made by the promoters of the Trent Valley Canal that Montreal should bear a share in pressing upon the Government the advisability of constructing this cut. It is claimed that it would make the water route between Montreal and Chicago more than 500 miles nearer than New York, and Duluth, and other points correspondingly nearer. The matter has been referred to the Finance Committee for the present."

THE "GLOBE" GUNS SPIKED.

It is beginning to look as if the Globe's guns were spiked. When Mr. Mills, one of the most prominent men in the Reform ranks, advocated the reconstruction of the Senate, the Globe turned its guns on him, and nearly blew him into the classical regions of Ann Arbor University. But Mr. Mackenzie makes a stronger speech to the same purpose, and the Globe does not even so much as throw a brick at him. To make matters worse, Mr. Blake takes the stump, advocates a change in regard to the Senate, favors compulsory voting, and gives an enthusiastic support to a scheme of minority representation—all of which is directly contrary to Mr. Brown's indeas. Yet the Globe has not a word to say. It simply blinks and looks solemn, like a dyspeptic owl. There can be no doubt about it—the guns are spiked.

A REMARKABLE RECORD

The Port Hope Times says:—The record of Mr. Geo. Humphreys, wagon-maker at Lotus, in Manvers township, is so remarkable a one that it deserves the fullest publicity. Mr. Humphreys was born in Cavan, Ireland, just 52 years ago, and his wife was born in the township of Cavan, Canada, about the same year. Since he was 20 years of age, he has been married, and a member of L.O.L. No. 79. He turns the scales at 180 lbs., and his better and heavier half at 200. He has earned $5 per day, in Farr's Foundry, by wooding plows, and his quickest feat in this direction was wooding a plow in 40 minutes. Ten years since he completely wooded a threshing machine in 10 days, and out of the rough wood, without the ready made hubs and spokes of the present day, he turned out a complete set of wagon wheels in 20 hours. But the most startling portion of his and his wife's record is yet to come. They have been married just 31 years, and are the parents of 19 children, 16 of whom are now living. There have been, as he himself expresses it, "four pairs in the lot." The youngest is five years of age, so that they have all been born to their parents in 27 years. This prolific and happy couple have 29 grand-children, and are now only 52 years of age, and are apparently in the best of robust health. This certainly is a remarkable record, and we would like to know if it can be beaten.

ALMOST A MURDER.

A Young Girl Dangerously Wounded by a Lunatic.

FORT ROWAN, Dec. 7.—F. C. White, a young Englishman aged 18, working for a Miss Hutchinson on a farm a few miles from this place, when labouring under a fit of temporary insanity, it is supposed, attempted on Friday afternoon about four o'clock to take the life of a young girl aged fourteen. She was residing at the same place, and had, it seems, gone into her bedroom to dress herself when the atrocious act was committed. He was splitting wood, and started for the house, entered her bedroom, her back being towards him, and struck her twice before she fell, and once when down, inflicting serious wounds, from which it is doubtful if she can recover. After doing this he went and hid himself. The neighbours finding him to-day, brought him here and placed him under arrest. Mr. Cartwright, constable, has taken charge of him, and he will be brought up before a justice of the peace on Monday.

CONCERNING DOCTORING

"Who are you doctoring with now?" is the not infrequent enquiry of friendship in the country parts. "Well, I tried Dr. Jones, and "I thought he helped me some at first, but it "all wore off, and now I am trying Dr. Smith. "He ain't one of the regular doctors, but they "do say he cures more folks than those that are "—he cured Corinthy Anne Browne of the can-"cer." The normal condition of many of our people who ought to be the healthiest people in the world seems to be expressed by this word doctoring. If the doctor could convince the people that it would be possible to live more healthily than on a monotonous diet of pork and boiled tea, varied with pies and cakes made largely of almost the same constituents as soap, viz. grease and baking powder—the latter being principally soda or potash—he might enable them to leave off doctoring pretty soon. But what doctor wants his patient to leave off doctoring? Even if the doctor honestly wanted his patients to get well the latter would not let him act towards that end. If he does not recommend plenty of medicine, they will go for those that will, or buy bottles of store medicines which have possibly themselves been a considerable cause of the present need of doctoring. It is a pity that a nation which has so largely foresworn alcohol, should seek after all sorts of noxious drugs in such quantities as Canadians do. It is like the ancient Israelites, who were scarcely off with one idolatry before they got mixed up with another. It is an awful heresy, we know, to suggest that farmers' wives do not understand how to supply a wholesome table, and we shall not urge this remark as applicable to our own readers, but we do think if the pork and tea could be largely replaced with porridge, brown bread, vegetables, fruit and milk, that they might soon let doctoring for stomach and liver complaints very much alone.—Witness.

STRENGTH BY EXERCISE.

Mr. William Blaikie's now celebrated book, How to Get Strong and How to Stay So, has been re-published by J. Ross Robertson, Toronto, in his popular 30 cent "library." Mr. Blaikie is such an enthusiast in favor of physical training that the reader of the book can hardly fail to receive the impression that gymnastic exercises are a remedy for almost every bodily ill. A careful distinction is drawn between spasmodic or special gymnastic feats of the kind which make a good show, but which are injurious rather than beneficial, and the careful training of every muscle, and especially the weak ones, by regular exercise. Mr. Blaikie points out the importance of such training for women, for business and professional men, and especially for firemen and policemen. He also vigorously recommends the daily use of free gymnastics in all schools and colleges for both boys and girls. It ought, he says, to be made compulsory in every school in the land, [illegible] examinations reasonable progress will be expected in this department as well as in any other. Mr. Blaikie in his enthusiasm for this training, of which all he says is doubtless true, rather overlooks the fact that if a man or woman be overworked already, either mentally or physically, the addition of half an hour or an hour of vigorous exercise will only tend to make the break-down come sooner. To do good it must be taken in exchange for other work, and not in addition to it. The difficulty with advice of the kind given in this book is that it is apt to be taken by the wrong people. The highly organised energetic man, whose nervous system is on the strain eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, and who never rests a moment while awake, and while asleep dreams of new enterprises, is delighted to add to his tasks the fascinating exercises which will, he is assured, add in a magic way to his vigor and power for work. He thus hurries forward to the serious illness or state of complete nervous prostration which is the almost inevitable fate of such workers, but which he might have escaped if absolute rest had taken the place of unnecessary exercise. On the other hand, the man of easy-going, lethargic nature, who is far stouter than necessary, and who would be much the better of a gentle course of physical training, is inclined to scorn the whole system, or, at any rate, to feel convinced that he has no time for it. Even in the case of school-children, especially girls, caution is necessary in the use of artificial systems of exercise, but there can be no doubt of the great importance of such training, and we trust that soon no curriculum will be thought complete without it.

CRIME OF A ROMAN MATRON.

(Rome Correspondence of the London News.)

The assassination of Captain Fadda, which comes on for trial at the Roman assizes on the 30th, is exceptionally dramatic in its details even in this country of dramatic crime. The "act of accusation," the reading of which will be the first step in the trial, is not, of course, made public, but the following will be found to anticipate its tenor. In 1871 Signor Giovanni Fadda, then a lieutenant in the army, was residing at Naples, and there he made the acquaintance of Signora Raffaella Saraceni, a lady in good circumstances. Their acquaintance ripened into marriage, shortly after which Lieutenant Fadda, having been promoted to the rank of captain, removed with his wife first to Caltanisetta, in Sicily, and thence to Rome. This union proved an unhappy one as early as their residence at Caltanisetta, where Captain Fadda formed suspicions of his wife's fidelity while his wife availed herself of every pretext to absent herself from her home, and to reside at Cassano all'Ionio, near her mother. These absences became more frequent and more prolonged, until a practical separation between husband and wife took place. In fact, Capt. Fadda made complete restitution to his wife of everything he had received from her, and his wife took up her abode permanently near her mother at Cassano. In 1878 there arrived in that town the travelling equestrian circus of Lorenzo Cardinali, among the chief performers in which was Pietro Cardinali, a man of thirty-two years of age, handsome in appearance, and powerfully built. With this man Signora Fadda became intimately acquainted, and openly amorous relations were formed between them. Cardinali, of the two women with whom he travelled, had one as his mistress, Enrichetta Carrozza by name, a female equestrian performer who passed for his sister, although she had two children by him; the other was Carolina Misuraccia, a woman of similar character. The former, Carrozza, under the pretext of being Cardinali's sister, acted as internuncio between him and Signora Fadda. Witnesses will be brought to prove that on various occasions Cardinali and Signora Fadda talked freely of getting rid of the Captain, even by violent means, so as to be at liberty to marry each other. In fact, 100 ducats (about £20) was offered by them to a buffoon of the circus, one Carluccio, if he would murder Capt. Fadda, but the buffoon declined the operation. A few days afterward Cardinali quitted the circus and came to Rome for the purpose of reconnoitring the ground. He called on Capt. Fadda, who did not know him, representing himself as a cabinet maker from Cassano, and as the bearer of kind inquiries on the part of the Saraceni family. The Captain received him courteously, thanked him for his service, and gave him something to drink. Having taken an accurate survey of the Captain's residence and its general menage, Cardinali went to Corigliano Calabro, at which the circus had newly pitched its tent. He remained there, however, but a short time, and toward the close of September he set out again for Rome in company with a groom of his acquaintance, who acted as his servant, and went by the name of De Luca. Cardinali gave out at Corigliano that he was going to Naples to purchase horses, while De Luca was also going thither to consult an oculist. Arrived at Bari, they put up at a tavern kept by one Forleo, an old friend of Cardinali, and to this man Cardinali confidentially revealed his intrigue with a rich lady separated from her husband, and even the murderous object of his journey to Rome. "She has given me," he said to Forleo, "a hundred and twenty piastres to undertake the killing of her husband. I am going to Rome, and if I find no one to take the job off my hands, I will do it myself." Before getting into the train at the Bari railway station Cardinali got a porter to write at his dictation a letter dated "Rome," and purporting to be written by a married Roman lady to Captain Fadda, warning him to discontinue his visits to her, because her husband, who had discovered all, would kill her and the Captain too. This letter was found on the floor of the room in which Captain Fadda was murdered, and was obviously an artful ruse to divert the track of justice. On their arrival in Rome, Cardinali and De Luca took lodgings in the Via della Marmorella, a few paces from Fadda's house. A fellow-lodger, from what he saw during the day and overheard during the night, convinced himself that the two strangers were preparing a crime of blood. It was the 1st of October, 1878, when De Luca and Cardinali reached Rome, and on that day they found Captain Fadda was out of town. He was, in fact, at Castrovillari on furlough. Thereupon Cardinali despatched to Enrichetta Carrozza, his reputed sister, two telegrams couched in obscure slang, and the woman telegraphed a reply to them, also in slang. From those vaguely-worded dispatches had been made out a mysterious proposal, relating to a person who had left Rome, who was then at Castrovillari, and whose return Cardinali was awaiting. Meanwhile Cardinali presented himself day after day at the Captain's residence, but the servant left in charge (a soldier) informed him that his master had not yet returned, and that he was expecting him every morning. At last Capt. Fadda returned, and happening to pass with his servant through the Piazza delle Chiavi d'Oro, he saw Cardinali, and recognized him as the cabinet-maker who not long ago had brought him the kind inquiries of the Saraceni family. At the same time the servant, indicating Cardinali, said to his master: "There is the man who came and asked after you." Both master and servant, however, were surprised to see the person they had just set eyes on turn right round and walk away as if he had forgotten something. Cardinali, as I have said, arrived in Rome on the 1st of October. On the morning of the 6th took place the murder, of which full details will be given at the trial. The following facts are already known:—On the 5th Cardinali had gone to the bureau of the 22nd Regiment, to which bureau Captain Fadda belonged; but he failed to find the Captain. Cardinali, on leaving, said that he had come from Chieti with a box from the Captain, and that he would bring it to his house next morning. He came accordingly, and on tapping at the door was answered by the servant. "Is the Captain in?" he asked. "Yes; what do you want with him?" "Tell him I have a box for him; but I have left it in the Piazza Monte Citorio, at Petito's carpet warehouse. Come and take it." The servant went in to tell his master, and was told he might accompany the man and bring back the box. He went accordingly, but on reaching the Piazza Monte Citorio, they found the warehouse closed. Cardinali then said, "Wait here till I go to Petito's house in the Piazza Venezia, and get the key from him. I'll be back immediately." And off he set at a rapid pace. Once rid of the servant, he made straight for Capt. Fadda's house. A moment thereafter a man was seen running from that house in his drawers, and pointing to another man, also running ahead of him. The pursuer was Captain Fadda, bleeding to death from several deep wounds inflicted by a pointed weapon. After making a final effort to indicate the fugitive, he sank on the ground and died. On the stairs was found a stiletto reeking with fresh blood. A number of citizens gave chase to the fugitive, shouting, "Stop the murderer," till two guards of public security arrested him, and in spite of his desperate struggles to escape, took him to the police office. He there said his name was Pietro Cardinali, professional equestrian. His hands were stained with blood. He said then, what he persisted in saying before the Judge d'Instruction, that he was innocent, that when caught he was running by chance, that his business in Rome was to find employment in his profession, and that the blood-stains were due to his having been employed in bleeding a horse some days before. The same day, on information received from the lodging house where he had put up, his companion, De Luca, was arrested just as he was preparing to leave Rome by train. This man confessed he was privy to Cardinali's design, of which he gave a full account. He is now, however, beyond human jurisdiction, having died of consumption in Carcere Nuove. Three days after the murder, in consequence of the preliminary investigation, Raffaella Saraceni, or Fadda, and Enrichetta Carrozza were arrested as accomplices. Both denied the slightest knowledge of the crime. Among the papers found in Captain Fadda's house are two—a copy of verses in his own handwriting, running to 15 stanzas, and complaining bitterly that he was deceived by his wedded wife, and compelled to despise her. The other document is a certificate signed by Lieut.-Col. Calcaqui, of the Seventh Regiment of Infantry, setting forth that Capt. Fadda received two wounds at the battle of San Martino, in the campaign of the allied troops against Austria in 1859.

FRIENDSHIP IN THE FAMILY.

It is undoubtedly true that, although many things that render life precious to us are found in the family, friendship, as we commonly understand it, is not often among them. There are strong ties of mutual interest and affection, based partly upon natural and instinctive feelings, partly on the habit of close and constant intercourse, and partly on the duties, responsibilities, and dependences which those relations involve. But when we look for friendship, either in its poetry and romance, its thrilling intercourse, or its sympathy of purpose and endeavor, it is usually outside, not within the circle of near mankind.

Many reasons may be alleged for this, the most cogent of which is probably the blunting influence of continual familiarity. Living always together, the members of one family are apt to become monotonous and uninteresting to one another. Having had such abundant opportunity, they fancy they have entirely fathomed each other and that there is nothing more to find out. There is no longer the attraction of curiosity or the stimulus of variety. They are not vividly impressed, nor do they feel ably to impress in their turn. So there comes to be a tameness and insipidity about home life which is supposed to be inherent in it. The feeling of the uselessness of effort deadens effort, and a lukewarm spirit of calm good-will is all that is even aimed at. That this is the case in numerous families may be proved by the change which they experience on the arrival of any valued guest. New life and energy seem to enter with him and pervade the hitherto listless household, each one feels a new pleasure and an unwonted desire to please, which are equally exhilarating; but, after his departure, they gradually sink back into the old apathetic routine. Of course the eager heart of youth especially cannot be satisfied with this; it must put out its tendrils and cling to something; it craves animated intercourse, warm sympathy, earnest purposes, strong emotions, and finds them in outside friendships.

Now, while such attachments are not to be indiscriminately discouraged, bringing their own special advantages and pleasures, it is to be sincerely deplored that friendships inside the home are so exceedingly rare, and that the young are so generally growing up in the idea that they are impossible. There are, of course, many honorable exceptions to this, where not only husband and wife have been lifelong and devoted friends, but also parents and children, brothers and sisters. Yet the careful preservation of these instances, and the extreme respect accorded to them, proves their comparative rarity. Probably each of us can recall a few such cases, which stand out in bold relief against the multitudes of households who consider themselves highly blessed if they only succeed in avoiding contention and preserving a tolerable civility among one another.

Yet it would seem as if nearly all the material for earnest and steadfast friendship might be found within a circle already joined by bonds of instinctive affection and mutual interest. There is sufficient similarity of taste, purpose and position, to win sympathy; and there is sufficient variety of age, sex and circumstance, to prevent monotony. There is every opportunity for elevating a natural fondness into loftier affection, for developing the germs of respect and love into the rich and full growth of noble friendship. All the more delicate relations of sex are fulfilled in their utmost purity by the friendship of mother and son, father and daughter, brother and sister. Why then should years spent under the same roof so often separate and scatter the affections of childhood, instead of cementing and strengthening them into the rich and steadfast friendships of maturer life?

Probably the chief cause of this is that people rely on the instinctive force of natural affection as being all-sufficient, without effort. They imagine that family love is strong enough to take care of itself, so they take but little pains to preserve it from the shocks and jars of daily life. And they also suppose that they are so well known to each other that it is not worth while to present their fairer side. In all this they are mistaken. Natural affection offers a fine foundation on which to erect the edifice of a firm and enduring friendship, but it will not rise up of itself. We must build it, stone by stone, if we would possess it. If we have a respected friend, what pains we take to cherish his friendship; how carefully we endeavour to prune away from ourselves that which would displease him and cultivate those qualities which he admires; how we strive to gratify him by pleasant surprises and to avoid all that could wound or trouble him! Yet, let the familiar house door shut us in, and how many of us take the same pains? Here we throw off our restraint, we air our worst side, that has been sedulously hidden, and allow our better qualities, that have been in full exercise, to fall asleep. How many of us anxiously make the most and the best of ourselves to our family? How many of us regard the home as the arena for giving, not getting pleasure, for spreading, not absorbing comfort. It is the simple working of a natural and inevitable law; that which we sow we surely shall reap. If we cultivate the home friendships with the same assiduity that we give to those outside, they will yield us even richer and fairer returns. There is no friendship so pure and beautiful in its nature, so rich and full in its power of blessing, or so singularly rare in its occurrence, as that between parents and their grown up sons and daughters. Where the parental and filial instincts are supplemented by that higher and more spiritual affection that bind together minds in intellectual communion, and souls in heart-felt sympathy, few deeper or more delightful friendships can be imagined. The guardian and dependent gradually lose themselves in the dear companion and true friend of later life; and youth becomes wiser and age brighter, and both nobler and happier, in this loving and abiding union. If, however, we would enjoy any of the precious friendships of home, we must preserve the delicacy and freshness of each family relation; we must cultivate those qualities which endear us to one another; we must have faith in the power of love, and regard its obligations as our highest privileges.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Invaluable Liniment.

For all purposes of a family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil will be found invaluable. The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 10.—The market to-day was small owing to the inclemency of the weather. There were few farmers and fewer towns people present. The bulk of the offerings were pork and beef. Pork went slowly at $5, except some choice hogs, which were taken for packing purposes at $5.00 to $5.25. Beef was slow at $3.50 to $4.50 per cwt. There were a few lots of keg butter in, and packers took them at our quotations. Roll butter was steady at 20c. There were a few lots of poultry, and sales were slow at quotations. A few lots of potatoes sold at 60c. to 75c. per bag. There were only a few lots of apples, and nothing else in the general line worth mentioning was offered. Several loads of hay found difficulty in getting takers at the lowest quotations. Wood, as usual, was abundant and slow of sale. No grain came in. There were a few parcels of choice clover seed taken at $4.75 to $5.00 per bushel. For choice seed $5 may be considered the ruling figure.

A Conundrum Propounded.

CHEST AND LUNG DISEASES.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible, Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. d127-w49-2w

Volunteer Fire Companies.

Steps are to be taken at once to organize several new volunteer fire companies. They will thus soon be in working order, and will be fully qualified to take charge when the time arrives when the engagement of the present company expires.

T. V. C.

We learn that Mr. Stark, C. E., is about to proceed to Lake Simcoe on behalf of the Dominion Government to make a further examination to ascertain the most feasible route for the outlet of the Trent Valley Canal into the Georgian Bay.

Medical

It will be seen by our advertising columns that Dr. King, late of Baillieboro, South Monaghan, has commenced the practice of his profession in Peterborough. Doctor King had a large and lucrative practice at Baillieboro, and will doubtless soon secure a similar one here.

New Sidewalk Sign

Mr. Wm. Yelland has had a new sign erected across the sidewalk from a substantial post to the warehouse. The sign is painted in black letters on a white ground and can be read at a great distance. Signs across the sidewalk are getting to be fashionable in Peterborough.

The Skating and Curling Rink

The severe labour expended yesterday at the Skating and Curling Rink seems to have been to no purpose. The change in the weather from 20° to 40° destroyed all that had been accomplished. Mr Stewart will, if probabilities can be relied upon, be able to get his ice surface this week.

A Welcome Visitor

The Port Hope Times says:—

"The Peterborough Daily Evening REVIEW has entered upon the second year of its publication. It is a good paper, full of well digested news and editorials, and being exceedingly well printed, will be even a more welcome visitor to the families of that town than when it was in its infancy. Experience teaches—you know."

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: cloudy weather with rain; southerly winds, followed by colder westerly winds to-morrow. In Peterborough south-easterly to southerly winds, cloudy with rain; the thermometer at noon indicating 42° and indications of a change toward dryer weather.

New and Improved Telephone.

The Dominion Telegraph Company are erecting wires to connect the office of the company, with the store house of Messrs. Cluxton & McBain, and Mr. Cluxton's office. A new and improved telephone is to be used, and will be so arranged that they can communicate with each point by means of a cut off, without interfering with the other, and all communications are thus made private.

Southern Curiosities.

Mr. H. Rush of the firm of Rush & Elliott has just returned from an extended trip through the United States to New Orleans and to Vera Cruz, Mexico, having been absent about six weeks. His trip has been successful in every particular. His health has been greatly improved as his general appearance indicates. He has enjoyed the hospitality of a people who are distinguished for their courtesy to strangers. He has visited the various points of interest and has brought back a fund of information which is interesting and instructive. While in Vera Cruz, Mexico, he obtained samples of tobacco, cigars and green almonds, some of the staples of that country; also two Mexican parrots which were brought from the mountains expressively for him. At New Orleans he visited all the important points including the great cotton presses, the sugar plantations, and inspected the mode of gathering the sugar cane and the process of grinding it and extracting the molasses and sugar; the tobacco presses &c. He has brought with him samples of sugar as prepared upon the plantation, as also sugar cane as it grows in the fields; he has also a fine exhibit of oranges taken from the tree by his own hands, and other curiosities which he is ready to show and explain. Those who are desirous of seeing the orange as it grows in its natural state, have now an opportunity afforded them of doing so by calling at the store. He speaks in glowing terms of the kindness and courtesy extended to him by all with whom he came in contact.

FIRE MATTERS

Interesting Statistics of Our Fire Department—Number and Amount of Losses.

We glean the following interesting statistics from the report of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Brigade, for 1879, which was submitted to the Council on Monday night:—

For the year ending Nov. 30th, 1879, the total number of fires were as follows:—Peterborough, 20; Ashburnham, 2.

Only one false alarm was given.

The services of the Brigade were not required at [illegible] fires.

Eleven fires occured during the day and 12 at night.

The causes were, accidental 20, incendiary, 2.

The months in which they occurred were as follows:—

December	2	June	1
January	2	July	0
February	3	August	4
March	0	September	2
April	4	October	1
May	2	November	1

The total number of buildings injured or destroyed was 27, occupied for the following purposes:—Dwellings, 8; stables, 5; factories, 3; hotels, 2; skating rink, 1; stores, 3; cooper shop, 1; smoke house, 1; ice house, 1; shingle mill, 1; foundry, 1. They were built as follows:—Brick, 5; rough-cast, 5; clap-board, 1; wood, 16.

Total Loss	$14,572
Total Insurance	8,630
Loss over Insurance	$ 5,952

This, however, includes Toole's factory, the loss on which was $5,000, with no insurance.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT

AN IMPOSING PARADE.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A Cabul despatch says some Kohistans have come in and surrendered. An influential native agent collecting supplies at Maidan has been murdered. That part of the country is much disturbed, and it is reported the rebels are collecting in force there. Two brigades march upon Maidan immediately under command of Generals Baker and McPherson. An imposing parade of all the troops here, numbering 5,000, was held to day. The display made an evident impression on the numerous Afghan spectators. The report that Ayoub Khan has started from Herat with twelve regiments to attack Candahar is confirmed. It is thought probable, when he obtains full intelligence of the condition of affairs at Cabul, he will abandon the enterprise.

PORT HOPE

ACCIDENT.—Mr. J. F. McMurtry, while splitting a piece of wood in his wood-yard, in lifting his axe to strike a second or third time, brought it in contact with a slab which projected over the fence, when the back of the axe glanced off this on to the top of his head, inflicting a heavy bruise and slightly cutting the skin.

THE HARBOR.—The Times says:—Navigation at this port may now be practically considered closed, all our vessels are at home and laid up, with the exception of the steam barge Lothair and the Corriande, which will winter this season at Port Colborne. The harbor light will be no more lighted, and receipts and shipments are closed for the season. And not the least result of the closing of navigation is that the storm lobster will have a three months' rest, and we may have some weather without its undue interference. There are 24 vessels of various sorts in the harbor, and their names are as follows:—Steamer Norseman; Schooners—Ariel, Agnes Hope, Annie Minnes, Albatross, Annie Craig, Aurora, Cavalier, Caroline Marsh, D. Freeman, Eliza White, Eliza Quinlan, Flora Carveth, Flora Emma, Garibaldi, Great Western, John A. Macdonald, Lewis Ross, Mary Ann Lydon, Maria Annette, Two Brothers, Wanderer, W. T. Greenwood, and the tug Albert Wright.

MARMORA.

ASBESTOS.—The Stirling News-Argus says:—We have been shown samples of this mineral, which has been discovered in unlimited quantities in the vicinity of Marmora. It is used for the manufacture of felt, etc., and is said to be worth $85 per ton in New York. If such is the case, a source of wealth hitherto unknown lies in that region, which promises to be even more valuable than any of the gold or iron mines now in operation, as there is no further preparatory process after the stuff is taken from the earth.

How Long Have I to Live.

It is not every one who asks himself this question because, strangely enough, it is the belief of most persons that their lives will be exceptionally lengthy. However, life insurance companies are aware of the credulous weakness of those whose lives they assure, and have therefore compiled numerous tables of expectancy of life for their own guidance, which is carefully referred to before a policy is granted. The following is one of those well authenticated tables in use among London Assurance Companies, showing the average length of life at various ages. In the first column we have the present ages of persons of average health, and in the second column we are enabled to peep, as it were, behind the scenes of an assurance office, and gather from their table the number of years they will give us to live. This table has been the result of careful calculation, and seldom proves misleading. Of course sudden and premature deaths, as well as lives unusually extended, occasionally occur, but this is a table of the averaged expectancy of life of an ordinary man or woman:

Age.	More Years to Live.
[illegible]	39
10	51
20	41
30	34
40	28
50	[illegible]
60	21
70	14
80	4

Our readers will easily gather from the above tabulated statement the number of years to which their lives according to the law of averages, may reasonably be expected to extend.

CHAFF.

LET friendship creep gently to a height; if it rushes to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.

"LET girls be girls." Yes that's so. A change couldn't be for the better, and it might be for the worse.

"WOMAN's inhumanity to man," says an old brute of a bachelor, "is what keeps the broom market steady."

A YOUNG lady who had been married a little over a year wrote to her matter-of-fact old father, saying:—"We have the dearest little cottage in the world, ornamented with the most charming little creepers you ever saw." The old man read the letter and exclaimed, "Twins, by thunder."

"BOYS, I'M GONE!"

The Exclamation of a Brakeman as He Falls Fatally Stabbed.

WATERFORD, Ont., Dec. 9.—About 6 p.m. to-day, at Slaight's Hotel here, a man named Michael Donly, a brakesman on the Canada Southern railway, was fatally stabbed by another employee of the road, a navvy named Wm. Lewis. It appears Donly was engaged in a dispute with a stranger in the bar-room, when Lewis interfered. Donly at once pulled off his coat to fight him, when Lewis, to escape, ran behind the bar. Donly followed, and caught him with both hands by the coat collar, and pushed him up in the corner. He then loosened one of his hands, when Lewis stabbed him in the groin. Donly at once turned round, walked to the end of the bar, and exclaimed, "Boys, I am gone," and was caught before falling and laid on the floor, where he died in about ten minutes. Donly leaves a wife and two children, who live in St. Thomas. Lewis at once went home to his boarding house and was eating his supper when constable Henry went in and arrested him and had him safely lodged in the lock-up. An inquest will be held this evening.

LABORATORY, UNIVERSITY COLLEGE,
TORONTO, December 4th, 1872.

To the Victoria Chemical Co.:

Gentlemen,—I have examined the articles employed in the Victoria Chemical Works, in the preparation of the Victoria Syrup of Hypophosphites. The several Hypophosphites used are chemically pure, and the Syrup is also quite free from any impurity. Your Syrup of Hypophosphites will undoubtedly prove a very valuable medicine.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—found in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption destroyed. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

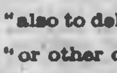
MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!



WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

NEW KIDNAPPING CASE.

MRS. DEAL, THE MOTHER OF THE KIDNAPPERS, HERSELF KIDNAPPED.

Seized in the City and Driven to the Suburbs—A Successful Struggle to Escape—The Clothes Torn from Her Back.

Special to the Review.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—The Evening Telegram contains a report of the abduction of Mrs. Deal, mother of the young men who kidnapped Mr. Jaffray some time ago. According to Mrs. Deal's story, two men seized her about 7 o'clock last night while she was walking on Jarvis street, and after throwing a shawl over her head, containing chloroform, placed her in a buggy where a woman was seated, and drove her as far as Avenue Road, Yorkville. The chloroform stupefied her at first, but she recovered after driving a few miles, and by some means escaped out of the hands of her captors on Avenue Road. She had several struggles before getting free, during which her her back. She finally got clear and ran into the porch of the residence of Mr. John MacDonald, ex-M.P., and that gentleman ordered his coachman to drive her home. Mrs. Deal was not indecently assaulted nor was she robbed, and no explanation can be given of the abduction. This morning she was in bed, unable to rise, and was occasionally slightly delirious.

CLOTHES WERE COMPLETELY TORN OFF

SAVAGE DOGS.—The Times says:—The dog which bit Mr. Quay's little boy a few days ago, was shot to-day by consent of all parties. When the owner of a dog finds it is getting ferocious, or inclined to bite, the better way is to kill it once, and avoid future possible trouble and annoyance.

BIG FLOOD.—The Guide says:—The workmen engaged on the roof of the Music Hall had it partly uncovered on Tuesday, not expecting rain at this season of the year; but the storm came on, and has flooded the premises to such an extent that nine men and boys with brooms, are busy sweeping the water down the front steps, which makes a juvenile Niagara. One thing is certain, the tobacco stains which have befouled the floor for the past twelve years will get washed off for once.

NORWOOD.

THE REEVESHIP.—The Register is our authority for announcing that Mr. P. M. Grover will be a candidate for Reeve, in opposition to Mr. Pearce, who has represented the Village in the County Council, since its incorporation.

THE CANAL.—The Norwood Council have passed a memorial in favor of the Trent Valley Canal.

TRUE BLUES.—At the annual meeting of Loyal Orange Lodge of True Blues, of Norwood, held in their lodge room on Friday, the 5th inst., the following brethren were appointed officers for the current year:—J. D. Ackerman, Master; Abel Wigmore, Deputy Master; W. McKay, Secretary; Wm. Hutchinson, Treasurer; R. N. Foster, Chaplain; J. D. Becket, 1st committeeman.

THE FIRST RE-UNION.—The first re-union of the season, under the auspices of the Norwood Mechanics' Institute, will be held in the Town Hall on the evening of Wednesday next, the 17th inst., when the inaugural address of the President, Dr. Ford, will be delivered, and a rich literary and musical programme will be provided. Doors open at 7 o'clock; admission only five cents.

Development of Canada.

Among the papers shortly to be read before the Royal Colonial Institute in London is one by Mr. John G. Bourinot, of this city, on "The National Development of Canada." The paper read before the same Institute some years ago on the "Maritime industry of Canada," attracted, we remember, a good deal of notice from the English press. The Institute—of which H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is now President—has already a list of over one thousand Fellows, embracing many of the best-known names in the Empire. Its volumes of proceedings, which run over some ten years, contain an immense amount of useful information bearing on the resources of the Colonial Empire of Great Britain.—Ottawa Free Press.

CHRISTMAS SUPPLEMENT TO THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

The publishers of the REVIEW beg to announce that they have arranged to issue a Christmas number of the WEEKLY REVIEW on Friday, December 19th, containing six large, full-sized pages. This edition will contain a large amount of interesting reading, specially selected for the approaching holiday season, and possessing such attractions as will make it an unusually welcome visitor in the homes of every one.

It is the intention of the publishers to print not less than 3,000 copies of this edition, and to circulate them throughout every section of the town and county.

It will be obvious that our Christmas number will afford to merchants and others a rare opportunity for advertising, and as a large amount of extra labour will necessarily be involved, those desiring to avail themselves of it are requested to send in their orders not later than the afternoon of Wednesday.

WATER CARRIAGE.

No better illustration of the utter incapacity of railways to attract the grain trade of the west to the St. Lawrence route, could be afforded than the fact that the Montreal Transportation Company, with a line of twenty-seven barges and five tugs, this year carried from Kingston to Montreal 6,295,193 bushels of grain, which is equal to 17,986 cars of 350 bushels each, which is equal to 900 trains of twenty cars each, which is equal to six trains per day for six months, and twelve trains per day for three months. And what is six millions of bushels but a mere drop in the bucket of the trade of the west—a trade which has in the past doubled itself in a comparatively short period, and which must grow much more rapidly in the future if there is any truth whatever in the reported fertility of our own Nor'-west. The difficulty of the future is not in having sufficient freight for the avenues of egress, but of having sufficient avenues for the produce to be carried.

MONTREAL AND THE CANAL.

WE extract from the report of the Montreal Evening Post the following account of the proceedings in the City Council on Tuesday in reference to the Trent Valley Canal:—

"A letter was read, signed by J. J. Lundy, Mayor of Peterborough, Chairman, and H. H. Smith, Secretary-Treasurer, of a committee appointed for the purpose of urging before the Government the merits of the Trent Valley Canal scheme, and asking co-operation and immediate action by the appointment of delegates to wait upon the Minister of Public Works.

Ald. NELSON spoke at length in favour of the scheme and endeavoured to show that it offered the nearest route to the seaboard from 150,000 square miles of arable lands in Minnesota, Dakota and Montana, irrespective of the North-West Territory and British Columbia. The Canal would run from the Georgian Bay to some point at or near Trenton, thus making a saving between Chicago, Duluth, and Montreal, over present route, of 400 miles, and a saving to the seabord, as compared with via Buffalo and New York, of 515 miles. Nearly three-fourths of the route of the canal would be through a country studded with navigable lakes. He moved, seconded by Ald. Grenier, that the Mayor be authorized to appoint a delegation, in conjunction with the other delegates, to confer with the Dominion Government and urge the advisability of investigating the matter.

Ald. HOLLAND moved in amendment seconded by Ald. HOOD, that the circular be laid on the table. The amendment was lost by 10 against 7.

Ald. HOOD moved, in amendment, seconded by Ald. LAURENT, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee—Carried."

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Action of the Simcoe County Council—Mr. Dalton McCarthy, M.P., on the Subject.

At the close of his address to the County Council on railway matters on Friday, Mr. McCarthy said he had another matter to which he wished to call the attention of the members—a matter which he deemed to be of even more vital moment to this county than the railway fusion. He alluded to the proposed Trent Valley route for a canal to connect Lakes Huron and Ontario, and which, he said, was seriously entertained at Ottawa. It made, he thought, no difference which of the two projects now being agitated (Mr. Capreol's and this Trent Valley scheme) this county had. The latter differed from the Huron and Ontario Ship Canal as projected by Mr. Capreol in that it was infinitely less costly, being estimated to need an expenditure of only $3,000,000. Of course it was not the same style of Canal as that which Mr. Capreol advocated, being intended only for barges and not for ocean vessels. The proposed route, which would take in the water stretches, had been surveyed as far as the Talbot River at Beaverton, and Mr. McCarthy proposed to ask the Minister of Public Works to have the Government Engineer continue the survey from that point so as to determine whether the Severn or the Nottawasaga River was the more feasible and cheaper route to utilise. He hoped the Council would conclude to give this project their consideration and use every effort to forward the scheme. Mr. McCarthy then read a draft of a memorial which those interested in the project proposed to present to Parliament with a view to having the Government undertake the work. This memorial the Council subsequently adopted, and instructed the Clerk to forward to Ottawa.

On Saturday morning Mr. McDermott, Chairman of the Committee on Canals, presented a report, accompanied by a memorial to the Dominion Government to grant the sum of $10,000 for a survey of the proposed Trent Valley Canal. The report also recommended that the Canal enter this County by way of the Nottawasaga Bay. Objection was taken by Mr. Fraser and others to the route being named at all. The report and memorial were, however, finally adopted.—Barrie Northern Advance.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—The rapid development of the west—the now realized fact that west of Lake Superior lies the most extensive and most fertile grain growing country in the world, the vast emigration now passing into the western American and Canadian territories, the energetic construction of railways, pushing right up to the Rocky Mountains, are inducing the preparation of adequate outlets for that trade, which, with the rapid settling of the country and the opening and extension of western railways, will come come upon us like a flood. It is considered necessary to complete railway connection from Duluth to the Sault St. Marie, and to push on the Canada Pacific Railway to connect there with the American lines. The Toronto papers are urging the immediate extention of the Midland or other Ontario railways to connect with the Canada Pacific at Lake Nipissing, and thus secure a portion of that trade for Toronto. Very good. Let the railways be built, they are needed, and Ontario should monopolize all the trade she can, but how is it that the Toronto papers ignore the Trent Valley Canal scheme, which, with the magnificent navigation of Lakes Huron and Superior, brings every port on these lakes and Lake Michigan into direct connection with not only Toronto, but Montreal? The lakes are there complete—better than double track railways; the harbor at Midland City is magnificent; the Trent Valley Canal is complete by natural waters for three-fourths of the distance between Georgian Bay and the Bay of Quinte; the grain brought down by water in summer and not removed by canal, if any, may be brought down in winter by the Midland. The canal may be completed for less than $3,000,000.

The distance by the canal from Duluth to Montreal is no greater than from Duluth to Buffalo. It will shorten the distance from the Straits of Mackinaw—the common point of all western shipments—to the sea board by 500 miles, as against the Erie Canal route. It will, by its natural advantages, coerce the western trade to seek a Canadian outlet. How is it, then, that the press of the country is almost silent on this important subject?

Everything touching the scheme of Capreol for the Huron and Ontario Canal received full mention in the Toronto papers, though it was demonstrated impossible from engineering difficulties. Recently it is alleged that by a system of lift locks the Toronto scheme assumes practicability, and the City Council is about asking the Ontario Government for $10,000 for further surveys. It is forgotten that any advantage of such locks applies equally to the Trent Valley Canal scheme. But there is this difference:—The latter scheme will cost a mere trifle. The route is the shortest distance between the inland waters of the Bay of Quinte and the Georgian Bay. The Toronto scheme implies a ship canal, but the former, as a barge canal, removes the present point of transhipment from ships to barges now at Kingston, to the Georgian Bay, where freight could be unloaded direct from the great ships of the upper lakes into barges which would pass direct to Montreal.

Is it nothing to get rid of the navigation, with all its dangers and delays, of part of Lake Huron, River St. Clair, Lake St. Clair, Lake Erie, the Welland Canal and Lake Ontario? And yet the construction of this canal will accomplish this result.

Nothing but local selfishness and the interests of railway companies can account for the apparent apathy with which this scheme is met.

Had Toronto been on the line of this canal, it would have been built long ago. Yet its construction will take nothing from Toronto—it will rob Buffalo,—it will bring through Canada a trade that is only in its inception. It will bring to this country such facilities for export and transit as will enable Toronto and all Ontario to possess a vast trade which she has not now, and if Montreal could only realize the vantage ground she might occupy through the construction of this canal, she would show more energy in advancing its construction than she now exerts to oppose the construction of the Coteau bridge.

Let our public men examine this scheme—the geography and facilities of construction—the advantages in distance—and the small cost at which a great result may be accomplished, and they will never cease till it is constructed. The building of this canal will be the happiest effort of Government ever accomplished in Canada.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
D. W. DUMBLE.

Forest Preservation.

The colonial authorities in South Africa are paying a large amount of attention to the subject of forestry, in the hope of preventing the droughts which are the principal drawbacks to agriculture in that region. The cutting of brushwood and timber is placed under strict surveillance, and licenses are required to be taken out by all engaged in work of this discription in the Crown forests. The measures adopted for their preservation are a heavy item of expenditure, insomuch that the forests are a loss to the Government instead of a source of income, but the care exercised in preventing wholesale destruction is likely to be largely remunerative in the long run by preventing long seasons of drought and preserving favourable climatic conditions. It is to be feared that unless the reckless waste which goes on in the Dominion is speedily checked by some such system, our agricultural interests will suffer in the future.—Mail.

EXTENSIVELY MARRIED.

A Young Woman Who Has Already Had Six Husbands.

The town of Welland had an interesting case for consideration last week. The particulars we learn from the Tribune. A rather good-looking woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Inker, was arraigned before Mayor Swayzie, on the information of a man named John Inker, with bigamy. The complainant is an Englishman about twenty-five years of age, and from the subsequent proceedings and from the evidence, seems to be a brutal and treacherous ruffian. From the evidence given by Inker it appears that he married defendant on the 1st of May last, on a license obtained from Mr. Burgar, of Welland, and the Rev. Mr. Fife, of Fenwick, performed the ceremony. At that time he said she was the wife of Joseph W. Disher, of St. Catharines, and produced a marriage certificate signed by Jacob Henning, J. P., of Suspension Bridge, N. Y., the witness being George Stoll. Besides Disher, she had other husbands, he said, named respectively, Spear, Connor and Hendershot. Inker could not produce his marriage certificate, saying that the defendant had burned it. A witness named Allan Rice deposed to having seen the marriage certificate alleged to have been burned. Mrs. Thos. Crow said both Inker and defendant had told her they were married, and the woman had told her that Disher had deceived her, and just as soon as she found out he had a wife living, she left him. Inker, she said, had never supported the prisoner, and had grossly abused her and once threatened her life.

The prosecutor here asked to have the trial laid over until Monday, when Mrs. Inker swore out a warrant against him for assault. After a stout resistance he was finally overpowered and locked in a cell. The bigamy case was subsequently called up, and there being nothing against the woman except her previous marriage with Disher, who, it appeared, was a married man when witness was united to him, it was no marriage at all.

The woman's statement is to the effect that she acknowledged to being married to Spear, Hendershot, Disher and Inker, and explains in justification that Spear has been a resident of some other part of this or some other sphere unknown to her for many a year. She next married Hendershot, who departed to the great hereafter where there is no marrying, leaving her a real as well as a grass widow. She then turned for consolation to Disher, who, she says, deceived her into a bogus marriage, and she, a virtuous woman, left him after a short but interesting honeymoon of four months. Then comes Inker, "the unlucky fifth one," whose marriage has already been shown. She is now living in Welland with a man named Bowenstead, but denies being married to him. She says she is working for him by the month. Another husband, said to be named Connor, has not yet turned up. The woman is charged with having six husbands in all. The Mayor, in discharging her, advised her to be a trifle more cautious in her matrimonial enterprises hereafter.

Home Adornments.

Those who have money and taste can easily surround themselves with beautiful things in their homes. Plain bare walls are not attractive, and these blank surfaces always need something to break and relieve the monotony. The glorious light of a mountain sunset, caught and imprisoned on a painter's canvas, the free, broad roll of the blue-rounding billows, or the angry dash of the foam-capped surf on the shore, may be bought for money, and may well be worth more as educational and refining influences than any value in paper or coin that may be given in exchange. But people who have taste and have not money need not be disheartened. Nothing is cheaper than beauty, and nothing is more accessible. A bright cluster of autumn leaves placed up on a parlour wall, or a feathery group of ferns will have an artistic effect quite as fine and quite as true as any other bit of colour. The white and purple immortelles which have bloomed in their serenity by the roadsides this autumn will keep their tints and shapes all winter in the mantel vase. Grasses, of which the varities are legion, make beautiful winter bouquets, either dried or crystalised, with alum, and ivies, trailing vines and geraniums with their vivid blossoms, will light up and beautify the very plainest rooms. Nothing is prettier than perfect simplicity, and some of the loveliest interiors we have ever seen have cost very little in dollars and cents.

ASPHODEL.

The Register says Mr. Birdsall intends to oppose Mr. Rorke's re-election as Reeve, but our information obtained from Mr. Birdsall himself last Monday is that he has no intention of doing so. With regard to the Deputy-Reeveship Mr. Chas. O'Reilly has decided to oppose Mr. Walsh, —that is if there is to be any Deputy-Reeve. We say if there is to be any, because the assessment rolls for both this and last year returned to the County Treasurer show a less number of ratepayers than the required 500—the numbers being for 1878, 446; for 1877, 487.

The Jesuit Church, on West 16th street, celebrated all over the continent not only for the zeal and piety of its clergy, but for the excellence of its music. LAKEFIELD NEWS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Village Council met on Monday evening last in the Council Chamber. All the members were present except the Reeve. Councillor Garbutt occupied the chair. The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

A memorial to the Dominion Government and one to the House of Commons, urging the necessity and practicability of the Trent Valley Canal, received their several readings according to rule, and were passed and ordered to be signed by the Reeve and Clerk and have the corporation seal attached.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Horner,—That the Reeve and Mr. John Hull be and are hereby appointed delegates to wait on the Dominion Government at Ottawa to urge the necessity and importance of the early construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and that their expenses be paid by this corporation.—Carried.

A circular from the secretary of the executive committee appointed in connection with the Trent Valley Canal was read, stating that an appointment had been made by the Hon. the Minister of Railways and Canals to meet the Trent Valley Canal delegation on the 23rd inst., upon motion was received.

Moued by Councillor Horner, seconded by Councillor Nelson,—That the Deputy Returning officer for number two polling sub-division having certified that Mr. Samuel Nelson was entitled to the sum of $4 for the use of the Orange Hall as a polling booth on the fifth of June last, the same be paid.—Carried.

After an informal discussion of some unimportant matters, it was moved by Councillor Nelson, seconded by Councillor Horner,—That this council do now adjourn to meet on the evening of the 26th instant.—Carried.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

3rd Division	67	60
4th Division	66	64
Total	236	196

MUNICIPAL.

The candidates for the office of Reeve of Lakefield are pushing their canvas with a great deal of energy and both are very sanguine of success. There is some considerable talk of neither eventually being the choice of the electors, but that a third man will be forth-coming at the nomination as candidate for the Reeveship who will, it is said, have the confidence and support of such a majority of the free and independent, as will place him at the head of the pole. The people of Lakefield have shown in the past a preference for such eccentricities, and we should not be much surprised if such were to occur again.

LUMBERING.

Mr. Geo. Chalmers of Young's Point started a shanty last Monday in the Township of Burleigh, for the purpose of getting out ties, &c. Mr. R. C. Strickland intends to put in his second shanty next Monday, in the Township of Harvey on Ross & Co's., limits, for the purpose of taking out saw logs. Messrs. John C. Sherin and Geo. W. R. Strickland have purchased the Jack Lake limits, formerly belonging to R. C. Strickland & Co. and intend pushing lumbering operations with vigour through the present season. They have also bargained for the use of the water mill for next summer to cut and manufacture the saw logs from their limits. The large number of shanties now in operation to the north of Lakefield give ample employment to all the men around here, who are both, able and willing to work.

LITHOGRAPHIC STONE.

Mr. John Richardson has a letter from Mr. Dillingham, the gentleman engaged this fall in testing the quarry in Harvey, stating that the stone taken out is so far satisfactory that the quarry referred to will be extensively worked next summer.

STAGES.

The stages that were recently started between this village and Peterborough have ceased running, in consequence of the Midland Railway continuing to run two trains a day, instead of one, as was reported to be their intention.

WOOD.

The Midland Railway have succeeded in placing 2,000 cords of the wood, which is held here, in Toronto at remunerative figures, and are at present shipping wood from here to Toronto.

PLOUGHING.

Mr. S. P. Wing, of this village had two teams engaged in ploughing, during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, of this week. The ground was old sod and turned up in a first-class condition.

IMMIGRANTS.

A number of emigrants just arrived from the Old Country passed through the village on their way to the northern townships. As one of the party was conducting the children belonging to the different families from the railway station to the hotel, they were met by a party of the village children going to school. The man became quite excited, fearing that he had lost some of his convoy, and was not satisfied till he had counted them more than once.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The action of the Council in appointing delegates to go to Ottawa on the 23rd with the deputation that is to wait upon the Ministers to urge the construction of the Trent Valley Canal is heartily endorsed by the people of the village, who feel a lively interest in this project.

Even the bootblack says his business is brightening up.

The Markets.

Review Office,
Thursday, Dec. 11th, 1879.

Since our last report the firmness then noted in the wheat market has continued, and we have to note an advance of a penny on wheat, in Liverpool, and from one to two cents in the West. Recent telegrams from Australia say that they have had a splendid season there, and that their crops will leave 375,000 tons, equal to about 12,500,000 bushels, for exportation. In Montreal the butter market has broken, and sales have been made at a decline of a cent per lb. Pork is firm here, with another advance established in Liverpool.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

Thursday, Dec. 11.—The wheat market became excited this morning. Several loads of Spring Wheat were taken by shippers at $1.25, and Fall Wheat at $1.31. It is said that this sudden advance in wheat was the result of a contention between the buyers, and that there is no real foundation for it. These occasional squabbles over a few loads are productive of no good. They tend to excite the mind of the farmers who bring in their grain, expecting to be benefitted by the supposed advance. They are in consequence disappointed, and return home with the impression that the buyers are trying to defraud them. There is not a market centre in the province where better prices are obtained for farm products than in Peterborough. This is because there are some live business men who are constantly seeking a market abroad, and are able to take the surplus that comes in, and it would be well if a system of uniform rates could be adopted that would enable all to calculate as to the prices paid and quantities required. We learn that the millers are standing back knowing that to purchase at these rates would compel an advance in flour. Some pork was brought forward, but there is no change in price to note. A few parcels of keg butter, and some poultry came in, and were sold at former prices. Several loads of hay and wood found slow sale. The time is fast approaching when we will have to chronicle a daily outside market in Peterborough.

Certificate as to Purity and Efficacy.

Laboratory, University College,
Toronto, December 4th, 1872.

To the Victoria Chemical Co.:

Gentlemen,—I have examined the articles employed in the Victoria Chemical Works, in the preparation of the Victoria Syrup of Hypophosphites. The several Hypophosphites used are chemically pure, and the Syrup is also quite free from any impurity. Your Syrup of Hypophosphites will undoubtedly prove a very valuable medicine.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, combined with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscreation." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. Cures and Lung Diseases.—Of all diseases which frail humanity is liable, there are none more generally neglected in their commencement, or more fatal in their termination than those arising from defective or suppressed perspiration, whether we regard them in the trivial light of a slight cold, or whether we view them in the terrific form of Pulmonary Consumption—the latter, alas! but too frequently the sequel of the former. At the very first symptoms of a Cold, or as soon after as possible. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam should be administered. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Annual Ball.

The Orange Young Britons will hold their fifth annual ball in Bradburn's Hall on Christmas Eve.

Wedding Trip.

In the list of arrivals at the Rossin House, Toronto, on Tuesday evening appear the names of Mr. G. G. Hilliard and Mrs. Hilliard of Peterborough.

Reduced Fares.

Arrangements have been made for obtaining return tickets for the members of the deputation to Ottawa on the 23rd instant, at a fare and a third.

A Well Earned Reward.

The Board of Directors of the Midland Railway have voted a gratuity of $2,000 to Mr. H. G. Taylor, thus showing their appreciation of his long continued services to the company.

I. O. G. T.

Carswell Lodge, No. 411, I.O.G.T., meet at Friendship Hall, George street this evening at half-past seven o'clock. It is expected there will be a large attendance owing to the increased interest lately manifested in the Lodge meetings. All good templars are invited.

St. John's Church Concert.

The concert in Bradburn's Hall this evening, in aid of the building fund of St. John's Church should be well attended, both on account of the object, and from the excellence of the programme. The charade, we learn from those who have seen the rehearsals, will be very amusing.

The Port Hope "Times."

We are glad to see that the Port Hope Times, in a very [illegible] article [illegible] is able to speak of the success of the Daily Times, in spite of the misgiving with which the proprietor started it. Our bright and promising contemporary is certainly deserving of success, being well edited and excellently got up.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are; brisk to high, westerly to north-westerly winds; decidedly colder, cloudy to partly cloudy weather, with light snow in some localities. Peterborough is one of the localities mentioned, for snow has been flitting through the air at intervals all day. The ground is slightly frozen. The weather is scarcely cold enough to keep a frozen surface.

A Dangerous Coping.

The brick coping of the buildings at the north-west corner of Simcoe and George streets is in danger of crumbling to pieces to the sidewalk. As observed from the street, the wood beading below the coping, seems to be rotting away, and as it rots and crumbles, so the bricks above are loosened, and they fall to the sidewalk. Every storm, evidently takes effect upon it, and a sweeping wind may tear it away, and throw the bricks in all directions. The necessary repairs should not be delayed.

Coal Oil Lamp Explosion.

On Tuesday evening last the caretaker of the Bible Christian Church, Ashburnham, lighted a couple of lamps with a view to dusting and making preparations for the meeting of the Bible Class. While she was absent for a few moments to [illegible] the library keys, the oil had taken fire in one of the lamps, and an explosion followed, scattering the burning fluid about the floor, upon the seats and against the wainscotting. For a few moments a serious conflagration was imminent. The Rev. Mr. Cannon, who happened to be near at hand, extinguished the flames before they had an opportunity to spread, by means of a coat which he impressed into the service. In doing so he burned his hand, not sufficiently however, to cause any serious trouble. But for the timely arrival of Mr. Cannon and his presence of mind, a serious conflagration might have resulted. The damage sustained is a blackened wainscot and floor, and a scorched seat.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, Mrs. G. C. Howard, the original Topsy in the well known drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will appear in Bradburn's Hall on the 17th inst. The Montreal Gazette speaks as follows of her performance in that city:—

"ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Mrs. G. C. Howard, the original Topsy in the popular drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," opened last night in that well known play at the Academy, supported by a capital company. It would be well nigh impossible to improve upon the impersonation of the girl who "never was born" that Mrs. Howard gives us; the intense reality, whether it be in the amusing or pathetic parts, with which she invests the character is wonderfully telling; her imitation of the dialect, the manners and peculiar propensities which distinguished the heroine of Mrs. Beecher Stowe's touching tale are all to the life, and to use a familiar phrase, but one thorough and appropriate in the present instance "should be seen to be appreciated." Mr. Carl White gave his well known rendition of the faithful Uncle Tom in a manner which proved that he has lost none of the vigor and talent which have always distinguished his acting in the character; and in the hands of Mr. G. C. Howard the original creator of the part, St. Clair, was a capital [illegible] of the character we have yet seen. The balance of the cast were all good. The stage setting was extremely good. Mrs. Howard has every reason to feel satisfied with her reception; indeed the audience was particularly enthusiastic throughout. The piece will be repeated to-night."

POLICE COURT.

FALSE PRETENCES.

THURSDAY, Dec. 11.—The Police Court was attended by a considerale number of townspeople this morning, on a rumor of the arrest of a forger. It turned out to be a case of false pretences. The complaint sets forth that Thomas Johnson, did, on the 10th day of December, attempt to obtain money under false pretences of Mr. Thomas Bradburn, on a promissory note dated December 9th, at one year, for $125, purporting to be drawn by William White and Arthur McQuade, and endorsed by James Robinson. The defendant pleaded guilty to the charge, and endeavoured to excuse himself by saying that he could not understand what prompted him to do such a thing. In answer to questions from the Magistrate, he stated that he resided at Fenelon Falls, and has a wife and two small children living thre, that, this is the first time he was ever brought before a Police Court, or had any charge laid against him. The Magistrate reserved sentence until Monday the 15th, to give him time to obtain information as to his antecedents and standing, where he is said to be well-known.

SHOT BY INDIANS.

Murder of a Member of the Mounted Police—Story Told by a Companion.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—A letter was received by the Department of the Interior to-day, giving particulars of the murder of Constable Grayburn, of the Mounted Police force. It appears that he had been out herding cattle and asked leave to go four miles distant for a lariat and an axe he had left behind. Not returning, search was made next morning, and his body found shot through the back at the foot of an embankment, over which it had been thrown.

A letter was received to-day by a young man in the city from a member of the Mounted Police force stationed at Fort Walsh. It is dated the 30th of November, three days after the unfortunate death of Mounted Policeman Grayburn. The following is a section of the letter, which gives some particulars of the sad affair:—

"I write you this letter to tell you of the sad intelligence of Marma (Marmaduke) Grayburn's death, as I told you in my last letter that he was out on the herd, and that he sent you his best respects. Well, on Monday, the 17th November, he was last seen alive. He did not turn up that day, so word was brought in that he was missing. It appears that he took his horse and gun to go and get a picket rope and an axe which he had left there when he was out on the herd. A party started out to search for him on Tuesday, and while searching around, marks of blood were found on the snow [illegible] found in a sort of gully, where he had been thrown after he was shot, for, as it turned out afterwards, he had been shot in the back. On Wednesday, the horse was found wedged in between two trees in a kind of bush, shot dead, with the bridle and saddle on. Marmaduke's body was brought in last night, and, I tell you, it was a terrible sight to see. His face was one [illegible] examination proved differently. His hat was found stuck in a tree over him with a bullet hole and smeared with blood, so the Indians must have shot him from behind. When they found him he was laying out straight as a die, but his left arm was up, and he must have died in that position. He had his legs crossed, and the corps was frozen, the weather being cold. There were marks on his face, but these were doubtless caused by his falling against the tree as he was pulled down from his horse by the Indians. His ammunition was lying scattered around on the ground along with his belt and pouch. Nothing was taken but his carbine and knife. The remains were burried to-day. All the force turned out, the band playing the Dead March. His body was placed on a gun carriage which was drawn by a span of police horses, with his own following behind with his boots in the stirrups."

AN ARISTOCRATIC FORGER.

Daring Attempt to Forge $100,000 of Canadian Postage Stamps.

On Saturday information was received in Montreal that negotiations were in progress between an individual in this city and two large firms in New York with the object of having a large quantity of forged Canadian postage stamps printed. Upon the information received a warrant was issued, and yesterday the High Constable entered the study of Edouard Narbonne, No. 30½ Chaboillez Square, and the noble litterateur was removed and placed in custody.

Narbonne was born in the village of St. Remi, of humble but honest parents. While yet a boy he read a great many stories about the great French nobility, and this led to his astonishing his friends by singing his name De Narbonne. This step toward aristocracy soon grew tame, and he prefixed "D'Armaniac" to his name, which soon grew at the other end also by the addition of "Lara." His name finally read "Jean Jacques D'Armaniac Edouard De Narbonne Lara." He sought renown in the world of letters by several works under the nom de plume of Charles Lepine. In these, it is "hinted," there were evidences of abundant plagiarism. However, in 1878 he was naturalized as a British subject (through born one), under the name of the Count de St. Roy. This climax of absurdity drew upon his head "curses not loud but deep" from a large circle of friends. His ambition finally assumed a different character, and longing to be rich, he sent letters to two large firms in New York, enclosing a 3c. Canadian postage stamp to be copied. His orders amounted in all to $100,000 value in stamps. On the authorities here learning of the affair they at once communicated with these firms, who acted uprightly, sending back all the Count's letters with the sample stamps. The warrant was accordingly issued, and Narbonne, to give his cognomen in brief, was taken into custody. He expressed regret that he had begun to assume titles on leaving the Montreal College, where he studied for several years.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents a week.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches via Cable and Montreal Lines

CABLE.

TROUBLES IN RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 10.—Another number of the new reactionary journal The Will of the People, has been distributed. The Governor has ordered every householder to display a red lamp before his house nightly bearing the number of the house. It is stated that the Russian Imperial Council which was to be held yesterday under the presidency of the Emperor, was summoned to consider how best to retire from the present diplomatic attitude of aggression. A new war would produce an explosion calculated to shatter the whole organism of the state. The last war proved that foreign enterprises do not remove the peril involved in the passive opposition of socity to the present system of government, a peril greater than the desperate conspiracies of the Nihilists.

A CADET "HAZING."

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—A court martial is ordered to investigate the charges against Cadet Midshipman Smith Salisbury, of New York, charged with "hazing."

THE BULGARIAN CRISIS.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A Vienna despatch says the Bulgarian assembly was dissolved because the leaders of the majority refused to allow Prince Alexander to have any voice in the nomination of the new Cabinet, and also refused to modify the address replying to the speech from the throne, wherein the late Ministry, and by implication the Prince himself, were accused of unconstitutional proceedings.

RUSSIAN RUMORS AT VIENNA.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Rumors, which are said to rest on more than ordinary substantial foundation, have reached Vienna from St. Petersburg, to the effect that the Imperial Council has decided upon the abandonment of the present aggressive policy of the Government in Asia, and to devote the strength and wisdom of the Czar and his advisers to the development of home interests, and the introduction of needed reforms, thereby carrying out the policy foreshadowed in these despatches a short time since.

CONCESSION TO THE CATHOLICS.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The Government has decided to allow the Catholic clergy to supervise the religious instruction of Catholic children in Prussian schools.

CHINESE TRADE.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Consul at Foo Chow, China, reports the total imports valued at $5,000,000, less than a tenth of which were from the United States. Half is absorbed in opium from British India.

DEPREDATIONS BY TEKKES.

A Teheran despatch reports that the Tekkes have seized a number of camels which were being taken to Dusoloum, sacked the village of Xoarat, and carried off the inhabitants and their camels. It is rumoured they are marching to encamp at Bonyan Bashi, thus menacing Tchikeslar.

GENERAL ELECTION GOSSIP.

Whenever the general election may take place there is a tone about the present Prime Minister and the ex-Premier which strikes one that both are looking very "fit." The Duke of Argyll is, and has been, attacked by the press generally for having gone a little too far in his expressions regarding the present Administration and their policy.

VIGILANCE AT ST. PETERSBURG.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Great excitement prevails at St. Petersburg. The gen d'arme and police forces have been largely increased. They incessantly patrol the streets, and are especially numerous and vigilant near the winter palaces. These circumstances indicate that fresh attempts upon the life of the Czar are anticipated.

OMINOUS RESIGNATIONS.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Madrid has been startled out of its equanimity to-day by the news that fifteen commanders in the army have resigned their commissions and left the service. Among the explanations of this unexpected action current in well-informed circles, is a supposition that they are all out of sympathy with the reigning monarch and the existing Government, and have thrown up their positions in order to be free to engage in intrigues against both. This accords with rumours of another prospective Carlist rising which have floated about as mere gossip for some time past.

AMERICAN.

A REPRIEVED CRIMINAL.

ALBANY, Dec. 10.—The Governor has decided to grant a reprieve until January 20th, in the case of Greenfield who was to be hanged at Syracuse on Friday.

STEAMER DISABLED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The steamship Devon, hence for Bristol on Dec. 5th, has returned with a cylinder damaged.

HUNTING A WITNESS.

MARSHALL, Tex., Dec. 10.—The authorities have tracked Nat. Harvey, the most important witness for the State against Currie, who murdered Porter the actor, to his hiding place in the swamps of Louisiana. His capture is assured.

SEVERE SNOW STORM.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 10.—A Fargo special says the hardest storm in the history of the Northern Pacific railway prevailed along the line from Bismarck to Duluth, over an area of 400 miles square. Snow fell a foot deep on the level, and drifts four feet. The trains were all delayed, and business in town stopped. It is feared that casualties to settlers in exposed premises will result.

MATTERS IN MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 2.—Congress is discussing the Sonora railroad concession. There is great opposition to it, based upon the fear that such a road will precipitate a movement for the annexation of Sonora, Sinaloa and Chihuahua, or promote filibustering from California. The riches of the Sierra Majada are rapidly developing. Valuable gold veins have been discovered. Americans are invited to come with machinery, or engage in any other business.

RESCUED AFTER FOUR DAYS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The British ship Caliope arrived, and reports that on November 25th she picked up four of the crew of the British bark Edith, who had been on a small boat four days, having been able to escape from their vessel just before she foundered. What has become of the rest of the crew of the lost ship the captain did not know. Their sufferings had been intense.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

THE publishers of the REVIEW beg to announce that they have arranged to issue a Christmas number of the WEEKLY REVIEW on Friday, December 19th, containing six large, full-sized pages. This edition will contain a large amount of interesting reading, specially selected for the approaching holiday season, and possessing such attractions as will make it an unusually welcome visitor in the homes of every one.

It is the intention of the publishers to print not less than 3,000 copies of this edition, and to circulate them throughout every section of the town and county.

It will be obvious that our Christmas number will afford to merchants and others a rare opportunity for advertising, and as a large amount of extra labour will necessarily be involved, those desiring to avail themselves of it are requested to send in their orders not later than the afternoon of Wednesday.

LIVE STOCK.—The exportation of cattle and sheep from Ottawa district was unusually large this season. One dealer shipped, since September, nine thousand lambs from the County of Lanark to the United States.

IRISH RELIEF.—A meeting of the representatives of the Irish Societies was held in Union Hall last night, and decided to hold a grand entertainment on the evening of the 30th, for the purpose of raising funds to aid the poor of Ireland. The following committee was appointed:—Messrs. P. Baskerville, M.P.P.; J. Heney, Alderman O'Keefe, Alderman Starrs, D. Smith, and E. J. Smith.

WEST WINCHESTER.

THE BROWN MURDER.—The bodies of the late Robert Brown and his daughter Addie were taken up from the grave this morning for further examination. Mrs. Brown has left and has locked up the house where the murder was committed, and where she has been living for about two months. There are a great many rumors afloat. A knife was found some time ago in a cellar with stains of blood, and is supposed to be the same as inflicted the wounds on the back and side. There have been other suspicious circumstances which require examination. Great excitement prevails again, and there is a desire for further investigation.

TORONTO.

Special to the Review, Dec. 12.

HANLAN AND TRICKET.—Information has been received that Tricket still declines to allow Hanlan anything for expenses, but he is willing to row him for $10,000. An Australian gentleman paid sixty-five dollars for a cable message to Hanlan, and never received an answer either by wire or post.

THE NEW BISHOP.—Archbishop Lynch, who arrived at New York to-day, is accompanied by the Right Rev. Dr. Mahony, Bishop of Eudocia in Partibus, and auxiliary Bishop of this diocese.

HANLAN'S HOMESTEAD.—Hanlan's course in giving Courtney another chance is not favorably viewed by his friends here, who think he is foolish to waste time over the Union Springs' man. Hanlan is building a capacious and handsome summer hotel on the site where his old homestead formerly stood. His homestead, with which the people of Ontario presented him, will be built about half a mile away, in the most favourable and pretty locality on the Island, commanding a fine view of the lake to the west

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

THE SPANISH CRISIS.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—The political situation is extremely strained. The young King is placed in a more critical position than at any time hitherto. Two hostiles forces are working against him and his new Cabinet, one representing the interests of the Cuban slave holders and the other which affiliates with the Carlists. It is believed that the people are with the King and would if necessary prove their confidence by the election of a New Cortes.

FAMINE RELIEF.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—An influential committee has been formed to organize a system of relief for the famine stricken people of Silesia. The rise in cereals throughout Germany has necessitated a corresponding increase in the military estimates for 1880.

THE SPANISH GENERALS.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—The Generals of the army high in command in Spain and Cuba, such as Captain-General Blanco and Generals Prendergast and Cussalo, who tendered their resignations, did so on account of the fall of the Compos Ministry. Many leading newspapers deplore the resignation of Compos. They think, as the Conservatives divided, the King should have entrusted the Government to Sagasta and the liberals, instead of to those who for nine months have opposed and defeated the abolition and free trade policy. The newspapers also express their alarm concerning the effect in Cuba.

AMERICAN.

VALUABLE PICTURES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The sale of Ben. F. Carver's collection of pictures yesterday brought over $30,000 for 78 pictures.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT.

Saml. Singleton, ticket taker at the Grand Opera House, has been arrested for refusing admission to a coloured man. The indictment is the first that has been found under the Civil Rights Act in this district.

LARGE SAVINGS.

The will of Cynthia Hendra, a colored woman, is being contested. She left $80,000, the savings of herself and her husband, and bequeathed her estate to him. Her relatives claim that the will is bogus.

THE UTE'S CAPTIVE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A Washington special report to the World says that Miss Josephine Meeker has been appointed to a clerkship in the Interior Department.

RELIEF FOR IRELAND.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—A meeting of Irish citizens was held last night, for the purpose of raising funds for the suffering poor in Ireland. Two Irish Societies donated $350.

A POLITICAL FLUTTER.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 12.—There is a decided flutter in political circles, caused by the publication of a letter from Congressman Aiken, advocating the presentation of Presidential ticket, which shall ignore the Democratic and Republican party, lines and sectional issues.

THE APPROPRIATION BILLS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A Washington special despatch to the Herald says that if an attempt should be made, and many members think it will be, to put political legislation on any of the Appropriation Bills, the contest will be long and bitter.

THE NEW FRENCH CABLE.

The American Union Telegraph Company yesterday completed their connection with the new French cable. A despatch was successfully sent from this city to Paris.

ENTICING A YOUNG GIRL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Harry Lovett, the well-known song and dance man, was arrested yesterday for enticing a girl aged 17 into a disreputable house.

The leading Republicans in Charleston have opposed it on the ground that the school is sectarian, aristocratic and exclusive, one to which the children of no Union man or Republican can gain admission.

A MYSTERIOUS ABDUCTION

A Handsome Young Girl Gagged and Drugged by Three Men—The Story She Tells.

A most shocking outrage was brought under the notice of the police on Saturday about midnight. A handsome girl, Amanda Trudeau, aged 18, has been for the last seven years, living with Mrs. St. Marie, a widow lady in comfortable circumstances, residing at No. 45 St. Ander street. She was an orphan, and was taken into Mrs. St. Marie's house rather as a friend than a servant. On Saturday night, about seven o'clock, Mrs. St. Marie sent her on an errand to a grocery store kept by Mr. W. Swift, on the corner of St. Andre and Mignonne streets, and as she placed her hand on the door-latch she noticed.

THREE YOUNG MEN IN FASHIONABLE ATTIRE

standing at the corner, apparently looking into the window. She was holding some small change in her hand, and these three young strangers were watching her so intently that when she dropped a penny one of them noticed it, and, stepping forward with an air of excessive politeness, picked it up, and with a low bow handed it to her. The people in the grocery store were very busy with the Saturday evening trade, and several minutes elapsed before she had finished her errand. Instead of returning home down St. Andre street, she started along Mignonne, as she had been told to take seventy-five cents to a women living on St. Christopher street. One of the young men stepped after her and asked her if that store belonged to Mr. Swift, to which she gave a negative reply, stating that it was the property of her mistress, Madame St. Marie. Immediately after, as they got from the light of a lamp, one of them

SEIZED HER AND CLAPPED A PLASTER OVER HER MOUTH.

Very little does she remember after this, for under the influence of a powerful drug, she soon lost consciousness, but she has a dim recollection of staggering down St. Christophe street, across St. Catherine street, and on to Dorchester, supported on either side by one of the three cruel villians. They used no violence in taking her along, but when glimpses of consciousness returned, she had no power to resist them or to cry for aid, for the plaster soon hardened over her mouth, and a smothered groan was all that she could utter. A vague remembrance of being hurried along past corner after corner, through strange streets, until they entered a house, lingers with her. After that all is a blank. She sank into total unconsciousness, and knows nothing of what occurred in the house. A plaster was put over her eyes, but several times she thinks she heard indistinctly the voices of the three friends who had so heartlessly wronged her, and then all was a blank to her.

WHEN SHE REGAINED CONSCIOUSNESS

she started to find herself alone in a carter's sleigh and being rapidly driven along St. Catherine street. The tall spire of St. James Church on St. Denis street she clearly discerned as the sleigh glided along eastward until St. Andre street was reached; when the corner was swiftly turned and the driver reined up opposite Mrs. St. Marie's house. In a half stupefied condition she was assisted from the sleigh and staggered up the stairs, while, without a word of any kind, the driver quietly drove off. It was between eleven o'clock and midnight when she was taken up stairs to listen to many questions prompted by anxious curiosity. She had been

AWAY FOR FOUR HOURS,

and but very little could she tell of what had taken place during that time. Mr. Bergeron, a son-in-law of Mrs. St. Marie, repaired at once to the Ontario street Police Station, and informed Sergeant Bouchard of the affair. A butcher at the corner of St. Catherine and St. Andre streets said he saw the sleigh drive around the corner soon after eleven o'clock with the girl in it, but he could not identify the carter who drove it. She was questioned as to what had been done to her, but she could not say. Dr. Desmarteau examined one of her gloves, which was covered with a sticky substance, which she had got by putting her hand up to her face when the plaster was put on. An analysis showed this to be a gum of a strong adhesive properties, dissolved in carbolic acid, and there were also

TRACES OF CHLOROFORM.

Mr. Swift stated to our reporter that this young girl has been in the habit of collecting the rent from him and the adjoining tenant, and that it might be possible these persons intended to rob her. The 75c. which she had on leaving his store were not found upon her. The poor girl is dangerously ill to-day, and can tell but little more than the above facts. She complains of very severe pains in her head. The detectives have the case in hand.—Montreal Witness, Dec. 9.

OUR MAILS

The petition that was sent to the Postmaster-General has speedily met with a favourable result. The Department has consented to the mails being sent by the late train so that it will close at five o'clock, instead of half past two, to the great convenience of business men.

There is, however, another considerable inconvenience that should be remedied at once. The afternoon mail to Lindsay has been cancelled, with the result that a reply to a letter to that town cannot be received till the third day, and this for an important place only thirty miles distant. If the mail were sent at three o'clock it would connect with the train from Port Hope to Lindsay, and an answer to any letter might be received at nine o'clock the next morning.

The only additional expense would be the mileage between here and Millbrook, which would very little exceed $160, a sum so small in comparison with the benefit to be derived, that there should be no hesitation in incurring it.

RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

The following letter appears in the Montreal Gazette:—

SIR,—In view of the rapidity with which that portion of this continent lying west of Lake Superior is becoming settled, and in view of the fact that it is only as a grower of grain that the Western settler can hope to be prosperous, it is obvious that the question of transport to the seaboard is one of vital and pressing importance to the Western farmer, to the carrying trade of the Dominion and to the consumer both in Eastern Canada and Western Europe. It is almost needless to point out that notwithstanding the great natural facility of the region referred to, its progress must be slow and discouraging unless the cost of transport can be kept within such moderate limits as to at once afford a remunerative return to the producer and the placing of his products in the hand of the consumer at a price which will defy the competition of the comparatively exhausted lands of Europe. Indeed, were it necessary, it could easily be shown that upon the proper solution of this question of transportation depends, more than anything else, the future progress and prosperity of the Dominion, but it is unnecessary and I at once proceed to discuss how this great desideratum can best be supplied. By the construction of the Pacific Railway the Government is affording the necessary facilities for settlement, but when the country comes to be settled, and to be a large exporter of grain ten Pacific Railways will, judging by the experience of the Western States, prove inadequate to move the quantity, even if it could do it at rates which would leave anything for the producer.

Although to those who are familiar with the question it may seem a work of supererogation to discuss the relative merits of water-ways and railways for the transport of heavy and bulky articles, such as grain, lumber, &c., yet in view of the prominence given to railways of late, and the efforts which the latter have made and are making to divert traffic from the former, it is deemed advisable to support such a statement by refrence to a few of the many facts and circumstances which can be adduced in its behalf.

So far as I have been able to to consult the published reports of the Dominion Board of Trade, the evidence is all favorable to the waterways. At the January meeting in 1876 (page 91), the late Hon. John Young, of Montreal, who gave much attention to the subject, is reported to have said:—"An examination of the facts will show that the west is more dependent for an outlet to the Eastern States and to Europe on the canals of Canada as a means of cheaper transportation than by any other route. Independent, however, of canals, rivers and lakes as a means of transport, there are the various lines of railways; but no multiplicity of railways can satisfy the fundamental requirement of Western commerce, which is cheap transportation by water for the massive bulk of its agricultural and mineral productions. Speculators and stock manipulators of railways predict now and then that railway traffic will "dry up" the business of canals. Such statements can be met by the fact that the Erie Canal alone is computed to carry during the seven months of navigation a tonnage of through freight equal to that carried by all the five chief trunk lines of railroad from West to East during the year, and at half the cost to the public, being a saving annually in transportation by water to the great consuming and producing classes of the North-western and Eastern States of $36,560,000. At the same Board of Trade meeting in 1874 (page 36), the Chicago Tribune is reported as saying that it had already demonstrated that the water routes were "more expeditious and economical than land carriage." Turning to the report of the Dominion Canal Commission, presented to Parliament in 1871, I find the following among the replies given to a number of questions which were asked by the commissioners, viz.:—J. W. Winn, Montreal: No railway can compete with canals in the vital point of cheapness of freight; Board of Trade, of Chicago: So far as American commerce is concerned, a railway (i. e. one from the Georgian Bay or Lake Nipissing to Montreal) would not answer at all; A. Wright, M.P.: No railway could do the business of the Ottawa Canal; Mr. McAlpine, an eminent American engineer estimates the cost of freightage by railway at 150 per cent more than by water. In 1872 the Senate of the United States appointed a committee on transportation to the sea-board, which continued its labors during the recess, and visited and took evidence in all the commercial centres, and reported in 1874, and the result of their investigation was a unanimous finding by the committee that "the uniform testimony deduced from practical results in this country and throughout the commercial world is that water routes when properly located, not only afford the cheapest and best known means of transport for all heavy, bulky and cheap commodities, but that they are also the natural competitors, and most effective regulators of railway transportation." From the same report (page 52) we learn that the average rate of freights per bushel from Chicago to New York, by all rail, by water to Buffalo, and rail to New York and by all water were as follows:—

	All Rail.	Rail and water.	All water.
	c. m.	c. m.	c. m.
1868	42 6	...	25 3
1869	35 1	...	26 1
1870	33 5	...	17 5
1871	31 0	22 3	21 6
1872	33 5	29 0	26 6

And upon these figures the committee very properly observe:—"The average all-rail rate during the three summer months of 1872 was 27 cents, and the average of the winter months was 39 cents, the winter average being 44.4 per cent higher than the summer average when the competition of water transport was in full force. It may be supposed that the increase in the rail rates during the winter months is caused by the increased cost of transport during that season of the year, but this is true only to a very limited extent. The chief cause is the absence of competion by lake and canal. This is evident from the fact that although the cost of transportation by rail is not greater in October and November than in June and July, yet the average of the rates during the former months is 44.4 per cent. higher than the average of the rates during the latter months. On page 53 of the same report is given a statement of the shipments of wheat from Chicago and Milwaukee by rail and lake for the ten years ending 1872, and they aggregate 211,171,907 bush. by water against 28,866,917 by rail, and this, too, notwithstanding that the water route is closed 5 months out of the twelve. No doubt, it will be urged by those who believe that the railways are superseding canals, that the traffic by the Erie and New York Central railways, between Buffalo and New York is increasing rapidly, while that of the canal is about stationary, as a proof of the correctness of their contention. It is true that while the tonnage moved on the Erie canal for the five years, from 1856 to 1860, exceeded that of these two railways by 460,125 tons, the tonnage moved on these two railways during the five years, from 1868 to 1872, exceeded that on the canal by 24,239,272 tons, but this is quite explainable and consistent with my contention, and a number of reasons which have combined to produce this result could be given, but I shall only trouble the reader with one of them. By comparing the shipments of grain during the year 1872 from Buffalo, &c., with the quantity delivered in New York city, it is found that out of the 56,135,522 bushels shipped by rail, only 26,129,043 bushels reached New York, while out of the 45,056,295 bushels sent forward by canal, no less than 41,417,245 bushels reached New York. Of course from these facts it is evident that more than half of the gross amount carried by the railways was destined for inland towns which the canal does not touch, and for the carrying of which the canal could not compete. But even if the Erie and New York Central railways, with their connection both by land and water, had been able to "dry up" the Erie Canal, it could not be taken as settling the matter. As every one knows, the Erie Canal has competed with these roads on the most disadvantageous terms. Its boats have had to be all towed by horses, rendering the trip expensive and slow. Its tolls have been so high as to afford an enormous revenue, and over and over again pay for the canal, and the wonder is, therefore, not that the amount carried by it has not increased in proportion to the general increase, but that it has maintained its position. That it has done so, that it has been the means of keeping down freights, and under the Belgian system of towing now being introduced, its capacity will be doubled and the cost of towage reduced one one-half, is the best possible proof that railways cannot compete for the class of traffic under consideration. And it is unfortunate that it is so, because they really assist one another. If a canal or water navigation takes away certain classes of freights from railways, they, on the other hand, from their cheapness, develope other sources of trade, which in their turn increase those classes of freight and travel for which the railway is best adapted. As in the figures quoted I have been compelled to take those of a few years ago, I would just say that the receips of grain at New York for the week ending the 23rd September last were 2,560,550 bushels by canal, against 1,050,385 bushels by all the railways centring there, and that I also learn from the Montreal Gazette that the receipts of wheat and corn at that port since the 1st January and up to the 29th November last, were by canal 13,880,628 bushels, against 1,687,726 bushels by railway. Many other figures and facts might be adduced in proof of the assertion that railways cannot compete with water for the grain carrying trade, but I imagine what has been given will suffice.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN CARNEGIE.

THE NEW KIDNAPPING CASE.

Mrs. Deal's Own Story of Her Abduction—The Motive a Mystery.

The following is Mrs. Deal's own account, as given to a reporter of the Toronto Telegram, of her singular abduction and escape:—

"Last night at about seven o'clock," commenced Mrs. Deal, "I left home with the intention of visiting my landlord on Jarvis street. I shut the factory door after me and proceeded north, but had not got as far as Coatsworth's lane, when I felt a shawl fall over my head, and was at almost the same time lifted up by, I think, two men. I struggled all I could, and screamed out, but the shawl over my head deadened the sound, and when one of the men threw one of his arms around my neck, I was rendered completely helpless. I still continued to use my feet, however, until the second man caught me by the legs and the two carried me a short distance, when I heard the noise of carriage wheels; a moment after I was lifted into a buggy and forced under a seat."

"Did you see any of the parties, Mrs. Deal?"

"Yes, I think there were two men on the sidewalk, and a woman or a

MAN DRESSED IN WOMAN'S CLOTHING.

The woman had a very coarse voice, and occasionally made use of indecent language. After they got me into the buggy one of them held me by the throat and sat on my legs, while the other tied my wrists with a rope and the woman drove. I struggled with all my might, but without avail. In turning on to Wilton Avenue they first proceeded west, but after that I could not tell which way I was driven. I believe that chloroform had been put on the shawl, as I gradually became stupid, and although I still continued to struggle, I could hardly realize my position."

"Where did you manage to escape?"

"I can hardly tell as I do not know the neighborhood. I managed to work one of my hands free of the rope, and pushing aside the shawl, I again shrieked out, but one of the men catching me by the throat, brutally choked me until, with the abuse and chloroform, I became almost unconscious and did not pay much heed to what was transpiring; I remember asking them where they were taking me to, and why they were carrying me off, but the only reply I got was 'Lie still, damn you, or I'll choke you!'

I BEGGED THEM TO SPARE ME, and let me go home to my family, but they again threatened to kill me if I did not keep quiet, and one of them exclaimed in a voice of passion, 'I wish to God we had that lawyer of yours here too.'"

"How did you get out of the buggy?"

"I don't know; the abuse I had received made me almost unconscious, but I suppose I must have taken them unawares and jumped out, or they lifted me out themselves, at any rate I found myself on a road or field struggling with the three. One of them threw me down and kicked me, but I jumped up again and ran, followed by the three. I was again thrown down and choked, and all my clothing except a petticoat, was torn off me. In the struggle I got to my feet a third time, and while running fell over an embankment of some kind, and there I laid nearly frightened to death, until I heard them driving away at a furious rate. I got on to the road again, and screamed as loud as I could, but no one answered my call. I hardly knew what I was doing, and do not remember exactly what I did do. I remember of seeing a white fence in the distance and to this I ran screaming out for help. I followed the fence until I reached the gate when I ran into the grounds and fell exhausted and almost overcome at the porch door. I managed to make noise enough to attract the attention of the occupants, and they assisted me into the house where I told my story."

"Whose house was that, do you know, Mrs. Deal?"

"I did not know when I first entered, but afterwards learned that it was the residence of Mr. John Macdonald, wholesale merchant, and that I had been carried as far as the Avenue-road, above Yorkville, a short distance from his house."

"Can you imagine any reason why any one should attempt to kidnap you in this brutal fashion?"

"I do not care to answer that; I intend first to see Mr. Murphy, my lawyer, before I say anything more, and I feel too sick to talk any more."

FUTURE.

If, in future, we should meet,
If, in passing down the street,
I should chance your face to see,
Would you smile again on me?

And if such should be our meeting,
Would you clasp my hand in greeting?
Would you kiss me, just once more,
As you kissed in days of yore?

If the years could blotted be
From your girlish memory,
If the sin and needless pain
Could repented be again.

If my tears could wash the stain,
There would naught of 'em remain—
If my life for you was given,
I should know so much of Heaven.

Therefore, if love lives like this,
Out of each comes so much bliss;
[illegible]
Let it live for you and me.

Life is short, and life is sweet,
Tread it not beneath your feet;
Darling, as life's moments flee,
Cherish still your love for me.

If inconstant friends should fly,
If the hopes of youth should die,
[illegible]
Love is Heaven, and Heaven is love.

SOUTH WINDOWS.

BY LIZZIE CHASE DEERING.

I took my knitting, one evening, and went to sit awhile with one of my neighbors, a woman 84 years old, who lives entirely alone. She was, as I have ever found her, cheerful and well. She told me she had had but few sickdays in all her life, and she thought it was because she had lived in the sunshine so much. Her sitting room windows facing south, and she said to me with a sweet smile, "I cannot stay out in my kitchen long enough to do my cooking. I am apt to get low-spirited, for the sun doesn't shine there in winter. So I bring everything right in here where it does shine, and it keeps my spirits up."

It wasn't any imagining on her part. She really knew it. She had surely lived long enough to test it. Every intelligent person knows that human beings must have sunlight to keep up their physical, and so their moral and spiritual strength. Still, every town and village is full of shut-up south rooms. In cities, it is almost impossible to command a sunny outlook for one's living room, but in towns and villages, it is rarely so. I see, from my north window, day after day, all the dreary, long Maine winter through, a beautiful south parlor, always shut up. The wife and husband, who live on the other side of the house, are in very delicate health and very pale. They have no children. Their sitting-room, dining-room, kitchen and sink-room are all on the north side of the house, and as the woman does her own housework, she is obliged to keep in the kitchen much of her time. Need I say that that woman looks upon life from a north window? She is rarely cheerful. Mole-hills are apt to be mountains in her sight, and she is always discovering mole-hills. She wouldn't believe it, if I told her, but I am sure, if, after getting her kitchen work done, she should go into her south parlor, have a good fire there, throw open the blinds, draw up the curtains, and let the bright sun shine in, she would be brightened up by the splendour of the illumination, that her low spirits would disappear. She has many beautiful plants, and she is continually complaining because they do not bloom. How they would bloom if they had a chance! How she would bloom! The color would come into her pale cheeks, and she would develop as well as her plants, and good cheer would take the place of complaint and discontent. But alas! the curtains are always drawn, the blinds are always shut, in spite of the glory so near, just across the narrow hall! The colors in her carpet will not be likely to fade, but I fear the rose-tint of life is rapidly disappearing.

From my south windows, I have the constant view of the north side of another house, where a poor man has lain all winter, sick with consumption. Seldom have the blinds been open to let in even the light. There is a young child in the family too young to play out-of-doors by himself, and there is no one to take him out. So he has to live in the dark room, too. He is a thin, white, sickly child, and his eyes have become so weak that they cannot, now, bear the least light. The mother wonders what is the matter with his eyes! Want of light is the matter. Another child in the family is old enough to play out by himself, and he is one of the rosiest, brightest-eyed little fellows that I know.

All around me, I see people who would be indignant to be called not intelligent, who stubbornly live and grow sour and pale on the north side of their houses, when with very little contriving, they could be basking in sunshine on the other side. But they will not take the trouble to go where the sunshine is.—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

HOW RAISINS ARE PREPARED.

A strip of land bordering the Mediterranean, somewhat less than one hundred miles in length, and in width not exceeding five or six, is the raisin-producing territory of Spain. Beyond these boundaries the Muscatel grape, from which the raisin is principally produced, may grow and thrive abundantly, but the fruit must go to the market or the wine-press. When the grapes begin to ripen in August, the farmer carefully inspects the fruit as it lies on the warm, dry soil, and one by one clips the clusters as they reach perfection. In almost all vineyards slants of masonry are prepared, looking like unglazed hot-beds, and covered with fine pebbles, on which the fruit is exposed to dry. But the small proprietor prefers not to carry his grapes so far. It is better, he thinks, to deposit them near at hand, where there is less danger of bruising, and where bees and wasps are less likely to find them. Day by day the cut branches are examined and turned, till they are sufficiently cured to be borne to the house, usually on the hill-top, and there deposited in the empty wine press, till enough have been collected for the trimmers and packers to begin their work. At this stage great piles of rough dried raisins are brought forth from the wine press and heaped upon boards. One by one the bunches are carefully inspected, those of the first quality being trimmed of all irregularities and imperfect berries, and deposited in piles by themselves; so in turn are those in the second quality, while the clippings and inferior fruit are received into baskets at the feet of the trimmers and reserved for home consumption. A quantity of small wooden trays are now brought forward, just the size of the common raisin box, and about an inch deep. In these papers are neatly laid so as to lay over and cover the raisins evenly deposited in the trays which are then subjected to heavy pressure in a rude press. After pressing, the raisins are dropped into the boxes for market.—Scientific American.

CAMPBELLFORD.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Herald says:—Mr. Keeler's object in his visit to this village last week, was to secure the names of the Seymour Township Council, and also those of Campbellford's Council to the petition to Parliament for the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. The Seymour Council favored the scheme, and besides giving their signatures have appointed Mr. Gilbert Bedford, the Reeve, a delegate to go to Ottawa in conjunction with other delegates, to lay the matter before Parliament for consideration at its next session. The Campbellford Council, at its session, Monday night, also signed the petition and appointed the Reeve, Mr. Dinwoodie, as a delegate.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

FRIDAY, Dec. 12.—A bright, crisp day, causing a more buoyant feeling among all classes, especially among the market men. Wheat held to the advance of yesterday, and several loads were taken for shipping at quotations, the highest figures ruling. A few parcels of barley were brought forward, for which 50 cts. was paid for No. 1, and 55 cts for No. 1 extra. Several lots of peas were taken at 63 @ 65 cts. Pork is coming in slowly, but should this weather hold, it is thought that by to-morrow a large quantity will make its appearance; there is no change to note in prices. Hay was dull at $6.00, but some lots had to go for less. Straw is also slow of sale at quotations. Wood was the principal commodity offered, the square being well filled with teams, low prices ruled.

NOW-A-DAYS.

Yes, there is a world of difference between doing housework now, and twenty-five or fifty years ago. Whether folks are happier is a doubtful question; that they are not as healthy, is certain. Women have a harder time than they used to have, notwithstanding all the conveniences and patent rights, and labor saving inventions. I do not wonder at all, that they get all tired out, and are feeble and sickly, and it is strange that men do not see it, but I suppose people have to follow the fashions, even if it does make martyrs of them. Now when I commenced housekeeping, I expected to work hard; but my husband I were young, strong and healthy. I was married Thanksgiving time, and it was Thursday night. We had a real old-fashioned wedding, not such finikin affairs as weddings are now-a-days. We stood up in the square room, and the minister tied the knot, and made a short prayer; then they kissed the bride, and such hosts of introductions as they had. I got used to my new name before supper was ready. All the people in the neighbourhood were there. There was no aristocracy in town in those days. Everybody who behaved well, and was industrious, was respectable. We had wine passed around to the company, and everybody took a sip of it. For supper there was roast turkey, chicken pie, plum pudding, apple pie, mince pie, pumpkin pie and custard pie. For vegetables we had potatoes, turnips and squash, and there were sauces of all kinds, and tea and coffee. It was a good, substantial old-fashioned supper, worth eating, too, for my mother was a first-rate cook, and taught her girls to cook, also. After supper they cleared off the table in a jiffy, and we had a dance, no waltzing, or Germans, but a respectable dance. I led the first figure with my father-in-law, and my mother danced with the bridegroom and my father and his mother danced together; we never broke up till two o'clock in the morning; but I was going to tell about keeping house, but ran off the track a little. The next morning we went to our home, it was a new house, and there were only a kitchen, pantry and bed-room finished off. My setting out had all been moved over there the day before Thanksgiving, and so all we had to do was to walk right in and take possession. My brother went over before light and built a good fire, so it would be warm, and I do not believe there ever was a happier bride than I was, in my new home. Oh, what lots of work I did that winter! I spun and wove over seventy yards of linen; my father gave me the flax; and my house was as neat as a new pin. We used to go out for evening visits, or have company at home almost every night. He cut and hewed the timber for a new barn, and drew almost two thousand spruce logs down to the saw-mill. When I got dressed in the morning it was for all day; I did not spend two or three hours every day changing my clothes; if company came I was glad to see them, and set such victuals before them as I ate myself. We lived as well as our neighbors, for it did not do in those days to lay out all a man could earn in nick-nacks, and if people now-a-days could be more economical they would be better off, and not have so many failures. The fact is, now-a-days, everybody is too extravagant. They spend too much on dress, on food, and in keeping up style. It will never do, never. A young man cannot get married now-a-days unless he has a thousand or two dollars to start with, he cannot afford it. A girl would turn up her nose at a nice, strong fellow, if he had not the stamps, and could not lash out in style; and unless a girl can dress and be right in fashion, she stands no chance to get the first offer. No matter how good and sweet she is, if she is not furbelowed out with feathers and flowers, and can put on airs, and drawl out her words, she can't get a beau. Everything is changed now-a-days, and I do not believe it is much for the better either. It does not seem to me that people can be as happy and contented as they used to be. They can never be satisfied with their belongings. They want something more. Somebody dresses smarter, has nicer furniture, a better team, so they are discontented and uneasy.

Talk about progressing!—it may be in some-things, but take it all in all, the world is, to my thinking, no better than it should be, now. Common sense is done up in a napkin, now-a-days, and buried out of sight. Don't you think so?

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d129-w49-1m

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

St. John's Church Concert.

The concert on Thursday evening in Bradburn's Hall in aid of the building fund of St. John's Church was fairly attended. The songs and instrumental music were good, and the recitations and reading were very humourous. The charade was very successful, some of the actors displaying considerable histrionic ability.

Inspector of Weights and Measures.

Mr. Cahill, the Deputy Inspector for this district, is now on his rounds inspecting the weights and measures. To-day he examined the hay scales and other market scales. The large ones he found to be quite accurate, testing them to six thousand pounds. The work of examining and testing will be continued until he has completed the work in the district.

The Skating and Curling Rink.

Matters at the Skating and Curling Rink remain about the same as they did ten days ago. Mr. Stewart is there, the water is handy and the earth is waiting for frost sufficient to lay the foundation for the icy surface. Every avenue for the air to circulate is open and the ground this morning is hardening, but the genial warmth of the bright sun is jealously watched lest it peep through and check the hardening gravel bed. Skaters must have patience.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Fresh to brisk, westerly to north-westerly winds; partly cloudy, colder weather, with light snow in some localities. In this locality to-day there has been a brisk northerly to north-westerly winds, clear and colder weather, the thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning indicating 10°, rising to 16° at 10 o'clock. At noon the thermometer indicated 20° in the shade, while in the sun it marked 30°.

The Otonabee River.

In our perambulations about town this morning we observed Mr. Hazlitt's mill men hard at work among the logs above the dam, working them loose from the ice where the temperature of last night gave them a tight squeeze. Well, it's no wonder, with the thermometer indicating 10° at seven o'clock under a brisk north wind. The Otonabee river was full of floating ice which had formed during the night. Ice was forming rapidly in the lake and on all still waters. Two more such nights as the past would again close the river.

A Sleighing Party Visit.

The party from Haliburton who visited Peterborough and Ashburnham in a sleigh last week, are still here, being unable to return. They are waiting for another fall of snow, which is daily looked for by most people, in opposition to Vennor, for an opportunity to return home. It is said that it requires considerable patience while contemplating the condition of things at home. There are the cows to milk, the butter to make, the cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry to feed. The cat and the dog, faithful guardians of that lonely home, where are they? It is sad to contemplate such a scene as may be enacting among that dumb family left behind.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

It is particularly requested that subscribers not receiving the REVIEW regularly will at once make the fact known at this Office, in order that all cause of complaint may be removed as speedily as possible.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificates of its merits. w51-d129-9w

CHILI AND PERU.

PANAMA, Nov. 29.—The Chilians have gone into an entrenched camp at Agua Santa, four miles north of the Peruvian position. The allies appear to be without a head and there is no disposition for a vigorous campaign. Their forces, numbering 12,000, are sufficient to harass the Chilians until Daza and Prado, now enroute, effect a injunction with the Peruvians. The country through which they are marching is desert, and the troops must even carry water for about 200 miles. The Arica and Tacua columns must pass near the Chilian camp on their march unless they conclude to await the enemy from the north, while Buendia's army assails them from the south. The Chilians are strongly entrenched and within easy reach of supplies. The allies' forces will find it difficult to dislodge them. It was said that the Chilians intend blockading Arica, as they have perfected their arrangements at the Tarapaca coast, when all the help for the allied army from Callao and the capital will be cut off. They had not done so at last accounts, and the Peruvians had sent down a crack corps of 600 men, with a million cartridges and twelve Krupp field pieces. The hope of the Peruvians now is their torpedo service. The corrected statement of the losses at Pisagua place the entire mortality at 150 allies and 800 Chilians. The allies ran out of ammunition during the fight. When fresh cartridges were served, they proved to be wrong cartridges for Remington rifles. The allies' early retreat is accounted for in this way. Business is almost dead at Lima.

THE SPANISH CRISIS.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—The newly appointed Members took their seats yesterday. The Premier said the recent crisis was due to the form in which the bill for economic reforms in Cuba was drawn up. The present Government would support a bill for the abolition of slavery in Cuba, and would present fresh proposals for a compromise between the interests of Spain and Cuba, on the basis of the equal duty of all Spaniards to support their share of the public burdens. The Ministry would shortly submit proposals in reference to Cuba. At the conclusion of the Premier's remarks, an interpellator was brought forward by the minority of the constitutional party, asking further information respecting the causes of the recent crisis. The Premier stated that he was obliged to go to the Senate, but would return immediately and reply. The constitutional deputies strongly protested. Considerable excitement ensued. The President of the Chamber of Deputies put on his hat and declared the sitting closed amid great excitement.

KING JOHN AND KING MENELEK.

CARIO, Dec. 11.—The King of Abyssinia declares that he is disposed to make peace if the great Powers formally recognise any arrangements that may be concluded concerning the relations between King John and King Menelek. Menelek is in arrears with the tribute.

THE NEW ZEALAND LOAN.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The loan advertised for by the colony of New Zealand has been subscribed for twice over. It bears interest at 5 per cent. for three years and 6 per cent for six years.

THE INDICTED AGITATORS.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON, Dec. 11.—The Connaught Assizes opened to-day. Several processions of Irishmen paraded all the approaches to the Court House, which was thronged. A large force of constabulary was stationed about the town. The police were posted in strong force inside the court room and around the building. Neither Davitt or Daly attended. Their presence will not be required until Friday. The Justice, addressing the Grand Jury, referred to the cases of the Nationalist prisoners, defined the crime of sedition, and told the jury they were entitled to consider all the surrounding circumstances under which the speeches were delivered in order to judge of the intent. The Judge said Brennan's case was more serious, on account of the attempt of the latter to seduce the police from their duty. The Judge informed the jury that they were only bound to find a prima facie case, and the trial will take place in another court.

THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONISTS.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—It is stated the situation at St. Petersburg grows hourly more alarming. An outbreak is expected. Copies of the revolutionary manifesto were thrust under the doors of almost every house in St. Petersburg yesterday. The Czar suspects the sincerity of the police.

THE MINISTRY SUSTAINED.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day Senor Alcasar moved a resolution declaring the confidence of the Chamber in the Ministry. After the Premier had spoken, Senor Silveta, the Marquis de Auriolea, and Senor Albacete spoke against the motion, which, however, was adopted by 201 to 1, the single dissentient being Senor Posada Herrera. The minority abstained from voting.

THE ROYAL CADETS.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The two Princes on board the Bacchante have had a gymnastic apparatus fitted up for them, and are being instructed in it by a Sergeant of the Marines, who is detailed for the post of their Royal Highnesses' gymnastic instructor.

SCHOUVALOFF SUMMONED.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—Count Schouvaloff has been summoned to St. Petersburg to help in the search for the conspirators who made the recent attempt on the life of the Czar, and aid the suppression of Nihilism. The Count has had a long interview with Prince William, Crown Prince of Germany, at Berlin. There are many speculations concerning the result of the conversation, but no accurate information upon the subject has yet been obtained. The Count will pay a visit to Prince Bismarck before going to St. Petersburg.

PERSECUTED POLAND.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A new incident is reported from Warsaw, which shows how little the proposals of reconciliation lately made to the Poles by the St. Petersburg papers are seriously meant. The students of the Warsaw High School organized a concert for the benefit of their poorer comrades, to which M. Laponstitin, curator of the school, was invited. As he entered the concert room a student addressed him in Polish, pointing out to him his seat, but this act of politeness nearly caused his expulsion from the school, the use of the Polish language being forbidden under severe penalties.

AMERICAN.

A HEAVY CITY DEBT.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—The total debt of Boston at the close of this year will $42,259,000, a decrease during the year of $9,720,000.

SAVED FROM A WRECK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The portion of the crew of the wrecked Bark Edithe landed here by the British ship Caliope yesterday, reported that 8 of the crew who left the sinking vessel in a small boat were doubtless lost. It is learned, however, that the missing men were picked up by the steamer Atlas and landed in Boston. Both boats were saved on the same day.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

AYOUB KHAN'S POSITION.

CABUL, Dec. 11.—It is believed that Ayoub Khan, who is reported to be marching from Herat on Candahar, has but little real power, and is swayed by the desires of his unpaid mutinous soldiers, who are excited by reports brought by fugatives from Cabul. As these soldiers have not yet fought the British, they believe they are able to retrieve the defeat of the Cabulese.

ACTIVITY OF THE HILL TRIBES.

A despatch from Viceroy Lytton was to-day received at the Foreign Office, stating that Gen. Macpherson had occupied Sarkk Kotal with his brigade just in time to prevent a junction of the Kohistans with the Ghusenees. The Kohistans, who had occupied a strong position in force near Kotal, were attacked by General Macpherson, and after a sharp action, dislodged, finally flying from the ground and leaving six standards in the hands of the British. The commanders are somewhat disconcerted by the activity of the hill tribes, as the time for finally going into winter quarters is fully come and the passes are rapidly closing with snow. Military movements are confined as much as possible to reconnaissance.

SCARCITY OF SUPPLIES.

The difficulty about finding supplies of forage continues as great as ever, not nearly enough to carry the animals through the winter having yet been obtained. Loud complaints are made against the Home Government for not having provided an adequate transport system, and some form of condensed provisions for the troops.

By Telegraph to the Review.

ARRIVED TOO EARLY.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—A Cabul despatch says the combined movement of Massy and MacPherson miscarried. The cavalry arrived at the point of junction too early. It encountered large masses of the enemy and the guns for a time fell into the enemy's hands, but were recovered. The insurgents who are in considerable force about the city are being attacked by MacPherson, who yesterday inflicted a severe loss.

AN IMPORTANT ENGAGEMENT.

CABUL, Dec. 12.—On Wednesday Gen. MacPherson occupied Sarkh Kotal, just in time to prevent Junction of the Kohistaris with the force from Ghuzena. The Kohistanis, who occupied a position near Kotal were dislodged, leaving their standards. Our loss consists of a few slightly wounded. Gen. Barker was to move by way of Charasib to take them in the rear, while Massy was to join MacPherson by way of the Charde Valley for a combined movement, with the object of driving the enemy south on Baker's command. Massy encountered Mahommed Janed's force, ten thousand Afghan Sepoys and tribe men, and his cavalry made a brilliant charge, but without apparent effect. The country is most difficult. The enemy made for the Cabul gorge, but were checked, and now occupy the heights south of Balahissor. They are admirably led, and two or three thousand are armed with Snyder rifles. They lost heavily by the cavalry charge and artillery fire, but never wavered. Our loss is believed to be eighteen killed, including two Lieutenants, and twenty-five wounded, including one Colonel. MacPherson is now attacking the enemy.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

The publishers of the REVIEW beg to announce that they have arranged to issue a Christmas number of the WEEKLY REVIEW on Friday, December 19th, containing six large, full-sized pages. This edition will contain a large amount of interesting reading, specially selected for the approaching holiday season, and possessing such attractions as will make it an unusually welcome visitor in the homes of every one.

It is the intention of the publishers to print not less than 3,000 copies of this edition, and to circulate them throughout every section of the town and county.

It will be obvious that our Christmas number will afford to merchants and others a rare opportunity for advertising, and as a large amount of extra labour will necessarily be involved, those desiring to avail themselves of it are requested to send in their orders not later than the afternoon of Wednesday.

A TREMENDOUS EXPLOSION.

A Magazine of Nitro-Glycerine and Mica Powder Blows up—The Shock felt for Miles.

Special to the Review.

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Dec. 13.—The magazine of nitro-glycerine and mica powder, on Fox Island, exploded last night about 8.30 with a terrific report, shaking the ground like an earthquake, breaking windows and frightening the people generally. The explosion was in Leamington and Ruthven, shaking every house in both towns. It was also felt forty miles along the Canada Southern Railway line. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but it is supposed to have been the result of fires left by hunters on the island, which reached the magazine. There were about two tons of nitro-glycerine besides mica powder in the place at the time of the explosion.

FELT FORTY MILES AWAY

TAKEN FOR AN EARTHQUAKE.

BELLE RIVER, Dec. 13.—At 8.30 last evening a very perceptible shock of an earthquake was felt all over the village, which lasted a few seconds. The same shock was felt at Pelee, four miles distant.

EFFECT OF THE EXPLOSION.

AMHERSTBURG, Dec. 13.—LATER—Mr. Dunbar, contractor for the lime kiln crossing, with his tug Salty Jack, explored the scene of the explosion this morning. Nothing whatever was found of the magazine. Where it stood is now a and fifteen feet deep made by the explosion. Strange to say a good number of mica powder cartridges are lying around unexploded. The shock was felt as severely at Fletcher, on the Canada Southern Railway, forty miles from here, that the people ran out of their houses in alarm. Mr. Dunbar estimates his loss at $4,000. It is now the opinion of many that it was the work of an incendiary.

HOLE SIXTY FEET IN DIAMETER

BELLE RIVER, ONT.

Special to the Review, Dec. 13.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.—This morning a man named Hugh Kennedy, was found dead on the side of the Great Western Railway track near this place, some passing train having struck him. Papers in his possession give his name as above, and also that he had been in the army.

TORONTO.

Special to the Review, Dec. 13.

MEASLES.—Measles are very prevalent in this city, especially in the east end of town. Thirty-two children are down with the disease in the Girl's Home.

MONTREAL.

Special to the Review, Dec. 13.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.—Alphonse Blondin was arrested for a murderous assault on J. B. Bellefeuil, of Hochelaga, who is in a precarious condition from his inquiries.

DAIRY PRIZES.—Several firms in this city have received first prizes for butter and cheese at the New York Dairy Fair.

BELLEVILLE.

IRON MINING.—Such is the productiveness of iron ore and the value set upon it that strangers interested in the trade are now attracted to this locality to ascertain the character of the deposits and their value. Six gentlemen of Toledo, Ohio, have visited Madoc to prospect in iron ore mining, and others are expected during the week.

THE GOLD FIND.—From a resident of the village of Madoc, the Intelligencer learns that the report of the recent big gold find is not in the least exaggerated. The pocket, which is about 9x11 feet, is one of immense richness and gold can be seen on all sides. It has been visited by many mine operators of experience, both in Australia and California, who pronounce it the richest yet seen in this country.

FLOODS IN HUNGARY.

PESTH, Dec. 12.—Six villages have been ruined by flood near Arad. Many families who found refuge in the neighbouring woods have been frozen to death. Several hundred persons are missing. The overflowings of the Rivers Karos and Maros has caused fearful destruction. The city of Arad, on the Maros, and several other towns have been ruined and their inhabitants driven away. Fully 10,000 persons are homeless.

REFORMS IN TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 12.—Great meetings of the chiefs of the Albanian league have determined to resist the Montenegrins. The Porte has sent a circular to the Governor-Generals of the Turkish Provinces demanding a strict execution of the plans of reform, under pain of dismissal.

TRUE BILLS FOUND.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Grand Jury, at Carrick-on-Shannon, found true bills against Davitt, Killen and Daly for sedition. Counsel for the Crown presented writs removing the trials to Dublin. John Rea, counsel for Killen, protested and advised his client to remain in prison.

MR. PARNELL'S INTENTIONS.

After several changes of programme, Mr. Charles Stewart Parnell, the great Home Ruler, has finally determined upon the time of his departure for the United States. He will sail on the 16th of this month, and make an extensive tour through the United States, in the interest of the cause he has so much at heart. His programme embraces visits to the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Chicago. Since the recent arrests, and believing that the Government only awaits pretended provocation to arrest him, Mr. Parnell has perceptibly toned down his speeches, and is more guarded in his utterances.

HIS HOLINESS' DESIRES.

Advices from the Vatican state that the Pope desires the clergy of Ireland first of all to endeavor to relieve the pressing necessities of the poor in their respective parishes.

ALARMING NEWS FROM CUBA.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—It is stated that very serious news has been received from Cuba, that all the military commanders in the island have resigned. The Minister of War has already received the resignations of 34 generals.

THE ARREST OF A DANGEROUS CONSPIRATOR.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The National Gazette reports that the man mentioned in a despatch from St. Petersburg as having been arrested in the vicinity of the Winter Palace was arrested on Saturday. He had in his possession a number of electric batteries, dynamite cartridges, and a complete plan of the Winter Palace. Previous to his arrest a printed proclamation had been issued announcing that the Winter Palace would be blown up on Sunday.

AMERICAN.

THE NATIONAL CURRENCY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The Herald says Sherman in conversation yesterday said:—"I belive it both politic and right for the United States to retain in circulation a limited amount of notes redeemable in coin, supported by ample coin reserves. The Government alone can maintain a coin reserve sufficiently large to insure the prompt redemption of the large amount of currency which the country needs. If the coin reserve, instead of being in a compact form and held by Government, be scattered among 2000 banks throughout the country, it would be liable to be attacked in detail, and the failure of a few banks would impair confidence and destroy the whole system. He says the difference between himself and the President is, that the President believes that the policy should be adopted gradually to retire United States notes, and to confine the operations of Government in issuing money to the coinage, gold and silver. I believe it is both politic and right for the United States to maintain in circulation a carefully limited amount of United States notes always redeemable in coin, supported by ample reserves in coin, and supplemented by circulating notes of the National Banks, whether you call them greenbacks, treasury notes, or coin certificates, they are an essential part of the national currency."

MURDER WILL OUT.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 12.—Dr. H. McGregor Wilson, of this city, was yesterday afternoon arrested by Sheriff Lewis, of Niagara County, N. Y., on a warrant charging him with conspiring with Mrs. Adeline C. Hodgkiss, to murder George C. and Giles Hodgkiss, husband and son of the woman named, both of whom died suddenly within a few months of each other in Niagara County, N.Y., twelve years ago.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE GUNS TAKEN AND RECOVERED.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The official account of the engagement between General Massey's command and the force under Mahomed Jans shows that General Massey while attempting to intercept the enemy was attached by great numbers. His cavalry before abandoning the field overturned the guns and made repeated charges. The guns were not recovered until the arrival of General McPherson's force. The enemy attacked the British in the hills south of the Bala Hissar, but were beaten off with loss.

COMBINATION AGAINST THE BRITISH.

General Roberts reports that the combination of tribes against the British is considerable. The list of killed and wounded on the British side increases as the reports come in of the different regiments and batteries engaged. The English loss will certainly amount to fifty, and probably more. The entire country is stirred up by the news of the engagement, and it is feared by the commanders that a most distressful and bitter winter campaign is threatening the army, which is, under the circumstances, in poor condition to defend itself. The permanence of British rule in Afghanistan seems more problematical than ever before.

By Telegraph to the Review.

A PARTIAL SUCCESS.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A despatch from Cabul on Friday evening says that McPherson attacked the enemy on the ridge above Balla Hissar at noon to-day. He captured the lower part of the ridge. Baker arrived from Maidon. He had sharp fighting on Wednesday and Thursday. The crest of the hill is to be stormed on Saturday. Cabul is quiet.

PERSIAN MISSION TO EUROPE.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Vienna correspondent hears from high sources that the Shah of Persia has decided to send an extraordinary mission to Europe, first to go to Constantinople, thence to Vienna, and thence to Berlin, Paris and London, to seek recognition by Europe of the Persia Altack frontier threatened by Russia.

ON POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The Times says the circumstances of the attempt upon the life of the Viceroy of India seems to divest the deed of any political significance.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

PITTSTON, Pa., Dec. 13.—Zieber Major, a well known farmer of Cuzerne County was found crushed to death under a large tree which had fallen upon him yesterday.

MONSTER MEETING CALLED.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A Dublin correspondent says the trials of Davitt, Daley and Killen have been abandoned. Davitt and Daley are practically at large without bail. Placards have been posted throughout the County of Kerry, it is believed at the instance of O'Donough, who has heretofore opposed Nationalists, calling for a monster meeting at Killarney on the 6th inst. The language of the placards is violent, but advises agitation within the law.

PEACEFUL PROGRAMME.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—According to telegrams from St. Petersburg, Gortschakoff presented to the Czar the programme of his future policy. The basis is peace, friendly relations with Austria. Hungary and Germany are recognized as indispensible. The programme is said to have met with the approval of the Czar.

POST MORTEM LITIGATION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The will of Isaac W. Potter is being contested. He bequeaths to his heirs a law suit, which has been pending for a long time between deceased and Mary Ann Coulter, whom he accuses of having wrongfully deprived him of certain property. Until this litigation is settled not a cent of the estate is to go to the heirs, but all is appropriated to the payment of counsel fees.

A ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

HARTFORD, Dec. 13.—The elopement of Miss Kate Seymour Beckwith, the daughter of a wealthy citizen with W. G. Strickland of St. Paul, Minn., occurred yesterday. Strickland's attentions a few years ago, while he was a clerk here, were objected to by the young lady's parents, but she is now of age. Meanwhile Strickland has become prosperous.

A FATAL FALL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Louis Peck, aged 45, was instantly killed at Williamsburg last evening by falling into a cellar. He was intoxicated.

SCHOOL BOARD DEFICIENCY.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 13.—There is a deficiency of $75,000 in the accounts of the Board of Education for this year. The Controller has been requested to pay over that amount out of the appropriations for the past year.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The World says it is generally understood that the agreement of the coal companies has been broken indiscriminately, and that official notification will be given of its expiration by mutual consent on January 1st. A decline of 75 cents a ton is expected, and in view of the heavy stocks accumulating, a concession of 50 cents additional will probably be offered to wholesale dealers. All the coal company presidents acknowledge that prices are too high, and that some reduction will have to be made even with a partial suspension of mining.

STONING A CHURCH.

NORWICH, Conn., Dec. 13.—While Father Quinn, a former priest, was speaking on Catholicism in the Methodist church last night, a stone was thrown through the window. The meeting was not broken up.

MELANCHOLY END.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13.—Wm. D. Buck, a Virginian with high social connections, was found dead yesterday in a house of ill-repute, kept by a negress. The cause of death was intemperance. He served in the confederate army, and was related to President Madison.

INFLUENCING SENATORS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—A Washington special report to the Herald says the speculating class of New York holders of stock at high prices are exerting a strong influence upon the Senators against the Bayard resolution, and others looking to the repeal of the legal tender clause but it is not believed that they will be successful.

LOTTERY COMPANIES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—A Washington special report to the Times says the agents of the lottery companies are actively lobbying to defeat the legislation directed against them. Generals Beauregard and Early, who are connected with the Louisiana Lottery Company, are circulating an address to Congressmen, containing the old arguments in favor of lottery projects.

ATTEMPTED JAIL BREAKING.

NEW YORK Dec. 13.—It is stated that a bold attempt was discovered yesterday to liberate Johnny Hope, John Dobbs, Roundsman Nugent, Janitor Shevelin and Watchman Kelly, the alleged Manhattan bank robbers from the Tombs. Several prison officials are said to have been bribed. Keeper John Norton on Tuesday night was seen to pass a letter to one of the prisoners. On Thursday night a detective concealed himself in the prisoner's cell. The same keeper signalled at the cell door, and passed a large package to the prisoner. Norton was suspended, and was arrested yesterday. The contents of the package are in the District Attorney's Office, and are said to be most startling.

TOO FAMILIAR WITH A BURGLAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—There is no truth in the story published this morning about the plot to rescue the Manhattan Bank burglars from the Tombs. The Warden says it arose from the fact that Morton, one of the under keepers has been discharged by the commissioner being too familiar with one of the burglars.

LAKEFIELD AGENCY OF THE REVIEW.—Mr. W. C. Saunders has been appointed Manager of the Lakefield Agency of the Review, and is authorised to receive Advertisements and Subscriptions, and also Orders for Printing. Office:—North of Post Office, Lakefield.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1879.

WHEN TO SELL WHEAT.

It it said that a monthly comparison of the prices for the ten years from 1869 to 1879 in the State of New Hampshire shows that July is just as good a month to sell in as February, and that in the order named, December, November and October prices average better than in any months until the last of winter. After January there is a steady gain in prices until May, when according to record, the highest prices are reached.

THE DOMINION GRANGE.

Among those present at the annual session of the Dominion Grange, we observe the names of Mr. Hugh Davidson, Smith, and Mr. Dawson Kennedy, Otonabee. From the secretary's report we learn that during the past year fifty-five subordinate and four division granges have been organized, making the total now in existence in the Dominion seven hundred and sixty-six subordinate and fifty-one division granges, with a total membership in good standing of about thirty-one thousand.

NOT A CREDITABLE MOVE.

It is said that the Grand Junction Railway Co. have entered in the Courts a suit to compel the County of Peterborough to issue $75,000 of debentures as a bonus to the Railway. This looks something like extorting a bargain from a man because he is unwilling to negotiate, regardless of the disadvantages under which he may labour by the transaction. The fact of Peterborough refusing to pay this $75,000, is only reasonable. Certain conditions were arrived at, a route was laid down, and a by-law worded and framed by the Company, assisted by representatives from Peterborough and locality, was passed in accordance therewith. Instead of giving Peterborough the route which, like any other transaction, she honestly negotiated for, the line we believe has deviated from the original course and assumed another direction. Such being the case why should she be compelled to pay the $75,000? Peterborough is interested in the Toronto and Ottawa Railway, and believing this will add to her wealth, she has a right to look upon less advantageous schemes as secondary considerations. Still, we believe the people of that town can be reached in an amicable settlement regarding the construction of this railway, providing, as it only should be, that she has a say as to the course it should take. The Grand Junction Railway Company have gained renown—a renown of the wrong stamp, however,—for law suits, since its formation into a Company—one for every few miles of road; and though they may look upon our advice as weak as nothing, we think the better course for them to pursue would be to cancel all future law suits, and work with the easier, more profitable, and more desirable method of arbitration to effect their purposes. Peterborough does not act with arbitrariness in a matter which does not conflict with her interests, and the step of bullying, or in a bullying manner, forcing that town to pay out of her treasury means which she is entitled to pay only upon certain conditions, is out of all reason.—Campbellford Herald.

MILLBROOK.

An Apology.—The Messenger says:—Mr. W. H. Wood requests us to make his apologies to the people of Cavan, for the document that was placed before them last week in our advertising columns, as well as for those that were put round as circulars. The sentiments contained therein he taketh not back, but regrets having given the printer positive instruction to print it exactly according to copy, which he would not have done had he not been so "jolly." In fact he looks upon it as a put up thing to blackmail him and get him off the track by certain parties, but he thinks they will find out their mistake, as he is determined to fight it out to the bitter death, and he feels satisfied that he is going to have a hand in regulating the affairs for the year 1880. His address, continues the Messenger, will be found in another column. In it he has not referred to the horse business, as he thinks he is already sufficiently understood on that point, as those are the sentiments he declines to take back from his now celebrated document of last week.

LINDSAY.

For the Central Prison.—Wm. Dewart, of Fenelon Falls, who was sentenced by Judge Wilson at the late Assizes to two years in the Penitentiary, left here this morning on the seven o'clock train for the Central Prison, Toronto, information having been received by the authorities here that his sentence of imprisonment would be lessened to six months in the Central Prison, to date from 1st November, on account of a numerously signed petition in his behalf having been forwarded to His Excellency the Governor-General, and the amount demanded by the Rutherfords having been paid.

Fires Last Week.—On Thursday afternoon a fire broke out in a stable of Mr. Bickaby's, on Kent Street, which was completely destroyed, with its contents, consisting of hay, oats and wheat. Loss estimated at $200; insurance small. Earlier in the day a small brick house in the South Ward, owned by Mr. E. McTavish, was burned to the ground.

Personal.—We are glad to learn that Mr. A. Hudspeth is recovering from the attack of diptheria with which he was laid up for some days during last week.—Warder.

COBOURG.

Bigamy.—At the County Court held on Thursday, Almon Drinkwater was convicted on a charge of bigamy before His Honour Judge Boswell. It appears from the evidence that the prisoner made love to a young lady by the name of Ada Bertram, who resided in the County of Frontenac, near Kingston, and was duly married to her by the Dean of Ontario, at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, while his first wife, who resided in the Township of Cramahe, was alive. In consequence of the representations of insanity made by the friends of the prisoner, His Honour, in passing sentence, expressed the opinion that there was some truth in them, as the prisoner had acted in such an odd and ostentatious manner in being married at the Cathedral in Kingston, while his first wife was still alive, and only a few miles distant. In view of all the circumstances, he would inflict the light sentence of six months imprisonment at hard labor in the Central Prison.

Shooting Affair.—On Wednesday night a stranger attending the court here entered the Arlington Hotel and called for a drink. Mr. Herbert Stanton, the clerk, refused to attend to his wants, whereupon he drew a revolver and shot at Mr. Stanton, but fortunately missed his victim, and shattered a plate glass window. He has not yet been arrested.

STARTLING RAILWAY INTELLIGENCE.

AUTHORITATIVE STATEMENT BY THE SOLICITOR OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

The Grand Junction and Midland United, to be Worked by the Grand Trunk with Headquarters at Belleville.

Special to the Review.

Belleville, Dec. 13.—The public meeting of ratepayers held last night to consider the petition of the Grand Junction Railway Company for the extension of the time for the completion of their line to Peterborough until January 1st, 1881, was not very largely attended. During the discussion which took place, Mr. Bell, the Grand Trunk Railway Solicitor, stated that the Grand Trunk will, during the coming year, proceed with the work of doubling the track between Toronto and Montreal, and that the Grand Junction and the Midland will be united, and in all probability, worked by the Grand Trunk, with the headquarters at Belleville, which thus became one of the most important railroad centres on the line.

A motion was carried extending the time on condition that the whole bonus of $50,000 be made payable on the completion to Peterborough instead of one half at Hastings, as agreed to by a resolution of the council last year, but with interest to be paid on one half of the bonus from the date of Mr. Shanly, the arbitrator, certifying that the line was completed to Hastings, as required by the by-law.

HANLAN AND TRICKETT.

What Trickett is Willing to do—He will not Leave Sydney to Pull nor Allow Hanlan Expenses.

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 6., 1879.—I have seen Trickett and ascertained his views regarding the much-talked-of contest between himself and Hanlan. Trickett or his friends never received any official letter from Toronto, and therefore had only surmises to go on. The news came that Courtney's boat had been cut at Chautauqua, and of course many men here, without a knowledge of the facts, and basing their idea on the meagre message which came by cable, blamed the Hanlan party as the ones who had incited the cutting of the shell; and the amount of chaffing that the Canadians here had to put up with is not only painful, but ludicrous. Trickett's friends accordingly put down to bombast his accepting or giving any challenge to Trickett. I have seen Trickett and his friends and have had a long talk with them. They will not allow anything for expenses, but will pull Hanlan for $10,000 and until something more definite comes from the other side will entertain no proposals or offer any opinion. Trickett himself is scared of Hanlan, and he will never leave Sydney Heads to pull anywhere. It is a great pity no enterprising sculler would come out here. I am sanguine of their success, and a ship load of money could be made by Hanlan's friends. A gentleman here paid $66 for a cable message to Hanlan but did not receive any answer, which, to say the least, showed a great lack of courtesy.—Cor. Toronto Telegram.

THE BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

London, Dec. 9.—The Mark Lane Express in its review of the British grain trade for the past week says:—"As a rule, farmers' interests in England have not suffered by the delay in their operations caused by the frost, but in Scotland plowing is much in arrear. The deliveries of home-grown wheat were slightly less than the previous week, but in consequence of there being no material improvement in the quality, business was very slow, both in London and at the country markets, with little or no change in prices. The imports of foreign wheat have again been large, amounting to 88,521 quarters received at London during the week, and 210,000 quarters at Liverpool during the past fortnight. These supplies, though doubtless in excess of the present requirements, have exercised very little depressing effect on trade, which possesses many qualities of inherent strength, the principal of which are the rise in the American markets and the anticipated decrease in the American supply. It appears likely that increased activity, perhaps even excitement, may be felt before the close of the year, as further St. Petersburg shipments are impossible, and the Southern Russian ports will soon be closed. Altogether, trade is healthy, if it is not for the moment lethargic. As America holds the key to the position, the first impulse toward renewed activity must come from her. Maize advanced 6d. per qr. in consequence of a scarcity. Owing to the excessive arrivals, sales of oats were difficult even at a reduction of from 3d. to 6d. per qr. The sales of English wheat last week amounted to 38,428 qrs. at 46s 7d. per qr., against 57,856 qrs. at 40s. 11d. per qr. during the corresponding week last year. The imports into the United Kingdom for the week ending November 29 were 1,610,425 cwts. of wheat and 288,129 cwts. of flour."

COLBORNE.

Iron Ore and Lithographic Stone.—A correspondent of the Warder says:—One of our enterprising citizens has discovered some splendid iron ore within a short distance of our village. Another is organizing a Joint Stock Company, for the purpose of manufacturing Lithographic Stone, and it seems that we are more highly favored than some other places, for here we have it so large that that Yankee Company would have to enlarge their miserable little harbor in order to land it.

SMITH.

Council Meeting.—Pursuant to notice of the Reeve, the Council met on Dec. 1st; all the members present. Minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. A by-law to fix the place where the meeting of the municipal electors shall be held for nominating candidates for the offices of Reeve, Deputy-Reeve, and Councillors and when a poll is demanded, to fix the polling places in the several polling sub-divisions of the township, and to appoint Deputy-Returning Officers and fix their remuneration, passed its several readings, and was signed and sealed. Memorials to the Hon. the Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, and to the Hon. Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals, in regard to the opening up of the Trent Valley Canal received their several readings, was signed, and ordered to be forwarded. The following claims were ordered to be paid:—

THE HIGHWAY COW.

The hue of her hide was a dusky brown,
  Her body was lean and her neck was slim,
One horn turned up and the other down,
  She was keen of vision and long of limb;
With a Roman nose and a short stump tail,
And ribs like the hoops of a home-made pail.

Many a mark did her old body wear;
  She had been a target for all things known;
On many a scar the dusky hair
  Would grow no more where once it had grown;
Many a passionate, parting shot
Had left upon her a lasting spot.

Many and many a well-aimed stone,
  Many a brickbat of goodly size,
And many a cudgel, swiftly thrown,
  Had brought the tears to her bovine eyes;
Or had bounded off from her bony back,
With a noise like the sound of a rifle crack.

Many a day had she passed in the pound,
  For helping herself to her neighbor's corn,
Many a cowardly cur and hound
  [illegible] crumpled horn;
Many a tea-pot-and-old tin pail
Had the farmer boys tied to her time-worn tail.

Old Deacon Gray was a pious man,
  Though sometimes tempted to be profane,
When many a weary mile he ran
  To drive her out of his growing grain.
Sharp pranks she used to play
To get her fill and to get away.

She knew when the deacon went to town,
  She wisely watched him when he went by;
He never passed her without a frown,
  And an evil gleam in each angry eye;
He would crack his whip in a surly way
And drive along in his "one-horse shay."

Then at his homestead she loved to call,
  Lifting his bars with her crumpled horn;
Nimbly scaling his garden wall,
  Helping herself to his standing corn,
Eating his cabbage one by one,
Hurrying home when her work was done.

Often the deacon homeward came,
  Humming a hymn from the house of prayer;
His hopeful heart in a tranquil frame,
  His soul as calm as the evening air,
His forehead as smooth as a well-worn plow,
To find in his garden that highway cow.

His human passions were quick to rise,
  And striding forth with a savage cry,
With fury blazing from both his eyes,
  As lightning flash in a summer sky;
Redder and redder his face would grow,
And after the [illegible] he would go.

Over the garden round and round,
  Breaking his pear and apple trees;
Trampling his melons into the ground,
  Overturning his hives of bees;
Leaving him angry and badly stung,
Wishing the old cow's neck was wrung.

The mosses grew on the garden wall,
  The years went by with their work and play,
The boys of the village grew strong and tall,
  And the gray-haired farmers passed away
One by one as the red leaves fall,
But the highway cow outlived them all.

All earthly creatures must have their day,
  And some must have their months and years;
Some in dying will long delay.
  There is a climax to all careers,
And the highway cow at last was slain
In running a race with the railway train

All into pieces at last she went,
  Just like the savings banks when they fail;
Out of the world she was swiftly sent,
  Little was left but her old stumpy tail,
The farmers' cornfields and gardens now
Are haunted no more by the highway cow.

WHAT IS TROUBLE?

A company of Southern ladies were one day assembled in a lady's parlour, when the conversation chanced to turn on the subject of earthly affliction. Each had her story of peculiar trial and bereavement to relate, except one pale, sad-looking woman, whose lustreless eye and dejected air showed that she was a prey to the deepest melancholy. Suddenly arousing herself, she said in a hollow voice:—

"Not one of you knew what trouble is."

"Will you please, Mrs. Gray," said the kind voice of a lady who well knew her story, "tell the ladies what you call trouble?"

"I will, if you desire it," she replied, "for I have seen it. My parents possessed a competence, and my girlhood was surrounded by all the comforts of life. I seldom knew an ungratified wish, and was always gay and light-hearted. I married, at nineteen, one I loved more than all the world besides. Our home was retired, but the sunlight never fell on a lovelier one, or a happier household. Years rolled on peacefully. Five children sat around our table, and a little curly head still nestled in by bosom. One night, about sundown, one of those black storms came on, which are so common to our Southern clime. For many hours the rain poured down incessantly. Morning dawned, and still the elements raged. The whole savannah seemed afloat. The little stream near our dwelling became a torrent. Before we were aware of it, our house was surrounded by water. I managed, with my babe, to reach a little elevated spot, on which a few wide-spreading trees were standing, whose dense foliage afforded some protection, while my husband and sons strove to save what they could of our property. At last a fearful surge swept away my husband, and he never rose again. Ladies, no one ever loved a husband more—but that was not trouble.

"Presently my sons saw their danger, and the struggle for life became the only consideration. They were as brave, loving boys as ever blessed a mother's heart, and I watched their efforts to escape, with such agony as only mothers can feel. They were so far off I could not speak to them, but I could see them close nearer to each other as their little island grew smaller and smaller.

"The sullen river raged around the huge trees; dead branches, upturned trunks, wrecks of houses, drowning cattle, masses of rubbish, all went floating past us. My boys waved their hands to me and then pointed upward. I knew it was a farewell signal, and you, mothers, can amagine my anguish. I saw them all perish, and yet—that was not trouble.

"I hugged my babe close to my heart, and when the water rose to my feet, I climbed into the low branches of the tree, and so kept retiring before it, till an All-powerful hand stayed the waves, that they should come no further. I was saved. All my worldly possessions swept away; all my earthly hopes blighted—yet that was not trouble.

"My baby was all I had left on earth. I labored night and day to support him and myself, and sought to train him in the right way; but as he grew older, evil companions won him away from home. He ceased to care for his mother's counsels; he would sneer at her entreaties and agonizing prayers. He left my humble roof that he might be unrestrained in the pursuit of evil, and, at last, when heated by wine one night, he took the life of a fellow being, and ended his own on the scaffold. My Heavenly Father had filled my cup of sorrow before, now it ran over. This was trouble, ladies, such as I hope His mercy will save you from ever experiencing."

There was not a dry eye among her listeners, and the warmest sympathy was expressed for the bereaved mother, whose sad history had taught them a useful lesson.

A New Cattle Disease.

A new form of cattle disease differing altogether from the pleuro-pneumonia has broken out in the northern portion of Westchester County, N. Y. Four cows belonging to the herd of one farmer have died of this distemper. It is characterised by difficulty of breathing and signs of fever, followed by delirium. On examination the heart of one of the dead cattle was found much enlarged, the blood vessels distended, and the lungs diseased. Veterinaries say the malady is totally unlike anything they have seen before.

A LITTLE GIRL'S CLOTHING.

I have just been dressing my little nine-year-old daughter in her winter clothing, which I have been at work on for several days. She and I are so delighted with the suit that I am tempted to describe it for the benefit of other mothers, who may be as ignorant as I once was of making clothes in the most healthful and comfortable manner.

First comes a high-necked and long-sleeved red flannel chemise. The neck, which never is seen above the dress, is simply bound with plain red calico and the short opening down the front is also faced with that; but the sleeves I button-hole-stitched in small scallops with red worsted, which would look a little neater in case they accidentally showed at the wrist. The binding, however, wears a little better for the neck. Next comes a long waist made of brown drilling (waist lining) fitted, but loosely, by seams under arms and on shoulders and buttoned up the back. On the lower edge, directly under each arm is a button-hole into which one end of the stocking elastic is buttoned, and the other end is fastened to the stocking by a buckle. There are two rows of buttons around the waist, the lower ones for the drawers, the upper ones to fasten the skirts upon, so that there might not be the slightest dragging upon the hips.

If all of the present mothers would take these precautions, to suspend the clothing upon the shoulders instead of the hips, would not that be one step toward insuring better health for the coming generation of women? The drawers, of thick, firm flannel, are made long enough to reach underneath the stockings to the tops of the high-buttoned calf-skin shoes. They are cut quite tapering, so as to fit rather snugly below the knee, (not to fill the stockings too much), and are left open three or four inches at the bottom, to allow drawing on easily. This opening is lapped together before pulling the stocking up. To avoid all clumsiness possible, the drawers are not hemmed, but are overcast with needle and thread. On best occasions a pair of muslin drawers tucked, puffed, or embroidered at pleasure, may be worn over these; but they are unnecessary for "every day." The skirt is butternut colored, thick, home made flannel, cut goring and trimmed with three rows of narrow, black braid just above the hem. The band at the top is made of strong drilling with button-holes for attaching to waist. The bands to the drawers should also be made of strong cloth, or they will be worn out before the flannel is. Her dresses are all cut after the Princess pattern and made without much trimming, as large aprons nearly cover them.

Gingham always seems the most suitable apron material, and yet my little girl loves best one made of bright, pink calico, which was her own selection at "our country store." Children like pretty colours best, and why not indulge them sometimes, even if it isn't "the fashion to wear 'em."

CHICKEN-FEATHER BRUSHES.

Very pretty and useful brushes may be made of chicken feathers, which being less harsh than broom, still are stiffer and stronger than the feathers generally used for soft dusters. They therefore combine some of the advantages of both, and are very useful for wall corners and cornices, while they also are handy to use about a fireplace.

Select even and pretty feathers, string them, with a needle and fine strong twine, through the stem at the end of the feathered parts, then hammer the quills flat, so as to make them lie close to the handle, which may be an old broom-stick, if desired. Wet this handle with strong glue, secure one end of the string, and wind the strung feathers around and around the stick until the brush reaches the required size. As you wind, bind the stems close to the stick with twine, and, in finishing the last row, bind them tightly and evenly by winding the twine on the outside over all the quills. Meanwhile keep the quills wet with glue, that the brush may be firm when dry.

The twine is then to be neatly covered by a cap of enamel cloth, of any required size. Sew the edges firmly and secure it to its place with glue. A more ornamental handle than an old broom may, of course, be used, and the cap may be made of bright cloth or morocco, pinked or bound on the edge.

Very useful brushes may also be made of old window-brush handles. After the bristles have been removed from the holes, so as the leave them quite free, fill their places with small bunches of feathers made to fit the holes exactly, and tied firmly with twine; cut off the quill ends, so that the feathery part comes close to the holes, and secure the bunches in the holes with strong glue. This brush may be be made of smaller feathers than the first mentioned kind, and trimmed off after it is finished, to make it stiff and even. It will be found useful for a variety of work, and does not require much care in making. Hearth and Home.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

FOR oiling walnut furniture:—Raw linseed oil rubbed with a flannel cloth, then polish with a dry piece of flannel; be careful not to put too much on.

BURNS AND SCALDS.—Every family should have a preparation of flaxseed oil, chalk and vinegar, about the consistency of thick paint, constantly on hand for burns and scalds.

TO CURE A FELON.—Equal parts of soft soap and quick lime made into a paste; apply to the felon and renew whenever dry. It will cause pain if the felon has progressed much, but it is a sure cure.

To prevent wooden bowls from cracking, either pour sweet, hot lard in them or immerse in cold water, bring to the boiling point, boil an hour or longer, then let the water cool gradually, when the bowl may be taken out.

DERMA WASH.—A very nice thing for a lady to keep is a bottle of this on her dressing room table always, for little spots on her garments: One quart of boiling water, half an ounce of camphor, one ounce of borax; after cooling, half a pint of alcohol.

REPELLING MOTHS.—If fine-cut tobacco be sprinkled under the edge of carpets, and under those places where bureaus, book-cases and the like make it dark, the moths will be prevented from laying their eggs in them, as it will drive them away.

SICK HEADACHE.—This distressing complaint can generally be relieved by soaking the feet in warm water, in which a spoonful of powdered mustard has been stirred. Soak as long as possible, or till the water gets cool; it draws the blood from the head.

TREATMENT OF BOILS.—Boils should be brought to a head by warm poultices of camomile flowers or boiled white lily root, or onion root by fermentation with hot water, or by stimulating plasters. When ripe they should be destroyed by a needle or a lancet, but this should not be attempted until they are fully proved.

TO KILL INSECTS.—A Michigan lady writes to Mr. Vick, the florist, that to kill insects she uses one teaspoonful of kerosine to a gallon of water, and sprinkles it on the plants with a hand broom. It destroys green flies, current worms and other pests, and was used without injury to fuchsias, geraniums, callas and other tender plants.

TO CURE A CORN. Soak the feet and pare the corn down as much as it will allow without pain; then apply with a small brush a solution of gum arabic (such as often kept for mucilage); dry it over by a fire until it will not stick to the stocking, and repeat this application at least once a day (at retiring is best) without removing the previous coating, for two or three weeks, or till the corn is missing.

THE manager of a church fair, when asked if there would be music each evening replied. "No," and then added, "but there will be singing."

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Dec. 13.—The market this morning was a fine one both in offerings and attendance. The delightful weather brought out the towns-people in large numbers. The platforms were completely surrounded with teams; the square was filled and the adjacent streets had to be occupied. The hog trade took the lead to-day. Scarcely a farmer was in who had not one or more hogs to sell, and a more uniform quality has not been seen on the market this season. Prices remain unchanged, $5.25 being the ruling figure. We quote for packing purposes $5.00 to $5.25; for quarters, 5½ to 6 cents per pound. Beef was again abundant but prices were a little firmer and in some instances an advance was effected; the bulk, however, went at, for the fore quarter $3.00 to $3.50 per cwt., and for hind quarter at $4.50 to $5.00. In mutton and lamb there was no change to note. Tallow brought 7c. Lard, no change to note. Poultry although plentiful was not above the demand, while prices remained unchanged except geese, some very fine ones bringing 45cts. each. Potatoes were in fair supply at 60 to 65 cts. per bag. Some of the farmers informed us that they had sold for 70cts., very few were sold at that rate. Turnips, carrots and parsnips were scarce, and only small lots were sold at 20 to 25cts. per bushel. Apples were again in excess of the demand and prices ruled low at 50 to 75c. per bag, and $1.50 to $2.50 per barrel. Butter in kegs was scarce. Shippers paying 20cts. for best grade and not anxious at that, owing to a decline at the ocean ports. Roll butter was steady at 20cts. and was in fair supply. Eggs were scarce and fancy prices were asked, 25cts. being demanded for one lot. While general sales were affected at 17 to 18cts. per dozen. A few lots of peas were taken at 65cts. Oats were in light supply at 31 to 33cts., 32 being the ruling figure. Rye was scarce and with a light demand was slow at 60cts. per 56lbs. Barley was again among the offerings at 50cts.; we have no occasion to change quotations. Wheat is again coming forward in quantities the late rise having induced the farmers to bring it forward. Spring is bringing $1.27 to-day while winter remains at $1.30. Hay was a drug at $6.00. Wood may also be classified with hay in over supply. There is a difficulty in disposing of the class of wood that is now coming in.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council will be held this evening at half-past seven o'clock.

Skating on the Little Lake.

There was good skating last evening on Spaldings Bay and the Little Lake. Several parties were out this morning on the Little Lake, but did not venture far from shore.

Dim Light.

The street lamp at the corner of George and London streets burned very dimly last night, the result of want of cleaning. Some of the residents in that vicinity think the gas was frozen.

Acknowledgment.

The Treasurer of the St. Andrew's Society acknowledges with thanks the receipt of $10 for the benefit of the charitable funds of the Society, out of the collection taken up on the occasion of the annual sermon in St. Andrew's Church on Sabbath evening, 30th ultimo.

Entertainment.

Arrangements have been made for a musical and dramatic entertainment, to be given by the pupils of the Convent, in Bradburn's Hall, on Friday, December 26th. Previous entertainments of the same nature have been well appreciated by the audience, and the hall should be crowded on this occasion.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: fresh to brisk, south-westerly to southerly winds; partly cloudy, warmer weather. Peterborough is enjoying two days of clear weather. To-day we have south-westerly winds, changing to southerly and warmer, but not sufficiently warm to affect the ice formed last night.

Curling and Skating Rink.

The ground preparations for the ice formation at the skating rink are completed, and the work of obtaining an ice surface is progressing satisfactorily. Should the atmosphere continue below the freezing point until Monday, it is thought that the rink can be opened for skaters and curlers by that time, or on Tuesday at the furtherest.

Ashburnham and the Letter-Box.

The residents in the village of Ashburnham, were delighted when the Postmaster had a drop-letter box put up on that side of the river for their convenience. This was, however, of comparatively little benefit as long as postage stamps could be obtained no nearer than the Peterborough office, but since the beginning of December Mr. Young has obtained a license to sell stamps at his grocery store, close to the box.

A New Departure.

Peterborough is making a new departure. Our enterprising townsman Mr. Thomas Bradburn, has gone into the tea importing business, and is making arrangements for opening a wholesale tea house in this town. The first lot of 200 chests of Young Hyson tea, per ship Galley of Lorne just arrived at Portland, has arrived over the Grand Trunk and Midland Railways. Mr. Bradburn proposes to open the trade here in accordance with the oriental style of exhibiting teas on the "round table," giving his customers a cup of the fragrant beverage to test its fine flavor. The store north of the arcade will be the head-quarters of this new tea emporium.

Peterborough Literary Association.

At the meeting of the above Association, held last evening, the following officers were elected: —J. F. Jeffers, M. A., President; R. E. Wood, B. A., Vice-President; F. W. G. Haultain, B. A., Secretary-Treasurer; Committee of management, E. B. Edwards, M. A., B. Earl, and N. D. Beck. After a reading by Mr. Haultain, a debate took place on the question, "Should the law be so amended in the Province of Ontario as to give a married woman the same control over her property, and make her liable to the like penalties as her husband." Messrs. Hall and Wood were for the affirmative, and Messrs. Edwards and Hilton for the negative. The decision was in favor of the affirmative.

The Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club.

The Peterborough Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club held their annual meeting last evening at the Huffman House. The Second Vice-President, Mr. H. LeBrun, occupied the chair, and Mr. W. J. Sherwood acted as Secretary. There was a good attendance of the members. No business was transacted of public importance excepting the election of the following officers: Messrs. H. LeBrun, President; G. A. Dennistoun, 1st Vice-President; H. B. Weller, 2nd Vice-President; John Hackett, Captain; A. N. Shaw, Secretary; T. Munro, Treasurer; and the following committee: Messrs. M. M. Hackett, W. Sanderson, James Dolan, C. N. Brown, and S. S. Henderson. The meeting adjourned to meet again at the same place, on Friday, Dec. 19th, at 8 o'clock, when there will be business of importance brought before the members of the club.

Cold Weather and the Mills.

The present cold snap is closing down the saw-mills, and should the present low temperature continue into next week, the work of sawing must be entirely suspended at most, if not all the mills. The timber mill of the Dickson estate is still in operation, but they experienced considerable difficulty yesterday in getting up the logs, and it was then thought that this week would close them down altogether. Mr. Hazlitt is making extensive improvements in the Dickson mills, which, when completed, will make these mills equal, if not superior, to any others in this section of the country. The old flume of the large mill has been removed, and preparations are being made to put in a new and substantial sill and flume. Other important improvements and additions are being made, and new and improved machinery is to be added, which will greatly facilitate the work in these extensive mills. They will be completed in ample time for the next season's business.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

St. Paul's church was well filled on Tuesday afternoon last, with the elite of Lindsay, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. G. G. Hilliard, eldest son of Mr. George Hilliard, M.P., Peterborough, and Miss M. E. Musgrave, grand-daughter of Walker Needler, of this town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Smithett, D. D., and was rendered more than usually interesting and impressive by the presence of the choir of the church who turned out en masse out of regard for the bride, who has been for several years a very zealous worker in the Sunday school and is held in high esteem by the congregation. As the procession filed up the aisle the wedding march pealed forth from the organ and the wedding party took up their position within the chancel. The bride, who was appropriately dressed and looked charming, was supported by three bridesmaids. The first was the bride's bright little three-year old niece, Mabel Dunsford, daughter of Mr. J. H. Dunsford, and the others were Miss. Hilliard, sister of the groom, and Miss Lottie Smithett. The groom was supported by Mr. Harry Stapleton and Mr. Thos. Fortye, both of Peterboro.' The bride was given away by Mr. Wm. Needler. After the ceremony the happy couple received the congratulations of a host of friends and took their departure by the Midland for a tour to Chicago and the Western States. The presents to the bride were numerous, costly and elegant.—Lindsay Post.

THE MADOC GOLD FEVER.

The Great Gold Excitement—A Big Bonanza Discovered.

MADOC, Dec. 10.—As reported in the Intelligencer yesterday, the excitement in Madoc village and vicinity over the recent gold discovery is great. In speaking of the discovery all seem determined to wait with patience for further developments before giving expression to opinions, as the excitement about the Richardson mine and its disastrous consequences to many is too fresh in the minds of the people for them to be carried away even by the most flattering prospects of a rich gold discovery without having the necessary patience to await further developments. That the discovery is real and a rich one there is no doubt, as can be testified by many who visited the mine from the village to-day.

The mine where the discovery has been made is situated on lot 17, 11th con. of Madoc, next lot to the Feigel mine, and is owned by Messrs. Dale, Stanlick, Powell and Harrison, as equal partners.

On the lot there are three veins in a width of thirty feet, which it is expected will come together. In all of these veins shafts have been sunk, some to the depth of fifty feet, which have had to be abandoned on account of water. From all of these, or nearly all, gold in paying quantities has been taken. As the proprietors are not wealthy capitalists, they during the last two years that the mine has been worked have depended on the produce of the mine for working capital. The mine has steadily turned out from $8 to $[illegible] to the ton since it has been worked. From one of the shafts abandoned on account of water $300 worth of gold was taken from 15 tons of ore.

The present rich discovery has been made on the east vein, which is about four feet in width, and is visible on the ground in places for about 2,000 feet. The rich deposit was struck at a depth of only two feet, and although now a depth of twelve feet has been reached there is no sign of it giving out.

That the deposit is rich in gold there is no doubt, and all sorts of calculations are made as to its worth; many says its value is $4,000 to the ton and large offers have been made for an interest. The deposit is the same as in the celebrated Richard mine, and the washings have proven so far truly wonderful.

Mr. Dale, one of the owners, assures us that from a peck of the dirt he has washed out from $10 to $12 worth of gold and from less than half a pan of dirt an ounce of gold was washed, one piece of the gold being fully an inch in length. There is a five stamp mill on the lot and about fourteen men are engaged in and about the mine, so that the only question that remains as to its being merely a pocket or not will be soon determined, as its richness is without a doubt.—Belleville Intelligencer.

How to Keep Canary Birds.

Many persons have difficulty in keeping their canary birds in good health. One who is experienced in their care says:—Place the cage so that no draft of air can strike the bird; give nothing to healthy birds but canary and rape seed, mixed with water, cuttlefish bone and gravel on the floor of the cage; also, occasionally, a little water for bathing; the room should not be overheated; when moulting (shedding feathers), avoid drafts of air; give plenty of rape seed, slightly moistened; a little hard boiled egg and cracker grated fine is excellent; by observing these simple directions, birds may be kept in fine condition for years. Bad seed kills most of the birds that die; to which might have been added, that canary birds are not only very fond of but benefited by having given a leaf of cabbage, pieces of apple, or other green food, which serves to keep down the tendency to fever and prevent constipation. Our birds usually bathe each day as regularly as any one washes the face, and with apparent benefit too. When bird are sick, and inclined not to eat well, remove all the food for a day, and then only give soaked bread, from which most of the moisture has been squeezed.

LORD LYTTON IN DANGER.

Two Shots are Fired at Him Without Effect Arrest of the Would-be Assassin.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 12.—Intense excitement was created here this afternoon by the attempted assassination of the Viceroy, Lord Lytton. His lordship had just returned to this city by railway from the frontier, and was met and welcomed at the station by a large gathering of his friends. After the customary greetings were over, the party entered their carriages which were in waiting, and proceeded on their way to the viceregal palace. They had gone but a short distance when a pistol shot, fired by some person out of a crowd in the streets, was heard. The ball passed immediately over the head of the Viceroy, who occupied the rear seat of his carriage. The first shot was followed almost immediately by another, which passed completely over the second carriage. The horses were brought to a stand-still by the drivers, and the populace gathered near them, increasing the excitement with their shouts and cries.

ARREST OF THE WOULD-BE ASSASSIN.

Everything was at once thrown into confusion. Members of Lord Lytton's staff dashed among the crowd determined to find the assassin. Fortunately one of them succeeded in arresting the man who had fired the shots. He proved to be a native, and was, or pretended to be, considerably intoxicated. He was surrounded by a strong guard, and immediately hurried off to prison to await sobriety and investigation.

A BAD AIM.

No one was injured by the shots, which were aimed to high to do execution. Immediately after the arrest of the would-be assassin, the viceregal party proceeded to the palace, where they arrived without any further molestation. No attempt at rescue was made by the native population, although some threatened utterances were heard directed at the Viceroy and the English officers. Whether this attempt upon the life of the Viceroy is the result of a plot or a mere freak of an irresponsible madman has not yet been ascertained, but it is very generally believed that the former theory of the act will not be found entirely unsupported by evidence.

SPECULATIONS AS TO THE AFFAIR.

The city is thoroughly aroused over the event and there is a very lively discussion as to its circumstances and significance, both in Government circles and among the people. The mercantile classes of the native population are emphatic in their expression of abhorrence at the murderous act, and the native nobility and gentry are especially extravagant in their denunciations. But among the English residents the incident has intensified and brought into strong relief a feeling of anxiety which has long existed. A repetition of the scenes of the mutiny of 1857 has for some time been silently spoken of as possible. Her Majesty immediately upon receiving the news of the attempt upon Lord Lytton's life, telegraphed to him her congratulations upon his escape.

A DRUNKEN LUNATIC.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—It is stated at the India Office that Lord Lytton telegraphed from Calcutta that he had been shot at by a drunken East Indiaman. A Calcutta despatch says the man who fired upon the Viceroy imagined he had a greivance against the Government and was recently discharged from a lunatic asylum.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

RAISIN PIE.—One egg; one half cup of raisins well stewed; one cup of sweet cream; sugar to taste. Beat well together, and bake with two crusts. Currants (dried) instead of raisins are very nice.

HASTY PUDDING.—Place on the stove a pan containing six teacupfuls of sweet milk. Beat two eggs well, and add one teacupful of milk; six tablespoonfuls of flour and a little salt; beat well together—then stir it in the milk on the stove just before, or as it begins to boil. When as thick as mush put in greased cups to mould. Made in the morning and eaten with sweetened cream for dinner, it is excellent.

GINGERBREAD.—One cup of sugar; one cup of sirup; half cup of butter; one tablespoonful of ginger; one teaspoonful of soda; flour enough to make it thick but not so stiff but that it will smooth without the aid of a spoon. Bake in a small-sized dripping-pan and cut out as you want for the table.

APPLE JELLY.—A beautiful and delicious jelly may be made of any sour red apples such as Spitzenbergs, Baldwins or Northern Spys. Wash, quarter and core without paring and cook until the whole mass becomes soft and tender. Pour into a colander, drain off the juice and run it through a jelly-bag. Boil again one-half hour. Measure and to every three cups of juice allow two cups of sugar and boil again fifteen minutes. If highly flavoured jelly is liked, lemon or vanilla may be added before it is turned into the cups. Most jelly receipts give an equal measure of sugar and fruit juice, but in making jelly of winter apples I have found two of sugar to three of fruit, give a good firm jelly that will cut smoothly with a knife.

JELLY CAKE.—One cup of sugar; one-half cup of butter; three eggs; one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream-of-tartar; three tablespoonsful of sweet milk, and one cup of flour.

VICTORIA BUNS.—One egg and its weight in flour, two ounces pounded loaf sugar, one and a half ounce ground rice, two ounces butter, one and a half ounce currants, a few thin slices of peel. Whisk the egg, stir in the sugar, and beat these ingredients well together. Beat the butter to a cream, stir in the ground rice, currants and peel, and after adding the eggs stir in a little flour, but do not make them very stiff. Bake in small patty tins about a quarter of an hour.

GYPSY'S PUDDING.—One cup of molasses, one of raisins, one of milk or water, one cup of suet chopped fine, one teaspoonful of salt; spice to taste; one teaspoonful of soda; flour not very stiff; steam two hours.

TRANSPARENT PUDDING.—Eight eggs, one pound powdered sugar, half pound of butter, nutmeg, puff paste, citron. Beat the eggs very light, put them in a sauce pan with the butter, sugar and nutmeg; set on the fire and stir till it thickens, and then set it to cool; make a rich puff paste, put it around your dish, and the mixture in the middle; a few strips of citron improves this; cut very thin. Bake nearly an hour in a moderately hot oven.

CALIFORNIA CAKE.—One pint of flour; one pint of Indian meal, one pint of milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two spoonfuls of cream tartar, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, small piece of butter. Mix the eggs and milk together, add sugar and butter, well beaten, then flour and Indian meal, a little at a time, alternately; mix the cream of tarter in the flour, and the soda in a little of the milk. Bake in pans, and serve hot for breakfast or tea.

Top-dressing Orchards in Winter.

Full grown and old bearing apple orchards, are greatly improved in bearing and in the fruit they afford, by top-dressing with yard or stable manure. The best time to apply it is in autumn, but winter answers nearly as well, and often has the advantage of more ready access over the hard and frozen surface, and in the constantly accumulating supply of manure. Cover the whole surface; and the larger the application, up to twenty or thirty large loads per acre, the better. Let the manure be finely broken, and evenly spread.

ENGLAND.

THE Marquis of Bath's youngest son Lord Alexander Thynne, who is six years old, has made his debut in the hunting field with the Wilts hounds, and was so well to the fore that he was presented with the brush, besides being duly "blooded."

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," presist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscreation." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Muir, General Manager of the Canada Southern railway, and two gentlemen representing the Wyandotte, Michigan, Mining Company, visited Madoc and Marmora on Friday, and purchased the Dean & Williams gold mine, which they have rechristened the "Wyandotte" mine. Mining generally continues to hum, there being in Madoc Township capitalists representing between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 prospecting. These gentlemen were to-day joined by a number of others, who arrived from the west. Evidently there is a bright prospect in store for North Hastings, now that the richness of its mineral resources is becoming known.

RUTLAND, Vt., Dec. 14.—A terrible railway accident occurred last evening on the Addison division of the Central Vermont railroad, at Larrabee's Point. About 7 o'clock last the train from Leicester Junction for Ticonderoga was nearing the Lake Champlain Bridge, the engine and freight car left the track and rolled down an embankment sixty feet high. Engineer Stinson, Fireman Markham and the bridge tender, Lyman, all being on the engine, were killed; Markham living about three hours. The others were killed instantly. A wrecking train was immediately sent from here. The bodies of Stinson and Markham were brought to Leicester Junction, their home, and that of Lyman to Rutland. It is supposed the turning of a rail on a curve was the cause of the disaster.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

CUTTING TELEGRAPH WIRES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Patrick McCann was arrested for cutting telegraph wires, which stretched over his roof. When arraigned he held that the wires were trespassing on his premises, and the charges were immediately withdrawn. This leads to the belief that the Telegraph Companies concede that they have no right to trespass on private property.

DAMAGE FROM A WRECK.

GRANT FOR PRESIDENT.

The Tribune's Cincinnati report says that Grant's recent visit there did not evoke so much enthusiasm as was expected, and it developed what is regarded by some as absolute proof that Grant is determined to be again president.

HARD MONEY.

A Washington special report to the World says, Senator Hill declared yesterday in favor of the repeal of the legal tender clause, and said that the time had come for the Democratic party to return to its old principles of hard money. He believed that the southern Democracy would sustain the proposition substantially contained in Bayard's resolution.

RAILWAY FREIGHTS.

The Times' Syracuse] despatch reports an interview with Assemblyman Duguid, foreshadowing the forthcoming report of the Hepburn Committee. He said that the terminal facilities of New York are inferior to those of other cities. The report will probably recommend a law making it a penal offence for any railway company to charge a higher rate for freight from any point in New York state to New York city, than is charged for carrying the same commodity from any city in any other state to New York city. The Committee has been unable to solve satisfactorily the question of special rates. It is not unlikely that the report will recommend the appointment of a commission to settle this and other vexatious questions. The report will probably recommend that a complete balance sheet of the various roads should be published with their annual reports to the State Engineer, from which some idea of the actual financial condition of the roads can be obtained.

ELECTION ERRORS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The Sun's Portland despatch says that private advices from Augusta, which are apparently authentic, are to the effect that the Governor and Council have found a large number of fatal and gross errors, the result being that the majority of those who will be summoned for both branches of the Legislature to-day will be of the opposition, or fusion party.

UNDER INDICTMENT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The Tribune says it is reported that Delegate Cannon, of Utah, who is under indictment for a violation of the anti-polygamy laws, has taken his fifth wife within so recent a period that his plea of the statute limitations will not avail him.

GOVERNOR OF UTAH.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 15.—Governor Emery's term of office expired yesterday. He is a candidate for re-appointment. Mr. Neil, of the Register's Office, formerly private secretary of President Hayes, is recommended for the appointment by some citizens.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1879.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

HAVING in common with some other opposition journals found fault with the proposal to spend a million dollars on the new Parliament Buildings for this Province, the Globe with its characteristic fairness, undertakes to read us a lecture about the "premature" nature of our observations, inasmuch as the "scheme is not yet divulged." It is true that the site has been selected; it is true that the sum of $1,000,000 has been freely spoken of as the proposed cost of the buildings; it is true that both the Globe and Mail have been quoting approvingly every word said by the country press in favour of this "wanton extravagance," but notwithstanding all this, we unfortunates who cannot see everything through Toronto spectacles, are to be condemned, not for condemning the proposal to erect new Parliament Buildings, as the Globe would have its readers believe, but for condemning the wanton extravagance which could contemplate the expenditure of a million dollars thereon—two very different things.

Of course it is quite true as the Globe says that the Government, as a Government, have not yet announced what they propose to spend, and it is equally true that the money has yet to be voted by Parliament, but it is equally evident that both the Globe and Mail have laid their heads together to "cultivate" public sentiment up to the point of sanctioning the expenditure of a million for such a purpose, and now is the time for the press outside of Toronto—the press not supplied with articles from that city, and in many cases from these same offices—to speak out with one accord, irrespective of party, against such proposed "wanton extravagance" in order to prevent its submission to the legislature. It is all very well for the Globe to talk about the money having to be voted by the House, but it knows right well that Mr. Mowat has such a following as to enable him to do as he pleases, and that if the opponents of such extravagance keep silent until the Government bring such a scheme down, the question will become narrowed to one of confidence or non-confidence in the Government of Mr. Mowat, and what is a million to good Grits when that Government is in the balance? No, now is the time for those opposed to such an expenditure for such a purpose, and especially for those who support Mr. Mowat, to speak out and bring their influence to bear on him before it is too late, in order that the plans and estimates submitted to Parliament may be in accordance with the requirements of the Province and not with the selfish ambition of the city of Toronto.

A very important point also to be borne in mind in connection with this matter, is that the larger and more extravagant the structure in the first instance, the greater will be the annual outlay for its maintenance ever afterwards.

But perhaps the coolest piece of impudence in the whole matter, is the Globe telling us poor country folks that the "site" has been furnished 'gratis' by that city, and a large sum of money saved to the country. Does the Globe really think that the University and its Park are in fact the property of the city of Toronto. Because this Province has been furnishing that city with the ground for a handsome Park "gratis" for years, it now coolly turns round and tells us that the surrender of a nominal lease, is giving us the ground "gratis." Could audacity go further? In our previous article on this subject, we stated that an expenditure of $1,000,000 for such a purpose, was equivalent to nearly $114,000 for each member of the House; it should have been "nearly $11,400"—or one-tenth of the sum. The mistake was so evident that no one not anxious to catch us tripping, would set it down as intentional.

New Atlantic Steamers.

The London Standard bases a long editorial upon the announcement that three new steamships of extraordinary size and speed are about to be built for the North Atlantic service. The proposed vessels will belong respectively to the Cunard, Inman and Allan (Canadian) companies, and are to be in many respects superior to anything now afloat. The Sahara, of the Cunard line, will be over 7,000 tons burden, and will have 10,000 horse power, with a length of 500 feet and beam of 50 feet. Her speed will be greater than that of any vessel ever built, and we may expect the remarkable passages made by such boats as the Britanic, Germanic, and more recently by the Arizona, to be beaten out of sight. The Allan Line ship is to be smaller than the Sahara, but quite its equal in speed, while the Inman boat is intended to surpass them both.

Death From Soothing Syrup.

The Pharmaceutical Journal records a case in which a popular soothing syrup caused the death of an infant. The child, five months old, was supposed to be teething, and its mother purchased a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, administered ten drops of the nostrum about twice a day for three days. On the night of the third day it died suddenly from the effects of the medicine. The coroner said that the effects of the soothing syrup were those of a narcotic, and that the same Journal of 1872 stated that two doses had caused the death of a child fifteen months old, with the usual symptoms of narcotic poison. Analysis of this syrup showed that one ounce of it contained nearly one grain of morphine with other opium alkaloids. "It is not surprising," he adds, "that it should prove fatal to infants in small doses." However, it is safe to say that this case will prove no warning and that mothers will go on just the same, stupefying their infants with Godfrey's cordial and patent medicines, like the one above noted; and the practice will cease, perhaps, on the same day in the dim future on which the housekeeper and the average servant girl learn that benzine and kerosene are not proper substitutes for paper and wood in kindling the kitchen fire.—Herald of Health.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING

FREE AND EASY DISCUSSIONS AND SHARP REJOINDERS THE ELECTION IN VIEW.

The Time for Returning the Collector's Roll Extended—The Interest on Taxes Muddle—Favourable Arbitration—Tax Dispute—Street Work.

The Council met in special session on Saturday evening at the call of the Mayor.

Present,—The Mayor, and Councillors Cahill, Taylor, Smith, Buller, Paterson, McBain, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Robertson, Denne, and Griffith.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

The MAYOR said he had called the Council together because the time for the Collector returning his Roll would expire on Monday, and it might be advisable to extend it. There were also some questions as to taxes to be disposed of.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Edg. Pearse, County Clerk, enclosing the award of the arbitrators between the Town and County. The award this year is $188 less than formerly, being $1,592.

From Geo. Chamberlain, asking to be relieved from paying taxes for two houses.

From Mrs. Wetheral, asking for remission of taxes.

ACCOUNTS.

D. G. Heathorn, livery	$86 00
G. W. Ranney, services	10 00

TAXES.

Mr. Geo. Chamberlain said he had been assessed for a place which he had not occupied. He was also asked to pay taxes for the premises which he occupied, though another person had been assessed for them.

Several Councillors owned the injustice that Mr. Chamberlain would suffer. In the meantime the Collector was instructed to abstain from pressing Mr. Chamberlain, and to consult the Town Solicitors on all such cases.

The case of the taxes of Mr. Thos. Chambers, sr., on the property now owned by Mr. G. Dunsford was taken up. The taxes had been asked from Mr. Dunsford. An opinion from the Town Solicitor was read stating that the Collector could distrain from any part of the property.

Mr. DUNSFORD explained that the taxes were excessive, the assessment having been made when Mr. Chambers was in Winnipeg and before he himself obtained possession. The property was assessed for $14,000, though he had bought it for $9,000.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor BULLER,—That the matters complained of in reference to taxes be referred to the Finance Committee and the Collector with power to consult the Town Solicitor when necessary, and that the Collector be requested not to put parties to expense where taxes are in dispute, until the matter has been disposed of by the Council—acting upon the recommendation of the above committee.

Councillor MCBAIN thought it was time to stop this work of interfering with the Collector. Parties were asking them to throw off taxes and they should not do it. If the assessors made mistakes let the parties follow them. He objected to the expense of referring the matter to the Town Solicitor. If they had less lawyers they would have less lawsuits.

The motion was carried.

THE COLLECTOR'S ROLL.

Councillor SMITH moved, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That the time for returning the collector's roll be postponed till January 26th.

Councillor MCBAIN asked if this was legal, and was assured that it was.

The motion was carried.

Councillor DENNE asked how the Collector came to have asked for taxes that had already been paid.

The COLLECTOR said they had been placed on his roll as arrears of taxes.

INTEREST ON ARREARS.

The MAYOR read a letter from the Town Solicitors as to the proposed by-law to amend the tax by-law, advising that a clause be inserted as to the change not vitiating the Collector's sureties. He also advised that the consent of the sureties be obtained to this.

Councillor MCBAIN asked if the Town Solicitor's advice had been taken when the blunder had been made in the by-law.

Councillor Rutherford said it had not been asked, but the matter had been rushed through, and hence the mischief.

RIGHT OF WAY.

Councillor DENNE said he was informed by old inhabitants that there was a right of way along the river through the town, and people should not be allowed to close this way and build upon it.

DAMAGE BY WATER.

Councillor RUTHERFORD called attention to the damage done to property on Stewart street by water. Something ought to be done to remedy this.

Councillor DENNE asked who had done the damage. The people who suffered the damage should look to those who had caused it.

An altercation between Mr. Denne and Mr. Rutherford then took place, till the Mayor said it was out of order.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS that the Street Inspector be authorized to spend $10 on Stewart street to to keep the creek from overflowing.

Councillor DENNE objected to the expenditure of money.

Councillor MCBAIN thought they should go and see the place for themselves.

Councillor DOUGLAS said if it was not done at once it could not be done this winter.

Councillor YELLAND thought it very strange they could not trust the Property Committee to expend $10. Let Mr. McBain be added to that committee and go to see the place.

Councillor DOUGLAS said it seemed to be unlawful to spend money on Stewart street, but Councillor MCBAIN thought it all right to spend money to drain his own lot, for which he had lobbied.

Councillor MCBAIN denied that he had lobbied, and said the lot was not his.

The motion stood as a notice.

CHARITY.

The case of Mrs. Trotter was discussed in the same irregular manner.

Mr. John Sawers advocated Mrs. Trotter's claims to be relieved.

Councillor MCBAIN—Is she not in the fourth ward which you are running for?

The matter was finally referred to the Charity Committee with power to act.

The Council then dispersed.

A LESSON FOR LIFE.—At the trial of William Drought, in London, on the charge of killing Frank G. Gundlack, of Montreal, the judge said, "William Drought, the jury have found you not guilty; and therefore you are at liberty to go. Perhaps this event may be a warning to you for the future to avoid habits of drinking and the use of bad language. The unfortunate Gundlack is gone forever, and if your misconduct in any way led to his end the recollection of that circumstance should prompt you to be more careful of your conduct for the future." Drought then left the dock, and after being congratulated by his friends walked up to His Honor and expressed his determination to reform his habits, and "turn over a new leaf" for the future.

A REMARKABLE MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

The Organ for Mrs. Stewart's Cathedral at Garden City, Long Island.

The new organ building by Mr. Hilborne L. Roosevelt for the Cathedral at Garden City, L.I., will rank among the largest and in several respects will be one of the most remarkable in the world. It will be placed in four different parts of the Cathedral. The main body of the instrument will stand in the chancel, and the organist will sit there. At the west end of the building, in a tower directly behind a large stained-glass window, is a room in which a part of the organ will be placed and connected with the chancel by electricty, like the organ built by Mr. Roosevelt in Grace Church, New York. The window will be opened and closed by electricity controlled by the organist from the chancel, thereby making fine crescendo and diminuendo effects with the organ in the tower. Over the ceiling, about the centre of the building, will be placed another part of the instrument called the echo organ, which is to be played from the chancel by electricty. Underneath the chancel, in the chapel situated there, is a part of the organ which is arranged so that it can be played in the chapel as well as from the chancel. Lastly, the large chimes which hang in the tower will be connected with the chancel by electricity, so that the organist can play them from the keys of the organ. The bellows will be operated by hydraulic engines, and the organist can, by simply turning on the water, have the whole instrument, including the chimes, at his command. Though this will be a mammoth instrument, and notwithstanding the great distance between many of its parts, the pressure necessary to play on the keys will be no greater than is used in playing upon a piano. This is due to the use of electricity, pneumatics and hydraulics, which combined, render it possible and practicable to construct such an instrument.

There will be four vox humanas (similar in construction to the celebrated one in Freiburg); one of these will be in the chancel, one in the tower, another over the ceiling, and a fourth one in the chapel beneath the chancel. All of these will be under the control of the organist in the chancel, and will be capable of crescendo and diminuendo effects. Certainly some beautiful and extraordinary combinations can be produced with their aid. In all there will be one hundred or one hundred and twenty speaking stops, the exact number not yet having been determined upon. The Boston Music Hall organ has eighty-four stops, the Cincinnati organ ninety-six, and the largest organ in the world, that in Albert Hall, London, one hundred and eleven. Five hydraulic engines will be needed. Quite a small Gramme magneto machine will furnish all the electricity needed. Where mechanical force is required as in ringing bells or opening windows, compressed air will be used in an ingenious manner devised by Mr. Roosevelt.

The cost of the instrument will be from thirty-five to forty thousand dollars. It will be put in place next spring.

ENGLAND.

PRINCE Leopold, it is reported, will shortly be created a Duke, with the title of Duke of Kent.

THE Queen has conferred upon Mr. Shaw, chief officer of the London Fire Brigade, the Championship of the Bath, civil division, third class.

THE Tower of London narrowly escaped destruction from fire a fortnight ago. A spark caused the mischief, but owing to the exertions of the fire brigade, the flames, which severely injured the officers' quarters, were subdued before further damage was done.

SIR HENRY HAVELOCK has been left a large fortune, but there is an awkward condition attached to it. He is to take the name of Allan in future in return for the fortune which is to fall upon him. Tennyson declined some thousands a year recently, which he was offered on change of his name, and it is hard on a man with such an honored name as Havelock to be obliged to part with it.

SERMON OF THE SNOW.

With the softness of silence, unceasing though slow,
In the low, leaden light comes the crystalline Snow,
So untiring it seems, so [illegible] withal,
And so chastening to all that it touched in its fall;
It appears as if dropped by the Father's kind hand
As a mantle of charity over the land!
While its thick-woven web hides the Giver on high,
Every stain on the earth is concealed from the eye;
And so bounteous the benison to mortals below,
From the earth to the sky there seem nothing but snow;
Since the sweet boon of Charity, never alone,
But in multiplied blessings is dropped from the throne.
So the snow that to-day robes the earth in the pride
Of a blooming young maiden arranged as a bride,
Will to-morrow be torn by the boreal blast;
Will be worn by the wanton south wind, wooing past;
And its beauty be lost and its whiteness undone,
By the light, loving smile, and warm kiss of the sun;
Then, resolved into tears—as the new life is found—
[illegible]
And at length, in the rounds of the fleet-footed hours,
Comes to bless us again in the birth of the flowers?

HOW JOE BROUGHT DOWN THE HOUSE.

By Marion Conant.

"Well, girls, there is one way we can help both father and ourselves in these hard times," said Bessie Foot, while her elder sisters looked up from their occupations with kind, interested faces. "We can give up our birthdays or Christmas," began Bessie, slowly.

"That is a good idea," broke in Emily, the older sister. "These numerous gift-days and pleasure-makings draw too heavily upon all our pockets."

"But what will Joe say?" This time they nearly all spoke in concert.

After a little pause, Bessie said, with hopeful decision:

"Oh, perhaps he wont care."

Now Joe was the last, but by no means the least, member in Mr. Foot's family. He had arrived late, after this goodly row of girls, and after his parents had given up an earlier and often expressed desire that a boy might be among the number. And if helpful hands and warm hearts make the reception, Joe came —"to the world as a gentleman comes,

To a lodging ready furnished."

He was now twelve years old, but had not "worn out his welcome." Of a pliant, pleasant nature, he fully answered, so far, all the demands made upon him. No one had ever heard him speak a rough or unkind word, and in all the little affairs of every day he was easily helpful enough to satisfy his loving family. It is true Mr. Foot, who had struggled up through a hard and self-denying youth to an honorable position in the law, began to have some uneasiness about his son's character, and to suffer the first disturbing and perplexing doubt as to the future of a boy to whom life was such a holiday affair, and who would never be able, he feared, to take any other view of it.

But these fatherly thoughts and fears Mr. Foot carefully kept to himself. His family was very loving and confiding, and Mr. Foot was not without courage; but I doubt if he would have been willing to contemplate, even in the retirement of his own thoughts, the shock that would have come to all if this beloved son had been closely criticised. So Joe spent his thoughtless, pleasant days undisturbed by criticism, and when Bessie broached the question of the morning for her brother's decision—Christmas being nearly a year away and birthdays close at hand,—he chose in his easy way to keep the near pleasure, and so it came about that there was to be no Christmas celebration that year in Mr. Foot's house.

Bessie's plan worked admirably. The birthdays scattered through the year, had been made much of; and Joe's, coming late in September, had [illegible] been a great affair. Joe himself had enjoyed it wonderfully—even beyond his usual happy way. It was very gratifying to have so many new things in advance of all his playmates; even the latest fashioned [illegible] had been procured by extra trouble and expense, and the balls and the books and the knives and the marbles were of the best, for "Joe is to have no presents at Christmas," was the often expressed reason for extra indulgence on this particular birthday. It was all very delightful, and it made Joe quite the hero of the [illegible] creating any amount of envy in the minds of other boys who must wait until Christmas.

But Christmas was drawing on, and Joe soon found himself face to face with an anticipation which was not pleasurable—an entirely new position in his experience. In fact, the numerous preparations in the world outside began to produce a slightly depressing sensation in other members of Mr. Foot's family; even Bessie, usually firm in her decisions, could not help wishing they had chosen Christmas and given up the birthdays. But it was too late now, as they all carefully avoided any allusion to the coming festival, each hoping by silence to create the impression in the others that the whole plan was eminently satisfactory.

Mr. Foot, quietly reading, in his easy chair, was really the only one quite at ease, all the minds of the family being more or less ruffled, on Christmas eve, by some thoughts as to what might be going on in Joe's mind; for, contrary to his custom, he had betaken himself to bed at an unusually early hour. Mrs. Foot and her older daughters were busy with their sewing near the table where Mr. Foot was enjoying the cheerful fire and his evening paper, when Bessie suddenly broke into the room with the exclamation: "Joe has hung up his stockings!" Mr. Foot laid his paper on his knees and the busy needles made slight pauses, but no one spoke.

"He has hung up both; he never hung up but one before!" added Bessie, dropping helplessly into the nearest chair.

"That was naughty in Joe," said Mrs. Foot, in a tone in which despair and apology were oddly mingled.

Mr. Foot meditated, apparently unheeding, while the girls went on with their sewing.

Some time elapsed, during which no one ventured a remark, and Mr. Foot still looked into the fire. Strangely vivid remembrances came to him of a country boy, long-forgotten Christmases, an empty stocking and a disappointed heart. He slowly took down his eye-glasses from their perch and put them in his pocket; he folded up his paper softly, and carefully laid it on the table, and with the air of a man who would rather the fact should not be observed, rose quietly from his chair and in a very indifferent voice said:

"Bessie, will you hand me my coat?"

"Why, are you going out?" exclaimed Mrs. Foot, looking up excitedly.

"Yes, I think I will take a short walk," replied Mr. Foot, still indifferently, though knowing perfectly well a walk was a most unusual performance for him in the evening after a busy day.

"I believe I will go with you," said his wife, cheerfully, and going at once for her hat and shawl.

"Let us go, too," said all the girls, with that liveliness which indicates relief from a dilemma.

All were soon ready, and, Mr. and Mrs. Foot leading the way, they were soon on the pavement of a well-lighted street, and moving with the crowd or pausing at the shop-windows to see the unusual and final attractions of the season.

If people would dream facts instead of dreaming dreams, Joe Foot might have smiled to himself as he lay asleep in his little bedroom in sole possession of the house, while the whole family had gone off, moved by one impulse, on an errand which not one of them would have told to another. Joe awake and on his feet might have been resisted; but Joe asleep, with those two expectant stockings yawning in the basement, was an impersonation of that faith which moves mountains. It all came about very naturally and easily, Mr. Foot himself, first expressing some regret that the knife he gave Joe on his birthday had not been of a better quality, and, now that the boy had lost it, it seemed only fair to get him another. This accomplished at the first cutlery store, his mother followed in the purchase of a new boy's-book, which she very much regretted she had not heard of in time to get for his birthday. His sisters, too remembered various little things that Joe liked, or had their memories quickened by the sight of new devices for good boys, as they walked along, and so they were each well laden with Christmas things when they finally reached their own door.

I cannot doubt that Joe smiled then in his sleep, and if the faithful stockings ran over with their numerous gifts, the family wisely concluded not to make any remarks that might bring into light the inconsistency of the givers' purposes and actions.

The next morning, all but Joe awoke with a slight feeling of uncertainty whether it was Sunday [illegible] awake that it wasn't Sunday, still, he did feel a little doubtful if it was Christmas.

But stowed away in a seldom-used nook of his closet were some very good reminders of Christmas, until he should descend to the basement. Joe's father would have been pleased enough if he could have looked into his boy's closet just then, as Joe was taking out from their hiding-place six small packages, all neatly wrapped and tied with long loops, so that they could be hung on door-knobs. These presents he had purchased with some money given him to spend for himself.

With the little bundles arranged on his arm for distribution, he stole softly in his stocking-feet through the hall, hanging each article on its respective knob, without disturbing the occupants of the rooms, who were still cozily abed.

This done, Joe went on to the basement in easy hopefulness. And he was not doomed to disappointment, the contents of the crowded stockings yielding more than a usual amount of joy and admiration.

And when the family came down to breakfast, how delightful it all was! Every one was so pleased with the pretty present Joe had purchased for them, that it was a long time before the happy family could subside to the formality of the morning meal. Joe himself became conscious of a higher pleasure than Christmas had heretofore brought, when his father expressed his hearty satisfaction in the gift his son had, unassisted, given him; and turning to his youngest daughter, he said: "Bessie, let us have Christmas next year," which caused a general smile all around.

IRISH FOLK LORE.

A Presbyterian family in Carrigans, a village in the county Donegal, had some years ago a hen so piously disposed that she imitated her crested spouse and crowed loudly on Christmas Eve. Now, as the crowing of a hen is at all other times considered a most unlucky omen, the mistress of the house exclaimed in consternation from her bed, "Whisht, you villain of a bird! Just wait till to-morrow, an' I'll wring your unlucky neck."

"'Deed you will not!" cried the master. "You'll no stir the hen, for she has more wit than many a Christian."

So the crowing hen lived on; but had she happened to crow at any other time than Christmas Eve she would have been thought the herald of death or misfortune to the family, and would have met with a speedy end. Everybody in Ulster knows the saying:—

A whistling maid and a crowing hen
Was never good in one town end.

The insect known in some parts of England as "the devil's coach horse," in others as the "coffin-cutter," and in Ireland and the Highlands of Scotland as the diaoul, or divil, is everywhere in evil repute. If one of the old legends regarding this insect is to be believed, it earned the enmity of mankind very early in the world's history. It is said to have eaten the core of the apple thrown away by Eve, and to this day a strong smell of apples is perceived when it is crushed. But this ancient sinner is hated by the Irishman for quite another cause. Judas, on his way to betray Christ to His enemies, met a number of diaouls, who turned up their tails to indicate the direction in which He had gone. The Roman Catholic in Cavan, Louth and Meath, says that any one killing a diaoul before it has time to turn up its tail is forgiven seven sins; and if so fortunate as to kill it on a Friday, the sins of the whole week are remitted.

The common black beetle has gained a still worse reputation. The reason given in all parts of Ireland for the evil odour in which this insect is held, is the following:—Some days before our Saviour's Passion, when the rulers of the Jews sent men to apprehend Him, they met a young man at work in the fields of whom they inquired whether Jesus of Nazareth had passed that way.

"Yes," replied the young man.

"But when?" No answer.

A black beetle, however, raised its tiny head, and said, "Yesterday, yesterday;" since when it has always been considered a praiseworthy action to kill a beetle wherever encountered. The Roman Catholics believe they are forgiven seven sins if they kill it on any day in the week except Friday; but if on Friday they are absolved from the sins of the whole week. The Irish-speaking peasant, while crushing it, exclaims, "Nie, nie, a-gaddah!" i. e., "Yesterday, yesterday, you thief!" Should an educated Protestant ask why this insect is persecuted with so much rancour, he is not always told the story given above, but sometimes receives this answer: "The black clock is listening; it will tell something." A favourite cure for whooping-cough in Derry and Donegal is to catch a beetle which flies against you unawares (you must not be on the lookout for it), and to cork it up in a bottle. As it slowly dies the patient is supposed to get better. Perhaps this last superstition may somehow be connected with the virtuous action involved in the destruction of a beetle.

The cock is esteemed very highly for its wisdom, inherited, in all probability, from the ancestor that crowed when Peter denied his Lord. Should he crow at an untimely hour, such as from 6 P.M. to 11 P.M., he is believed to prophesy some event affecting the family, and the mistress hastens to feel his feet. If they are cold, her heart sinks, for she knows that he foretells a death; but if warm, she is comforted and re-assured, sure that the house prophet is but rejoicing at the expected arrival of a good letter from America or some other piece of luck.

A curious anecdote is told of St. Columba's last night in Ireland, in which a cock plays a prominent part. The good saint honored the village of Ballyfay by lodging there, and informed the mistress of the house that he must positively leave her at cock-crow next morning. The woman's cock crowed very early in the night, awakening St. Columba, who departed wearily, cursing the village as he went, in the following words:—

Oh, luckless Ballyfay,
Deprived of Chanticleer,
Evil to drive away,
And morning light to cheer.

Since when no rooster has ever been heard to crow at Ballyfay.

A SENTENCE of death passed to-night upon all the men and women who have seen seventy years of life would leave both the Old and New World to-morrow morning without their greatest intellects and deprive nearly every great nation of its acknowledged leaders. It would take from England her Beaconsfield, from Germany her Bismarck, from Russia her Gortschakoff, from Austria her Andrassy and from Spain her Castelar. Not less sweeping would be its removals of the literary lights of the time. Of the great English-speaking poets on both sides of the Atlantic such a decree would not spare us one. Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes have all passed the Scriptural 'three score and ten.'—Boston Traveller.

PREPARATIONS are being made to commemorate the Covenanting struggle, the commemoration to take place in the months of June and July next.

ENGINEERS are employed in the work of selecting a foundation for the new railway bridge which it is proposed to construct across the Forth near Alloa.

A WHALE has been driven ashore at Quendale, Shetland, and taken possession of by the Receiver of Wrecks. It is likely to yield seven tons of oil.

THE recent storm has driven the deer in hundreds from the corries and uplands to the sheltered woods on the low grounds in the neighborhood of Braemar.

AT a temperance meeting in Ayr, on the 17th November, the Revd. Chas. G. McCrie, of Ayr, expressed disapproval of the action of the School Board in placing a bust of Burns in front of the new Academy.

SHERIFF Thomas has addressed a letter to the Wick Town Council, making strong allegations as to the unsanitary condition of the town, and stating, among other things, that the Sheriff-Clerk and the Procurator-Fiscal were suffering in their health through defective drainage in the neighbourhood of the Court House.

ABOUT 15 years ago a lady posted a letter in Troon to her sweetheart, who was a sailor, which he never received. Two years after writing the letter they were married, and it was only the other day that the letter came back to the writer covered with postmarks, having followed the owner to different ports where his vessel had been.

A SERIOUS affray took place at Arbroath, on the 22nd Nov., while the police were taking a prisoner to the police office. They were obliged to fight their way through a mob, and sticks and stones were freely used. A lamplighter named Simons went out to assist the police, and was so severely injured that he died on the following day.

A VERY old and curious relic of Bothwell has just come into the possession of a Bothwell gentleman. It is a bona fide article, and vouched for by several antiquarians, viz.: "A book of Common Prayer, found behind the altar screen in the church of Bothwell, when removing the walls to erect a new church, by John Boyd, architect: printed A. D., 1555." The book is consequently 321 years old, and in almost perfect preservation.

IN the village of Borgue there are living at present 16 persons of great age. The united ages of 12 of these amount to 1,025 years, or an average of 85 years and 7 months; the united ages of the 16 amount 1,326, or an average of 82 years and 10 months. There are are several people of threescore and ten within the limits mentioned, but that never counts for age in this favoured district. There is only one person of the 16, the fourth youngest, who is bedridden. The second lives alone in a detached cottage. The population of the parish is under 1,000.

The market to-day was a flat one. Nothing was done worth noting. Wood monopolized the square, with now and then a load of wheat.

The Coming Entertainment.

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute Literary Association's musical and literary entertainment, in Bradburn's Hall on Friday evening, bids fair to be a great success. The programme is out and exhibits a great array of talent.

A Misapprehension.

We find that a number of people are under the impression that to-morrow will be fair-day. This is incorrect, as the December fair always occurs on the Tuesday before Christmas, and consequently will not take place till next week, Tuesday, December 22nd.

The Curling and Skating Rink.

Mr. Stewart has succeeded in getting a frozen foundation for the ice, at the Curling and Skating Rink, and he is ready to flood it, so soon as the weather again hardens. If "probabilities" is to be believed, there will be no difficulty in getting the required [illegible]. One night's good frost would do the work.

The Street Bed for Small Sleighs.

To-day, the merchants having fully complied with the new by-law, the children with small sleighs have taken to the streets. Pedestrians are, in consequence, delighted that they have not to be in constant dread of getting tripped or obliged to make way for the child's sleigh.

Sleighing and Christmas.

Yesterday afternoon the snow began to fall on a solidly frozen ground, and continued until five inches marked the depth. Although rather dry, the snow this morning packed well and has laid the foundation for good sleighing, which will hold for a merry Christmas tide, unless we have a southern wind, rain, and a thaw.

The National Currency.

In compliance with a requisition from thirty ratepayers, the Mayor has called a public meeting in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, to hear an explanation of the National Currency question, to be given by Mr. G. D. Griffin, editor of the Dominion Watchman, and one of the Directors of the Financial Reform League of Canada.

Snow and the Sidewalks.

Early this morning, the residents on McDonnell, London, Water and other streets in that vicinity, were gratified at seeing the snow-plow of Mr. H. Best sweeping past their doors, removing the snow from the sidewalk, saving them a great deal of labor. The snow is taken almost clean from the planks, rendering it unnecessary to use shovel or broom.

Militia Examinations.

We learn that Capt. Grover, Capt. Rogers, and Capt. Edwards have taken first-class certificates at the recent militia examinations, and that Lieut. Beck and Lieut. Miller have taken second-class. Capt. Edwards was complimented on his very satisfactory examination, and was awarded a first-class, which is unusual where the second-class has not been previously taken.

Anniversary Services.

The sermons in connection with the George street Methodist Church will be preached on Sunday next, the 21st instant, by the Rev. S. J. Hunter, of Toronto. On Monday evening following the annual soiree will be held in the lecture room of the church. A substantial tea will be provided, and addresses will be given by the Rev. Mr. Hunter, the resident pastors, and by others.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: increasing south-westerly to north-westerly winds; cloudy to partly cloudy weather with snow areas, followed by partially cloudy colder weather. Snow has been falling a good portion of the day. There were about five inches of snow yesterday. The thermometer indicated at noon to-day 20°, with a change for colder weather.

Snow By-Law.

The snow by-law has been well observed as is evidenced by the promptness with which the snow has been removed from the sidewalks within the fire limits. Why cannot all the streets be included among the ones that are free from the snow encumbrance and made passable? As soon as the people realise the great comfort existing within the fire limits, the system of cleaning will extend beyond them, and ere long we may be able to boast of having the freest sidewalks in the province.

Peterborough Work.

We find the following paragraph in the Monetary Times:—

"The perfection to which the economical working of steam engines is being brought, is very noteworthy. An instance of this has come to our notice, near home, in the success of a Corliss steam engine, recently erected for Messrs. McLaughlin & Moore, millers, of this city, by Mr. Wm. Hamilton, of Peterborough. In point of economy, it is claimed, the engine has not been equalled in Canada so far. The certificate of a mechanical engineer states that "using 192 lbs. of good soft coal per hour, the indicator diagrams showed the power given off by the engine to be 87 8-10 H. P., the consumption of coal per horse power per hour being therefore 2 and 18-100ths lbs." The consumption of coal with a former engine was 3 lbs. per H. P. hourly, so that the mill is now run at less expense for fuel, with coal at $4.25 per ton, than last year, with coal at $3.60. The engine was designed by Mr. W. H. Trout, draughtsman, of Mr. Hamilton's works. The mill in question is the former Boulton mill, which has a capacity of 250 barrels of flour per day."

Yankee Enterprise.

One of our business men being in Buffalo last week, had his attention called to a mighty placard giving the startling information that inside the store over which it was placed was to be seen Courtney's shell which had been sawed at Chataqua. Disbursing ten cents and walking inside, there, hanging from the ceiling, was the mutilated boat of the "Great Faint-Hearted," with a gash in the bottom large enough to sink a schooner. The cut looked to our informant as if it had been made by a butcher's buck-saw, or some such handy instrument. Ghost of the immortal Renforth! Shades of the departed Claspar, and others! Has it come to this that the evidence of "man's inhumanity to man" is to be hawked around the country by a greedy speculator and exhibited to the vulgar herd in company with a stuffed alligator, at the low price of ten cents a head? Perish the thought! Make of the craft kindling wood, cheese boxes—anything before this!

POLICE COURT.

VAGRANCY.

MONDAY, Dec. 15.—Constable Johnston visited the Police Court this morning, escorting one Henry Lee, whom he charged with being a vagrant and having no visible means of support. When interrogated by the Magistrate, Lee said he was from the head of Rice Lake, that he was only waiting for his mother, whose term of imprisonment would expire on Thursday, when they proposed to go to St. Catharines where he has a brother living. The Magistrate remanded him until Thursday. He and his mother will probably be given time to leave the county.

FALSE PRETENCES.

The prisoner, Thomas Johnson, was brought into Court by Constable McGhee, for sentence. The Magistrate, in passing sentence, said he had made enquiry as to the prisoner's antecedents, and while he had not been convicted of any crime, yet he had been guilty of several small offences which were not honest. After referring to the respectability of the family, which the prisoner was disgracing, he said he was compelled to mete out such punishment as would, he hoped, have a salutary effect upon his future life. The lowest penalty that he could inflict was three months in the common jail at hard labor. This record, the Magistrate said, would appear against him, should he at any future time be brought into Court as an offender, and this conviction would bar him from the clemency of the Magistrate, before whom he might be brought. The amount of $17.50 taken from the prisoner, was returned to Mr. Bradburn to whom it belonged.

THE WINCHESTER TRAGEDY

Re-Examination of the Bodies of the Victims—What the Eyes Reveal.

WEST WINCHESTER, Dec. 13.—After the bodies of the murdered Brown and his daughter were taken up, they were taken to the woodshed of his own house. Dr. Blacklock, the coroner of Dundas county, and Drs. McIntyre and Reddick, of this place, made examinations of the finger marks upon the throat of the girl, and cut out the flesh and bone, where the knife, or as was supposed, the axe had cut. The bodies were again buried during the afternoon. The photographs taken from the eyes of each a few hours after death reveal, as a Toronto artist states, in the case of the old gentleman, nothing, and this bears out the evidence already taken to the effect that he was butchered in the dark; but the artist states that the eye of little Addie reveals two objects, and, as they furnish good evidence, the coroner has given orders to have them copied and enlarged, so as to clearly bring the object out as plain as possible to the naked eye. There is some other evidence that is held for further proceedings, and no doubt it will be made public at an early date. It is reported on good authority that the coroner intends making a few more facts plain, when he proposes arresting Mrs. Brown, mother of Clarke Brown. The corpses taken up were very much decomposed, but still recognizable.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

ROUT OF THE ENEMY.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A Calcutta telegram says General Roberts telegraphs a confirmation of the report of General McPherson's partial failure in the attempt on Friday to capture the ridge above the Bala Hissar at Cabul. On Saturday morning General Baker attacked the Afghans' position with two and a half regiments of infantry, two regiments of cavalry and eight guns, and captured the hill, driving the Afghans from all their positions.

THREATENED ADVANCE ON HERAT.

A letter dated Candahar, the 1st inst., says General Stewart has been instructed to send a messenger to Ayoub Khan, Afghan commander of Herat, requiring him to hold Herat in the name of the British Government, and threatening the advancement thither of the British in case of his failure to do so.

DEFEATED ON ALL SIDES.

General Roberts telegraphs from Cabul on the 12th inst., that the enemy has been defeated on all sides, but notwithstanding their heavy losses, parties of Afghans still remain in the neighborhood. General Roberts announced his intention to attack on the 14th inst. unless these parties disperse. The total British loss during the three days' fighting is forty-three killed, including six officers, and seventy-six wounded, of whom ten were officers.

NUMBERS OF THE ENEMY.

A Bombay despatch says the Ghuznee force has been swollen by great numbers of men from the native tribes. The aggregate force opposed to us is very large. The enemy in the vicinity of Cabul numbers 12,000 men. The 20th Madras infantry has been ordered to prepare immediately for active service in Burmah.

THE EX-AMEER.

A Calcutta despatch says Yakoob Khan has arrived at Lahore. He will immediately proceed to Merut, where he will be detained for the present.

AYOUB KHAN'S MOVEMENTS.

A Candahar telegram says it is now certain Ayoub Khan has moved out of Herat with his troops a fortnight ago, and proceeded to Urdubagh.

RUSSIAN INTRIGUES AGAIN.

A despatch from Cabul says the discovery of papers at Cabul exposing Russian intrigues in Afghanistan are confirmed. The fighting near Cabul has been resumed. The Afghans have been defeated on all sides, but a portion of them still hold together, and are in correspondence with some persons in Cabul.

APPREHENSIONS IN ENGLAND.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The Tribune's London special says the gravity of the Cabul news arouses military and political apprehensions that, owing to the rigid censorship, the whole truth is unknown. Liberal journals frankly say that General Roberts is fighting for life. His whole force of 5,000 is pitted against the entire Afghan army, the strength of which is not known. It is believed that General Roberts will likely overcome the present attack, as he holds strongly fortified positions about Cabul, but unless he is victorious an insurrection in Cabul is certain. Candahar is also threatened by 11,000 troops advancing from Herat. The Times urges the Government to abandon Afghanistan after crushing the resistance. The Standard gives the same counsel. The public is uneasy from the daily accumulating evidence of merciless cruelties perpetrated on Afghanistans.

By Telegraph to the Review.

RUSSIAN DUPLICITY.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 15.—The Pioneer asserts that an immense mass of correspondence has been found and laid before the Government, including instructions from the Russian Government to its agents in Central Asia, marking out the course they were to follow with the ex-Ameer. The papers are said to show that Russian intrigues against Afghanistan were active as far back as 1873, and to afford conclusive proof of the falsity of the excuse given for the Russian mission to Cabul last year.

ROBERTS HARD PRESSED.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 15.—A despatch from General Roberts reports continuous fighting. The enemy is still advancing. Roberts has decided to collect his forces in the Shirpur Cantonment, abandoning the heights above the city. General Gough from Gandamak and General Arbuthnot from Jellalabad have been ordered up to Cabul, and reinforcements are being despatched to replace the troops at those points. Communication with Roberts is still uninterrupted but the excitement among the tribes is expected to spread. The Government has ample forces.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham, at its session last week, passed memorials to the Government, asking for the construction of the Trent Canal. They also granted a sum of money to promote the same object, and appointed their Warden a member of the deputation to Ottawa on the 23rd. inst. The minor municipalities in that County, have appointed the following delegates to Ottawa:—Colborne, W. L. Payne, Reeve; Cramahe, E. Cochrane, Reeve; Brighton Village, Thos. Webb, Reeve; Brighton Township, D. Crouter, Reeve; Murray, H. McQuoid, Reeve; Percy, J. L. Geron, Reeve; Seymour, Gilbert Bedford, Reeve; Hastings, James L. Fowlds. Reeve; Haldimand, W. Nobles, Reeve; Alnwick, W. Busbane, Reeve; Hamilton, W. Riddle, Reeve; Cobourg, Geo. Guillet, Mayor; Trenton, C. Francis, Reeve. Before adjourning, the County Council passed a vote of thanks to J. Keeler, M.P. for East Northumberland, for the trouble he had already taken in the matter.

How to Avoid Sudden Death.

A correspondent of the Belfast News Letter says:—Permit me, pro bono publico, to state that very few of the sudden deaths which are said to arise from disease of the heart do really arise from that cause. To ascertain the real origin of sudden deaths the experiment has been tried in Europe, and reported to a scientific congress held at Strasburg. Sixty-six cases of sudden death were made the subject of a through postmortem examination; in these cases only two were found who had died from disease of the heart. Nine out of the sixty-six had died from apoplexy, while there were fifty-five cases of congestion of of the lungs—that is the lungs were so full of blood they could not work, there not being room enough for a sufficient quantity of air to enter to support life. The causes that produce congestion of the lungs are—cold feet, tight clothing, costive bowels, sitting still until chilled after being warmed with labour or a rapid walk, going too suddenly from a close, heated room into the cold air, especially after speaking, and sudden, depressing news operating on the blood. These causes of sudden death being known, an avoidance of them may serve to lengthen many valuable lives, which would otherwise be lost under the verdict of heart complaint. That disease is supposed to be inevitable and incurable; hence many may not take the pains they would to avoid sudden death, if they knew it lay in their power.

IRELAND.

AT the Mallow Petty Sessions, held recently, a man named Timothy M'Carthy said that his father, Connor M'Carthy, was 112 or 113 years of age, and another witness proved that the old man sheared sheep last May.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129-w49-1m

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscreation." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d129-w49-1m

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. w51-d129-5w

Hagyard's Yellow Oil combines in such an eminent degree all the healing, curative and extracting qualities known to medical science that it is truly a family medicine that cannot be dispensed with. When applied to any swelling, sore, burn, chilblain, frostbites, skin eruption, etc., its effects are magical. It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificate of its merits. w51-d129-3y

The Jesuit Church, on West 16th street, celebrated all over the continent not only for the zeal and piety of its clergy, but for the excellence of its music. Dr. Berge, the organist, was afflicted with aneurism in the arms; tried the most eminent surgeons without success; Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia cured him. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet. MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1879.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

The publishers of the Review beg to announce that they have arranged to issue a Christmas number of the Weekly Review on Friday, December 19th, containing six large, full-sized pages. This edition will contain a large amount of interesting reading, specially selected for the approaching holiday season, and possessing such attractions as will make it an unusually welcome visitor in the homes of every one.

It is the intention of the publishers to print not less than 3,000 copies of this edition, and to circulate them throughout every section of the town and county.

It will be obvious that our Christmas number will afford to merchants and others a rare opportunity for advertising, and as a large amount of extra labour will necessarily be involved, those desiring to avail themselves of it are requested to send in their orders not later than the afternoon of Wednesday.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

QUEBEC.

Special to the Review, Dec. 16.

Horses for the States.—A number of American buyers are in town and purchasing horses for the American markets. We learn that they have within a day purchased two carloads of fine animals at rates averaging $80 per animal.

LONDON, ONT.

Special to the Review, Dec. 16.

Irish Relief Fund.—David Glass, Q. C., and Hugh McMahon, Q.C., spent a portion of this morning getting subscriptions to the Irish relief fund. In the course of an hour about $400 was subscribed. D. Glass, a Protestant Irishman, headed the list with $100.

MONTREAL.

Special to the Review, Dec. 16.

Robbing the Aldermen.—Thieves are becoming very daring in the city. Yesterday caps and mufflers were carried off from the City Hall, belonging to aldermen who were in Council.

Less Distress.—The number of poor who are applying for relief is much less than last year. The cause is attributable to increased employment by manufacturers.

OTTAWA.

Special to the Review, Dec. 16.

Frauds at the Exhibition.—The Chief of Police has published a full report of the investigation into the alleged frauds in connection with the recent Dominion Exhibition, the burden of which was that there was no check kept on either keepers of the gates and turnstiles, and insinuates that his investigation into the matter has revealed some crookedness on the part of those in charge of the entrances.

BELLEVILLE.

Working Full Time.—At the annual supper of Messrs. Walker, & Co., founders and agricultural implement manufacturers, Mr. Teeney, speaking for the men, said he regretted that the Daily Ontario had seen fit to make representations regarding this firm which had not the slightest foundation for now all hands were working full time and this had not occurred during the past four winters.

OTTAWA.

Economy.—At a meeting of the Commissioners of Internal Economy, it was decided to recommend the superannuation of three of the old messengers. The vacancies are not to be filled, the number of sessional clerks will be limited to twenty, at $200 per session. Each of the appointments, instead of being made every session, are to be made permanent. Mr. Costigan succeeds Mr. Lindsay (deceased) at a reduced salary. The vacancy caused by Mr. Lowe being transferred to the Justice Department is not to filled. None of the permanent officials have been superannuated.

DUMMER.

Election of Officers.—At a meeting of the Enniskillen L. O. L., No. 522, the following members were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Jas. Scott, W.M; Geo. Rutherford, D. M; David Andrew, Sec.; John Kidd, Treas.; Wm. Stephenson, Chap.; T. W. Ruttan, D. of C.; Richd. Ennis, sr. com. man; Jos. Reynolds, 2nd; Donald Kidd, 3rd; Richd. Tedford, 4th; David Lyn, 5th.

PORT HOPE.

Police Court Case.—The Times says:—There is prospect of fun at the police court on Wednesday morning. Mr. G. Quinlan has sworn out an information against William Garnett, Esq., to the effect that "on the first day of December Mr. Garnett did commit a breach of By-law 301 of this municipality, by being drunk and disorderly, and using insulting, abusive and indecent language to the complainant and others within this corporation (Port Hope). We presume the court-room will be crowded, and interesting developments will be made.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review via Cable and Montreal Lines.

CABLE.

DISTRESS AT ROME.

Rome, Dec. 16.—There is great distress among the poorer classes. The council is meeting to consider measures of relief.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

London, Dec. 16.—The Times says the news from Afghanistan indicates beyond a doubt that a crisis has been reached in our military operations more important than any through which we have yet passed since the commencement of the invasion. Happily the position we occupy and the resources at our disposal appear to render us better able to meet this emergency than any which have yet preceded it, but our strength is being tested more severely than hitherto.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

London, Dec. 16.—An accidental explosion of blasting material occurred in the Wilhein's Gluck Salt Mine at Schwabischall, Wurtemburg. Twelve miners were killed and six injured fatally. The miners in the panic endeavoured to open the door outwards instead inwards, thus preventing aid from reaching them before they had fallen unconcious from the effect of the fumes.

AMERICAN.

PRESENTS REFUSED.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 16.—Governor Blackburn declares that he has refused the offer of all presents, including the tender of horses and carriage by Louisville persons.

THE COAL COMPANIES.

New York, Dec. 16.—The coal companies yesterday refused to attend a meeting called to advance prices. The President of one company said that no changes in prices would be made at present; if any, it would be a reduction. It is generally conceded that the October agreement has been broken, and that from January 1st, all the companies would work independently and that auction sales would be resumed.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.

The Gallia from Liverpool, the Cimbria from Havre.

THE RUBBER TRADE.

The Times says that a Spanish house in the rubber trade has manipulated the market, so as to cause a heavy rise in rubber within a few days, through the fear of a short crop, which fear is really unfounded.

FLED TO CANADA.

New York, Dec. 16.—Frederick Snyder, an examiner in the Appraisers' office of the Custom House, was indicted for receiving bribes. He failed to appear to-day for trial. His bail, $35,000, was forfeited, and it is stated that he has fled to Canada.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

Watertown, N.Y., Dec. 16.—Orange Noble, while fox hunting in the woods in the south part of the county this morning, slipped on a log. The gun being at half cock, went off, the charge entering his hand, neck and face.

A NEW PACIFIC ROUTE.

The Tribune announces that the contract for the building of the extension of the Texas and Pacific railway from Fort Worth to Elpaso, 640 miles, has been approved by the Company, but there is some delay in the execution of the contract. Thos. A. Scott, President of the railway, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Geo. M. Pullman, Chas. F. Woerishoffer and William L. Scott have undertaken to build the proposed road receiving in payment $20,000 bonds, and $20,000 stock per mile which will give them the absolute control of the road. The new road expects to be in operation within two years. Its connection with the Southern Pacific would give another route to the Pacific Coast. At Texarkana, its eastern terminus, the Texas and Pacific road connects with the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern, which affords an outlet to the north and east. At Sherman it connects with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas which would give it a direct line to the Wabash system.

A FRAUDULENT OFFICIAL.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 16.—Ezra Sprague, Postmaster of Birmingham, is a defaulter to the Government for $65,000. He confessed that peculation had been going on since 1873, when he was first appointed. The Government is amply secured.

UNWILLING WITNESSES.

Marshall, Texas, Dec. 16.—The counsel for Currie, who killed Porter, the actor, last March, obtained a habeas corpus yesterday, with the view of obtaining bail. Much indignation is expressed against Barrymore, the actor, for his new appearance as a witness. It is feared that Currie will be ultimately acquitted, as none of the three witnesses to the homicide appear willing to testify.

COMPENSATION FOR AN EYE.

New York, Dec. 16.—Elizabeth Macauley yesterday recovered $1,000 damages in a suit against Lewis F. Booth, whose son, aged 14, while playing with a bow and arrow, shot out plaintiff's eye.

SILVER AND NOTES.

The Tribune publishes a letter from Hugh McCulloch advocating the withdrawal of all small notes under the denomination of $10. He thinks this is the only way to secure the circulation of the silver dollars.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

John McEvoy, the Paterson boy whose head was almost cut in two by a buzz-saw a week ago, died yesterday. His case is regarded as very remarkable.

THE KANSAS PACIFIC.

The Sun says the report from St. Louis that the sale of the Kansas Pacific Railway to Gould has been set aside, proves to have reference only to a mortgage sale of some outlying lands, which once belonged to the railway.

FATAL BOILER EXPLOSION.

Desmoines, Dec. 16.—An engine of the Chicago, Rock Island and Peoria Railway exploded its boiler at Newton this morning, instantly killing the engineer, Wm. Gibbons, and fatally scalding the fireman, Alex. Jones. The cause is supposed to be a defective boiler.

DESTITUTE EMIGRANTS.

New York, Dec. 16.—A hundred and fifty destitute emigrants from the recently flooded districts in Hungary arrived yesterday. Employment has been found for 30 of them in Pennsylvania as wood-choppers.

MRS. SPRAGUE SEEKS A DIVORCE

New York, Dec. 16.—A Washington special report to the World says Mrs. Sprague has authorized her attorney to draw up papers for a divorce.

A POLYGAMIST.

The Tribune says Delegate Cannon denies that he has married a fifth wife. He believes that the anti-polygamy law cannot be made effective.

SUPPRESSING LOTTERIES.

New York, Dec. 16.—Webb, a Hoboken councilman, Wm. D. Knapp and Jos. Emerson were convicted of sending lottery circulars through the mails yesterday, and were fined $400 and costs in the United States Court.

A LIBERAL GIFT.

John H. Dean yesterday presented the Second Baptist Church, Harlem, with a plot of ground worth $15,000, for a new edifice.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE BRITISH LOSS.

London, Dec. 15.—The Viceroy of India telegraphs that Gen. Roberts reports his force now collected in the Shirpur cantonment. The loss on the British side in the fighting yesterday was nineteen killed, including two officers, and eighty-eight wounded, including three officers.

GEN. ROBERTS' PLANS.

A despatch from Cabul dated to-day says that the proposed attack upon the position occupied by the Afghans on the heights south of Cabul by the British troops, has been abandoned for the present. The enemy is in so great force there that it is felt that the attack would, in all probability, result in a repulse, with serious and useless loss of life. It is believed to be the purpose of Gen. Roberts, as soon as the reinforcements now en route arrive, in case the number of the enemy is not disproportionately increased before that time, to make an attack which was yesterday proposed.

THE INSURRECTION SPREADING.

News by special couriers from the interior shows the insurrection to be spreading on all sides, and, as has been intimated in these despatches, it is not impossible that military operations on the part of the British will be soon reduced to an effort to defend themselves within the fortified positions they now hold in and around Cabul. The British army now available for duty at Cabul is less than half as great as that of the enemy, while the strategic ability of Mahomed Jane and other Sepoy and hill tribal leaders has been dangerously underrated. The Ghuznees are exceptionally well commanded, as are also the Kohistans. It is feared that the expected reinforcements may be attacked by strong bands reported to be gathering along their line of march, and it is whispered in army circles that unless they arrive, and render the defence impregnable, the natives within the city will rise in insurrection.

REINFORCEMENTS REQUESTED.

It is announced that the Indian Government has asked for reinforcements of 5,000 men forthwith.

By Telegraph to the Review.

NO FEAR OF DISASTER.

London, Dec. 16.—A correspondent writes from Afghanistan, the temporary success of Mahomed Jan over Gen. Massy, coupled with the evacuation of the position won at such cost on the 13th inst., has evidently given the rising an impetus, it will need all our strength to overcome. The Shirbur Cantonments, two miles north of Cabul, are entrenched, and they contain several months supplies. Though it is humiliating to feel that at the moment the Afghans have the upper hand, that our army of occupation is beleaguered, that Cabul has passed from our hands, and its governorship has been transferred to Mahomed Jan, there is no cause for alarm. Though the Afghans hate us now with the undying hatred they exhibited in 1842, there is no reason to feel apprehension of a repetition of the disgrace which overtook us there.

A GUN LOST.

Calcutta, Dec. 16.—One mountain gun was lost during Sunday's engagement. Gen. Roberts estimates the number of the enemy at 30,000; their fire was severe. He is confident in his ability to restore British authority in Afghanistan, but says reinforcements are absolutely necessary.

The Dominion Grange.

At the annual meeting of the Dominion Grange the following officers were chosen for the year:—W. M., E. H. Hilborn, Uxbridge. Overseer, Stephen White, Charing Cross. Lecturer, W. E. Starratt, Nova Scotia. Steward, H. J. Massie, Belleville. Assistant Steward, E. Scully. Chaplain, Oscar Ault, Cornwall Centre. Treasurer, J. P. Bull, Downsview. Secretary, W. Pemberton Page, Fonthill. Doorkeeper, L. R. Whitman, Quebec. Ceres, Mrs. Starratt, Nova Scotia. Pomona, Mrs. McCabe, Brockville. Flora, Mrs. McLean, Kent. Lady Assistant Steward, Mrs. Lethbridge, West Middlesex. Executive Committee,—Messrs. A. Gifford, Meaford. Chas. Drewery, Strong Hill. Jabel Robinson, Middlemarch. J. B. Aylesworth, Newburg. Wm. Anderson, Belleville. Auditors,—Messrs. A. J. Hughes, Sharon, and Dawson Kennedy, Peterborough.

ENGLAND.

It is stated that Sir Leopold McClintock, the new Admiral of the British North American and West Indian station, belongs to the Plymouth Brethren.

London Truth states: 'It is a fact that Lord Beaconsfield has three times tendered his resignation to the Queen within the last six months and that her Majesty has each time begged him to reconsider his request to be relieved of his duties.'

A Paragraph of police court news in a recent number of the London Times begins: 'William Shakespeare, 45, well known to the police, who pretended to be very ill, was charged with being drunk and disorderly in St. George's Circus and assaulting No. 147 M in the execution of his duty.

The present Earl Derby is credited with the following opinion of his father: 'his judgment on any matter would be excellent, if he were well-informed but then he never is well-informed. Lord Stanley observed on another occasion of his father: 'He knows nothing accurately except Homer; and even there Gladstone beats him.'

A RAILROAD HUM.

WHATEVER doubts there may be about the reality of "the hum" generally there can be little doubt about there being a considerable hum just now among rival railway interests in this Province. If the solicitor of the Grand Trunk Railway Company is to be believed, that Company has gobbled up both the Grand Junction and the Midland Railways, and they will henceforth be practically, if not nominally, a part of that line. That such a result may not be without advantage to us cannot be denied. Under such an arrangement there would be no good reason why the cost of freightage from Peterborough to Montreal should not be the same as from Port Hope, which everybody knows is just what we have been fighting for. Whether it would or would not be so, is of course another matter, and would certainly depend upon whether the Grand Trunk magnates deemed it in their interests to place us on a par with Port Hope with regard to Eastern markets, or keep us in our present position in this respect, and we can only hope that if they succeed in obtaining control of these railways, the surrounding circumstances will be such as to secure for us the benefits which should accrue to us from the change. But whatever the result, the object of the Grand Trunk is manifest. It is unquestionably the death of the Toronto and Ottawa project. They feel that if that line be once built their undisputed control of this Province east of Toronto, will not only be gone, but they will have to fight a formidable rival for every pound of freight from the western section of it as well. But fortunately for us, and fortunately for the whole Province, the very efforts which they have made and are making to kill this scheme are only serving to convince the whole Province of the great necessity which exists for the construction of this missing link between the east and west. For instance although the Toronto Globe has always been favourable to our scheme, it is only now that it has come to realise its great importance, and to declare that "it is in fact the railway which the Dominion most needs;" that it does not "hesitate to affirm its belief that there could not be projected in the Dominion a line with fairer prospects," and that it "promises to be worth more to the city of Toronto than all their railways put together." Pretty strong language all this; but to appreciate its full importance, we must bear in mind that it is the language of fear, caused by the possibility that owing to that city "not being situated in the best possible place for the location of through lines," its promoters may, unless Toronto comes to their aid, be led to prefer their own interests to those of the city, and carry the line some twenty miles north of it—which the Globe truly points out, would be a "fatal blow" to the "prestige" of that ambitious city. Located, as we are, upon the natural highway between the east and west, whether by rail or water, we believe a route, or routes, by way of Peterborough, sooner or later must prevail. Taking Montreal as the objective point during the summer, and Halifax, Portland, or Boston as the objective points during the winter, Peterborough is on the natural line of the Trent Valley, and cannot economically be passed by, and it is only the enterprise, push and unity of other places, combined with our own lack of these qualities, which has hitherto retarded our progress and promoted theirs. We hope, however, the time has arrived when our own enterprise and unity of action will enable us to take judicious advantage of existing circumstances, so that we may at least reap all the advantages which nature evidently intended to shower upon this locality.

THE LATE JAMES MILLAR, ESQ.

Our readers will learn with unfeigned regret that James Millar, Esq., Reeve of Otonabee, died on Monday afternoon at about four o'clock. For some months past Mr. Millar has been suffering from a difficulty in breathing, which has been gradually growing worse, until Monday, when he died quite unexpectedly while sitting in a chair. When quite young Mr. Millar came to this country from Perthshire, Scotland, in 1829, with two brothers and three sisters, all of whom have predeceased him except his brother John, and took up his abode in Otonabee, where he has resided ever since. He was, in every sense, a fine specimen of a "shrewd Scotchman." Commencing life with nothing but his good constitution and willing hands, he, by shrewdness as well as industry, amassed a considerable fortune. Although devoting himself chiefly to farming, he had a good eye to business, and often entered into speculations which always, some how or another, turned out right for him, and added to a store which he never permitted to lie idle. In the municipal affairs of his Township and the County he has taken an active part since 1867, when he was elected Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee. In '68 and '69 he filled the same position and in 1870 succeeded to the Reeve-ship which he occupied without intermission until the day of his death, notwithstanding that on several occasions strenuous efforts were made to defeat him; and in 1872 he occupied the highest position in the gift of the County Council—the Warden's Chair. In politics, Mr. Millar was a willing and active supporter of the Reform party. But notwithstanding all the hard words so frequently said during an election campaign, his good humour never forsook him, and no one had any difficulty in shaking hands with him and letting by-gones be by-gones when the fight was over. Of a genial disposition, he was liked by everybody, and a host of friends throughout the county will mourn his death, as well as his numerous family connections in Otonabee. Mr. Miller was also at the time of his death, for the second time, President of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society, and, perhaps the proudest day of his life was when about a year ago he joined in the presentation of the Canadian St. Andrew's Societies' address to the Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise on their arrival in Canada. At the time of his death, he was a comparatively young man, having been born in 1818, and therefore only entered upon his 62nd year. Until within the last six months, he seemed the very picture of health, and to all appearance had many days before him. His funeral will take place to-morrow, leaving his late residence in Otonabee, at 10 a.m., and proceeding to the Little Lake Cemetery.

BENEATH THE ICE.

Two Young Ladies Perish while Gleefully Skating Homewards.

NEWCASTLE, N.B., Dec. 13.—A shocking occurrence happened in this vicinity this afternoon. Two young ladies, Miss May Williston, daughter of his Honour Judge Williston, and Miss Jane Watt, daughter of Mr. C. C. Watt, shipbuilder, left Newcastle about two o'clock to skate down to Chatham, a distance of five miles, in company with Mr. McCully, school teacher. They remained at Chatham a short time and left for home, in joyful spirits, between 4 and 5 in the afternoon. When going by Douglastown, the skaters passed close by Hutchinson's wharf about dusk, and, without a moments warning, fell through a weak spot in the ice. When McCully rose from the plunge his companions had disappeared, in all probability having been carried by the current beneath the ice. He himself had a very narrow escape. The accident was seen by a boy on shore, who gave the alarm. Large numbers of people from Newcastle and elsewhere hurried to the fatal spot, and efforts were made to recover the bodies, which resulted in success between 9 and 10 o'clock. Universal sympathy is expressed for the households so terribly and suddenly stricken. The two young persons who have met so sad an end were great favorites among all classes, and were universally and deservedly esteemed. They were highly accomplished, handsome, and of a particularly joyous disposition.

A COUPLE OF HEROES.

Ten years ago John Davison, a railroad engineer, recently killed by an explosion on a Western road, was running a train consisting of a box-car with two valuable horses, six oil cars and two passenger coaches on the Buffalo & Pittsburg Railroad. He was already under headway when the oil cars were cut loose, and the locomotive and box car moved out of the way. Suddenly the engineer found that, the brakes not being set, the burning cars were pursuing him on a down grade. Before he realized the situation, they struck him, knocking in the end of the box car. He and the fireman could have jumped off, but the locomotive and the horses could be saved only by a race of life. He opened the throttle wide, and though he flew down the eight-foot grade, it seemed as if the burning cars were gaining on him at every stroke. As he turned the sharp curves he expected to be hurled over the mountain side. The night was very dark. The engine thundered along through woods and deep rock cuts, and on the edge of high precipices. The horses were stamping and sighing with terror in the box car. And only a few feet in the rear was the flying mass of flames rushing down the mountain like a tremendous meteor. The blaze from the thousands of gallons of burning oil was more than sixty feet in height, and lighted up the woods and rocks and crooked places for miles. The whole heavens was illuminated, and from Brocton the sight of the great conflagration, apparently flying through the air, now hidden for a second by a cut or a piece of woods, and then leaped out again and up toward the sky like a huge fountain of fire, is described as having been awful in its grandeur. Brocton Junction came in sight. Just beyond that was an up grade where he would be safe. Suddenly he was almost paralyzed at the recollection that the Cincinnati express was due there, while a freight train was at that moment running past the switch to make way for the express. He knew he must have been seen by the light of the burning cars; so he whistled for a switch, the freight train got out of the way, he dashed through the village and up the grade; the burning train came to a halt, the Cincinnati express, most luckily was late, was signalled and stopped in time and at the end of a ride of sixteen miles in twelve minutes, both Davison and his fireman fainted on his engine. James Kenan, Davison's fireman, was killed six years afterward while rescuing a child that was playing on the track. He reached over the pilot, tossed the child to one side, but lost his balance and was crushed.

A HOT WATER RIVER.

The projector of the Sutro Tunnel is of the opinion that the hot water which is so troublesome in the Comstock mines comes from a depth of ten or fifteen thousand feet, where the rocks are at a high temperature; also that there must be some connection between the water of the Comstock lode and that of the boiling springs at Steamboat, six or seven miles distant.

One of the great advantages of the tunnel is the means it affords for draining the mines. The tunnel discharges about twelve thousand tons of water every twenty-four hours. To lift this water to the surface would cost not less than $3,000 a day. Some of the water has a temperature of 165° where all the water mingles; four miles from the mouth of the tunnel the temperature ranges from 130° to 135°. If left to flow through the open tunnel this water would so fill the air with steam as to make the tunnel impassible. In flowing the four miles through a tight flume made of 3 in. yellow pine, the water loses about 7° of heat. At the mouth of the tunnel the water is conducted sixty feet down a shaft to a water wheel in the machine shop, whence it is carried off by a tunnel eleven hundred feet in length, which serves as a tail race. From this tunnel the water flows a mile and a half to the Carson River.

This large flow of warm water is now used for many purposes, the first to utilize it having been boys who made small ponds to swim in—pioneers, it may be, in establishing a system of warm baths, which may ultimately become a great sanitary resort. The water can also be turned to account in heating hot houses and for irrigation. The tunnel company have a farm of over a thousand acres which, when properly watered, is very fertile. In course of time there will probably be many acres of fruit and vegetables under glass at this point, all warmed and watered by the tunnel water.

A HIRED man working with a Toronto Township farmer had his leg broken by being caught in the tumbling shaft of some machinery that was not protected according to law. He was refused damages, and a suit was entered, when a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,000 was given. Farmers should make a note of this, and not leave dangerous machinery unprotected.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

EGGS IN CASE OF TROUBLE.—The white of an egg is said to be a specific for fish bones sticking in the throat. It is to be swallowed raw and will carry down a bone easily and certainly. There is another fact touching eggs which it will be well to remember. When, as sometimes by accident, corrosive sublimate is swallowed, the white of one or two eggs taken will neutralize the poison, and change effect to that of a dose of calomel.

BOTTLES HERMETICALLY SEALED.—Gelatine mixed with glycerine yields a compound liquid when hot, but becoming solid by cooling, at the same time retaining much elasticity. Bottles may be hermetically sealed by dipping their necks into the liquid mixtures, and repeating the operation until the cap attained any thickness required.

TO PRESERVE AUTUMN LEAVES.—Spread the fresh leaves and press them in a suitable dish, with alternate layers of fine sand, which is thoroughly dry and as hot as the hand can bear. When the sand has cooled they may be removed, smoothed under a hot iron, dipped for a moment in clear French spirit varnish, and allowed to dry in the air.

TO WASH A KNITTED SHAWL.—Take enough warm water, not hot, and rub about an ounce of soap in it; lay your shawl on it and pour over it a tablespoonful of magical mixture. After letting it lie for ten minutes, rub it out of this and rinse out well with cold blued water, and hang it in the wind to dry quickly.

SWEET AND CLEAN.—If you have jugs, kegs or cans, that have become stale or mouldy in the inside, wash them out clean and fill up with warm water; drop in a little carbolic acid and let it stand a few hours; empty the water and rinse thoroughly, and it will be as sweet as if it had never been tainted. So says a "farmer's wife" in the Country Gentleman.

To remove glass from old sashes, a mixture of three parts of potash with one quart of unslacked lime, laid on both sides with a stick and allowed to remain for twenty-four hours, will soften the putty enough to cut out easily. This mixture will also take off paint and even tar.

THE ordinary life of a locomotive is thirty years. Some of the smaller parts require renewal every six months; the boiler tubes last five years, and the crank axles six years; tires, boilers, and fire boxes from six to seven years; the side frames, axles, and other parts, thirty years.

Cut this Out—It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonish every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents. dw51-1y

CHRISTMAS WOOING!

A LEGEND OF CHELMSFORD MANOR.

"'Twas wassail all, in bower and hall;" ay, and in cottage and homestead also.

For it was Christmas—merry Christmas, and in those days, some five centuries back, the high festival was kept with more pomp and license, more elaborate device and lavish display, than in our modern days.

But then "laisses," "far niente," and "can't be bored," are the maxims in our day in many climes, and no wonder if the venerable Father of the snow locks and ruddy face has his share in the stereotyped treatment. But it treats of Edward the Second's days, and not of Albert Edward's does our legend; and as the lieges of the King and sons of the Church, the merry men of England kept right joyous holiday on that glorious winter tide.

It was a pleasant sight to see the peat smoke curling from cottage roofs, the fumes of a fire on which the good cheer of the coming day was preparing; to see the trailing evergreens drawn along by laughing boys and girls; the heaped wood ready for the Christmas bon-fires; to listen to the glad chimes, and see the caparisoned steeds carrying the guests to the banquet and feasting; while groups of mummers and minstrels were plodding along towards the halls and manor houses, and castles, where they were sure of a welcome greeting and of plentiful hospitality.

And so thought young and well-favored Hugh Donaldson, as he wended his way over the beautiful chalk hills that lead to Gothard, and which lay on the road to Chelmsford Manor, whither he was bound.

Bound in more senses than one, for he had been betrothed to Elsie St. Cloud ere his long exile from his native land, and now was returning to redeem his troth at this Christmas-tide.

The troth—not his heart's affections.

For it had been a union of lands not of love, and he had well-nigh forgotten his betrothed, whom he had left a mere child eight years before.

The pale moon crescent was gleaming over Chelmsford as he journeyed, and the night overtook him ere he was aware.

The snow-flakes also were beginning to fall, and it seemed to him to be the best part of valor, "discretion," to make his way to a cottage light that he saw in the distance rather than push on for his destination in the storm and darkness.

It was with some difficulty that he found the path to that delusive light, but when at last he did reach his haven, he perceived that the door was open, and saw a truckle bed in the interior, near which a fair girl was kneeling; while at a little distance a boy, who seemed rather to be worshipping the visible than the unseen, was apparently joining in the prayer the girl was offering up—offering for the dying.

Yes, on that Christmas-tide, death still intruded, and the aged form on that pallet-bed was, as a glance would tell, near her haven of rest.

The volume closed, she rose, and began to bathe the sufferer's forehead.

And then Hugh, for the first time, saw the most killing violet eyes that ever peeped under lashes of chestnut brown.

In brief, she was beautiful, exceedingly; and Hugh's salutation was proportionately reverential.

"Lady, I was benighted, and ventured to seek your light. Pardon the liberty in a stranger."

"No light—no, not to one my sister, that I would follow till I am weary; but we must extinguish it now. Such is the Norman law."

"Hush, dear, hush!" said the girl reprovingly; then turning to the stranger, she whispered, "He has the fancy I am his sister, but it is not so. He is an innocent, and it were a sin to grieve him."

"True, sweet lady; but will you do me the pleasure to say how far it is to Chelmsford Manor, and how fares the noble St. Cloud—I mean Godfrey St. Cloud and—and his house?"

The girl flushed scarlet.

"Know you not that Godfrey St. Cloud is dead, and Jerome, his son, holds revel there this Christmas, the first time since his father's death?" she replied.

"Is it so? And his sisters—are they still there?" he asked.

"Gertrude is wooed by one of the King's favorites," she said slyly.

"And Elsie?" he asked.

"Elsie was under her father's commands, but he is gone now," she replied.

"Gone! Yes; and he—I mean she—is, of course, free! But——"

His speech was stopped.

The Curfew was tolling, and the fair girl extinguished the light, and stamped it under her feet.

"Good night," she whispered.

"No, not in the dark," he exclaimed.

"It is a brief distance, and I have the true blood in my veins. I fear not!"

"She is an angel—she cannot harm," said the lad, softly. "I shall soon go, and she will follow; will you come also?"

As he spoke there was a scream, and Hugh was out in a second.

"Shame—shame!" said the girl's voice. "If I dare tell my brother, then it were your turn."

Another minute and Hugh had the man in his grasp, and held him in it like a vice, while the fair young creature had time to make good her escape.

Then he returned to the cottage, where by that time the old dame lay dead.

And Hugh watched till morning dawn brought the "gossips" to lay out the corpse and then set off to the Manor House.

The Manor was already teeming with Christmas guests, and others were on the road.

But Hugh's costume as a Knight of the Cross procured him reverence from all.

And when he arrived at the Manor House his reception was equally distinguished.

"My master keeps open house at this season, noble Knight," said the old steward, whose office it was to marshal his guests. "And to thee, a Templar, will be especial and honored welcome. The noble St. Cloud receives his guests in the hall; but, mayhap, your honor would like to refresh yourself in your chamber first?"

Hugh complied.

It was to his taste, certainly, to have some little time to prepare for the meeting. And perhaps, spite of his professed coldness, he might desire to appear to advantage in the eye of fair Elsie St. Cloud.

So he availed himself of the opportunity and the materials afforded him to appear in right splendid guise.

"His sword sheathe of ivory,
His helme of silver bright;
His sabre was of ebon bone,
His doublet as the same shone,
Or as the moon bright."

Thus well "made up," he descended to the hall, all decorated with evergreens and blazing with wood-fires, and with tables laden with Christmas cheer, that ran from one end of the hall to the other, leaving only a passage between to the raised dias where Jerome and his sisters and one or two favoured guests were sitting.

She was draped in a damask robe, and sparkled with jewels, and wore a veil and net over her glossy tresses.

But the other, the queen of the revels, was seated in a Chair of State; and might be described in the old ballad:—

"And put my daughter in a chair,
Ye shall be covered with velvet red,
And fine gold all about your head,
With damask white and azure blue,
Well diversed with lilies
Your mantle of rich degree,
Purple pall, and ermyne free."

Jerome St. Cloud came forward to welcome the stranger.

"Noble Knight, at this season all are welcome, without distinction; but yet I should be glad to know your name."

The Knight spoke it in his host's ear.

Jerome started.

"Ah, is it so? Well, it shall be as thou wilt, at least, while Christmas gives license to all masking and masquerading. And I am Lord Jerome, and that is Elsie. You must tread a measure with Elsie. Richard, king of the revels, quick, find thy tongue, or thou wilt shame thine office."

Hugh could not but comply.

The musicians struck up, and the dancers formed into a circle, for one of the short but stately measures of time, and which was danced ere the banquet was served as a fitting warming up of body and mind for the feast.

"You have been wandering far, by your dress," said Elsie, softly.

"Into the lands of the sun."

"And whence came you last?"

"From Araby's sunny clime."

"Then you were happy there?"

"No; I wanted that which alone could make me so—hope and love!"

"Love! Me thought that was ever present in Araby," she said.

"Present, perhaps; but so is the sun, and it may be that I did not catch one of its beams. There, too, like the sun, it is but of a day, and panishes like that luminary at its close."

"Ah, so says the poet. DeRoche, come hither. The Knight will listen to your lay."

One of the minstrels, who was ever to be found at such gay revels, came forward with a guitar, and accompanied himself and the lady in a sweet, if monotonous, chant.

"Tell me where, with hope and love,
Felicity has made her home,
In nook and vale, in shady grove,
Or Shiraz's golden dome.

"Ever in desert, cloud, or storm,
Love wantons in his wild caress,
E'en by rocks his torch will warm,
And light a wilderness.

"Tell me where love with love is blest,
In what enchanted cell it lies?
Is it within a jeweled vest,
Or in a lover's eyes?

"Beauty may lure love's burning vows;
But Beauty is their lightest part;
Her lips are but his pleasure-house,
His home is in her heart."

And thus the revel went on.

There was the laugh, and song, and dance, then came the mummers, in characters suitable of the season; and among them the venerable Father Christmas and his train, as if to announce his advent on the morn; and, last of all, when the poorer and humble guests departed, each was served with a token, in the shape of food, or posset, or garment, that might gladden his heart, and bring comfort to his home on that Christmas day.

It had ever been the custom at the Manor, and Jerome did not depart from the habit of his fathers, albeit his estate was cumbered by his father's will with marriage portions of no mean amount for his sisters.

As the hall emptied, and the guests retired, after due obeisance to the lord and lady of the revels and their liberal host, Jerome drew near to the Templar guest.

"Thou hast talked with my sister but with cold constraint. Thou lovest her not," he said, earnestly.

"My own and her father's word is law," he replied, "and I must keep that troth; but not, as I confess, with the ready love I should feel to a young and beautiful bride. But she shall be treated with the honour and respect that will be due to her as a St. Cloud and my wife!"

"How is it?" asked the brother. "She is as fair and young as any maiden thou couldst find, and gently born and well dowered. What canst thou want more?"

"Nothing."

"Nothing? Then why that sigh—that averted look? I have watched thee during the revels, and thy demeanour has been rather that of one who is observing Lent than keeping Christmas-tide?"

Hugh was silent.

"Is it that thine heart is not thine own? Has some dark maiden stollen it from your bosom?" inquired Jerome.

"Good St. Cloud, be content. I love none who are not of mine own country and tongue," returned Hugh.

At the moment, Elsie herself approached her brother.

"Dear Jerome," she said, "Will you pardon me if I retire to my chamber? I am very weary, and my head pains me. Gertrude will take my place for the brief remainder of the night's festivities."

The young men both looked at the maiden, and then at each other.

It was no idle excuse, to judge from the pale cheeks, and down-cast eyes of the young girl.

Elsie had either a head ache or a heart ache, to judge from her aspect.

And Jerome's voice was tender and anxious, as he replied, "Certainly, my dear sister. Thou must rest well to be ready for our feast to-morrow; and it will be in early morning that we shall go to the chapel, where Father Dunscomb will await us, and I shall hope to see thee well and blooming on the morrow."

Elsie gave a tacit assent; but both Jerome and Hugh could not but observe that it was a sad smile that accompanied the gesture.

And it did, perhaps, give the suitor a fancy to think that one so fair, and young, and noble should thus suffer through him.

Then came the restraining idea.

Was it for him?

Or was it love for another, or pique at his tardy advent, that produced that pensiveness.

Jerome watched his face in silence for some minutes.

"Hugh Donaldson," he said, "I adjure you to speak in truth and honour. I had thought to celebrate this Christmas feast by betrothals of my two sisters to the suitors chosen by my deceased father, and that ere the goodly company should separate they might be bidden to the bridals. But no daughter of the St. Clouds shall be given to an unwilling suitor."

Hugh listened with a troubled, but not guilty silence.

"I can but repeat my former words," he said. "In all honour, and respect, and kindness, I am ready to take Elsie for my wife. To profess more would be to speak falsely."

"And I in my turn, should ill perform my duty as Elsie's guardian, and the representative of our dead father, did I yield to such cold wooing," returned Jerome. "I will delay my intentions, at least so far as Elsie is concerned; and unless well assured that you love her, I will never consent to her being your bride, no; not even were you a prince, and with a prince's coffers in your keeping."

The Templar Knight made no rejoinder.

Perhaps his conscience was stricken.

Or it might be that he wished to avail himself of the escape thus offered him.

They returned to the grand hall, which was now emptying with guests, and then after the last loving cup had been handed round Hugh went to his chamber, and soon dismissed the serving-man, who had been sent forward to Chelmsford Manor some days before; but, owing to misadventure, had only arrived there late on the Christmas eve.

When his servant had quitted the sleeping chamber, Hugh began to pace its floor with hurried and nervous strides.

"What means this?" he said, sharply, as if reproving some indifferent person for a misdemeanour. "What means this way-ward and senseless repugnance to one I am bound to love and cherish as an honoured bride. Hugh Donaldson, thou art a senseless idiot, or worse, a dishonoured knight! and yet, for what cause?"

Again he fell into deep thought.

"Can it be that a pair of violet eyes, a soft voice, can have bewitched me thus? What can it mean? What should I do? I will but see her once again. If I can learn her true history, her birth, her relatives, then all will be at rest. Surely it was strange that she should not be there, at those crowded revels. Pah! as if the caprices of an obscure maiden could reck aught to a Donaldson and a Knight!"

And he indignantly threw away the oppressive fit of thought, and proceeded to his couch.

But sleep did not for a long time visit his eyes, and when at last they closed in slumber, he was awakened by the carol singers making their rounds of the hall, and chanting their quaint rhymes and tunes at each casement, in hope of approval or of guerdon.

But then what is there that love will not do to bring all things to its own level? And human nature was the same in the fourteenth as in the nineteenth century, and, it may be, more powerful and less conventional in its ideas and feelings.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

TUESDAY, Dec. 16.—The market to-day has been considerably enlivened by the increased receipts of wheat. That there has been a break in prices abroad none can doubt, as the buyers here were very shy to-day, even at the reduction. Yesterday $1.27 to $1.28 were paid for spring, while to-day they are reluctant to give $1.25 to $1.26. Fall wheat went off from three to four cents, selling at $1.27 to $1.28. A few parcels of barley were taken at 40 cts. for No. 2. A few loads of peas, in good order, were readily sold at 65 cts. Some pork and a few loads of hay constituted the market, beyond wood, which may be said to have become a fixture, selling barely at quotations.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

The Curling and Skating Rink.

The moderately cold weather has permitted Mr. Stewart to get a good bottom for ice at the Curling and Skating Rink. So far the continued sprinkling has been replaced by the flooding pipe, and there is every prospect of an early curling and skating match.

Off for the Shanties.

Capt. Leon Dion leaves Peterborough to-day for Mr. R. C. Strickland's shanty in Harvey. He takes with him 15 men, together with the necessary appliances for cutting and hauling logs. A large force went into the shanty of Mr. George Strickland, in Burleigh, two weeks since.

T. V. C.

The following additional delegates have been appointed, viz:—Henry Collins, Reeve of North Monaghan; James Golborne, Reeve of Burleigh; Thomas Rork, Reeve of Asphodel. As before mentioned, arrangements have been made for return tickets at one and a third fare, and they may be had at Wilson & Davis'.

Sleighing.

Last evening the streets of Peterborough were alive with sleighing parties. The snow although light, was of sufficient depth to make an easy path for the flying sleighs freighted with the fair ones beside their sterner companions. It seemed as if every vehicle that could be put upon runners was brought into requisition, as though there was a fear that it would be the only chance of a sleigh drive.

Christmas Festival.

The children of St. Luke's Church Sunday School, Ashburnham, will have their annual treat on Tuesday evening next, the 23rd instant. In addition to the usual Christmas tree, from which the scholars will receive gifts, an interesting programme of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc., will be rendered by the little ones. The proceeds of the entertainment will be given to the Library Fund. The children will meet at the Town Hall, Ashburnham, at 6.30 p. m.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: Fresh to brisk winds, mostly south-westerly to south-westerly; partly cloudy to cloudy weather with snow areas. The weather in Peterborough has been moderately cold but pleasant. A snow cloud passed over us this morning, leaving about a half inch upon the snow already covering the earth. The thermometer at 8 o'clock indicated 18°; at noon time, 30°; partly cloudy to cloudy weather. The wind has continued from the south-west nearly all day.

Success of the Telephone.

The wonderful discovery by Edison of the telephone, has in a measure revolutionized the modes of correspondence. It is not many years since it required months of travel between Peterborough and New York or Washington. Now, by aid of steam, one can reach New York within two days, and by aid of the telegraph, one can have his correspondence transmitted within the hour. All these are rapid and wonderful advances in science. But what can be said of the telephone, it is more than wonderful. People can hardly believe that one can stand in the Dominion Telegraph Office, on Hunter street, Peterborough, and converse with a friend in Port Hope. Last evening several gentlemen assembled at the company's office and communication was opened with the Port Hope office for the purpose of testing the "Bell Telephone" with the "Blake Transmitter." The test proved most satisfactory. The REVIEW reporter, among others, had a conversation of some length with Mr. G. B. Salter at Port Hope, hearing his replies from that distance quite distinctly. Before the connection with Mr. Cluxton's office had been cut off, Mr. Fairbairn communicated with him as to the price of wheat. The difference in the transmission of sound, between the telephone speaking tube and the transmitter proved to be very great and in favor of the latter. It is much easier for the speaker and more clear.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

ROAST GOOSE.—Stuff with a dressing of finely mashed potatoes, seasoned with minced onion, pinch of sage, butter, pepper and salt. Before making the gravy skim off a good deal of the fat in the pan.

CHOCOLATE DROPS.—Two and one-half cups of granulated sugar and a half cup of water boiled for four minutes. Flavor with vanilla. Then beat with a fork until cool enough to make into little balls. Have half a cake of Baker's chocolate melted and roll the balls into the chocolate.

TO SERVE COLD ROAST BEEF.—Chop the beef, fat and lean together, and have ready an equal quantity of stewed ripe tomatoes, then roll four or five crackers and stew them in an earthen pudding dish; now put in alternate layers of tomatoes and beef until all is in; season with salt, pepper and bits of butter if the beef is not very fat; add cold beef gravy, which will usually be moisture enough, then put a layer of cracker crumbs over the top, and bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned on top.

PRESSED chicken is a nice constituent of a pic-nic, or in fact, any other lunch. Cut up a young fowl and put in a kettle, with one coffee-cup of cold water. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and cover closely; cook till tender, then pick the meat from the bones and chop into bits the size of a pea and pack in a quart bowl. Thicken with flour the liquid remaining in the kettle, and pour over the chicken; put a plate on it while warm, and a heavy weight on the plate. It is necessary that the fowl be cooked in but little water, else it will not jelly. Cut for sandwiches the day after it is made.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD.—A good receipe. One heaping coffee-cupful each of Graham flour, rye flour, and Indian meal. Sift all together, and mix thoroughly with two coffee-cupsful of molasses, two of sweet milk and one of sour, a teaspoonful of salt, and a dessert spoonful of soda. Pour into a buttered tin pail or form; the batter should not quite fill it, as it must have room to swell; cover tightly, place in a kettle of cold water, put on and boil four hours, looking from time to time, to see if the water is boiling away, and replenishing always with hot water. The water should not boil over the top of the form. Take the bread out at the end of the four hours, and set with the lid off in the oven for about ten minutes. This is to dry off the outside steam and form a tender crust.

TO ROAST A PIG.—Directions. See that the pig is well cleaned; wash in two or three waters—a little soda may be added to the first water; wipe dry inside and out. Prepare a dressing of crumbs, seasoned with a little minced onion, two teaspoonsful of powdered sage, yolk of an egg, salt, pepper, and butter, and moisten with a little water. Stuff into his original shape. Sew up, place in a kneeling position in a dripping pan, skewering the legs in place. Pour a little hot water in the pan. Roast in a moderately heated oven from two hours two hours and a half. To keep the skin from cracking, rub every few minutes with a rag dipped in melted butter. Garnish with parsley, or blanched celery tops.

ICE CREAM CAKE.—The whites of eight eggs, two cups of fine white sugar, one cup of butter, one of sweet milk and four of flour. One cup of corn starch, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and bake as for jelly cake. Then instead of jelly, use frosting made after the following rule. The whites of three eggs, beaten to a stiff froth, three cups of white sugar, on which pour nearly half a pint of water and let it boil without stirring it with a spoon until it becomes clear like syrup; then pour it hot from the stove on the frothed egg, stirring rapidly until it is thoroughly mixed; then add half teaspoonful citric acid or vinegar, or lemon juice. Spread this on the cake while it is warm, and the cake cold. Put the cake together as for jelly cake and lay this icing between the layers and lastly on top. The above proportion will make a large cake.

ROAST TURKEY WITH OYSTER DRESSING.—Take a loaf of stale bread, cut off crust, crumble fine, add butter, pepper and salt. Strain the liquor from off a quart of oysters, bring to a boil and pour over the crumbs, adding the crusts previously soaked. Fill a well dressed turkey first with a spoonful of dressing then three or four oysters and so on till all are in. Draw together, rub butter, pepper and salt over the turkey, place in a dripping pan, pour in half a pint of hot water, and roast in a well-heated oven from two and a half to three hours. Baste frequently with a little water, butter, pepper and salt, kept in a cup on the back of the stove. Half an hour before it is done, baste and dredge with flour. When making the gravy if there is much fat in the pan pour off most of it, add the chopped giblets with the water in which they were boiled. Thicken with flour—browned—made smooth in a little cream. Season.

SAUCE HOLLANDAISE,—WHITE SAUCE.—The two most convenient sauces to be served with any of the varieties of boiled fish are a plain white sauce and a yellow sauce called Hollandaise. The white sauce is made by putting a tablespoonful of flour or arrow-root in a small saucepan. Mix it into a smooth paste with cold water, and one-half pint of the water in which the fish was boiled. Stir well until it boils and thickens. Add a tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice and serve in a gravy boat. The sauce Hollandaise is made by beating two or three tablespoonfuls of water, with pepper, salt, and nutmeg stirred in. Then stir in the yolks of two eggs, but do not let the mixture boil; melt gradually into an ounce of butter, an ounce of flour (or all butter may be used and no flour); add a teaspoonful of vinegar or lemon juice and the whole should stir into the consistency of smooth, thick cream. With these two sauces and the large fish, which are obtained in a good condition in great variety all the year round, a most agreeable acquaintance can be made with fish, as an honorable auxiliary to all the pleasures and conveniences of the table.

THE hair of a child nine years old, at Olean N. Y., has turned from dark Auburn to snow white. A few weeks ago she saw two or three drunken men in the street and was terribly frightened. She cried for three hours, and her paroxysms of grief were well-nigh uncontrollable. Soon after her hair began to turn gray, and now it is white.

FAMINE IN PERSIA.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—An appeal has reached London from the American missionaries at Oosoomeeyah, Persia, in behalf of the population of that district and Turkish Khurdistan, who are starving. There is already a partial failure of the wheat and raisin crops. Owing to poverty only about a tenth part of the usual import of food has been made, and the importation has now entirely ceased. The Government are doing little or nothing. Winter will intensify the distress.

CAPTURED BY BRIGANDS.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—It is reported that two English travellers have been captured by brigands in Epirus, who demand $20,000 ransom.

ONLY HALF A DOZEN.

MADRID, Dec. 15.—Most of the statements published in reference to recent events here are exaggerated or incorrect. Only six Generals of the army have resigned. They only occupied administrative positions.

A SUCCESSFUL MISSION.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—A despatch from Cape Town says the British expedition up the River Niger has returned to Bonny. It was successful. Two towns were destroyed.

GONE TO JOIN HIS VICTIMS.

Calcraft, who for 46 years held the office of hangman in England, is dead.

FEMALE REVOLUTIONISTS.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Vera Sassoulitch's letter in a revolutionary paper, smuggled from Switzerland into Russia, explains that the attempt to kill Trekopff was ordered by the revolutionary committee, and not, as urged by the defence at the trial, from personal indignation at cruelties to political prisoners. Several persons, including two women, drew lots as to who should kill Trekopff, and Vera drew the task.

A NEW LINE OF STEAMERS.

Russia is negotiating for a line of steamers between Siberia, China and Japan. This is designed to increase Russian influence.

A RUSSIAN PROPOSAL REJECTED.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—The Russian circular to the Powers, urging collective action to settle the Gusinje affair, has been answered by Austro-Hungary and Germany, who declare themselves unable to comply, on the ground that such a step would create new difficulties.

PROROGUED TILL FEBRUARY.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—It is understood the Council at Windsor Castle to-day further prorogued Parliament till February. A summons has been issued for the meeting of the Cabinet to consider the serious news from Afghanistan.

THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Attorney General has granted fiat for a writ error in the case of the Tichborne claimant, on the ground that matters had been put before him, justifying the discussion of the point whether two sentences of seven years' penal servitude, one of which has just expired, should not have been concurrent instead of successive.

A JUDICIOUS PROCLAMATION.

RAGUSA, Dec. 15.—The Porte's proclamation to the Albanians declared that Gusinje and Plava were ceded to Montenegro by the Treaty of Berlin, and the resistance contemplated by the inhabitants will only result in useless bloodshed.

GIGANTIC RAILWAY COMBINATIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The Sun attributes the transfer of the Texas Pacific railway to Col. Scott's illness, which made it absolutely necessary to look elsewhere than to the Pennsylvania Railway syndicate for financial assistance. The Gould-Sage combination aims at the control of the trans-Atlantic traffic. It is also stated that a syndicate is now formed, represented by the Vanderbilts in connection with Gould, Sage and Morton to obtain an interest in the Pennsylvania Railway combination, and control its western trunk lines. The object is to leave without eastern connections, the St. Louis and San Francisco Company, a rival line controlled by capitalists who left Gould and his crowd out. The next move it is said will be to get control of the Ohio and Mississippi, and cut Baltimore and Ohio out of its connection with St. Louis. When the Texas Pacific deemed it necessary to bolster its undertaking in Democratic quarters, the capitalists interested furnished collateral, on which money was raised to buy the New York World and Baltimore Gazette. As the services of those two newspapers are no longer required to pave the way for Congressional action, they are now for sale.

INSURANCE PLOT.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 15.—The mystery of the schooner Henderson off Kitty Hawk deepens. Some believe that the vessel is not lost, and that part of the crew were induced to tell the shipwreck story, so as to let the captain retain the schooner, and also to pocket the $15,000 insurance.

SUDDEN ILLNESS.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 15.—The Rev. Mr. Payne, rector of Holy Trinity Reformed Episcopal Church, while preaching yesterday morning dropped to the floor of the pulpit. He is in a critical condition. The cause is heart trouble.

FIRE IN A COLLEGE.

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—The roof was burst off one of the Harvard College buildings known as "Stoughton's Hall" this morning. The origin of the fire was a defective flue. The damage is very heavy, as the building was flooded.

MURDEROUS OUTLAWS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 15.—A Victoria despatch of the 13th says:—"Much anxiety is felt here at the condition of affairs near Kamloops, where Government agent Ussher was killed by half-breed outlaws recently. Since the last report the outlaws have murdered a herder named Kelley at Stump Lake. They are now surrounded in a log house at the foot of Douglas Lake, in Nicola Valley. They have repeating rifles and the settlers are poorly armed. The Indians are fearfully excited, and an Indian revolt is feared."

ITALIAN MURDERERS.

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—Nicoli Infantino, Antonio Ardito, Saro Chivarive, Vincenzo Bandero and Joseph Danati, the Italian murderers of Joseph Frye, a prominent citizen, were arraigned to-day. Infantino and Ardito pleaded guilty, and were sentenced to imprisonment for life. The others will be tried as accessories.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—In the House to-day a bill was introduced for the appointment of a commission to report on the basis for a reciprocity treaty with the British Provinces.

NEW YORK TRADE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The total imports at New York during November reached nearly fifty one and a half millions, the largest ever landed in one month, and $20,700,000 larger than the total for the preceding November. The specie imports reached nearly 20 million. The exports for November show a gain of more than a million over the preceding November. Shipments are restricted by the rampant speculation and consequent high prices. The exports for the past eleven months reach $296,500,000. This carries the total for the last eleven months a little above the figures for last year, so that this is likely to be the banner year of this decade.

CROPS REPORTS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The report of the condition of the cotton crop furnished by the Agricultural Department to-day confirms the report of the previous month. The weather been favourable in all sections of the cotton belt. The aggregate product west of the Mississippi shows an increase. The corn crop during November depreciated through the imperfect ripening in the heaviest corn growing regions. This reduces 55 millions from the November figures, but still leaves the crop larger than that of any previous year by over 150 million bushels. States and territories west of the Mississippi River return over a hundred million bushels more than in 1878.

KEEPING GIRLS IN SLAVERY.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 14.—J. Birmingham, Lauderdale county, was indicted for holding two coloured girls in slavery. Birmingham refused to recognize the abolition of slavery, and ever since the war has claimed to own the girls. U. S. Judge Hammond quashed the indictment holding that slavery having been abolished, there could be no slaves here, and, therefore, no one could be held as a slave. This, the Judge said, is an offense not provided for an Act of Congress and not punishable by indictment in the Federal Courts. The defendant was discharged.

THE COUNTRY IN ARMS.

A Victoria despatch of the 13th says:—"The outlaws have shot and killed another settler. The rest are still coralled in a log house. The country is in arms. The Indians are sulky but quiet. A strong force of police, with rifles and ammunition, left Victoria to-night by special steamer.

REPELLED BY WATER.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—When the trackmen of the Chicago and Alton Railway Company attempted yesterday to lay the track upon property claimed by Tobey & Booth, packers, Tobey mounted the roof and began playing a stream of water from a large hose on the spot where 200 workmen would have to pass. He even threatened to use hot water. Mayo Harrison ordered the Railroad Company to desist. The courts will now have a chance to decide the case.

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confined dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the [illegible] is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EXTRACT OF PALMARIS CANADA OIL. Price 25 cents. d129-w49-1m

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. w51-d129-2w

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

MANITOBA ELECTIONS.

A DECIDED VICTORY FOR THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY.

Defeat of the Administration—The Minister of Agriculture and the speaker Beaten—Attorney-General Probably Defeated.

Special to the Review.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17.—The Provincial General Election took place to-day. Capt. Thos. Scott, Conservative, was elected over Capt. McMillan, Reformer, by 66 votes. The Times claims 14 members out of twenty-four will be opposed to the Government. The Hon. John Taylor, Minister of Agriculture, was beaten in Assiniboine by 80 votes. Speaker Tifton was defeated in St. Clements by Mr. Hay, a Conservative. There is no word from the constituency of Mr. Walker, the Attorney-General. It is confidently believed that Norquay will be unable to reconstruct the Government, and that a Conservative administration must be formed.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A Kohat despatch announces that General Tytler has captured Zama, stored with the grain of all of the Zarmukht tribes. The enemy left a large number of dead on the field. The British loss was four wounded.

SUSPECTED TREACHERY.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Daoud Shah, formerly commander-in-chief of the Afghan army, has been pressing to co-operate with the British. His arrest would seem to indicate the discovery of proofs of his perfidy in the massacre at the British Embassy, on which occasion he was sent by the Ameer to quell the revolt, and publicly received the thanks of the British officers for his pretended efforts to assist Cavagnari.

COMMUNICATIONS INTERRUPTED.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Viceroy of India telegraphs: "Communication with General Roberts are now interrupted."

SERIOUS NEWS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—A London despatch says:—The news from Afghanistan grows hourly more serious. It is feared that the tragedy of 1842 may be repeated, and the entire British force now in Afghanistan be annihilated. Private advices from Calcutta give a view of the situation far more alarming than the authorities have permitted to be made public.

GRANT'S RE-NOMINATION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—It seems to be pretty well-decided that the National Republican Convention will go to Chicago and that Cameron will be chairman of the National Committee. The members of the National Committee are nearly unanimous in favour of Grant's re-nomination.

GRANT IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—Gen. Grant arrived at 9.20, when an immense crowd greeted him, and Mayor Stokely and other officials formally welcomed him. Grant briefly replied that he returned to Philadelphia with great pleasure. A salute was fired and the procession moved on. The carriage containing Grant was driven from the train rapidly into Broad Street, where the city troop of mounted men was drawn up. After giving a military salute, they formed a personal escort before the carriage, four members riding at either side. On the east side of Broad Street, the military were drawn up in line. As the city troop moved down Broad Street with Grant, beside whom sat Mayor Stokely, cheer after cheer went up from the throng on the street and in the doorways and windows of the houses, ladies waving their handkerchiefs and men shouting. Grant kept continually raising his hat to the people. The Military Bands, one after the other, played "Hail to the Chief." When the line reached Oxford Street a 15 minutes halt occurred, a band which was a few yards behind Grant, commenced playing "Home, Sweet Home." Grant instinctively raised his hat, and those who were watching could see that the incident moved him. While the Mayor was driving with his own carriage to Germanton Junction to receive Grant, the pole horses were backed upon by the leaders, and the carriage was wrecked. The horses, four fine spirited bays, were uninjured, and were at once attached to a barouch, hired for the purpose. The farther down Broad Street the guest proceeded the heartier became the welcome and enthusiasm.

DELEGATES TO OTTAWA.

THE Secretary of the Trent Valley Canal Committee, Mr. H. H. Mr. Smith is sending out certificates, but any delegate in town can call at his office and obtain one.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Under the provisions of a recent Act, it is now provided that the Electoral District Societies in each division, instead of simply casting their votes for a certain person to represent their division on the Board, will this year, at their annual meetings, on the third Wednesday in January next, "elect a delegate to represent such society at a meeting to be subsequently held, of all the delegates of the division, at which it will be the special duty of the delegates at such meeting to elect the member of council for such division." This is a most important change, to which the societies in this county should pay attention, as in this way they, together with the other societies in the district, have to elect their representative for the next three years at their coming annual meetings.

THE GATLING MINE.

The Belleville Intelligencer gives the following account of the Gatling mine:—

This mine, which is well known by reputation in Belleville, is situated on lot 9, 8th con. Marmora, a couple of miles from Dean and Williams' mine.

A large amount of money has been expended in developing this property, but for some time work was suspended for lack of sufficient capital to complete the work already begun.

On the east vein there has been sunk four shafts, one to the depth of 88 feet, one 54, one 20, and one 17 feet.

On the centre vein there have been sunk two shafts, one 24 feet and one 20 feet in depth, and on the western vein two shafts, one to the depth of 80 feet and one 45 feet.

Lately sufficient new capital has been secured to complete the works, and the work of completing the crusher was being vigorously pushed forward at the time of our visit. At the mine we found General Tuttle, the Managing Director, and Mr. H. T. Strickland, Vice-President of the Company, also Capt. John O'Neil, the general superintendent, and Mr. John Taylor, builder, who has had large experience in the construction of crushers both in Virginia City and in this county. The main building for the crusher in which the machinery is being placed is 40x96 feet and stands upon a solid stone foundation. Upon one side is a large low building where is situated the drying pan and roasting furnace, which is built of brick 34x12 feet. On the other side of the main building is the engine room, where a seventy-four, four inch flue boiler is already in place, and two 35 H. P. engines are in position. Every thing about the premises is being constructed on a gigantic scale and in the most thorough manner. The ore as delivered to the crusher from the pit will first be passed through a Blake Rock crusher, which will break it small enough to be fit for the twenty stamp mill which pulverizes it, when it passed to the Buddles, where the useless rock is got rid of. The ore remaining is then carried to the drier, where it is dried, from thence to the furnaces where it is roasted, and then taken out and cooled, it then passes to a tank from which it passes through upper and lower grinders, thence into leaches or washers, which are charged within 10 inches of the bottom, thence into amalgamators which are similarly charged, thence to shaking tables, thence over a copper straight with copper pins and rake working in sink.

By the above short and imperfect discription of the stages through which the ore passes, it will be seen that a large amount of machinery is necessary to separate the gold from foreign substances.

The mine is a short distance from the crusher, where an engine will be at once erected for elevating the ore and freeing the mine from water. The engine will be also attached to a car that will deliver the ore to the crusher, thereby saving the expense of teaming the ore.

As many men as can be economically used are engaged completing the works, which will be soon in operation, when a large force of men will be employed in mining. Already a large quantity of ore is mined ready for crushing when the mill is completed.

The ore at this mine is of a superior quality, and as the quantity is almost inexhaustible great results are expected from the working of this mine. The samples of gold bearing quartz shown are very fine, and we were shown a saucer of black dirt filled with particles of gold, some of which were as large as peas which was dug up near the dwelling by a little boy, the son of Capt. O'Neil.

PORT HOPE.

ACCIDENT.—The Times says that Col. Williams, M. P., was the victim of an accident in Toronto on Tuesday. The sidewalks in that city are very slippery after the recent fall of damp snow, and walking is an exceedingly difficult performance there. The Colonel found it so, and while walking along one of the streets on his way to the dépot he fell, and unfortunately broke one of the small bones of his right foot, near the ankle. We regret the occurrence, as it will confine the Colonel to his room for some time; which will be even harder (to a gentleman of his active nature and habits) to bear than the pain of the broken limb.

GRAIN BUYERS' SUPPER.—The grain buyers of this town had a supper, which is intended to be an annual affair, at the Queen's Hotel, on Monday evening.

CHILIAN SUCCESSES.

The Allies Worsted on Land and Water—The Bolivians Discontented and Unreliable—The Peruvians Still for War.

By Telegraph to the Review.

PANAMA, Dec. 6.—Advices from Lima of November 26th, bring intelligence of an important battle at a place called San Francisco on Nov. 18th. The allied Peruvians and Bolivians under Buendia, numbering about 12,000, attacked the invading army of Chilians in a strongly entrenched position. The allies were defeated with the loss of 3,000 men. The ardor of the Bolivians are said to be cooling since the loss of the Huascar and discontent is rapidly spreading in the Bolivian army. The Chilian frigate Blanco-Emeralda on the 18th captured the Peruvian gunboat Pilcomayo. The outlook for the Peruvians both on land and water is anything but favorable. The Government has issued a decree ordering that all the silver mined in the country shall be subject to purchase by the Government at a fixed rate in paper. An export duty on sugar has also been decreed. The battle at San Francisco must have been disastrous in the extreme. Part of the allied army is reported at Tarapaca on the 22nd, and the whereabouts of the remainder is a mystery. Before the battle, General Daza with 4,000 Bolivians, left Tacna to join Buendia, but after two days' march, the troops refused to advance and returned to Arica. Trouble is anticipated between the Peruvian forces and their singular allies, as suspicions of treachery are strong. The Prefect of Iquique, Gen. Lavalle, having sent all his men to Gen. Buendia, turned the town over to the Foreign Consuls even before a demand for surrender by the Chilians had been made, and took the first steamer for Arica, he will be punished for his cowardly action. At Lima the outlook is decidedly unsatisfactory. A directorships is spoken of freely. Efforts are being made to again build up the strength of the military organization. The leading journals appeal to the patriotism of the people, who are still enthusiastic for war. The latest advices from Arica give fuller particulars of the Battle of San Fransisco. Buendia, after a cambat of three hours, endeavored to take the heights where the Chilians were entrenched, well protected by artillery and mitrailleuses, but was obliged to retire at nightfall. General Lapuerta issued an inspiriting proclamation, announcing that steps had already been taken to repair the recent disaster. Plenty of troops and arms are at hand and other war material is expected shortly.

THE SKATING DISASTER.

Further Particulars of the Drowning Accident in the Miramichi River.

ST. JOHN, Dec. 15.—Further particulars of the drowning of Miss Williston and Miss Watt in the Miramichi River on Saturday afternoon show that when the young ladies, with their escort Mr. McCully, broke through the ice they were hand-in-hand, Mr. McCully in the centre. He held on to the ladies for a short time, but finally let go and made a desperate effort to gain the good ice, thinking in this way to be able to assist his drowning companions. After breaking the ice for some distance he at last crawled on to good ice thoroughly exhausted. He called to the ladies and went back to the hole, but saw nothing of them nor any trace of them, with the exception of what he took to be one of their caps. Mr. McCully has been in a pitable condition since the accident. Chatham is in mourning over the event, which was referred to in all the churches yesterday.

AQUATICS.

Courtney says He will Row Hanlan Next June.

We find the following special despatch in the Globe of the 16th instant:—

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Hanlan, the oarsman, has returned to Canada, and Courtney has not yet been heard from. Referee Blaikie is unable to account for Courtney's silence. If he is sick, as he is alleged to have been some time since, Blaikie thinks that his brother or physician should have notified him. Despatches have been sent to both of these, but without response. While sporting men generally are weary of Courtney, his excuses, pretexts, and procrastinations, Referee Blaikie still has great confidence in his capacity as an oarsman. He says, "If Courtney really made the time he told me he had made in practice he has done better than did Hanlan when he beat the best time on record."

Hanlan proposes to wait the expiration of the ten days he has allowed Courtney in which to accept or decline to row him within five weeks, and then, in default of his appearance, will claim the stakes from the donors. Hanlan says that before numerous witnesses Soule told him in Toronto on Nov. 25th that if Blaikie could not arrange a race his company would pay over to him (Hanlan) the $6,000.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Courtney announces that he is in no condition to row Hanlan this winter, and that there is no probability of a race between him and the Canadian champion before next spring. In response to a question whether he intended to row Hanlan on the Potomac in five weeks Courtney said, "I have not yet received any proposition from Hanlan by mail, although I have read the proposition. Hanlan knows perfectly well that I am in no condition to row him this winter. Were I in proper condition, or were there any chance of my being able to get in condition, I should not hesitate to row Hanlan on the terms proposed by him. I intend to row next spring, and there is no doubt in my mind that there will be a race between Hanlan and myself before next fall. As I am in no condition to row this winter I will make the following proposition:—Let Soule pay the $6,000 to Blaikie, who shall put it in a bank where it will draw interest; then Hanlan and I each to put up $500, and allow Blaikie to appoint the time and place for a race next year. If one does not appear the other to take the whole $7,000 and interest. I propose that the money be placed in Blaikie's hands, and the race be named not earlier than June, and I shall be ready. The money would be in the referee's hands, out of Soule's control, and if I did not come to the scratch Hanlan could have the money. I shall write to Blaikie to-morrow, and make the proposition. As to my rowing Hanlan this winter, that is out of the question."

SCHOOL MATTERS.—Miss Shields has been offered and has accepted a re-engagement for School Section No. 2. She is a very fair teacher.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR.—Mr. J. C. Brown was on an inspecting tour last week, and put the scholars through their facings. He was very well satisfied at the progress they have been making more especially in English reading.

MR. KEARNEY AND HIS PET BASS.—Mr. Kearney of the Lakeview House informed your correspondent that he has a bass he caught four months ago, and which he keeps in the river in a box with small air holes bored in it. It failed in appearance the first month but is now looking fat and well. He is in a fog how it can live, as he gives it nothing to eat.

SHANTY.—Mr. G. Chalmers started his shanty last Monday for the purpose of taking out saw logs, ties, telegraph poles, &c. He has been visiting the States lately and entered into large contracts when there. He also intends buying several thousand cords of hardwood and is now making bargains with parties to supply the same and deliver at the Lake shore during the winter. It is a great boon to this place as a good deal of money changes hands.

GRIST MILL.—The farmers of the north end of Smith and Harvey are now getting to know that Mr. Wells, our obliging miller, turns out good grists, therefore he is getting plenty of work to do and his business is very steadily increasing. He intends buying in coarse grains this winter, having several shanties to supply.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

God rest ye, merry gentlemen! let nothing you dismay,
For Jesus Christ, our Saviour, was born on Christmas day.
The dawn rose red o'er Bethlehem, the stars shone through the gray,
When Jesus Christ, our Saviour, was born on Christmas day.

God rest ye, little children! let nothing you affright,
For Jesus Christ, your Saviour, was born this happy night;
Along the hill of Galilee the white flocks sleeping lay,
When Christ, the child of Nazareth, was born on Christmas day.

God rest ye, all good Christains! upon this blessed morn,
The Lord of all good Christians was of a woman born:
Now all your sorrows he doth heal, your sins he takes away;
For Jesus Christ, your Saviour, was born on Christmas day.

CHRISTMAS WOOING!

A Legend of Chelmsford Manor.

CONTINUED.

On this Christmas morning Hugh Donaldson arose with a sense of drooping and weariness that appeared to be, in a measure, shared by his promised bride.

Elsie did not appear at the substantial meal that was in those days called breakfast, and Hugh imagined it must be she avoided his presence.

It was but a brief space between the mass and the early feast in the old Manor House, but Hugh took advantage of the interval. He slipped away from the throng of guests and his host, and took his way to the cottage that had given him shelter on the previous day.

Surely he was justified in so doing. The delicate, simple lad was left in a helpless, perhaps friendless condition.

It was but Christian charity to look after his welfare.

And it might be that the violet-eyed maid would be there to enquire after her sick charge.

He hurried down, in order that he might return to the Manor in time to take his place at the merry board, and, as he approached the cottage, paused for a brief moment to listen to the sounds within.

He could catch the sound of murmured voices, and, gazing in at the narrow opening, which at once admitted air and light, perceived that the humble dwelling was tenanted by the same young watchers as on the previous day.

But the delicate lad was resting on a soft pallet of rushes and matting that had, as it seemed, been arranged for him by the tender care of the gentle nurse, who was now supporting his weary head on her arm, gazing sadly in his wan face.

"Do not weep, sister," he said. "I am happy now. Nell, sweet sister, I have my senses come back to me, and you have been so patient, and I was such a grief to you, grandame."

The girl could scarce restrain her tears, but replied, as calmly as she could:—

"I shall sorrow for thee, my poor Edgar. It is hard to lose one that loves me, and I have but one besides to care for poor Nell!"

Hugh could not fully discern the expression of her face, but was tolerably certain from the tone of her voice and the glimpse he had of her attitude and features, that there were tears accompanying the plaintiff wail.

Who could it be?

And who was it that was the "one" thus alluded to by the fair mourner.

Was it a brother, or a mother or a lover? Hugh was strangely anxious to know.

Moreover, he desired that it should be any of the three save the last-named.

To such a pass had the Templar come in a few brief hours.

He ventured at length to tap softly, and then to push open the latched door.

His entrance was quickly perceived by the sharpened senses of the dying lad.

"Ah, it is you. I am so glad!" he said. "You will come and see me die, and then poor Nell will not be alone."

Hugh advanced to his side.

He looked from one to the other in the imperfect light.

How lovely the girl was in her simple robe of dark blue serge, and her hair braided from her brow.

Could Elsie touch her in her winning charms, when dressed in jewels and velvet? Never!

Yet there were some points of resemblance in the Manor House revel queen and the gentle nurse of the dying.

The dark blue eyes and the lovely lips were not altogether unlike.

And it might, perhaps, be only a prejudice that assigned the palm of beauty so decidedly to the cottage maiden.

"Can I be of any use?" he said, softly. "Sweet maiden, I would fain aid and comfort thee in thy sorrow."

"Nay, nay, I am already thy debtor, good Knight," she replied. "I would not willingly give thee further trouble on my account."

"It were a pleasure, and already I heard thee say thou hadst not many to love and tend thee."

"Nay. Shame on thee, good Knight, to be an eavesdropper!" she replied, half reproachfully.

"It was an involuntary sin—as involuntary as my interest in thee, fairest one," he said, "and as innocent as wrong."

She shook her head sadly.

"Are you speaking truth, Sir Knight? Is it not a fact that thou art betrothed to the Mistress Elsie St. Cloud, and therefore bound not to bestow word or thought on other maidens?"

He coloured.

"True, in a sense, maiden, but not quite as thou wouldst represent it. I do not, and do not profess, to love Mistress Elsie. It is a union of honor, not of hearts."

"Is it so, sir Knight? Art thou prepared to wed without love? Is that honourable and knightly?"

"Yes, if it be in open faith and honour," returned Hugh, firmly. "Elsie St. Cloud and her brother shall know all ere they give their consent to the bridal and I will do my utmost for her happiness if she become my wife."

"You think to make her happy without love?" said the maiden.

"I know not; it depends on temperament," he answered.

"And if you loved another?" she asked quickly. "But perhaps that is not so. It is but a perverse dislike to her that is the cause of thy repugnance."

"I have no dislike. I love her not, and alas, alas! fear my heart is given to another," he said.

"Then why return hither?" asked the girl.

"It was but a few hours since," he replied, "that my heart was stolen from me by a cottage maiden, though it had withstood the lovely girls of the east, and all their diamonds and gold. Now, maiden, canst thou not guess by whom?" he added softly.

The girl did not reply, though her down cast eyes and her flushed cheek did not betray any great displeasure at the avowal.

The boy, whose eyes had been closed apparently in sleep, now opened them with a glad quick comprehension in their sad depths.

"Ah, that is good—good! And you love her, Sir Knight? You will be kind to her will you not?"

"But you have not said—you donot tell me if I may hope," said the Knight to the maiden.

"It were folly. A maiden of low degree cannot be a fit match for a grandee and a Knight," she said firmly. "And were it different, I could say nothing until Mistress Elsie had freed thee from thy bond. If she be content to forgive, and wed thee, it were for best. I know her to be well dowered and well born, and, as I ween, not an evil temper, nor malicious," she added, with a constrained smile.

"As thou wilt. It may be that thou art right," said Hugh. "And I can soon settle that to my satisfaction and thine. I will do so ere this Christmas day has closed."

"I must must go now," said the girl. "Wilt thou do me the pleasure to remain with this poor lad a brief space? I will soon send others to relieve thee of thy charge."

And she stooped down, and whispered some words to the lad, whom she kissed tenderly ere she departed from the cottage.

Donaldson kneeled down beside the couch.

"She loves you—I know she does." Whispered the dying boy.

He closed his eyes as he spoke.

A gentle sigh parted his lips.

Hugh was not certain whether he was living, or whether the poor, simple spirit had left the puny frame, till the neighbours came in, and perceived he was dead.

It was with a sad and thoughtful spirit that Hugh walked to the Manor.

The scene he had witnessed was scarcely in keeping with the joyous and noisy revels of the season, and the task he had undertaken was scarcely more alluring to his spirits.

It was greatly alarming to think of being at once rejected by Elsie as unworthy of her promise, or to find himself yet more indissolubly in her chains.

Yet so it must be.

His honour was at stake, and still more, the peace of two maidens, both wealthy—as he believed—of his love and homage.

And Hugh prepared for the feast that was about to be commenced with feelings ill-suited to Christmas revelry.

When he entered the withdrawing-room, the fair daughters of the house were both there. The eldest of the two—the beautiful Elsie—was even more splendidly dressed than on the preceding eve.

Her head was somewhat averted from Hugh as he entered, and she appeared to be busily engaged in talking to one of the elder guests, whose rank entitled him to a place at her side.

But when dinner was announced, Hugh was desired by the host to lead her to the hall, while Gertrude followed on the arm of Richard Weatherby, to whom she was understood to be betrothed, or about to become so.

And, followed by a train of friends, they took their places at the well-spread board.

But, amidst jest and song, and drink geld, the bethrothed lovers were still grave and constrained.

Elsie, in her queenly mien, her splendid attire, and her high position, was all smiles, and, in Hugh Donaldson's judgment, far inferior in charms to the lovely, sympathising, simple cottage maiden.

The feminine tending, and sweet condescension to that poor, unknowing yet spiritual lad, gave a kind of halo to the fair figure of the young and obscure girl, that Elsie's glittering jewels and rich robe could not bestow.

Hugh felt as if it were well-nigh a crime to lavish mere common-place, manly love on so heavenly a creature.

Elsie's whole manner to him was cold and haughty.

Yet there were moments when it relaxed well-nigh involuntarily into a soft pensiveness that strangely thrilled his breast.

What power could she have to move him thus?—and why was he so easily blown about between the noble and the humble maiden?

There was some chord that Elsie could touch that belonged to her photograph.

All that could be done was to end that strife, and make known plainly what were his feelings and intentions.

He longed for the opportunity, and to make it more certain, asked the girl to give him her hand in the stately dance which was to take place in the great hall.

"I presume it is your right," she said, coldly, "It is not for me to refuse."

"If you desire it, I will not detain you longer," he said proudly. "Were it not that I have something important to ask of you, I would not trouble you with my irksome company."

Elsie inclined her head.

Hugh felt a singular fascination in watching her womanly dignity and bearing. Were it but mingled with the soft sweetness of the fair young nurse, she would be irresistable.

It was well perhaps that such should not be the case, since it was plain his suite was not favoured in her eyes.

The feast proceeded, songs were sung, toasts drunk on bended knees, or else in the respect that standing erect could show.

"The brides and bridegrooms—my sisters and their spouses," was received with uproarious cheering. Gertrude blushed and her suiter smiled, and Hugh and Elsie preserved a cold and stately silence.

Then the company rose and repaired to the hall; and the music struck up, and the dance began. But Hugh and his betrothed soon wandered from the throng.

"Elsie, come to the balcony with me," said Hugh, quietly. "I can speak to thee there with more freedom; and I have words of import to say."

"I listen to you," said Elsie.

"I have come thither to redeem my troth-plight to you, and I now offer you the hand and homage and fortune that is your due, and is mine to give—to lay at your feet in all respects and honour."

"And your heart, sir Knight? What of that?" she asked.

"My heart is full of admiring respect for you, Elsie," he said, constrainedly.

"But not of love?"

He was silent for a moment.

"It will be a true and affectionate husband. Thy happiness shall be my care," he exclaimed.

"And thou dost not love another?"

His heart was wrecked.

He did not allow her to see his features at first

But afterwards he turned with a noble and earnest frankness in his speaking face.

"Elsie, thou probest me sorely; but it is thy right," he returned. "And I will do my devour in this, even if it be to my shame and sorrow. The heart is not under our control, and mine, though guarded as a precious treasurer hitherto, has betrayed me when I least feared danger. It is too true that I have been induced to love by the captivations of a humble and inexperienced maiden. She is no match for thee, Elsie, in thy high-bred fascinations and grace. Still I love her—all humble, dowerless, and simple as she is. But I will conquer a weakness that none but thyself must even suspect."

A singular frown passed over Elsie's face—scarcely anger, however concealed and subdued in its seeming contempt.

"And does she know it?"

"She does! That is my weakness yielded to sore temptation; but she nobly referred me to thee, and bade me fulfill my duty," he answered eagerly.

"And I, in my turn, bid thee pause and wait till my decision is made. I cannot accept a divided heart," she replied. "See that maiden once more—think that thou art casting away my love, and all that I can bring thee, for her sake. It may be that another glance may destroy the charm. If not, I advise thee to wed her thou lovest, or assuredly nothing but woe and discord will ensue. I will not take thy hand without thy heart. Now we will return to the hall. It were ill for me to be thus familiar, if no bridal were to follow the wooing."

Coldly and proudly she turned away.

But when she had reached the hall, her mood changed.

She became soft and sportive, and graceful as a young fawn, in playing hostess to her brother's guests, albeit she forgot not the high-bred dignity that befitted her position.

Hugh watched her uneasily.

Was she not charming? And she had been his but for his own folly.

But the seraphic, the timid grace of the maiden of the cottage, came between him and the fair Elsie St. Cloud.

And he returned to rest when the revels were concluded, more than ever to be true to his feelings, as he sank at last into a troubled slumber.

He was awaked in the morning by the entrance of his servant, whose face was pregnant with some important errand.

"If it please thee Sir Knight, there is one enquiring for thee, to say that the funeral of those thou wottest of will be solemnised at the churchyard this day, at the afternoon-tide and thy presence is prayed for ere the rights begin. The lad waits for a reply."

"Tell him I will be there;" and then added to himself as the domestic retired, "she will be present, doubtless, and my fate and hers be sealed."

"Hugh Donaldson, art thou a fool, or only a a true and chivalrous knight?" he added in bitter scorn.

But the answer scarcely could be given, save by the fair enchantess who had cast the glamour over him; and he gladly postponed the solution of the problem. Elsie did not appear at the early meal. She wastired, and her head ill at ease, was the reason assigned, but Hugh had little doubt of the truth. She disdained to give him look or word, till he was more fitted to receive the favour.

"So be it," he said bitterly; "so be it. It is of little moment. I am not to be blown about at pleasure for a maidens pride."

He went where he had been summoned, with an increased disposition to pledge himself to the soft, sweet cottage maiden. And whether it was that she had looked for his coming, or that she had taken the opportunity of paying a last farewell to the faithful lad who had been so devoted to her in life, it was certain that hers was the sole face and form that greeted him on his arrival at the humble dwelling.

"Thou fearest not then, sweet maiden," he said, "to be alone with the dead?"

"Why should I? I desired to bid them farewell ere the hired mourners came, and give this last tribute to their remains."

She pointed to some early snow drops and lilies, and evergreens, that she had laid on the plain unadorned coffin.

"Dear girl, I will be true to thee, if thou wilt love me. I will give up all else to make thee my bride."

She bent her eyes upon the ground.

"Sir Knight, what of Mistress Elsie?"

"She is too proud and womanly to accept a divided homage," he replied. "She bade me return to thee and say that if thou couldst love me, and desire to be my bride, she renounces all claim to my hand."

"And doest thou wish this? Is Mistress Elsie indeed so unloveable? Doest thou not find her as beautiful and charming as she is pronounced to be?" asked the maiden.

"She is all that is worthy of love, but it is thou who hast gained my heart," he answered, earnestly. Wilt thou trust me, and give me thy precious self, and I will resign all and think it well lost for thy sweet sake?" he said, taking her hand and gazing into her face with passionate tenderness.

As he did so, a sudden thrill of surprise passed through his whole frame.

There was a ring on the small hand—on the betrothal finger; and one of such peculiar device as could not well be forgotten.

But, ere he could speak his astonishment, the girl had half-concealed her face in her other and less tell-tale hand.

"Yes, Hugh! And thou wilt, I am thine—all thine!" she murmered.

He pressed a kiss on her brow.

And to whom am I to apply for the gift of this dear hand?" he asked. "Hast thou parents to bless our union?"

"None—only a brother," she said softly.

"A brother? besides the poor lad who called thee sister?" he asked.

"It was but in name," she said. "There was no kindred between us."

Hugh looked perplexed.

The maiden seemed to hesitate for a brief minute, then spoke up with more confidence than she had yet exhibited.

"Hugh," she said, "You asked me but now who was to give me to you. It must be Mistress Elsie St. Cloud. She is one whom I love as myself, and I would not grieve her by my treachery. I will meet thee at the Manor House ere the dinner-hour, and there and then will give thee my troth, or take it back forever."

"And you would sacrifice me for Mistress Elsie?" asked the Knight, bitterly. "Is that thy love?"

"Nay, Hugh, I will love thee always; but must prefer honour to happiness for thee and for me. Now, farewell! We shall meet again ere long!"

Hugh Donaldson watched her departing form with a half-resentful, half-admiring glance.

If all failed him, there was but one resource—to depart again to the wars, and seek honour where he could not find happiness.

Elsie scorned a divided heart; Nell, the cottage maiden, refused to accept his hand unless Elsie declared that it was her desire and pleasure that such a bridal should take place.

The hours till dinner were slowly away, but at last the time arrived when he received a summons to the drawing-room of the fair Mistress of the Manor.

Now that it had actually come, he felt a strange shrinking from the crisis that would decide his fate. But there could be no further delay, and he followed the attendant, who was the messenger to the apartment.

"Is Mistress Elsie alone?" he asked, of the waiting-woman.

"Yes, Sir Knight; at least, she was so a few instants since," was the reply.

Hugh entered. There was only one figure in the large and what would be now deemed comfortless apartment.

And that one was his humble love, dressed in the dark blue serge robe in which he had first encountered her.

"I thought Mistress Elsie was here," he said. "Is she at hand, dearest?"

"Hugh, do you not know me yet?" said the girl, throwing of the disguising robe, and displaying the rich attire of Elsie St. Cloud. "And will you love your plighted bride less, because she won your heart unconsciously as a humble maiden, at her foster brother's side."

Hugh stood for a moment in joyful, but half-ashamed bewilderment.

Then he caught the "transformed love" to his heart, in a burst of rapture.

"So you have learnt your real heart's wishes at last, eh, Hugh Donaldson?" said Jerome St. Cloud's clear voice behind him. "And our Christmas revels shall be prolonged for bridal festivities. Elsie and Gertrude shall be wedded on the first day of the New Year, and will hold openhouse for friends and kindred till its octave is past.

Jerome St. Cloud kept his word.

Never were fairer brides wedded under happier auspices; and that Christmas-tide has ever been preserved in the records of Chelmsford as the most joyful in the precincts of the Manor House.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1879.

THE WEEKLY REVIEW contains by far the largest amount of Reading matter of any paper published in the Midland District of Ontario. Price only $1.50 per annum.

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Theatre To-Night.

There will be a performance at Bradburn's Theatre to-night of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with Mrs. G. C. Howard as "Topsy."

C. O. F.

Court Peterborough, No. 29, of the Canadian Order of Foresters will meet in their hall this evening, for the election of officers and other business.

The Curling and Skating Rink.

The Curling rink will be ready for use by Saturday, should the weather hold with the thermometer below the freezing point. It will take a couple of days longer to get a proper surface to the Skating Rink.

More Snow.

At about five o'clock last evening a snow storm set in from the south-east, which gave us about an inch and a half of snow, improving the sleighing greatly. It was taken advantage of by a large number of pleasure seekers, who did not seem to mind the falling snow.

The River.

The water in the river is now unusually high for this season, being within about a foot of the spring level. It is supposed that their must have been heavy rain in the back country or a large fall of snow, which has since melted. The back lakes are all full, and are still rising.

Accident.

At noon to-day, while Morty Huston was in the act of coupling the cars at the Midland Railway Station, he had his arm caught and badly bruised, causing the blood to flow. Fortunately no bones were broken. He will be detained from his business as mail carrier from the Post Office to to the station, for some weeks.

The National Currency.

This evening a public meeting will be held in the Council Chamber at half-past seven o'clock, to hear explanations on the National Currency question, from Mr. Geo. D. Griffin, editor of the Dominion Watchman, and one of the Director of the Financial Reform League of Canada.

Cancelled.

The permission given by the Deputy Postmaster-General, under which, during last week, merchants mailed their invoices at the one cent rate, has been cancelled. The Mail explains that it was only through misapprehension of a letter from the Department that the Postmaster in Toronto allowed the privilege.

A Returning Prodigal.

Last evening a young man was seen making his way through London Street, seeking to find his home. He said he was a "prodigal." It was suggested that this "prodigal" should receive the "stripes" rather than that the fatted calf should be killed. Careful and considerate language would, we opine, be more serviceable than "stripes."

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: stormy, westerly to north-westerly winds; clearing colder weather. This morning Peterborough was visited with a snow flurry, after which it cleared off, cold wind north-westerly. The thermometer indicated 20° at 9 o'clock this morning, rising at 23° at noon and again sinking to below 20°.

Deputation to Montreal.

Mr. Carnegie left this evening for Montreal, and will be joined at Colborne, by Mr. Jos. Keller, M. P. A special meeting of the Montreal City Council has been called for to-morrow afternoon, and another of the Montreal Board of Trade for Friday afternoon, to consider the Trent Valley scheme, and the object of the deputation is to try and induce both these bodies to take an active interest in this important project. From Montreal they will proceed to Ottawa and form part of the deputation to wait upon the Minister of Railways and Canals on Tuesday next.

I. O. G. T.

Friendship Lodge, No. 146, I. O. G. T., met last night. There was a good attendance and the meeting proved a pleasant one. A communication was received from the Grand Templar setting forth the indebtedness of the grand body, amounting to between three and four thousand dollars, and asking the co-operation and assistance of the subordinate lodges to liquidate the same. The literary exercises were unusually interesting, the duet by Mitchell brothers was warmly received. This lodge will celebrate its anniversary about the middle of January, when it is expected a grand entertainment will be given.

Large Porkers.

Among the fine pork brought in to-day, we might mention two porkers of Mr. McMullen, of Dummer, from the same litter as those noticed last week, weighing 423 pounds each, the four weighing exactly [illegible], or a total of of 1692 lbs. Mr. Flavelle took them at $5.75. Two other hogs from Mrs. Scott, of Dummer, weighed 427 and 431 lbs., and were taken by the same packer. Mr. Webber bought a hog from Mr. Tennent, of the Plains, Rice Lake, weighing 509 lbs. All these hogs were very fine pork, and commanded the highest figures. It will be noticed that our market attracts farmers from a distance.

Improvement.

Mr. Thomas Bradburn, with his accustomed enterprise, has made improvements that amount almost to a reconstruction of his building on Brock street, immediately east of the Post Office, and occupied by Mr. Turver as a restaurant in connection with the Peterborough Club. The walls have been built upon to the height of four storeys, with a mansard roof. The front is entirely new, being tastefully designed in white brick. The cut-work of brick decorating the doors, windows, and other architectural details is of excellent workmanship, and shows the good quality of the material supplied by Messrs. Carnegie & Urquhart. Now that the scaffolding has been removed, this front is greatly admired, and is acknowledged to be a credit to the town. The interior improvements are as thorough as the external, the ceilings being raised, the hall enlarged, new rooms added in the upper storeys and at the rear, while special attention has been paid to the kitchen, which is very spacious and convenient.

AN ECONOMICAL ENGINE.

To the Editor of the Review

SIR,—Your extract from the Monetary Times, referring to the performance of our recently made large Corliss condensing engine, contains a slight error which very much effects the comparative merits of the old and new engines. The one replaced is said to have given a result in the consumption of coal of 3 lbs. per h. p. per hour, which is scarcely attained by the best in our country. Its best results on special trial was 4 55-100 lbs., but its ordinary average was between 5 and 6 lbs., which, though still better than most of the ordinary engines, yet furnishes a strong contrast to the splendid record of the new one, being 2 18-100 lbs. per h. p. per hour. $ Water power will often be found at a disadvantage in comparison with such fine, economical and regular working.

Yours, etc.
W. H. TROUT.

THE PROPOSED PARK

To the Editor of the Review

SIR,—As the question seems to be in agitation of having a public park in the town of Peterborough, it would be well to consider well beforehand the merits of the different localities. It may be doubted whether it is desirable to indulge in such an expensive luxury, seeing that taxes have already attained a most undesirable elevation; but, if the project is to be carried out, that beautiful piece of woodland on the east side of the river, directly opposite the house and grounds of Judge Dennistoun, seems to possess the greatest capabilities of improvement for such a purpose. Wood, hill, dale and river, all offer facilities for a picturesque and beautiful park, and it is not five minutes walk from

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d129-w49-1m

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Victoria Hypophosphites extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing from the foundation, correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving nature to perform its allotted part. It is the finest nervine remedy known, and the greatest brain and blood food in the world. For sale by all dealers. $1 per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Hagyard's Yellow Oil combines in such an eminent degree all the healing, curative and extracting qualities known to medical science that it is truly a family medicine that cannot be dispensed with. When applied to any swelling sore, burn, chilblain, frostbite, skin eruption, etc., its effects are magical. It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificates of its merits. w51-d129-2w

We use a large number of horses and mules in our business; no remedy has ever given us the satisfaction that Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia has. For windgalls, puffs, swellings, cuts, and lameness in either limbs shoulders or loins, bruises, galls from saddle or collars, I pronounce it the most valuable remedy that has ever come under my observation.

ANNIE AND WILLIE'S PRAYER

A Christmas Story.

[BY SOPHIA P. SNOW.]

'Twas the eve before Christmas; "Good night" had been said,
And Annie and Willie had crept into bed;
There were tears on their pillows, and tears in their eyes,
And each little bosom was heavy with sighs,
For to-night their stern father's command had been given
That they must retire precisely at seven
Instead of at eight; for they troubled him more
With questions unheard of than ever before.
He told them he thought this delusion a sin,
No such a thing as "Santa Claus" ever had been,
And he hoped, after this, he should never more hear
How he scrambled down chimneys with presents each year,
And this is the reason why two little heads
So restlessly tossed on their soft, downy beds.

Eight, nine, and the clock on the steeple tolled ten—
Not a word had been spoken by either till then;
When Willie's sad face from the blanket did peep,
And whispered "Dear Annie," is you fast asleep?"
"Why no, brother Willie," a sweet voice replies,
"I've tried in vain, but I can't shut my eyes;
For somehow it makes me so sorry because
Dear papa had said there is no 'Santa Claus;'
Now we know their is, and it can't be denied,
For he came every year before mamma died;
But then I've been thinking that she used to pray,
And God would hear everything mamma would say,
And perhaps she asked him to send Santa Claus here
With the sacks full of presents he brought every year."
"Well, why tan't we p'ay dest as mamma did then,
And ask him to send him with presents aden?"
"I've been thinking so, too," and without a word more
Four bare little feet bounded out on the floor,
And four little knees the soft carpet pressed,
And two tiny hands were clasped close to each breast.

"Now Willie, you know we must firmly believe
That the presents we ask for we're sure to receive,
You must wait just as still till I say amen,
And by that you will know that your turn has come then.—
Dear Jesus, look down on my brother and me,
And grant us the favor we're asking of Thee;
I want a nice book full of pictures, a ring,
A writing desk, too, that shuts with a spring.
Bless papa, dear Jesus, and cause him to see
That Santa Claus loves us as much even as he;
Don't let him get fretful and angry again
At dear brother Willie and Annie, amen!"
"Please, Desus, 'et Santa Taus tome down to-night,
And bring us some presents before it is 'ight.
I want he sould dive me a bright little box,
Full of ac'obats, some other nice blocks,
And a bag full of tandy, a book, and a toy,
Amen, and then, Desus, I'll be a dood boy."
Their prayers being ended, they raised up their heads,
And with hearts light and cheerful again sought their beds;
They were soon lost in slumber—both peaceful and deep,
And with fairies in dream-land were roaming in sleep.

Eight, nine, and the little French clock had struck ten
Ere the father had thought of his children again:
He seems now to hear Annie's half-smothered sighs,
And to see the big tears standing in Willie's blue eyes.
"I was harsh with my darlings," he mentally said,
"And I should not have sent them so early to bed;
But when I was troubled—my feelings found vent,
For bank stock to-day has gone down ten per cent.
But of course they've forgot their troubles ere this,
But then I denied them the thrice asked-for kiss;
But just to make sure I'll steal up to their door,
For I never spoke harsh to my darlings before."
So saying he softly ascended the stairs,
And arriving at their door heard both of their prayers.
His Annie's "bless papa," draws forth the big tears,
And Willie's grave promise falls sweet on his ears.
"Strange, strange, I've forgotten," said he, with a sigh,
"How I longed when a child to have Christmas draw nigh.
I'll atone for my harshness," he inwardly said,
"By answering their prayers, ere I sleep in my bed."

Then he turned to the stairs and softly went down,
Threw off velvet slippers and silk dressing-gown,
Donned hat, coat, and boots, and was out in the street—
A millionaire facing the cold winter sleet;
He first went to a wonderful "Santa Claus" store
(He knew it, for he'd passed it the day before).
And there he found crowds on the same errand as he,
Making purchase of presents, with glad heart and free,
Nor stopped he until he had bought everything
From a box full of candy to a tiny gold ring.
Indeed, he kept adding so much to his store
That the various presents outnumbered a score?
Then homeward he turned with his holiday load,
And with Aunt Mary's aid in the nursery 'twas stowed.
Miss Dolly was seated beneath a pine tree,
By the side of a table spread out for a tea;
A writing desk then in the centre was laid,
And on it a ring for which Annie had prayed;
Four acrobats painted in yellow and red
Stood with a block house on a beautiful sled;
There were balls, dogs and horses, books pleasing to see,
And birds of all colors were perched in the tree;
While Santa Claus, laughing, stood up in the top,
As if getting ready for more presents to drop;
And as the fond father the picture surveyed
He thought for his trouble he had amply been paid;
And he said to himself as he brushed off a tear,
"I'm happier to-night than I have been for a year,
I've enjoyed more true pleasure than ever before,
What care I if bank stock falls ten per cent. more?
Hereafter I'll make it a rule, I believe,
To have Santa Claus visit us each Christmas eve."

So thinking he gently extinguished the light,
And tripped down stairs to retire for the night.
As soon as the beams of the bright morning sun
Put the darkness to flight and the stars one by one,
Four little blue eyes out of sleep opened wide,
And at the same moment the presents espied,
Then out of their beds they sprang with a bound,
And the very gifts prayed for were all of them found;
They laughed and they cried in their innocent glee,
And shouted for papa to come quick and see
What presents old Santa Claus had brought in the night
(Just the things they had wanted) and left before light.

"And now," said Annie, in a voice soft and low,
"You'll believe there's a Santa Claus, papa, I know;"
While dear little Willie climbed up on his knee,
And told, in soft whispers, how Annie had said,
That their dear, blessed mamma, so long ago dead,
Used to kneel down and pray by the side of her chair,
And that God, up in Heaven, had answered her prayer!
"Then we dot up and prayed dust as well as we tould,
And Dod answered our prayers; now wasn't he dood?"
"I should say that he was if he sent you all these,
And knew just what presents my children would please
(Well, well, let him think so, the dear little elf,
'Twould be cruel to tell him I did it myself.)"

Blind father! who caused your stern heart to relent?
And the hasty word spoken so soon to repent?
'Twas the Being who bade you steal softly up stairs,
And made you his agent to answer their prayers.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 17.—The general market to-day was an improvement on the previous Wednesdays, owing to a better condition of the weather. The cold bracing air and the fine sleighing brought in a large number of farmers, while the scene was enlivened by increased numbers of town people. Good prices were realized. There were some few changes to note. Wheat still maintains the downward tendency of the past few days, $1.25 being accepted for Spring and $1.27 for Fall Wheat. There is a considerable quantity coming in for this season of the year, as the farmers believe that it is the last chance for high prices between now and spring-time. A few lots of barley appeared, but lower prices had to be accepted. No. 1 at 45c @ 50c., and No. 2 at 35c. @ 40c. Oats were taken at 31c.; some few lots at 30c. Some Rye was taken at 64c.; we quote 62c. @ 65c. Peas were unchanged. There were no beans in. Potatoes were in abundant supply at 60c.; some lots sold at 65c. There was no change in apples to note except that some bags were sold at 80c.; the supply was moderate. Turnips brought 20c. per bag. A few parcels of onions sold at previous quotations. Butter was lower, there being no demand for shipment, only a few kegs were brought in, 17c. was asked for roll butter; some of the farmers asked 20c., but the bulk of sales were at 17c.; keg butter shared the same reduction. Eggs sold at 15c. @ 16c., with few in. Beef was again abundant, and the lower quotations had to be accepted. Pork was plentiful again, nearly all being taken by the packers at a shade advance; but Pork brought $5.75. Other meats were unchanged. Lard was plentiful, but sold at quotations. Of Poultry there was a good supply, but not in excess of requirements; there was a disposition to force prices upward, but it was a failure, except with very choice lots. Very large turkeys brought 75cts. Corned Beef brought 7cts. Hay was plentiful, and slow of sale at lowest quotations. Wood was in abundance with no change in price to note.

MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Behind the wall earthworks are thrown up and a raking platform for the defenders to fire from at intervals, are bastions for guns. Against such a position held by five thousand British troops with abundance of artillery, the rush of a savage mob could do nothing, and their numbers, however large, would add little to their aggressive force. The troops now on their way number two regiments of cavalry, seven regiments of infantry and two batteries of artillery. The effect of the calamities in Afghanistan upon the political affairs of this country is apt to be disastrous to the Conservatives. A report has just been received that the Afghans have again attacked General Roberts, but there is great difficulty in obtaining authentic news.

DELIVERED FROM A DELUGE BY PRAYER

During a violent storm on the northern coast of Russia some years ago, the waters of the Gulf of Finland rose so high as suddenly to submerge a portion of the great city of St. Petersburg beneath a flood. A widespread sea of water stretched itself out on every side, with the houses just appearing above it. The hurricane tore up the fairest and finest trees. Numerous horses that were kept in stables were drowned; those that were let loose swam for their lives and were saved. The soldiers on sentry, not being relieved, nor daring to stir, stood till the waves flowed over them and buried them in the midst. Boats were got out, but it was impossible for them to float, except in the shelter of the few neighbouring houses, and hundreds perished by over-crowding into them. Whole villages, with houses, people, and animals, were swept away. The prisoners in the fortress were drowned.

But much as St. Petersburg suffered, Cronstadt, from its lying lower, suffered still more. The hills were covered with the waves, which threatened to submerge the whole island. Stacks of corn were borne to a great distance, and cattle buffeting the torrent were mingled with the corpses of persons drowned or at their last gasp. The Emperor, in a shattered state of health, beheld the tumultuous scene with the greatest consternation. Wringing his hands, he cried, "It has come upon us for our sins;" and, lifting them up to heaven, he implored the Almighty to let His anger fall on his devoted head, but to spare his people.

The day wore away towards the afternoon, and still the waters continued rising. Had they continued rising during the following night and day there would have been seen but a universal [illegible]—just when greatest consternation was prevailing—just when deliverance was most needed to prevent the entire destruction of the city—at that moment the bow of promise appeared. A most beautiful rainbow was seen stretched across the sky. It was as a voice from heaven testifying to the mercy and faithfulness of that God who declared to Noah that the waters should never again overflow the earth. Encouraged by this token of peace, every one looked up, and lo, the rising of the water was stayed!" Hope was kindled in many an anxious breast, and they who feared the Lord gave thanks to His name, saying, "He retaineth not his anger forever, because He delighteth in mercy."

Early on that eventful morning, before the the wind had risen so high as to give any indication of the coming catastrope, a poor German mechanic and his wife, who resided in a low part of the city, were obliged to go out on business. They were pious and industrious, and much respected by the religious community to which they belonged. The wife had risen betimes, dressed her two little children, given them their breakfast, and was prepared to leave them at home for as short a time as possible, at most for two or three hours. The children, a little boy five years of age, and his sister a year younger, were the joy of their fond parents' hearts; and when the mother turned the key of the door to depart, with her husband, she inwardly commended her beloved ones to the care of her Heavenly Father.

They took their way, confident of God's love and care, to that part of the city to which their business called them, and which was known by the name of Nevsky, a street running in a direct line from the Admiralty, and familiar to all who had viewed the beautiful metropolis of the Russian Empire. On reaching the house to which they were journeying, they proceeded to transact the business that required their attention, and were so engrossed by it as not to observe the gentle but rapid encroachment of the unwonted tide. On opening the door they beheld, to their surprise and consternation, the flood as it covered the ground rising higher and higher, and threatening destruction to man and beast.

The first impulse of the father was to wade through the water, then knee-deep, to the rescue of his children; but the idea seemed hopeless, for the room in which he had left them was so situated, partly below the level of the ground, and in a low quarter of the town, that the water must have entered it and done its fatal work. And then his dear wife; if he were to leave her, what would be the result? No one could tell how far the waters might prevail, and should he abandon his beloved partner, she might be drowned in his absence, and have none to deliver her.

On her part she durst not urge her husband to venture, lest his life should be sacrificed in the attempt. They looked at each other in perplexity and disquietude, and then turned their eyes upwards in silent prayer to God, "whose arm is not shortened that it cannot save, nor His ear heavy that it cannot hear."

In their distress they hastened to make known to those dwelling on the premises where they were staying the alarming condition of their children, enquiring of them if they could suggest anything to be done, if not too late, to save their lives. Alas! the families to whom they applied, though they pitied them, were unable to help them, being intent on saving their own relatives, their merchandise, books, property, and whatever would be damaged by contact with water. Convinced by experience how vain is the help of man, they felt that their only resource was in prayer, not for the life of their children, for that they could not hope for, but that they themselves might be prepared to resign them, and to say with the bereaved patriarch, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Thus watching, praying, and endeavoring to console one another, they passed the weary hours, waiting with anxious longing for the waters to subside. At four o'clock in the afternoon, as we have mentioned, the tempest abated, and the waters began sensibly and rapidly to decrease. Mournfully tempered however, were the joyful feelings of the agonized parents, whose gratitude for their personal preservation was mingled with the bitter prospect of finding their darling children lying pale and cold and lifeless in a watery tomb.

Three painful hours elapsed before it was safe for them to venture through the water yet in the streets, to the humble dwelling that contained all they held dear on earth. They reached the door, and as it moved heavily on its hinges the mother's heart fainted and almost died within her. They looked in and saw the bodies of their dear ones stretched out upon a small round table, motionless, and locked in each others' arms. No water covered them, but on looking up it was evident from the state of the room that the flood had reached far above the height of the table, and that the rest of the furniture had been completely under water. The fatal consequences seemed inevitable.

The father approached the table; he looked at his children—they breathed; he laid his hand upon them—they were warm; they were in a sweet sleep! "Miracle of mercy!" he exclaimed. "The God of love," said the mother, in a transport of joy, "be praised!" Yet how can it be? Surely their senses have deceived them, and they are in an illusion! Then by an instinct they were prompted at all hazards to dispel it, and roused the lovely little sleepers from their tranquil slumber.

On opening their eyes and recognizing their parents, they clung to them with fond delight, interrupting, however, the caresses bestowed upon them by complaints of hunger and urgent cries for food. Some remains of biscuit from the mother's pocket were instantly shared between them, and then they sought a key to the mystery of their preservation by asking them what they had been doing, and what had happened to them during their absence.

"When you and father," said the boy, "were gone, we played about the room. The water began to come in under the door, and I got some chips of wood, and Sissy and I played at ships, and the ships sailed so prettily. Then the water came over our shoes, and we got up on that chair, and when it came up a little more we got frightened, and so we got up on the table, where it could not hurt us, and played on the table; and when we were very hungry we laid ourselves down and went to sleep, till you and father came home."

From this recital, and from the fact of the surface of the table being dry, it was apparent that when the water had risen to its height it had lifted it up, like a little raft, bearing up its precious burden, while in its subsidence it was let gently down, and the slumbering babes were unconsciously and wonderfully preserved, to be restored to the arms of their praying parents. They were joined by their neighbors in the adoring exclamation, "What hath God wrought!"

NATIONAL CURRENCY!

CLAIMED TO BE THE COMING QUESTION OF THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE.

Public Meeting Held to Discuss the Paper Money Question—Able Speech by Mr. G. D. Griffin—Queries by Citizens—The Meeting Committed to the Furtherance of the Scheme.

On Wednesday evening a numerously attended meeting of our citizens was held in the Town Council Chamber, to hear explanations from Mr. G. D. Griffin, with regard to the National Currency question, which is now attracting so much attention throughout the country. Mr. Griffin is the editor of the Dominion Watchman, published in Hamilton, and devoted to disseminating the views held by himself and others, bearing on this financial problem.

MAYOR LUNDY occupied the chair, and introduced the speaker, who, without any preliminary remarks, at once plunged into his subject.

This question, he would say, was one that was agitating the country throughout its entire length and breadth. It was one that should be well considered by every thinking man,—not placing too much reliance on the statements of any one, unless such opinions carried with them the conviction of truth. All things were based on true principles, so any currency founded on false principles sooner or later led to national ruin. Take the relative value of the numerals, no fiat of the Almighty could change the relation of each other to their values, and to do so would throw all calculations into chaos. A true currency is likened to the blood of the animal system, it must issue from the heart—from the seat of Government. Currency was simply a means of

FLOATING THE INDUSTRIES OF A COUNTRY,

and should be increased as the population grew larger. Too much circulating medium led to a plethora, and too little resulted in financial starvation. He held that all currency should be issued from the heart of the country, from the Government—issued for the building and furtherance of public works, and every dollar so issued should show an increase of national wealth. The amount of currency that would be required to carry on the business of the country was a vital point. Take the years 1876-77, it was found that the issue per family was, in England, $105; France, $200; United States, $145; and Germany, $84. He held that the issue for Canada should be as much as for England, at the least, or until the average rate of interest came down to 3 per cent. It was not likely that we could get out too much for public works, as the increase of population gained thereby would demand it. Baron Rothschild had stated before a committee of the English House of Commons, that to make money cheap and you would have the

COMMERCE OF THE WORLD,

make it dear and you lose it. This was not an inflation currency like our present Bank Currency, which was thrown out at the rate of $3 issued, for every $1 that was earned. Borrowed money always led to inflation and disaster and was the main cause of a financial crisis, when one arose. But then, the point is raised, how will we pay our present foreign indebtness, if this National Currency cannot be converted into gold? We should have to pay it with our surplus products, those products being again converted into Bills of Exchange, whose value was the same as that of gold. We have several classes of currency—bonds, government loans, mortgages, debentures, &c., which were all illegitimate, a National Currency issued for the construction of public works would be legitimate, because instead of increase of debt, it would always lead to a profit. By this issue of National Currency the banks would be relieved from the pressure on them to meet the demands of the importer. The immediate effect would be to lead merchants to seek their supplies as much as possible within the country, and build up the manufacturing and agricultural interests, instead of contributing to enrich foreign nations. Our bank currency is a debt currency. We are at present paying $1,800,000 each year for the use of $20,000,000 of bank currency, besides what they charge for interest. Every note of the present bank currency is a debt of the bank, and also shows an individual debt to the bank for that amount—therefore it is a double debt currency. The cost of that currency to the tax payers is as follows: $360,000 a year for the gold furnished them by the Government and 7 per cent. in advance on $20,000,000 of their notes, which is $1,440,000 which added to the former makes $1,800,000 per year, that we pay to England and the banks for the use of $20,000,000 besides the interest they charge. Again for $100,000,000 of National Currency, the amount we need, the cost would be $9,000,000 annually and for ten years $90,000,000. The average interest on that $90,000,000 for ten years would be $27,000,000 or a total of $117,000,000 every ten years for the use of $100,000,000 of the present currency, independent of interest. Compare the different methods suggested for

BUILDING THE PACIFIC R. R.

and which we shall get a clear understanding of the vast advantages of this National Currency. First,—Sir John A. Macdonald's scheme. 54,000,000 acres of land at $5 per acre as stated in the Charter which was worth $270,000,000, and $30,000,000 borrowed money, a total of $300,000,000 the road would cost us. The annual interest on this amount would be $18,000,000 or $180,000,000 every ten years, and we would own no road and no currency. Again take Hon. Alex. Mackenzie's method. $100,000,000 of borrowed money, annual interest $6,000,000. For ten years $60,000,000, averaged on the interest $18,000,000, total interest every ten years $178,000,000 and own no road, neither a currency. Next take Sir Samuel Tilley's plan. 100,000,000 acres of land at $2.00 per acre, $200,000,000. Annual interest $12,000,000, and every ten years $120,000,000, and we would own the road but no currency. Now contrast this with the railroad, built with the proposed National Currency. In ten years we would save the $117,000,000 for currency, and on the $100,000,000 of borrowed money, $78,000,000 of interest, total $195,000,000 every ten years. The average annual saving in currency and interest by the road being constructed with National Currency would be $19,500,000, and the annual saving while building, would be $9,750,00, thus the saving will build the railroad, and in addition we will own the road and also the currency. Thus it will be seen that the advantages of this National Currency, accrue as much from the savings as from the earnings, for by every dollar of road built, we shall also secure us a dollar of currency. (Applause). Again, all classes of bonds, mortgages, accounts, book debts, &c., are currency, and if we had plenty of money such a state of affairs would not exist. Mortgages were an evil that was draining the country, and the deliverance from the grip of the money-lender was something which he had no doubt, many of his hearers could appreciate. He would go to the extent of saying that fully eight-tenths of the real estate in the country was under mortgage. In the year 1873 the income tax levied in Great Britain on money loaned in Canada, amounted to the sum of £753,900, which showed that we had borrowed about $300,000,000 from that country. Since then we have gone on over importing, and it now amounts to nearly $200,000,000 more, in addition. It completely refuted the erroneous statements of those who urged that our over-imports were to be balanced in some mythical way, which they could not for their lives clearly show. It also exposed the folly of continually running to England to borrow, and amounted virtually to taking a living off our capital. Many were afraid that the

NATIONAL CURRENCY WOULD DEPRECIATE,

but he was convinced that it would not. Suppose, for the sake of argument, that it would depreciate. We have depreciation now, for all rates of interest over 3 per cent (the average in England and France) are a premium for gold, for if we had plenty of gold the rates here would not be higher than in those countries. He then contrasted the cost of Government in Canada during the past years, and maintained that, as soon as it began to average over $36 per family, then we began to live on what we had borrowed, and the revenue to pay such debts incurred had to come out of mortgages put up on property, and under debt to England. Three-fourths of our bad debts were incurred for want of a proper currency, and were also a premium for gold. It would be under the mark to say that $300,000,000 had in the course of the last twenty years. The National Currency would be paid out for labour to build public works, get into the hands of the merchant, from him to the produce man, and eventually into the banks, who could work on it. The banks, of course, must have a legitimate profit on business—all over that is of the nature of a "shave." The foreigner would not take our National Currency for its full value; we would keep it in the country, and instead of borrowing from the stranger, build up our country with our own money.

GONE FOR BAD DEBTS

A VOICE.—How can you create nothing out of nothing? Your land is nothing, your currency is—is—nothing—!

MR. GRIFFIN explained that the present issue of bank paper was made on the security of gold supposed to be in their vaults. As long as public credit was sound, it did not really matter whether the gold was there or not, in point of fact. Those who were writing against this movement supposed that the country was going to be immersed in a vast sea of paper, but it was not to be so, for every dollar was to be earned, and men do not inflate from earnings. He had not come across a banker or business man for years, who did not, after due reflection, endorse the scheme. The point had been raised by a gentleman in Ottawa, as to what the banks would do in case the system was adopted? He argued that the question should be, what will the country do in case the scheme was not adopted?

A VOICE.—I dispute that. I deny that!

He instanced the millions which were invested by the banks in the lumber business, which did not even pay a very low rate of interest. The Bank of Montreal had many millions loaned in the United States that were in not much better condition. He then gave a brief outline of former financial schemes which had been floated in other countries; John Law's famous effort which was tried in France, the Mississippi bubble, the French Assignats, and other efforts which had resulted in failures more or less pronounced for want of a durable basis to rest on. He spoke of the

GREENBACK CURRENCY

of the United States, and contended that the Government of that country hastened the depreciation of that medium by refusing to take it in payment for duties, &c. In point of fact the first issue of $65,000,000, went at par, all the time that the more recent issues were down as low as 240 per cent. Now their currency was of nearly equal value with gold, not because the value of such paper money had risen, but because that of gold had steadily gone down. He ignored a gold basis altogether in the consideration of a National Currency, and based it on the fiat of the Government that such money was the legal tender for all purposes. Take for example our present issue of copper cents. It only costs about 25 cents to manufacture 100 of these, but the Government guaranteed them, and they were good for legal tender, in payment of sums up to $2. They had in the old country, while they had a legal tender currency, and after that was abandoned nothing but a succession of such events up to the present time. It had been urged by many journals that this was not a time to trifle with our currency. The speaker endorsed that sentiment, but from a widely different motive. Sir S. Tilley's last loan asked for in England was only over-tendered for to the extent of some £165. Compare this with the Australian loan asked for at the same time, which was tendered for several times over, their credit standing so high. Sir F. Hinks laid the first stone of the structure of our financial ruin, when he borrowed that first $7,000,000 in England, and we have gone on borrowing ever since. This National Currency had been jeeringly spoken of as the "Rag Baby," and Mr. Wallace, M. P., had been pointed out as being its wet nurse. Whether he was its nurse or not, he had nursed our inflated Bank Currency long enough to disown it entirely, seeing the fatal injury it was working for the country.

NO FINANCIAL CRISIS

MR. TANNER—You say we will save 8 per cent by using this currency, and you further speak of issuing bonds. Now what do these bonds represent?

MR. GRIFFIN replied that these bonds were to be issued for Post Office deposits, and were to go to pay off our foreign indebtedness, not for any other purpose. With our own currency we could construct all the public works necessary without borrowing. He then brought forward the platform of the League. A condensed view of the whole question was, that the currency would belong to the people, setting at defiance all rings and manipulators. As to the question as to whether a Government would put out such currency judiciously, he replied that it would have to be done under proper restrictions, and subject to stringent regulations, the same as now for borrowed moneys. In any event, we would have the currency, and not be at the cost of interest for the use of it. An able explanation was given of the working of the currency system in the United States, and such modifications as had been brought about in it since the war.

DR. KINCAID asked if the speaker thought we could build the Pacific Railway out of the earnings of our people.

MR. GRIFFIN replied that there were enough people in the country to build it, if they had the money to do it with. We would save about $9,000,000 a year for currency and interest, as he had previously shown, and that was about what we would spend in its construction, and what was sent abroad for interest to foreign countries. He would also take all municipal indebtedness where incurred for works of public utility, and pay it off with the National Currency.

A VOICE.—Could we buy iron with that money to build the Pacific Railroad?

MR. GRIFFIN,—If we could not buy it, we could make it here on the average cheaper than we could buy it in England, and then pay interest on the money we borrowed to purchase it with. We had paid to Britain money enough in the shape of interest, to establish works to make all we required in the country. He illustrated this by stating that as $40,000 could be borrowed in England for what $50,000 would cost in Canada, it would pay to go to Britain for the funds. But if it paid us to go there, how much better it would be to issue our own money and go ahead?

MR. GEO. DUNSFORD,—Would not the National Currency have a tendency to raise the price of everything we import?

MR. GRIFFIN,—Yes, for a short time it might. What we did not manufacture. But after all it resolved itself into a premium for gold, and that we were paying for at a terrific rate through high interest and bad debts. Fully 20 per cent. of the goods we imported were shoddy, and for such we never got a good dollars value. With a currency of our own the goods would be made at home where we could see what we were getting and this evil would be done away with.

MR. GEO. SHAW,—I suppose there would be no shoddy in the composition of the National Currency? (Laughter.)

MR. GRIFFIN,—Not if our rulers did what was right. Its basis would be public works. There would be no redemption to provide for, because after it had been earned it does not want to be redeemed. In reply to a question, he said that the assessable wealth of the whole country averaged about $910 per family. He gave the calculations upon which he based such assumption.

MR. EDMISON—But how shall we manage to pay our present foreign indebtedness?

MR. GRIFFIN—By our earning, which will be Bills of Exchange drawn against our surplus products in favor of foreign countries. If they would not take them, then they must wait.

A VOICE.—That amounts to repudiation! It would also embarrass the importer.

MR. GRIFFIN.—He was one of those who thought that the world was made for other people besides importers. A great deal of importing had been done by men who were trading wholly on credit, and a great deal better for the country would it be, if it had been left undone. Men who had money would trade under the National Currency, and those who had not must quit. If Great Britain would not take our money they must suffer—Canada had suffered long enough. Our wholesale men could buy wheat, cattle, &c., pay for them in our own money, and send them home to offset the imports into Canada. As to English Loan Societies, we were under no obligation to legislate for them. Our Government had given them privileges that were astounding.

MR. EDMISON asked what we would do for articles which we wanted in limited quantities, and which we could not manufacture?

MR. GRIFFIN.—The bulk of the imports alluded to were luxuries, which, in the main, we could in the main do without. The Prophet Isaiah said that "in the good time coming we should have abundance of food and durable raiment." Now, if most of us got all we needed of those articles, we could manage to get along comfortably enough. (Applause.) In conclusion he would be glad to give any assistance in the formation of a branch of the Financial Reform League, that might be called for.

DR. KINCAID proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Griffin, for his able and exhaustive address. He was pleased to see so many together discussing this question apart from any political consideration.

MR. EDMISON agreed with the mover that Mr. Griffin had given them many valuable suggestions. He was pleased that the matter had been discussed in such a good natured manner. He had pleasure in seconding the motion.

MR. TOOLE concurred in the vote of thanks tendered Mr. Griffin, for his exposition of our financial position. He would, however, move a resolution which would give some tangible evidence of the feeling of the meeting, and would ask Dr. R. Kincaid to allow his motion to stand. He moved:—That the thanks of this meeting are due and are hereby tendered to G. D. Griffin, Esq., for his able exposition of the financial condition of the country. And this meeting is of the opinion that nothing would tend more rapidly or more permanently to promote the country's prosperity, than the issue of legal tender currency for the construction of public works, at a reduced rate of interest, as advocated by him.

MR. EDMISON would support the motion of Mr. Toole, with the exception of the last part, which he was hardly prepared to endorse, at least at present.

MR. GEORGE DUNSFORD seconded the motion.

MR. SHAW thought the course taken in regard to the motion a little out of order, as it in fact committed the meeting to an expression of opinion with which many might not agree.

THE CHAIRMAN then decided to submit the resolutions separately, upon which the motion of Dr. Kincaid was carried unanimously. Upon that of Mr. Toole being submitted, a vote was taken when a majority of those present signified their approval and the Chairman declared it carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

PORT HOPE.

DISMISSED.—The charged made by Mr. Quinlan against Mr. Garnett, of being drunk and disorderly, was before the Police Magistrate on Tuesday, but was dismissed in consequence of the information being laid for the wrong day.

THE ELEVATOR.—The Guide says:—The proposition from the town and harbor relative to the proposed elevator has, we understand, met the views of the President and Directors of the Midland Company, and it is expected that the construction will be proceeded with at an early day.

CLARK BROWN MURDER.

SUSPICION STRONGLY POINTS TO A WOMAN IN THE CASE.

The Wife of the Elder Victim under Arrest—Her Examination Before a Bench of Magistrates—Startling Revelations.

A reporter of the Daily Globe sends the following:—

WEST WINCHESTER, Dec. 16.—Late dispatches have informed you of the strange turn matters have taken in connection with the tragedy which on the 2nd of September last resulted in the death of Robert Brown and his little daughter Adeline. The bodies of the murdered man and girl had been interred for some three months. People throughout the Province believed that justice had been done by the conviction and execution of their murderer, Clark Brown; but suspicious tongues in the vicinity whispered that Clark Brown was not alone in his guilt, and that his mother, Mrs. Lydia Brown, who was living in the same house where the deed was perpetrated, had been aware of and had aided her son's plan to get rid of the old father, her husband. The relations between the husband and wife we said to have been unhappy. He was rather parsimonious, and inclined to keep all his property to himself, notwithstanding that he had one of the finest and most valuable farms in the county.

ONE OF THE FIRST GROUNDS OF SUSPICION

against the mother rested on somewhat peculiar evidence. The photograph of the eyes of the murdered girl, Addie Brown, taken 14 hours after her death, showed that there were held upon the retina what appeared to be two figures instead of one. This photograph has been sent to Notman & Fraser, Toronto, who, it is believed, can bring out clearly the attitude and expression of these figures. Other suspicious circumstances connected with the matter grew more impressive, until by the order of the Coroner, Dr. Blackleak, as already telegraphed,

THE BODIES WERE EXHUMED FROM THEIR GRAVES

in the cemetery, near the house, and examined by Drs. Riddle and McIntyre, of this place. Besides the axe-gashes upon the hip of the man there were two wounds fully 4 inches deep, and only 1 inch long, and which must have been inflicted by a long pointed instrument. A clasp-knife with a blade capable of inflicting such a wound was found and handed to Dr. McIntyre in October, while Clark Brown was awaiting execution. The weapon came from the hands of a young son of Mrs. Brown, who said that it had been given him by his mother with instructions to put coal oil upon it. The haft is of white bone, and still bears the marks of blood. The blows upon the head of the girl had undoubtedly been made with an axe, but upon the throat was the impress of the fingers of a right hand, which left no stains of blood behind.

THE UNIVERSALLY ACCEPTED VERSION OF THE MURDER

is that the old man was killed first by Clark Brown, who, when the neighbours rushed in alarmed by the cries and uproar upon that horrible night, was found to have his right hand dripping with blood. These and other circumstances were deemed sufficient to call for a further investigation, and as they were believed to point strongly toward Mrs. Brown as having been concerned in the matter, a complaint was sworn out against her yesterday by Mr. Thomas Brown, brother of the deceased, who has been for some time active in looking up evidence in the case, and consulting with Mr. Dingwall, County Crown Attorney. The information is exceedingly short, and in the usual legal phrase accuses Mrs. Brown of having conspired with other parties against the life of her husband, and of having been an accessory in the murder of himself and his daughter. Upon this complaint a warrant was issued by Mr. Ros, J. P., and about nine o'clock this morning. When informed that she must consider herself in custody she was naturally much agitated, and enquired the names of the parties who were to testify against her. There was no fear of her attempting to escape, so she was left unguarded in her own house, being that in which the deed of blood was perpetrated, and in which she has resided almost continuously up to this time.

MRS. BROWN WAS ARRESTED BY CONSTABLE STALYMOR

THE [illegible] WAS [illegible]

by a Branch of Magistrates. In the absence of the County Crown Attorney, Mr. J. Whitney, of Morrisburg, conducted the case for the Crown, while Mr. F. Tyrrell, who had defended Clark Brown at the Cornwall Assizes, appeared for the defence. The prisoner who had been conveyed from her home, occupied a seat beside her solicitor, and immediately in front of the platform. She is about the average height, her dress was quite plain, and she wore over her face a black figured veil. During the whole sitting of the Court her eyes were cast towards the door. She remained very still, and rarely spoke to her solicitor, except when first addressed by him. Having been granted permission to speak with her during recess, your correspondent found, on calling,

A WOMAN DRESSED ENTIRELY IN BLACK,

seated upon a sofa, awaiting quietly the re-opening of the Court. The most striking features of her face are her eyes, which are almost disproportionately large and protuberant. The face is one difficult to read, but the predominant expression appears to be that of patient endurance. Her manner in conversation is exceedingly quiet. She spoke of the trouble through which she has passed as having entirely shattered her home, but she was quite hopeful of returning soon to the house in which she has so long resided. She has lived in this neighborhood for many years, and her father and brother both live near the village. Her family are very highly respected in the community. On hearing the accusation against her read in Court she

RAISED HER EYES, AND SAID "NOT GUILTY"

in a firm tone. Before proceeding with the evidence Mr. Tyrrell objected to the form of the complaint, stating that it was due to the defendant to let her know the names of the parties by whom she was accused of conspiracy. He expressed himself anxious for the fullest investigation to be made, and raised no positive objection to the information. The proceedings went on upon the understanding that Mr. Whitney, who was temporarily absent, would be consulted with regard to the furnishing of the desired information. It was subsequently arranged that the names asked for should be given at the opening of the Court to-morrow morning.

THERE WERE BUT THREE WITNESSES EXAMINED TO-DAY.

This was not from want of witnesses, of whom there are a great many, but was due to the fact that the evidence had to be taken verbatim by long-hand.

The first two of these were Messrs. W. Laing and Joseph Brown, both near neighbors, and the latter a nephew of the deceased. Their story related almost wholly to the evening of the murder. The screams and shouts which had arisen on the night of the 2nd of Sept., the rush of neighbors to the spot, and the discovery of the bodies—one in the kitchen near the stairway, and the other between the bedroom and the kitchen—were referred to at length as at the trial of Clark Brown. The latter witness, Joseph Brown, had not seen Mrs. Brown in the house when they ran down. From the evidence it seemed that John Brown must have arrived very soon after the murderous work had begun. John Brown had taken little Minnie Brown, the child, in his arms to carry her to his father's place, near at hand. On the way he met the accused approaching her own house. She asked, in passing him, if it was her child he had in his arms, to which he replied in the affirmative, and she then passed on towards the house. He had learned afterwards that she had been down to his father's house, just opposite, and then to that of Mr. Gregg Henderson, to give the alarm of the murder. He had not noticed her conduct particularly enough to say whether she was much agitated when she passed him.

THE FIRST WITNESS, WM. LAING,

had seen the accused at the house with her son Clark Brown, and subject to objection by Mr. Tyrrell, he related a conversation between himself and Mrs. Brown. This conversation revealed nothing except that she had asked them to come and speak to her boy, as she believed he was crazy. The evidence given by the next witness

WAS OF A DECIDEDLY STARTLING CHARACTER.

The value of the testimony, however, is, in the eyes of some, weakened by reason of rumours against the character of the witness, one Mrs. Elizabeth Christie, a former hired help of Mrs. Brown's. On finishing her tale she was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Mr. Tyrrell. The following is

A SUMMARY OF HER EVIDENCE.

I was acquainted with the late Robert Brown and his wife, having gone to live there some twelve years ago; I was there at this time about a year; have been there since that time, now and again, for a week or a fortnight at a time; was there on a visit for a few days last winter; Mr. and Mrs. Brown appeared to be on good terms two years ago; I do not think they were upon good terms ever since; Brown appeared to be in the way; Mrs. Brown asked me what I would take to help her to get Mr. Brown out of the way—in fact to kill him; some such question as this was asked almost every visit I made within the last five years; I think it was made when I was there last winter; prisoner used to say what good time we could have if Brown were out of the way; sometimes I did not reply and sometimes I passed the matter off as a joke; I never remonstrated with the prisoner upon the subject; prisoner never particularly referred to the reason why we would have a good time; I regarded the remarks simply as indicating the slight respect she had for her husband; I noticed a great coldness between members of the family within the last two years; I was there two days and one night last winter; no conversation passed between the husband and wife; Mrs. Brown appeared down-hearted and solemn when with her family; she was apparently light-hearted when making the propositions spoken of.

Q.—Do you swear you believed when she repeated such a proposition that she was only joking? A.—I did at first, but not when it was so often repeated.

Q.—Are you positive you were never offered any money for getting Mr. Brown out of the way? A.—Yes; last winter I spoke to Mr. Brown concerning the coldness between the members of the family, and he replied that they were all mad with him about his property; that they wanted it, and he would not give it to them; he did not particularize, but simply said "they."

To MR. MILLS—I don't think prisoner made these propositions to me to draw me out; she always treated me well when I was at her house. I told my sister, Mrs. Bailey, of the proposition when the accused first spoke to me about it some five years ago; I treated it more as a joke than anything else.

To MR. WHITNEY—I did not hear any angry words between Clark Brown and his father on the occasion of my last visit.

To MR. TYRRELL—I cannot say what was the exact coolness between Brown and his wife.

MR. TYRRELL—Any person who has said what you have and can swear to it in Court ought to have a special memory of the facts.

WITNESS—Well, when a man and his wife do not speak together it indicates a coolness between them even though there may not appear anything seriously wrong.

Q.—Did you ever know anything that would cause the family to have any but a good opinion of you?

A.—Not that I know of; I always thought a great deal of them, and they to all appearances of me.

Q.—When the first proposition was made was it to murder Mr. Brown?

Witness did not reply for some time.

MR. TYRRELL—Come, it does not take all night to answer that question.

WITNESS—Well, I intend to take my time (a laugh.)

MR. TYRRELL—Very well, you never struck anybody more patient than I am. When did you first think this was a proposition to commit murder? You thought it a joke at first; when did you begin to have any serious fears about the matter?

A.—About a year or more ago.

Q.—Did you tell Mrs. Brown you would not assist her in murdering the man?

A.—No; I did not say anything to her.

Q.—Did you go and tell anybody?

A.—No.

Q.—When you were speaking to Mr. Brown confidentially about the property a year or more ago, did you speak to him of the proposed plan to take his life?

A.—No, there was no plan about it; I did not think there was any danger of her carrying out her idea unless I assisted her.

Q.—Did you not think it possible that she might get somebody else to assist her?

A.—I never thought anything about it.

Q.—Did you ever tell anybody that she offered you two hundred dollars to murder the old man?

A.—I never did.

Q.—Did you ever offer to do the work for that sum?

A.—No, I never did.

THE COURT ROSE AT SIX O'CLOCK

for two hours, but on resuming adjournment was made to 8 o'clock to-morrow on the application of Mr. Whitney. The reason of the application was that it was hoped in the meantime to make ready such evidence as would at once settle the present trial. The trial has of course been the one great subject of conversation in the village to-day.

A considerable number of witnesses and others have been called in from different parts, either to hear or take part in it. Detective Tinkess, of Prescott, who was largely instrumental in working up the case against Clark Brown, is among the arrivals. He will be called to give evidence to-morrow. It is anticipated that he will attempt to prove a deliberate and detailed offer made by Mrs. Brown to another woman to kill Robert Brown, and that this evidence will be more or less strongly corroborated.

THE Ottawa Chief of Police has concluded his investigation of the alleged frauds in connection with the Dominion Exhibition. He reports great irregularities by the gate-keepers.

IT is pretty well settled now that the Republican National Convention will be held next year in Chicago. The members of the National Convention are said to be nearly unanimous in favour of Grant's nomination.

THERE are lively times in Windsor and Detroit over an attempt to break up the ferry boats monopoly. A good deal of excitement prevailed on the Windsor dock yesterday afternoon, and there is a likelihood of one of the Captains being arrested there this morning.

THE Trent Valley Canal promoters will arrive in Montreal on Thursday forenoon to discuss the project and give reasons for asking Montreal to contribute to their scheme. On the following day they will meet the Board of Trade. A meeting of the City Council will be held to meet the delegates.

MAYOR RIVARD is a candidate for the mayoralty for a second term, and will probably be elected without opposition.

THE Orangemen who have charge of the case of David Grant against Mayor Beaudry, which was thrown out by Judge Mackay on technical grounds, are to appeal to the next court.

W. FAIRWEATHER & CO.

ON DR. TALMAGE'S TOUR THROUGH ENGLAND.

In good old times, when England's Church spread'd
Her matron form, to England's heart endear'd;
When sober priests were at her altars found
In action honest, and in doctrine sound,
Whose blameless lives in one calm current ran
Of love to God, and charity to man,—
While yet the Bible was the preacher's guide,
And faith and works walked humbly side by side,
Her chasten'd worship, simple yet severe;
Awed while it sooth'd, and mingled love with fear,
No frantic crew ran slavering through the land,
Denouncing wrath with sacrilegious hand;
No self-dubb'd saints God's mercy dared to hide,
No tracts, the spawn of ignorance and pride,—
No deep damnation lurk'd in simple mirth,
To no "real sins" the modest dance gave birth,—
No darken'd creed deceived the unletter'd mind,—
No blinded leaders led astray the blind –
Truth, undefiled, stretch'd forth the blest control,
And hope and gladness cheer'd the poor man's soul.

How changed that joyous scene! The "unco good"
Preach to be wonder'd at, not understood.
On points of faith with wondrous depth they dwell,
Of which to doubt awakes the fires of hell,–
Which to believe eternal safety brings
And rapes, thefts, robberies are trivial things;
Faith– faith alone–will bear them to the skies!
And zeal increases while religion dies,–
Is no way left to bring those days again?
Ere heaven's pure light was hid by impious men;
When each was pleas'd, without the zealot's aid,
To pray devoutly as his father pray'd–
To worship God, and love his neighbour too,
And as he would be done by, that to do–
To think no ill–no untried paths to try;
But humbly trusting in his God to die.

Cut this Out—It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonish every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents. dw[illegible]

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. wl-d120-3w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy tested in innumerable cases is SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL combined with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d120w40-1m

We use a large number of horses and mules in our business; no remedy has ever given us the satisfaction that Giles Liniment Iodide Ammonia has. For wind-galls, puffs, swellings, cuts, and lameness in either limbs shoulders or hone, bruises, galls from saddle or collars, I pronounce it the most valuable remedy that has ever come under my observation.

Gilbert & Moore will offer for sale by public auction, on Saturday, the 20th instant, at the Chante House, at two o'clock p.m., several valuable farm lots at present occupied by Mr. Chas. Spilsbury, North Monaghan.

8 Cent Store.

The great "eight" cent store will open on Saturday next, opposite Stethem's hardware store. Look out for the 8 cent flag. Read the advertisement in the great Christmas number of the REVIEW, which will appear to-morrow.

Attention, Firemen.

Firemen will remember the special meeting tonight at 7.30 o'clock sharp. The recommendation of the Fire and Gas Committee of the Town Council is to be submitted for adoption. Every member of the brigade is requested to be present.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy cold weather with light snow in some localities. Peterborough experiences to day, southerly to south-westerly winds clear to partly cloudy weather. The thermometer indicated this morning at 8 o'clock 10° rising to 16° at 10 o'clock and 21° at noon, with a slightly falling temperature during the afternoon.

C. Robinson	Vice Chief Ranger.
T. Bithray	Recording Secretary.
W. Strain	Financial Secretary.
G. S. Kingdon	Treasurer.
J. Barry	Senior Woodward.

D. Carlisle	Senior Bedel.
W. B. Nicholson	Junior Bedel.

The "Big Six."

"Jimmy" Cuttler, well known round town as the life of the local combination, popularly known as the "Big Six," has completed arrangements for giving a performance in Bradburn's Hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 23rd. The programe is brim full of "features," new, novel and amusing, and concludes with "Jimmy" Cutler's great farce entitled "Mr. and Mrs. O'Grady, or Life in a Tenement House." There will be songs, dances, jokes, burlesques, and coronet solo. This combination will also visit Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg.

Well Provided for the Holidays.

It will be seen by advertisement in another column that the enterprising firm of Rush & Elliott, grocers, have made abundant provision for meeting the demands of their large number of customers during the holiday season. To give some idea of the quantity of goods which they have laid in, we may mention that Mr. Rush informs us that they have just about double the stock this year which they usually carry, and that most of the staple lines were bought before the present advance in prices, thus giving them an important advantage in dealing with their customers.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Uncle Tom's Cabin was presented to the Peterborough public last evening at Bradburn's Opera House. The audience, though small, was an appreciative one, and manifested their favorable opinion by well merited applause. The piece itself has lost the interest it so long held during the great anti-slavery excitement, and failed to draw a crowded house. The dramatic talent of the company exhibited in many of the salient points was good. Mrs. G. C. Howard, as "Topsy," personated the plantation negro characteristics to the life. She was well supported by the other members of the company.

Pulpit Advertising.

According to the [illegible] the Rev. Manly Benson stated in the First Methodist Church, St. Thomas, that some one had asked him to announce an entertainment which was to come off, but he declined doing so. The pulpit was no doubt a first-class advertising medium, but he did not intend to utilize it for that purpose—the newspapers were the proper place to make known such undertakings. In future no announcements would be made except those having a direct connection with the Church, and of necessity requiring to be spoken of. There can be no doubt of the propriety of this decision, and it is one that might well be adopted by ministers in other places besides St. Thomas.

Giving the People a Holiday Benefit.

Messrs. Hackett & Shirley have announced a thirty days sale of dry goods, commencing at once, and in order to make a clearance previous to their dissolution of patnership have gone over their goods and re-marked them from their original price down to cost price, and in some cases below cost. This sale will prove a splendid opportunity for buyers to provide for the winter, especially as this is the season of the year when people are disposed to buy most freely. We have been assured by the firm that the public may rely upon the fact that their stock—which is all new this season—amounting to $20,000 worth of goods, will be offered at cost price. This fact should be inducement enough for any one. This firm will dissolve partnership in the beginning of the year, hence the reason of this clearing sale.

Municipal Rumors.

The season has now come when the ratepayers are button-holed by the aspirants to municipal honors, but as yet there are very few positive announcements. There seems to be no inclination to oppose Mr. Lundy for the Mayor's chair, which he has filled so well. The following names, among others, have been mentioned as candidates for seats at the Council Board:—In the First Ward:—Messrs. T. Cahill, J. Buller, George Taylor, John McNaughton and Daniel A. McDonald. In the Second Ward:—Messrs. W. Paterson, R. A. Morrow, H. H. Smith and W. McBain. In the Third Ward:—Messrs. D. W. Dumble, W. Toole and Dr. Boucher, the old Councillors all declining to stand. In the Fourth Ward:—Messrs. H. Denne, J. Sawers, W. H. Robertson, and T. Menzies, Mr. Griffith declining to stand, as we are informed.

Moore Preceptory No. 13.

An emergent assembly of Moore Preceptory No. 13, was held in the Masonic Hall, Peterborough, on Tuesday evening, for the election of officers, Sir Kt. Allen F. Huffman, Preceptor, in the chair. The election resulted in the choice of the following named:—

Sir Kt. E. H. D. Hall	Preceptor
" " James Jardine	Constable
" " Geo L Mitchell	Marshal
V.E. Sir Kt. Rev. V. Clementi	Grand Prelate, Chaplain
Sir Kt. R. H. Green	Registrar and Treasurer
" " James Dinwoodie	Guard

Past Eminent Preceptors, Sir Kt. Jas. Might, M. D., of Port Hope, and Sir Kt. Robert Kincaid, M.D., of Moore Preceptory, were present. The appointments will be made and the officers installed at the next assembly early in January, 1880, when a grand banquet will be given. There has been a new interest manifested in Templar Masonry in Peterborough of late, and the New Year will witness a renewed zeal in the advancement of Templar work.

POLICE COURT.

VAGRANCY.

THURSDAY, Dec. 18.—Mrs. Lee, whose term of six months in the county jail has expired, was brought up as a vagrant, accompanied by her son, who is also charged with vagrancy. She pleaded time to get together her effects and make preparations for reaching St. Catharines, where she has another son who is doing well there. The Magistrate allowed her to go on her own recognizance until Monday morning.

ASSAULT.

Frank Laplant charged W. Miller with having committed an assault upon him on Saturday evening, Dec. 13, at the corner of George and Brock streets. The defendant, in pleading guilty, said that for a long period the complainant had taken occasion to use insulting and abusive language in the shop and on the street. He had borne it as long as he could, but on this occasion he had struck the complainant. The Magistrate informed the defendant he had no right to take the law into his own hands, and he must impose a fine of $3, and 70 cents costs.

MUTUAL ASSAULTS.

Andrew Fawsett charged J. McKibbon with an assault. The witnesses proved that both parties had abused and assaulted each other. The Magistrate said the evidence went to show a positive breach of the peace, and the assault was proved. He therefore fined the defendant $2.00 and $2.05 costs.

A complaint was at once laid against the former complainant, and the case was summarily disposed of on the same evidence. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $2.00. There were no costs in this case.

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? The reader may as well give it up at once, since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. SCOTT & BOWNE'S EMULSION OF PALATABLE CASTOR OIL. Price 25 cents. d129-w40-1m

Victoria Hypophosphites extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing from the foundation, correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving nature to perform its allotted part. It is the finest nerving remedy known, and the greatest brain and blood food in the world. For sale by all dealers. $1 per bottle. w51-d139-2w

Hagyard's Yellow Oil combines in such an eminent degree all the healing, curative and extracting qualities known to medical science that it is truly a family medicine that cannot be dispensed with. When applied to any swelling sore, burn, chilblain, frostbites, skin eruption, etc., its effects are magical. It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificate of its merits. w51-d139-2w

LAKEFIELD NEWS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MAIL FACILITIES.

The people of Lakefield and vicinity complain bitterly of the present miserable mail facilities afforded this place. The mail does not arrive at the post office in Lakefield until after one o'clock, and leaves again at twenty minutes past one. It is consequently impossible to answer a letter on the same day that it is received. Lakefield has not in the past received from either Local or Dominion Governments that consideration which its commercial requirements, its population and its geographical position require. Petitions have been forwarded to the Local Government about the dam at Lakefield, the state of which threatens the total stoppage of navigation on the waters north of this village, but no attention whatever has been paid to the matter. The rights of the people in this part of the county in this matter, as well as others, have been entirely ignored. Another absurdity exists in the circumstance of the mail for Apsley starting from Peterborough instead of Lakefield. The Dominion Government for the last eight years has paid for carrying the mail from Peterborough to Apsley, 40 miles, when there is no valid reason why it should not be carried from Lakefield to Apsley, 30 miles. At the present time the Government are paying a horse team to carry the mail side by side with the Midland Railway from Peterborough to Lakefield three times a week each way, or sixty miles a week—for what? Why, for nothing. The expenditure is worse than useless, because it deprives Lakefield of one of its advantages of position, being the terminus of the Peterborough branch of the Midland Railway, and ten miles nearer to Apsley than the Town of Peterborough, and on the direct road to the former place. It is claimed by the people of Lakefield that they have a right to the same mail accommodation as is obtained by Peterborough, and that no Government can justify itself in incurring a useless expenditure in order to carry the advantage of Lakefield's position some ten miles further to the south. Mr. Thomas Joseph Nelson last spring, at the time the House of Commons was in session, spent two days in circulating a petition to the Postmaster-General, asking the same mail privileges as Peterborough. The petition was largely and influentially signed, and we did expect that the petition would receive some consideration on the part of the Government; perhaps it did, but no one in Lakefield seems to know. We are sending our Reeve to Ottawa next week on the Trent Valley Canal scheme, and we call upon him to represent this matter to the Government in a clear and forcible manner, when we are sure that our rights will be respected. The people of Lakefield are peaceable and contented, and do not relish agitation, but at the same time they require a fair field and no favor, and will accept nothing else as quid pro quo.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL DEPUTATION.

Mr. John Dinwoodie, Reeve of Lakefield, and Mr. John Hull, the delegates appointed at the last meeting of the Lakefield Council, leave on Monday next for Ottawa, to assist in urging upon the Dominion Government the early construction of the Trent Valley Canal. It is very generally thought that Mr. Isaac Garbutt, sr., should accompany the deputation to Ottawa, on account of his occupying a very prominent position in the affairs of the county and district for about half a century. There can be no question but that Mr. Garbutt, from being an ex-Warden of the County of Peterborough, and on account of his acquaintance with the Trent Valley Canal scheme since its inception, would be of great assistance to the deputation. Lakefield expects this deputation to achieve success—the people here are all confident that such a strong case will be made out that the Government will not be able to resist, but will be induced to take the matter in hand at once.

DEER HUNTING.

Messrs. Gordon, Balsdon and Wallace have been away hunting for about four weeks back near Cox's Lake, but on account of there being so little snow and so much rain the hunt was not very successful. Only six deers were secured by the whole party. Mr. Gordon shot a deer which was wholy white with the exception of a line down the back. Lakefield hunters we understand have all left the woods, prefering to keep the game law intact. A number of other hunting parties, however, have not yet returned. Perhaps the Society for the protection of game, &c., might have something to do, if its members would look about them.

A LYNX KILLED.

Mr. John Dinwoodie while out shooting rabbits last week, in a swamp belonging to Mr. R. Q. Dench, of Douro, about two miles from Lakefield, came upon, and shot, a very large lynx, or wolverine. After receiving the contents of the first barrel, it growled and began to show signs of making a charge upon its disturber, but the second barrel put his lynxship hors de combat. It was quite a large and fierce looking animal, measuring about five feet nine inches in length. It was kept on view for some time at German's Hotel, and was said to form an excellent protext, "Let's go into German's and see the lynx."

MR. DUMBLE, OF THE T. V. C.

Mr. Dumble's communication in last week's REVIEW, on the Trent Valley Canal, has been very generally read and canvassed by the people of Lakefield, so much so, that people have been running around trying to borrow copies of the paper to send away to their friends. Every one speaks in terms of praise of Mr. Dumble's advocacy of the Trent Valley Canal. It is some little consolation at least to know that the people are just now in the proper frame of mind to appreciate intelligent efforts in support of this scheme.

COUNCILLOR HORNER.

A report has been going the rounds to the effect that Mr. Aaron Cox, Road Master, has forbidden Mr. Horner being a candidate again, because the duties of Councillor interfered with his duties to the Company. We are in a position to state distinctly, that his report is untrue in every particular. Mr. Horner has not neglected any part of his duty. All the Council meetings are held in the evening, and consequently, do not interfere with any Councillor's day-work. Mr. Cox has never complained to Mr. Horner, nor even made a suggestion to him in regard to municipal matters.

LOTS OF WORK.

The working-men of Lakefield have plenty of work. Wages are not very high, but every man willing to earn an honest living can find abundance to do. Mr. Wallace, who has a contract for loading wood, was compelled to go to Peterborough for men on Wednesday last. He could not obtain a sufficient number of hands in Lakefield to load the wood with sufficient dispatch.

THE "REVIEW."

We hear from the great majority of the subscribers of the late Lakefield News, who are now receiving the REVIEW, expressions of approval at the change. A large number will continue to take the REVIEW, whether the News is resuscitated or not.

THE SKATING RINK.

Capt. Sacret has his skating rink now in full blast. The entrance fee is only 10c.; children, half price, thus affording good skating and excellent accommodation at a very nominal outlay. The village people should largely patronize this healthy exercise, which costs so little.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Thompson, the proprietor of Langford Mills, was in this village on Wednesday last on a visit to our respected Reeve, Mr. Jno. Dinwoodie.

SHANTY WORK.

Messrs. Strickland and Sherin's shanties are doing excellent work, having cut over 9,000 saw logs already. Mr. P. Caddy, one of their foremen, has cut one tree that will make 5,000 ft. of lumber.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured [illegible] medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

A BAD GANG.

Daring Robbery in Toronto by Masked Men Prisoners Remanded

William Williams, Fred Jacobs, James Edwards, Alfred McMechan, George Sanderson, Robert Gilmour, James Swanton and Thomas Kersteven were placed on trial at the Police Court yesterday, for having, on the morning of the 9th of December, committed a buglary on the premises of Mrs. Wallis, 193 University street. The story told by Mrs. Wallis, an aged lady, reads more like a romance than an actual occurrence in daily life. Her statement to the Magistrate was in substance as follows:—Shortly before four o'clock on the morning in question she was awakened from sleep by a noise in her bedroom. A few seconds thereafter a man came into the room, and taking a sword hanging in the room and demanded silence. He was followed by two other men, each of them wearing a jockey cap, with pieces of linen stuff covering their faces. One of the men drew a pistol, and, pointing it at her head, ordered he to give up all the money in the house. She informed them that they would find some money in a basket underneath the bed, and, in mistake they took up the wrong basket, which contained no money. This appears to have incensed the ruffianly gang, who again threatened her with sword and pistol. She was ordered to rise from the bed and open the safe, the hiding place of the key of which she was compelled to disclose. One of them managed to open the safe without the assistance of Mrs. Wallis, who, continuing in bed was still guarded by a couple of men

POINTED IT AT HER BREAST,

WITH SWORD AND PISTOL.

Mrs. Wallis asked one of the scoundrels if there were any more intruders in the house—if it required more than three men to burglarize the home of a defenceless old woman. They replied that there were five working the job, two being outside keeping guard at the door. She asked them to retire, and if they complied she would send them any sum they demanded, and deliver it at any address they would name. Instead of doing so they took a quantity of jewellery and other valuable articles, and left. Mrs. Wallis told her story in a remarkably clear style, which showed that under the trying ordeal she was subjected to she was particularly cool and self-possessed. She identified Swanton as the person who held the pistol to her head. Jacobs, she said, carried the sword, and stood guard with that weapon at the foot of her bed. Sanderson and Williams she also identified, but could not say anything positive as to the remainder of the gang.

Detective Sheehan testified to seeing the prisoners in company more than once, and stated that they were known to the police as suspicious characters.

Mr. Fenton asked for an adjournment to allow the detectives time to try and recover the stolen property.

Mr. MacNabb, for the defence, asked for bail for those not identified by Mrs. Wallis.

The application was not allowed, and the prisoners were put back till the 23rd inst.

A lively discussion took place between Kersteven and one of the policemen, the former having objected to go down to the cells. Quite an excitement was occasioned by the struggle, which took place at the court-room door. It was quickly suppressed, and the prisoners were safely lodged in the cells.—Mail.

The Maine Elections.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Sun's Augusta correspondent publishes a letter from E. F. Pillsbury, the recognized leader of the Democrat party in Maine, asserting that the apparent Republican majority for members of the Legislature was occasioned by wholesale and systematic bribery, bull-dozing and fraud. There was a popular majority for Governor in opposition to the Republicans in many districts, giving a fusion majority for Governor. The Governor and Council have held the Republicans to the strict letter of the constitution and the laws, the result being an anti-Republican majority in both branches. They have in no case travelled outside of the precedents established by the Republicans themselves, and in most cases their action was based on the opinion given by the Judges of the Supreme Court.

AN OLD MAN MURDERED.

A SUSPECTED DOUBLE MURDER.

New Canton, Ill., Dec. 19.—A house recently occupied by a man and wife has been found entirely deserted, with the furniture intact. There was blood on various articles, and cries of murder had been heard Thursday night, but no investigation was made until yesterday. A neighbor, who had threatened their lives, shipped his goods to Loraine, and it is suspected that he packed the bodies of his victims in cases and took them along.

GRANT AND THE CANAL.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Times' Philadelphia despatch says that many cases containing gifts for Gen. Grant has been received at Child's residence, but none of them have yet been opened. Grant will remain in Philadelphia about a fortnight. From here he intends to go to Jersey City to visit his mother. There is the highest authority for saying Grant has no present intention of ever accepting the Presidency of the Canal Company. The Herald's Philadelphia despatch says an intimate friend of Grant stated yesterday that Grant's visit to Havana and Mexico is only to divert attention until a vessel can be fitted up for the voyage to Nicaragua, where he intends to go over every foot of the proposed interoceanic canal with a party of engineers. It also quotes DeFranco as saying that Grant has privately accepted the Presidency of the Nicaragua Canal Company.

AN ATTORNEY'S CODICIL.

Philadelphia, Dec. 19.—A codicil of John L. Neil's will is contested. It reduced former legacies and left the balance of the estate amounting to $300,000 to John C. Yardley his attorney. It is claimed that Neil was deceived by Yardley, when the latter prepared the codicil, and that Yardley changed the bequests so as to leave a large balance for himself.

FIRE AT A THEATRE.

Port Huron, Dec. 19.—Harrington's Opera House was damaged to the extent of 10 or 12 thousand dollars by a fire this morning. Haverly's Juvenile Pinafore Opera Company lost their wardrobe and scenery, valued at $2,500.

A FATAL RACE.

Desmoines, Dec. 19.—B. B. McElree, a farmer living in Dallas County, and Wm. Eilfrits, while running their horses crowded each other off a bridge as they were returning from town to their farms yesterday. KEARNEY'S POLITICS.

Omaha, Dec. 19.—Kearney, the Californian agitator, passed through here in a second class car of the east bound train last night. He says he goes east to attend a conference in Washington on January 5th of all labour organizations and Greenback Congressmen. He advocates a combination of all parties against the Republican nominee. He favors Thurman, but he would accept any candidate "sound" on the finance and Chinese questions.

A JEW PEDDLER MURDERED.

Hagerstown, Ind., Dec. 19.—There is great excitement at Losantville over the supposed murder of a Jewish peddler by John Caraday, who had proposed to give him a mortgage on his farm for a loan of $2,000. A short time ago the peddler visited Caraday and he has not been seen since. His wagon was sold by Caraday's son and his horse was found buried on Carrday's farm. Caraday has been arrested but his son has disappeared.

SUICIDE FOR A MONEY LOSS.

New York, Dec. 19.—Joseph Carroll committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor on Wednesday. It is believed that his mind became affected through the loss of $500, which he loaned St. Anthony's Church, which recently became bankrupt.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

Francis Fitch, a boy, was run over and killed by an express wagon in September. When the boy was knocked down Charles Kirchdorfer, the driver, whipped his horses and drove rapidly away. Kirchdorfer was yesterday convicted of manslaughter in the fourth degree.

A BRIBE FOR A FORGERY.

New York, Dec. 19.—Cynthina Hedres, a colored woman, died recently, leaving $6,000. S. W. Titus, a colored lawyer, yesterday testified that the woman's husband offered him $2,560 to draw a will, and forge Mrs. Hedres' signature.

AN ADVOCATE OF CREMATION.

The young New York merchant cremated at Washington, Pa., proves to have been Chas. A. McCrary, of the extensive dry goods house of Jas. McCrary & Co., who always advocated cremation.

MOBBING NEGROES.

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 19.—A mob gathered at the depot last night intending violence to the negroes from North Carolina, whose arrival was expected, but they did not alight and the train moved on to Indianopolis.

THE UTE QUESTION.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Time's Washington despatch says it is probable that the Ute question in Congress will go over until after the recess, and Schurz will in the meanwhile settle it with the Ute delegation soon expected at Washington.

SEYMOUR FOR PRESIDENT.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Herald's Utica report says an impression prevails in Utica that Horatio Seymour would not decline a unanimous nomination by the Democrats for the Presidency, but that he would not become a candidate in the ordinary acceptance of the term.

GRANT AND THE PRESIDENCY.

New York Dec. 19.—The Times says those who are in a position to speak authoritatively say that while Grant will undoubtedly do nothing to bring about such a result, should the Republican nomination for the Presidency be tendered him he will accept it. The Times' Providence report says Governor Van Zandt said last night he personally knew that Hayes favored a third term for Grant.

GOVERNOR OR JUDGE.

Columbia, S.C., Dec. 19.—Governor Simpson was yesterday elected Chief Justice by the Legislature. There is a constitutional question concerning the existence of a vacancy, and Simpson will be obliged to resign the Governorship in order to test the matter.

A GRAND CHARITY BALL.

Paris, Dec. 19.—At the journalists' fete last night for the benefit of the sufferers by the Spanish flood, the attendance was very large, including the Spanish visitors, headed by the ex-Queen Isabella, M. Waddington and the the Cabinet, Gambetta, and nearly all the leading actors, actresses and artists. Mme. Nelolan Carvalho sold music, Theo cried violets, Judic told fortunes, Sarah Bernhart wrote autographs, Croizette sold Le Carnival, the journal of the the fete. The cover of the latter was designed by Dore and by Greivin the caricaturist. On the first page were the signatures of famous people, including King Alfonso and Queen Christine. Articles were written by Dumas, Angier, Sandeau, and Feuillet. Rothchild contributed a financial article. The illustrations were by Meissonnier, Detaille, Denuville, Vibert, Carolus, Duran, and J. P. Laurens. The price of this journal was a franc. The musical part of the programme begun at 9 o'clock with 800 performers. It was followed by a ballet divertisement, and a grand procession of bull fighters. At midnight the kermesse was witnessed. The actresses opened their booths, the actors mounted the boards and improvised burlesque comedies. At one o'clock there were enacted scenes of Murcian life in costume and character, followed by a grand tombola where diamond rings, paintings by Meissonier, insurance policies, living animals, and tickets in matrimonial agencies, were speedily put up in lots and knocked down. Dancing followed until late in the morning.

A LOTTERY TICKET WANTED.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Times says the Louisiana state lottery is in great trouble. The winning number of the $100,000 prize recently drawn was not announced for several days, and the name of the winner has not yet been published. It is possible that the winning ticket is among those seized by the authorities recently, and if so the prize will be recovered at law for the benefit of the city poor.

THE FIRE AT THE THEATRE.

New York, Dec. 19.—The escape of 700 people during the fire at the Park Theatre last night without a panic is dwelt upon by the morning papers as evidence of what presence of mind will accomplish. The fire was discovered while Emmet was acting. Manager Abbey and Treasurer Edwards at once stationed policemen at the Broadway vestibule, where the fire was burning, and opened two other exits on Twenty-second street. Emmet bade the audience disperse quietly, and a gentleman in the audience made the same request. In 4 minutes the theatre was quietly emptied. Manager Abbey publishes a card stating that free admission will be given to-night to those who attended last night.

OUR RAILWAY CONNECTIONS.

THE general revival in trade upon the American continent has stirred up commercial men to look for new sources of business. The people of the United States are looking for an increase of prosperity from the trade in their western country, while in Canada we have a still brighter future if we hasten to develop our own North-West, and secure early railway connection with it. To provide Montreal and Quebec with a direct connection with the eastern terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Lake Nipissing, the Dominion Government has subsidised the Canada Central Extension up the Ottawa Valley to the extent of $12,000 per mile. This will secure the construction of that line within a year, and it behoves the business men, the representatives in Parliament, and the press of this important part of Ontario, extending from Belleville westward, to rouse themselves and see that we are not left without direct access to our great national railway at its eastern terminus. The Midland, Whitby, Port Perry and Lindsay, Northern and Hamilton and North-western railways have all very sensibly united to promote the construction of a common line from Gravenhurst to Lake Nipissing, to reach which, they have all secured running powers over the Northern. The Ontario Legislature has done wisely in voting $8,000 in aid of this line, and we look with every confidence to see this supplemented by the Dominion Government without delay to a sufficient sum to enable the work to be proceeded with vigorously during the coming summer. The reasonable claims of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway to aid for 107 miles cannot be ignored when the Canada Central has been already assisted to the required amount for a distance of 120 miles, up to the common point at Lake Nipissing.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

To the Editor of the Review :

SIR,—I see by the Toronto papers that the people of that city speak of the Trent Valley Canal as an open ditch fit only for barges, and that it is a ship canal, and not an open ditch for barge navigation, that is wanted between Lake Huron and the St. Lawrence. It will be well if we show the misapprehensions under which the Toronto papers seem to labour: thus the Trent Valley Canal can also be made a ship canal! Is it possible!! Yes, surveys and estimates were made and a report was presented to Parliament some years ago showing the cost of the canal for barge navigation to be only $3,600,000, but it was also shown that if it be desirable to convert the canal into a ship canal it will require an extra outlay of $3,000,000, or $6,600,000 in all. Now compare this with such outlay as the Toronto papers admit will be required to make the Huron and Ontario Canal, that is forty million dollars, and if we add extras and unforeseen contingencies, it will cost at least fifty million dollars. The absurdity as well as impracticability of the latter canal is obvious to everyone outside of Toronto. Moreover the Toronto people have the temerity to ask for a Parliamentary grant of millions of public lands towards such a foolish project as this—and that in the face of what Nature made the Trent Valley as the route for such barge or ship canal, as the case may be, and also what it (the T. V. Canal) will cost (that is under $7,000,000 for a ship canal, or $3,600,000 for a barge canal.)

Again, we always pay due deference to the opinions of experienced forwarders and captains. Well, they argue against the feasibility of a ship canal in this way: Firstly, the lake ports will generally admit of only 8 feet draught, while ocean vessels must draw over 20 feet of water, which of course cannot go through the canals below Kingston. Secondly, schooners that go by the Welland Canal stop at Kingston to discharge their cargo into barges for conveyance down the St. Lawrence. Can the Toronto papers explain the reason for such transhipment? It is because barge navigation is so much cheaper.

For the present the wisest course for the Dominion Government to adopt is to make the Trent Valley Canal one for barge navigation, and if the increase of freight and business warrant it, it can easily be deepened in the same manner as the Welland Canal is now being enlarged.

Along the whole route of the proposed Trent Valley Canal, from the mouth of the River Severn to the mouth of the Trent (at Trenton), only 40 miles of land need be cut through, as there is a chain of navigable lakes between these points.

C. E.

Trenton, 16th Dec., 1879.

NOTE.—The estimate recently made by Mr. Stark on behalf of the Government is less than $3,000,000, which strengthens C. E's. argument. —ED. REVIEW.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

A Peterborough Deputation Gets a Hearing at Montreal

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—There was a very large meeting of the City Council in attendance to-day to meet Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Keeler, M. P., about the Trent Valley Canal scheme, and the Council was presided over by Mayor Rivard, who briefly introduced Mr. Keeler, stating the object of their visit. Mr. Keeler went into a comparison of the Trent Vallley route with the proposed cut from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario and with the Ottawa Canal route, showing that while the route he advocated would cost but $2,500,000 or $3,000,000 at the outside, the Toronto scheme would cost $27,000,000, and the Ottawa scheme anywhere from $7,000,000 to $12,000,000. He held that the route through Lake Michigan from Chicago, via the Straits of Mackinaw, the north side of the Manitoulin Islands, and the Georgian Bay to the mouth of the Severn, and thence to Montreal by the Bay of Quinte, would be merely an arm of the harbour of Montreal, land-locked all the distance to Mackinaw Straits, and therefore available to vessels of the size required for carrying grain. He showed that there would be a saving of some 400 miles by this route to Montreal as against the present lake route. Barges provided really the cheapest means of transporting grain,—the ratio of cost of building and maintenance being 50 cents a bushel, as against $1 for sailing schooners and $2 for propellers; and the price of freights, instead of being 17 and 18 cents a bushel, would be reduced to 7 and 8 cents. Surveys had been made which showed the route to be eminently practicable, and there were now navigable some 136 miles of lake and river of the Trent Valley Canal—or River, as we might call it—leaving nine milles unnavigable and 59½ of canal to be constructed. This would bring them within easy distance of the Marmora iron mines, and there was no reason why Nova Scotian coal and Ontario iron should not meet at Montreal or at some near point. Besides, a quarry of lithograph stone had been discovered which could not be worked for want of communication. The opening of the canal would give them that communication. One peculiarity of the canal was that there would be no danger attending it, such as washing away of the banks, and they could employ fast-sailing tugs without any fear of that hindrance.

In reply to Ald. Greene, he said that surveys had been made as long ago as 1827 by Mr. Baird, whose estimate of cost was $2,500,000. Their estimate was in round numbers $3,000,000. Thus they could not be charged with making too plausible a statement. The present Dominion Government had instructed Mr. Stark to make a survey of the route, and although that report would not be officially made public until given to Parliament, yet he (Mr. Keeler) had been assured by the Minister of Public Works that a most satisfactory statement had been made. The question was settled that the water supply is ample and the plan feasible. Concluding, he hoped they would give the suggestion that they should send a deputation their earnest consideration.

MR. CARNEGIE followed, holding that all had a common interest in building up their mercantile marine, and keeping their trade in the country rather than permitting it to go elsewhere. Hitherto the grain had sought the port of New York in spite of all that had been done to get it for the St. Lawrence. He contended that if there was anything to which New York owed her prominence and prosperity as a shipping port more than another, it was to that "ditch" called the Erie Canal. Waterways were the most natural and easy means of transporting grain, and as an illustration of this he showed that out of 3,500,000 bushels shipped to New York 2,500,000 went thither by the Erie Canal, and the remainder over all the railways running into the city, most of which was doubtless picked up on the road. Montreal was second to New York as a seaport, because, unlike Philadelphia, Boston, and Baltimore, she did not depend on railways but was fed by waterways. Ships of the sea were unsuited for their lakes, and it was a mistake to try and bring them inland. Besides, grain required to be aired at least once during the process of transportation on so long a voyage. Barges from which grain could be elevated were really the best means of carrying grain. The mouth of their canal was sheltered by Prince Edward County, while the harbor at Midland would contain in deep water and in safety the fleet of England, and was preferable to Collingwood. The Erie Canal was about adopting the Belgian system of cable towage, which would enable it to do twice as much work as it now does, and do it twice as cheaply. As a matter of self-protection, they would be compelled to adopt the most speedy means of check-mating the Erie. In reply to a question whether the barges would not cross the lake at Trenton to the American side, Mr. Carnegie held that the risk of barges travelling 75 miles across the lakes was too great for any of them to make the attempt, when they could come to Montreal and find shipment much more easily.

In answer to Ald. Holland's advocacy of the Ottawa and Nipissing route, Mr. Carnegie held that there was the advantage of less cost, ease of locking, and assurance of water supply in favor of the Trent Valley scheme, while if, as Ald. Holland asserted, there was ever to be an export of 50,000,000 bushels from Manitoba, they would need both of these routes for its transportation. As to the York River and Nelson River route, if ever a time came when the product of the West sought that outlet, the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario might both bid good-bye to it, because fast-sailing steamers would carry their surplus grain to Europe during the three or four months of the year without much trouble.

Ald. NELSON said a few words in support of the Trent Valley scheme, at the same time noting incidentally that of course the deputation was looking at the interests of Montreal as secondary to their own. He was in favour of assisting in the movement, believing that it would benefit Montreal.

Ald. HOLLAND followed, taking ground in favor of the Ottawa Canal route, which could not well get out of carrying their grain to Montreal, while there was a chance for the barges at Trenton to cross to American waters and send grain to New York.

Ald. GRENIER moved that a deputation go to Ottawa on Tuesday, but that they do not commit the Council Board to any line of action.

It was finally decided that Ald. Nelson and Mayor Rivard should go to Ottawa merely as a deputation of observation.

The meeting then adjourned.—Globe.

ORANGE LODGE.—At the regular meeting of Norwood L. O. L., No. 36, held in their lodge room, on the 8th Dec., the following brethren were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Geo. POINTING FIREARMS.—On Saturday, Dec. 12, Jas. Taylor, Collector for the Township of Dummer, was charged before a a bench of Magistrates consisting of Messrs. H. Drain, D. Ross, and J. Kidd, with pointing a pistol at Mrs. McNutt, of Dummer. It appeared that Taylor, in default of taxes, had seized a cow, when Mrs. McNutt came to the rescue with an axe, and Taylor pointed a pistol at her. For this he was fined $20 and costs, $6.75, Mr. Ross dissenting from his brother Magistrates' decision. An appeal is probable.

MEREDITH V. WILLIAMS.

Conclusion of the Case—The Defendant Declines to Tender Any Evidence

This suit, which was brought to enforce the provisions contained in a deed of separation between the defendant and his wife, was continued from the 17th of November and concluded on Monday. A full report of the facts as shown by the plaintiff has already appeared. The bill is filed by a trustee under the deed of separation and is on behalf of Mrs. Williams. Mr. Boyd, Q.C., appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Bethune and Mr. Moss for the defendant.

Upon the case being called, counsel for the defendant stated that it was not the intention of their client to give any evidence in answer to the statements attempted to be proved by the plaintiff and Mrs. Williams, and the witness called in her behalf, and that he would wholly rely upon the legal defence, and will call no witness. A letter from the defendant was produced containing instructions to that effect. A letter written by the defendant to his wife, Mrs. Williams, was produced, and contained reasons for his so acting. This letter informed her of the defendant's intention to call no evidence, either to rebut her charges against him or to vindicate his conduct. He stated that he had it in his power to produce evidence that would place her in a worse position before the world than she had placed him by the statements she had made concerning him. That he felt deeply hurt and cruelly wronged by the charges she had made against him, but that his deep affection for his children, and his desire for their welfare, constrained him from retaliating up on their mother. He was willing for their sake to bear without reply the stigma she had placed upon his character. He ended by requesting that she would not bring up his children in the belief that he was as false as she represented him in her evidence at Osgoode Hall, and hinted that although he was not free from blame, yet if she had behaved a little more sensibly he might have been a different man. The case was then argued upon the legal points affecting the deed of separation, and judgment was reserved.

WINTER WALKING.

The excesses and absurdities of professional "pedestrianism" will have inflicted a serious injury on the land if they make it less the fashion to "take a walk." Especially in wintry weather this most natural and pleasant form of exercise was not enough in vogue before the pedomaniacs did their worst to bring it into disrepute. And yet, who that has experienced it would exchange the exhilaration that comes from being "all in a glow" after a brisk walk through the sparkling air, for the social or the merely lazy satisfaction of having had a ride? The reflection of the poet Holmes's "proud pedestrian" are no fanciful sketch to the real lovers of a winter's walk. The lassitude of spring and the languor of summer, which made sauntering either a necessity or a delight, now give way to the vim and vigor of health, seeking [illegible] conditions. How clear and sweet is the nipping and eager air! How it inspires and sustains one in a swinging gait of four or five miles an hour! How the cheeks glow, and the eyes shine, and the muscle tingle with delightful vigor, after such a walk through the winter sunshine!

The able-bodied man who will crouch down [illegible] in the corner of a street car—in an air rank and fetid from the pack of humanity breathing and exhaling therein—when he has only two or three miles to walk, deserves to be assailed by the demons of influenza, neuralgia, coughs, colds and headaches that lurk therein. Even a ride in a buggy or sleigh robs the trip of half its benefits. The air is good, to be sure, but the exercise is lacking, and its resulting benefits to the blood and the muscular and nervous systems. Winter walking is a sure cure for cold feet. It banishes the "creep crawls" from the spinal column, and sends the sluggish blood about its business. As a "nervine," it is a million times better than medicine, and for improving the complexion it is worth a whole harbourful of lotions and washes. It will put an edge on the appetite that you can't buy at the doctor's, and in promoting digestion is better than a corner drugstore's entire stock of bitters and pills. If you are physically "up to it," take a walk—not a shivering and protesting dress parade for duty, or a lazy "constitutional," but a lively turn, with a vim in in it that can laugh at a December nor'-wester.—Golden Rule.

ENTERTAINING COMPANY.

"A big feed"—that is "a good time" in the estimation of many. "What did you have for supper?" one asks of another who had been "out to tea." In the old-fashioned settlements, where the neighbors go a visiting, spending the afternoon, and busy with knitting or light sewing, it is often expected by the hostess that her company has come more for the sake of the supper than for the visit. Sometimes the suspicion is very unjustly entertained. I have myself been more than once very much annoyed by the way in which friends I went to visit allowed themselves to be cumbered with much serving, so that it was almost impossible to have any reasonable conversation with them. I like good things to eat when I am hungry, but I feel most insulted if that is the main entertainment offered me. I could get something to eat at home, but not my friend's company. The best visits among neighbors, in my opinion, are often those which are unannounced, and where the visitors do not stay to tea, unless very sure they are desired to do so, and their staying will not make trouble for the hostess. There is something decidedly vulgar in the great 'spread' sometimes made by those who entertain company. So many kinds of cake and sauce—so much indigestible stuff to please the sense of taste and make the visitors ill the next day! And yet it is both natural and praise-worthy to wish to treat our friends to something nice in the way of food. Good eating is a privilege as well as a duty. We must eat to live, and so the first question in regard to our food is, whether it will nourish these frail bodies of ours, as many a man has prayed at the opening of a meal which could nourish only by the working of a miracle. Too great a variety is burdensome to both guest and hostess, and it never really proves the liberality of the one who entertains, but often shows only a love of display and a spirit of emulation. There should be enough of everything, and each dish should be good of its kind, especially the bread and other solid articles. If we can possibly get a good meal for our visitors—the guests of an afternoon or a single day—without cooking anything while they are with us, which necessitates our absence from the room for much time, it is best to do so. When we know beforehand that company is coming, we can have everything ready to set upon the table, and so spend not over half an hour in getting supper. The supper ready it is our part to make our guests feel perfectly free to eat or not of the dishes set before them to make them feel by our cordial manners, rather than by words, that we like to share our best things with them, and are pleased to have them enjoy them, while we will not make them eat merely to please us, but let us talk of something besides the food. Cheerful conversation at table promotes digestion.—Faith Rochester.

Jealousy of Beauty.

I have been credibly informed that all the present beauties do not admire one another; but I am not aware that any of the number has suffered the savage treatment undergone by poor Lady Seymour, the queen of beauty of the Eglinton tournament. Forty years ago, a curious little correspondence came to light. Lady Seymour wrote to Lady Shuckburgh to make enquiries as to the capacity for plain cooking of a woman named Stedman. Lady Shuckburgh replied that she kept a housekeeper and professed cook, and knew nothing of the underlings. Lady Seymour wrote again to say that she had understood that the school-room table of the little Shuckburghs had been supplied by means of the plain cookery of Stedman. To this Lady Shuckburgh made no reply in person, but dictated to her husband a note to this effect:—"Stedman informs me that your Ladyship does not keep either a cook or a housekeeper, and that you only require a cook who can cook a mutton chop; if so, Stedman or any other scullion will be found fully equal to cook for, or manage the establishment of the Queen of Beauty." The irrepressible self-betrayal of the last sentence is profoundly feminine. The beautiful lady Seymour's chastisement of the inveterate Shuckburgh was, however, simple and effectual; there were no "society suppers" in those days, but she found means to make the letter public.—The World.

About the last of October a very curious and wonderful plant was exhibited in Portland, Oregon, and a local newspaper gives a description of it. The plant is said to be indigenous to Japan, and its technical nature has not been announced, but it is appropriately known as the "baby plant." It is of the genus lily, varies from two to four feet in height, has leaves about six inches long and two wide, and blossoms semi-annually. The flower is star-shaped having five petals of a handsome brown and yellow color. The calyx encircles and protects a tiny little figure that bears an exact resemblance to a nude baby, its little arms and legs outstretched, and the eyes distinctly marked. Hovering over this diminutive form is a small canopy, angel-shaped, having extended arms and wings and peering closely into the face of the infant. The curious family of plants of which the "baby" is a member is also said to produce perfect imitations—if they may be so designated—of different animals, insects and birds. The paper from which we gather our information quaintly remarks that when the plant on exhibition in Portland is fully matured and in full bloom, "it will look like a shipwrecked foundling hospital."—Harper's Bazaar.

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

Friday, Dec. 19.—There has been little doing to-day at the market. Wheat continues to come forward, although lower prices rule; $1.23 was the highest paid for spring, and $1.25 for winter wheat. Peas were commanding 66cts. to-day; several loads were brought in, and sold for shipment. Very little pork made its appearance, and was sold at quotations. Hay still continues to come forward, at the low figures quoted, $6.00 being the rule. Wood went slowly; there were many loads in to-day. What is said of to-day's market, will apply to yesterday's market as well.

ENGLAND.

According to West End, London, gossip, the libels in Town Talk on Mrs. Langtry and Mrs. Cornwallis West, for which Mr. Rosenberg is undergoing imprisonment, are the work of a rival beauty, who found herself eclipsed by their superior charms. Her father's name appears in the baronets' list, and money and influence were successfully interposed to prevent exposure.

One of the strangest romances ever unfolded in a law court has just been disclosed before Sir James Hannen, in connection with a life insurance case. The facts are as follows:—In October, 1878, a Mr. Randolf Payne, of Mousley left home on a pleasure tour and visited Barmouth, a Welsh watering place at the foot of Cader Idis. Barmouth is notoriously a dangerous bathing resort, and when in the same month Mr. Payne's clothes were found lying on the beach, it was naturally taken for granted that their owner had become another victim to incautious bathing. The death of Mr. Randolf Payne being assumed, his father took out letters of administration and realized among other effects, certain valuable life policies. In July, however, of the present year, a Mr. Donald Drysdale, a Mincing-lane merchant, who is well acquainted with the Payne family, recognized the lost one at San Francisco. It then transpired that Mr. Randolf Payne having been in pecuniary difficulties had determined on visiting Barmouth to "disappear" in such a manner as to convey the impression that he had been drowned while bathing. He had, therefore left his hotel provided with an extra suit, and so skillfully arranged matters on the sea shore as to effectually deceive those who subsequently came to search for him. Mr. Drysdale's testimony was confirmed by a letter from the runaway himself, and as an immediate consequence of this extraordinary escapade, Mr. Payne, senior, will be called upon to refund the amount of the life-policies which he had received when innocently administering the effects of his still living son. It may be interesting to note that this case is almost the exact counterpart of an ideal one, used by Mr. G. R. Sims as the groundwork of the plot of one of his "Social Kaleidoscope" scenes; thus affording proof that truth is sometimes as strange—if not stranger—than fiction.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil combines in such an eminent degree all the healing, curative and extracting qualities known to medical science that it is truly a family medicine that cannot be dispensed with. When applied to any swelling sore, burn, chilblain, frostbites, skin eruption, etc., its effects are magical. It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificate of its merits. w51-d129-2w

Victoria Hypophosphites extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing from the foundation, correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving nature to perform its allotted part. It is the finest nervine remedy known, and the greatest brain and blood food in the world. For sale by all dealers. $1 per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil combined with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d129w49-1m

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy," persist in eating green apples? [illegible] since our original parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

The Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club.

The Peterborough Tuque Bleue Snow Shoe Club will meet at the Huffman House this evening, when it is expected that all the members will be on hand. Plans for the coming season are to be discussed.

A Serious Accident.

Yesterday Mr. Robert Heffernan fell from a load of straw and dislocated his arm at the shoulder. Dr. R. Kincaid reduced the dislocation. He is getting on as well as could be expected.

Firemen's Meeting.

The special meeting of the Fire Brigade, called for last evening did not take place, owing, it is said, to the non-appearance of the keys of the hall. Another attempt will be made on Monday evening when the hall will be opened and the meeting held.

Enjoying the Sleighing.

Last evening a large number of young people enjoyed the fine sleighing we have in town, although the thermometer indicated a low temperature. Snow and sleigh bells are electrifying. We heard of no runaways or breakdowns, and it is fair to presume that no serious mishaps occurred.

Entertainment.

Every preparation has been completed for the entertainment to be given to-night in Bradburn's Opera House, by the Peterborough Collegiate Institute Literary Association. A large number of tickets have been sold, and a crowded house is looked for. The programme is attractive, and will not fail to be appreciated.

Sent to His Aunt.

The little lad, whose parents were this morning remanded by the Magistrate to give them time to sober sufficiently to answer the charge made against them, has been sent to his aunt who resides near Millbrook. Constable Johnson placed him on board the cars at the Midland Station, having procured a ticket for his passage.

O. Y. B. Ball.

The annual ball of the Orange Young Britons, which takes place on Christmas Eve, at Bradburn's Hall, is expected to be one of no ordinary interest, as there will be a large number of invited guests present. Mr. W. J. Gibson, Grand Master, Toronto, has signified his intention to be present as the guest of the Young Briton's lodge in this town.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: moderate to fresh wind; cloudy, continued cold weather, with snow. In Peterborough there was a light fall of snow last night. This morning an easterly wind prevailed, clear and cold; afternoon cloudy with light snow. The thermometer at 8 o'clock this morning indicated 10°; at 10 o'clock, 13°; with very little change during the latter part of the day.

The Curling and Skating Rink.

The Curling Rink is now ready for the curlers, the ice being in splendid condition. The Skating Rink has had its last flooding, and will be hard enough for use by to-morrow evening, unless the weather moderates. It will not, however, be thrown open to the public until Monday, at which time the ice will be solid from the surface to the bottom. Skaters may therefore look for a realization of their fond hopes on Monday next. The proper announcement will be made to-morrow.

POLICE COURT.

KEEPING HOUSE OF ILL-FAME.

Friday, Dec. 19.—Chief Constable Johnston laid a complaint against George Masters and Elizabeth Masters charging them with keeping a house of ill-fame. They were accompanied by a little son about 8 years of age, who appeared a bright and intelligent lad. They were both drunk and in no condition to defend themselves although they denied the charge. They were remanded until Wednesday, December 24th.

TORONTO.

A Liberal Gift.—Mr. Robert Hay, M.P., has offered an annual scholarship of $40, to be competed for next summer at the Collegiate Institute.

THE AFGHANISTAN WAR.

APPREHENSIONS OF MUTINY.

London, Dec. 18.—The state of feeling at the War and Foreign Offices to-day is one of almost utter consternation. Lord Napier has been summoned from Gibraltar by telegraph to consult with the War Office. The opinion prevails that not only is Gen. Roberts in danger of destruction with his whole army, but that a general mutiny may be expected in India.

CALL FOR OFFICERS AS VOLUNTEERS.

A Calcutta despatch says that in consequence of the exceptionally heavy loss of superior officers in the recent conflicts in Afghanistan, the Indian Government has asked for volunteers, and and a despatch goes forward to England to-day, making this known. The Government more especially desires good staff officers, and those skilled in transportation and commissary service. Preference will be given to young and smart officers, and tempting offers of promotion will be held out to them.

SCANT NEWS.

Gen. Bright reports that the hill tribes attacked Gen. Gough on the 16th instant. Gen. Bright is pushing forward reinforcements. Gen. Roberts telegraphed from Cabul on the 16th that his troops were in excellent spirits, but gave no other news.

NATIVE FEROCITY.

Details of the fighting at Cabul show the people of the city and the villagers vied with each other in murdering and mutilating the stragglers and wounded men of the British army, some being actually murdered within 200 yards of the wall of Shirpur.

GEN. GOUGH BESIEGED.

The Lahore Gazette asserts that General Gough's brigade has taken refuge in the fort at Jagdullak. Several thousand Ghilzais are threatening it, and throwing up defences on the hills. General Gough has only six days' provisions.

RUSSIA'S GOLD AND UNIFORMS.

The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that Yakoob Khan's buried treasure, recently recovered at Cabul, was all in Russian gold; and some Afghan regulars were dressed in Russian uniforms which in many cases had the Russian eagle on the buttons.

By Telegram to the Review.

RUMOURED JEALOUSIES.

London, Dec. 19.—The Afghan excitement is at fever heat. It is roundly declared that the relations between the English Generals are anything but harmonious, and that the infantry are still sore with the cavalry for having allowed the enemy to escape after Chara Siab, and the troops are still jealous of the praise which Roberts lavished on four regiments.

MYSTERIOUS ASSAULT IN TORONTO.

A Citizen Attacked in the Street, Stabbed in the Face and Seriously Wounded.

About 7.30 last evening, as Mr. Arno, of 8 Bellair Street, Yorkville, and a friend, whose name could not be ascertained, were crossing Yonge Street, near St. Mary's Street, a man rushed up and struck Arno's friend in the face with a knife or axe, splitting his nose and cutting a large piece out of his upper lip, and then ran off. Mr. Arno can assign no reason for this outrageous assault, as they were going home quietly from work. An express waggon was procured, and the injured man conveyed to Mr. Arno's house. P. C. Wright was informed of the occurrence, and summoned Dr. Armstrong, who sewed up the man's wounds, which he pronounced dangerous.—Mail Dec. 19.

FATAL RESULT.

John McEvry, the Paterson boy whose head was almost cut in two by a buzz-saw a week ago, died yesterday. His case was regarded as very remarkable.

The lad was sent with another boy to the carpenter shop of the Watson Machine Works near by for a keg of sawdust, to be used in cleaning the castings in the bolt works. He crawled under the table of a circular saw for the sawdust. The saw had been stopped to mend the belt, and the man in charge did not notice the boy under the table, and after mending the belt he started the saw. It ran hard, as if it had struck a knot in the plank, and the next minute the man saw a hat fly from under the table. He stopped the machine and looked under the table and for the first time saw the boy, with his head almost literally sawed in two. A subsequent examination showed that the saw had run from near the back of the left ear, across the top of head, down through the forehead, between the eye and the nose, without injuring the eyeball, and through the nose, so that one nostril was sawed clear from the other. The saw penetrated the brain around the ear to the depth of from one and a half to three inches. Singular to say, the boy retained his consciousness throughout, and while he was being taken to the office of Dr. Garnett, where the scalp was sewed up. Dr. Warner assisted in this operation, and the physicians could see the pulsations of the brain through the opening. Both said that the lad could live only a short time. The lad was in the physician's office over an hour, and during this time was perfectly conscious, and he told all about the accident. He said the pain was very great, but he refrained from crying, and pinched the nails of his hands into the palms until the blood ran, rather than make an outcry. When he was removed to the Sisters' Hospital, he was able to lift a glass of stimulant to his lips, and drink without assistance.

An Unfortunate Whistle.

A Jewish pedlar recently travelling on foot through the Grodno District, Poland, was attacked in a wood by a footpad, who robbed him of all the money he had about him, and then let him go. Proceeding on his way, the plundered pedlar met a mounted gendarme, to whom he related his mishap, and who proceeded at once to search for the robber, accompanied by the plundered man. They soon came up with the object of their quest, upon whose person the stolen money was found, as well as two clasp knives and a pocket-whistle, of which "unconsidered trifles" the gendarme took possession. Having bound the culprit's hands behind him and attached him to the gendarme's saddle by a cord, they started for the nearest village, the pedlar on foot, the police officer on horseback. Presently it occurred to the latter that he might ascertain what sort of a tone could be produced by the confiscated whistle, which he accordingly put to his lips and blew with untimely vigour. Straightway there appeared upon the scene a horde of armed brigands, who surrounded the party, and after freeing their comrade from his bonds, attacked his captors. The gendarme put spurs to his horse, broke through the circle of his assailants, and got away with a bullet in his shoulder. But the unfortunate pedlar, unable to escape, fell a victim to the brutality of the bandits, who hacked his body to pieces and left his mutilated remains on the high road.

We use a large number of horses and mules in our business, and have [illegible] that Giles Liniment Iodide Ammonia has. For windgalls, puffs, swellings, cuts, and lameness in either limbs shoulders or lions, bruises, galls from saddle or collars, I pronounce it the most valuable remedy that has ever come under my observation.

THE CHILIAN VICTORY.

London, Dec. 18.—Details of the last Chilian victory state that the allied force of Peruvians and Bolivians 11,000 strong, marching northwards from Noria to effect a junction with a re-inforcement 5,000 under the command of the President of Bolivia attacked on the 21st Nov., the Chilian advanced corps of 6,000 men, who occupied the entrenched position of Dolores near Agua Santa. The Chilians heavy cannon committed great ravages among the enemy, whose cavalry charged three times and attempted to carry the guns off but unsuccessfully. In threatening the rear of the Chilian force came up and the Allied forces were driven back. Their camp was taken with thirteen cannon and many wounded officers including the Bolivian General Villegas, were taken prisoners. Another of the allied generals was killed. The losses of the Chilians are heavy.

THE SPANISH FLOODS.

The fete to-night organized by the Paris journalists for the relief of the sufferers by the floods in Spain, promises a great pecuniary success. The Spanish representative in Paris insists that half the proceeds shall be given to the poor of that city.

INCREASED WAGES.

London, Dec. 18.—In consequence of the revival of the cotton trade the Lancashire, Cheshire and Derbyshire weavers will apply for an immediate increase of wages.

THE DISTRESS IN IRELAND.

Dublin, Dec. 18.—The Duchess of Marlborough, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland intends to start a relief fund for the sufferers in Ireland, and appeals for contributions. She says that while the present distress is not for a moment comparable to that of 1847, still undoubtedly in parts of Kerry, Galway, Sligo, Mayo, Roscommon, Donegal and Cork, there will be extreme misery and suffering among the poor.

THE CHANNEL SQUADRON.

London, Dec. 18.—The several ships belonging to the Channel Squadron will, in all probability, be ordered to the Tagus. The crews will spend their Christmas at Lisbon.

MORTALITY AMONG REFUGEES.

London, Dec. 18.—Telegrams from Rustchuk and Philipopolis announce frightful mortality among the Mussulmen refugees, and say if something is not done to prevent it, there may be a terrible epidemic.

ATTEMPT AT ASSASSINATION.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 18.—The police have discovered another secret printing establishment in St. Petersburg, from which seditious prints are being circulated by the Nihilists. A fruitless attempt has been made at Moscow on the life of Prince Dolgorouki, Governor of Moscow, by the explosion of powder. The Czar has appointed an Imperial Commission to enquire into the administrative reforms for Russia, and to recommend those that are practicable and expedient. M. Drentein, Chief of the Russian Police, has tendered his resignation.

AMERICAN.

LEAVING THE RING.

New York, Dec. 18.—It is stated that Dwyer, the pugilist, refuses to fight Ryan, of Troy, at present, because Dwyer is a candidate for Clerk of Justice Courtney's Court in Brooklyn, and wishes to retire from the ring.

UNDER MANY NAMES.

New Haven, Dec. 18.—George. W. Bocemedes has been arrested at West Haven for an alleged fraudulent use of the mails. He manufactures photograph albums and visiting cards, sells cheap, and advertises in sensational ways under aliases, including Ray Brothers and the Franklin Printing Co.

A RAILWAY CONFLICT.

Denver, Dec. 18.—Advices from Santa Fe, indicate the possibility of the repetition of a struggle between the Denver and Rio Grande Company, and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Company in the valley of the Rio Grande, between Santa Fe and Elpaso, over the right of way. Both parties have located their lines over practically the same ground. The Rio Grande Company, under a decision of the Supreme Court, claims that it has a prior right. The Atchison Company claiming a right under the General Act of 1875, has put men to work. A conflict seems unavoidable.

DISMISSAL AND SUICIDE.

Santa Fe, Dec. 18.—Lieut. Merritt's suicide seems to have been premeditated. He had been informed on the previous day of his dismissal from the army, for conduct unbecoming an officer.

DISAPPOINTMENT AND SUICIDE.

Providence, Dec. 18.—James Melledge Flagg, aged 64, formerly a dry goods dealer, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself. He had invented a loom, which was to be built in Manchester, and the failure of the negotiations depressed him.

SHERMAN'S VIEWS.

New York, Dec. 18.—A Washington special report to the Tribune says that Secretary Sherman said last evening, regarding the Democrats: —"Those fellows are idiots." Concerning the proposition that the legislature of New York and of other Republican States shall elect presidental electors. Sherman said:—"If that is what the Democrats want and are going to do, I should favor the adoption of the same plan by the Republicans. There is an undoubted constitutional right to do so, and the State Election of last fall gave us power to do it. I should, however, counsel our people to keep cool and await developments. The Democrats are working for us."

FATAL MINING ACCIDENT.

Pittston, Pa., Dec. 18.—Jacob Boyer was instantly killed, and two other men were injured by a fall of coal at the Delaware and Hudson Company's No. 4 mine yesterday.

A DISHONEST BOOKKEEPER.

New York, Dec. 18.—Asa R. Cassidy, formerly bookkeeper for Chas. A. Eaton & Co., cotton brokers, was arrested yesterday on a civil suit, charging him with the embezzlement from that firm of over $4,000.

OUT OF PRISON TO MARRY.

Louis Kulke, a saloon keeper, who was recently convicted for a criminal assault upon a young girl, has been pardoned by the Government, and was released yesterday. The pardon was obtained at the instance of the friends of the girl, whom Kulke promised to marry.

FLEEING FROM A SUITOR.

Agnes Nelson, a prepossessing young lady in Paterson disappeared last week. She recently engaged to marry a young man whom she had for six years repeatedly refused, and it is believed that distaste for the marriage led her to flee. She left a note saying she had gone to parts unknown.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1879.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

MILLBROOK

Special to the Review, Dec. 20.

A NEW RINK.—Several enterprising parties are erecting a covered rink on the ice at the head of Mr. McIvor's pond. It will be stationary, as the posts are sunk into the ground, the water being shallow at that point. A large attendance is expected, as the rink has every convenience. Mr. Walton is the manager. The size of the rink is thirty by ninety feet.

WINNIPEG

Special to the Review, Dec. 20.

FATAL EXPLOSION.—An explosion of nitro-glycerine on the Canada Pacific Railway, near Rat Portage, killed four men and wounded three. The man holding the can of nitro-glycerine slipped, causing the accident.

THE ELECTION.—The full significance of the elections cannot appear until the Legislature meets. The Conservative paper here is sure the Opposition can carry the House, and the only obstacle to success will be the possible delay in the House meeting. The encouragement given to the Grit cause by articles in the Conservative papers favoring the Norquay Government may have the effect of endangering the Provencher election.

MONTREAL.

Special to the Review, Dec. 20.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Board of Trade at their meeting last evening, after hearing the delegates, unanimously passed the following resolution:—"Resolved, that having heard Messrs. Kesler and Carnegie, from Peterborough relative to the Trent Valley Canal project, this Council is of opinion that the said work appears to be one of the greatest importance in the development of the system of inland navigation of the Dominion, and as such deserves the careful consideration of the Government, and that a memorial to this effect be prepared, and forwarded to the Government."

SIR F. HINCKS.—In the Court of appeals to-day Mr. Justice Ramsay delivered judgment, [illegible] in the case of Sir Francis Hincks. The Court held that the Government form, upon which the return was made, was defective; that the act of Parliament did not define distinctly enough the headings under which the statements should be made, and that there was no fraudulent intention on the part of defendant, who had complied, so far as he could, with the Act. All the Judges present expressed their concurrence. Sir Francis Hincks was warmly congratulated. There was no demonstration.

THE AFGHANISTAN WAR.

INCREASING DIFFICULTIES IN THE WAY OF RELIEVING THE ARMY AT CABUL.

Reinforcements for the Seat of War—Gen. Roberts Holding His Own—Gen. Gough's Advance—The Hill Tribes Quiet.

GEN. GOUGH'S COMMAND.

A Calcutta despatch says:—Gen. Gough left Jugdulak on the 12th for Cabul. Col. Norman, with two native infantry regiments, left Jellalabad with Gen. Gough's command, who, up to yesterday, had encountered no opposition. A despatch from Gen. Roberts on Dec. 14th, says he is at Shirpur, able to hold his own. Gen. Gough's advance from Jugdulak has been delayed by a scarcity of supplies. Convoys will be despatched daily from Gundamuk. A detachment under Col. Acton left Jellalabad on Thursday, and succeeded in communicating with a division of Gen. Gough's on the same day. No serious opposition is said to have been encountered between Peizirau and Jugdulak, the latter point being about half way between Jellalabad and Cabul.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR AFGHANISTAN.

After the Cabinet Council to-day, the authorities of the War Office held a meeting lasting several hours, considering the advisability of sending reinforcements to Afghanistan.

THE COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mohmunds, Afridies, Shenwaris, and other hill tribes from whom opposition was expected, are, thus far, quiet. The telegraph lines are still in working order to Peizirau, altough interrupted elsewhere. The opinion is freely expressed at Calcutta that the difficulties in the way of relieving the army at Cabul are already very much more serious than are indicated by the official despatches, and that they are constantly increasing.

By Telegram to the Review.

GEN. ROBERTS CONFIDENT.

BOMBAY, Dec. 20.—Gen. Roberts' statements of his ability to hold his position and to take the offensive on a favorable opportunity have been so positive that the anxiety at first felt on behalf of the garrison in the Shirpur Cantonments is much abated.

GEN. BRIGHT ADVANCING.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—An official despatch from Gen. Bright, dated December 18th, informed the Viceroy that Gen. Gough was unable to force his way to Cabul with his brigade. Bright proposed to hold the posts from India to Gundamuk and advance on Cabul with 8,000 men. A telegram from Peizirau to-day says there has been no serious fighting and that all is well.

GHOUL-LIKE REJOICINGS.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The Russian press is very violent in its criticisms on affairs in Afghanistan. The Gazette De St. Petersburg says we must candidly confess Russia would not break her heart in the probable event of Roberts' columns sharing the fate of Cavagnari's embassy.

THE MAY LAWS IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—The Prussian Landtag has rejected the petition of the local authorities of Elbing against Herr von Puttkammer's interdiction of the new secular school there. This is regarded by some as further evidence of the Government's inclination to mitigate the severity of the May laws, in view of bringing about a modus vivendi with the Vatican.

RELIEF FOR THE DISTRESSED.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—The Bishop of Cleveland, Ohio, has forwarded to the Bishop of Ross, $1,000 for the poor of Ireland. Lord Beaconsfield has subscribed $500 to the Irish Distress Fund.

The remains of the lunatic were found in the ruins. The loss is $2,500.

THE WALKING FRAUDS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Ennis, the pedestrian, sues James Cusick, his trainer during the recent walking match, to recover money alleged to have been illegally obtained. It is stated that the true inwardness of the Rowell walk will be exposed during this trial and will show that it was arranged how the walkers should come in at the close for the benefit of the bookmakers.

UNITED STATES TRADE.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—The Philadelphia Commercial Exchange gave Grant a public reception at noon to-day at the Exchange buildings, which were beautifully decorated. In response to a welcome, Grant said:—"My visits abroad have enabled me to see how greatly our foreign trade can be increased. In Europe it is already well taken care of, but in the East, America is only beginning to be appreciated. We are now badly represented there, and will be until our policy shall be so changed as to allow our representatives to increase their compensation by acting as business agents of American manufacturers and business houses, thus making it to their interest to develop our trade, rather than to depress it, as at present."

A FAMILY DISPUTE.

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 20.—James H. Arnold, who fatally shot R. E. Little yesterday, was the latter's brother-in-law. They had been unfriendly for years. Recently, a large estate was left them, and Little objected to a claim for $4,000, which Arnold held against the estate, and declared that it had been improperly obtained. This increased the bitterness between them. Little was a prominent lawyer, a Democrat ex-Member of the Legislature, and was thought of as a candidate for Congress next year. Arnold is a successful dry goods merchant.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—A Washington special report to the World says that it is generally expected that a stirring financial agitation will be begun on the reassembling of Congress. The indications are that all party lines will be broken. Several western and south-western Senators have agreed upon resolutions which will probably be presented after recess. The resolutions affirm that gold and silver are the true currency of the country, that all paper money should be issued by the Government, that it should not be legal tender, but should be receivable for indebtedness to the United States, and should be redeemable in coin. The resolutions affirm that changes in currency should not go into effect before 1882. Bayard called the principles downright Greenbackism.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

THE delegates to Ottawa in connection with the Trent Valley Canal are requested to go there on Monday if possible, so as to be able to meet at the Russell House at 9 o'clock sharp on Tuesday morning. A number of the delegates from Victoria purpose going down to-night.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

We take the following letter from the columns of the Montreal Gazette :—

DEAR SIR,—In a previous letter I endeavoured to point out as briefly as I could the relative merits of railways and canals for the transport of heavy and bulky articles of commerce, and I now desire, as briefly as possible, to call attention to the relative advantages of the water routes from the west to the seaboard, both in use and proposed. Happily for the great interior of this continent, nature has done very much to provide a cheap and ample outlet for its products; but, at the same time a glance at the map serves to show that following the course of our great lakes from the Straits of Mackinac, or the Sault Ste. Marie to the seaboard at Montreal, is a most circuitous route—one which should be shortened wherever possible. Looking at the map of Ontario, it will readily be observed that although the waters of the Georgian Bay travel hundreds of miles before they reach the east end of Lake Ontario, yet they are, as the crow flies, little more than a hundred miles from the same point. Nor is this all. A still closer examination of the same map reveals the fact that a line stretched from the Straits of Mackinac to Kingston, falls upon a chain of lakes lying between the Georgian Bay and the Bay of Quinte of no mean dimensions, and indicating that here again nature has done much to very materially shorten the water route between the west and the east. Although attention was early in our history directed to this as the most feasible route for a canal between the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario—the most easterly of our great lakes—yet a variety of circumstances have prevented its hitherto receiving that attention which its merits deserve. Unfortunately for the Trent canal, no great city was interested in its construction as a local work. Montreal cared not which route was chosen so long as it gave promise of facilitating the transport of grain to that point, while Toronto's local interests are directly opposed to its construction. Moreover for a time attention was directed entirely to so improving the construction between the great lakes as to permit the passage of sea-going vessels to Lakes Michigan and Superior, and the shipment of cargoes from thence to Liverpool without breaking bulk. Recent experience, however, goes to prove that Montreal is the practical, as well as the natural terminus of the ocean voyage, and that the most economical and therefore the best vessel for the Atlantic, is as unsuited, as unnecessarily expensive for our canals and rivers. I presume it will not be denied, and I will not therefore stop to argue the point, that to transport freight on each of these three kinds of water-ways at the lowest possible rate, requires vessels specially adapted to each. That lake vessels cannot be profitably employed on any length of river or canal navigation is amply proved by the fact that those coming from the West with cargoes for Montreal find it better to tranship at Kingston than proceed with it themselves to its destination. It is also evident that in the past far too much stress has been laid upon the cost of transhipment, and that the cost of the delay of a lake vessel in a canal or a river, will speedily counterbalance such an expense; while so far as the grain is concerned, it cannot be denied that such transhipments, apart from expense, are an actual benefit. As, however, unnecessary transhipments are to be avoided, and as more or less of canal and river navigation between the West and the seaboard must be encountered, it must be obvious that the route which will, to the greatest extent, bring together the canal, river and land-locked navigation, will have a decided advantage over its competitors; and if, in addition to doing so, it be the shortest route, it must eventually, to the extent of its capacity, become the highway for grain from the west to the seaboard. That the Trent Valley route possesses every one of these advantages, I believe is beyond question. From Chicago and Milwaukee, the run to the western terminus of the proposed canal is open water of ample depth, with ample sea room, the narrowest point—the Straits of Mackinac—being about five miles wide, while from Duluth and Thunder Bay there is only the single lock and canal of a mile at the Sault Ste. Marie to pass, with the choice of the sheltered navigation behind the Manitoulin Islands, or the open waters of Lake Huron, from thence to the Trent Canal. From the western terminus of the canal, again all the way to Montreal it is one continuous line of barge navigation, three-fourths of which is through land-locked lakes and rivers, affording the most unlimited facilities for towage, and costing not a single cent for maintenance. By this route, from the time the sailing vessel leaves Chicago until she reaches the harbour of her destination, she requires the aid of no tug, whereas if she goes to Buffalo, she has to be towed 51 miles, to encounter the dangers incident to them and Lake Erie, pay insurance in proportion thereto, and travel at least 316 miles further. At Buffalo the same transhipment to barge has to take place as at the Georgian Bay, but, while the barge has had to be hauled by horses, and now by wire cables at a limited rate of speed, 352 miles of actual canal, passed through 72 locks, and 151 miles down the Hudson River, the barge leaving Georgian Bay passes through only about 100 miles of actual canal, open to towage of any kind at any rate of speed, through 55 locks, and through 450 miles of land-locked lake and river navigation, and making the total distance from the Georgian Bay to Montreal 33 miles less than from Buffalo to New York, and making the total distance from Chicago to Montreal by the Trent Valley route 710 miles less than by the Welland Canal route to the same place, and 358 miles less than to New York.

From the foregoing brief statement of indisputable facts, it will be seen that the Trent Valley route possesses a decided and marked advantage over every other route in every respect, except that of lockages, but the difference in mileage, in class of boats which can be used, in the facility for towage, in the comparative coolness of the water, during the hot season, and in its avoiding the dangers and consequent high insurance of the other routes, this extra lockage becomes insignificant as compared with the advantages. And when combined with all these is the great and important fact that it can be completed for the modest sum of less than three million dollars, I am sure if the citizens of Montreal will only look into the matter they will do what in them lies to secure its immediate construction. Moreover, in view of the reported acquisition of the Midland Railway by the Grand Trunk, this undertaking is of increased importance both to Montreal and that Company. Both the railway and canal are required to draw to the Georgian Bay and thence to Montreal its fair share of Western trade. With the two in working order and the facilities which they would undoubtedly afford for trade, between Montreal and the west direct, instead of through a rival city, Montreal would undoubtedly be largely benefitted, in many other respects than the shipping interests. At least that is the view taken of the matter by its advocates, and all they ask is a thorough investigation into all the circumstances and facts connected with the scheme, and upon the result thereof they are prepared to rest their case.

Yours,
JOHN CARNEGIE.

LITHOGRAPHIC STONE.

We have to acknowledge the receipt from Mr. Dillingham, the gentleman who was engaged last autumn in developing the Lithographic Quarry on Pigeon Lake, of a very beautiful lithographic engraving, printed on the Pigeon Lake stone. The work was done at the large printing establishment of Armstrong & Co., of Boston, and the numerous employees of that firm are all of the opinion that a better stone was never brought into a printing office. The quality is, indeed, excellent—as the softness and delicacy of the lines in the picture forwarded to us abundantly testify. The difficulty as to obtaining stones of a large size has yet to be met, but in the spring a vigorous effort will be made to discover a quarry, in the very large deposit which exists, where stones of a large size can be obtained. The present success has been sufficient to justify the gentlemen who have been engaged in developing the quarry in forming a company and continuing the operations. Mr. Dillingham will return to Pigeon Lake in the spring and spare no exertions in search for a quarry of large sized stones. The company was formed and was duly registered at Augusta, in Maine, on the 15th of November last. Mr. E. C. Allen, and J. P. Wyman, of Augusta, and Dr. McLellan, of New York are appointed selling agents for the United States and foreign countries, and Mr. Dillingham, of Quebec, is the manufacturing and selling agent for Canada. The capital is $162,000 in shares of $100 each. Therefore those who believe there is a fortune to be made in the quarrying of this stone have now an opportunity of sending in $10 and becoming a Stockholder in the adventure. Let us hope that a sufficient number of enterprising men will be found to contribute the funds for a thorough development of what may prove to be a most valuable and profitable enterprise. That the stone is of admirable quality is placed beyond all doubt, the only point to be established is as to the deposit furnishing stones of a large size. Next spring this doubt may possibly be removed, and an industry be commenced which cannot fail to be as profitable to the proprietors as it will be advantageous to this neighborhood. Again we say, let those who have money, and wish to develop the resources of this neighborhood, take shares in this company, and thus assist in so laudable an enterprise. Who will be the first to take a share and risk $10? We propose to publish the names of all those in this district who take stock. The Company is thoroughly respectable, and in every way worthy of public confidence.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

SOULE AND THE PRIZE.

The President of the medicine-vending company has sent the following letter to Referee Blaikie :—

ROCHESTER, Dec. 16, 1879.

William Blaikie, Esq:

DEAR SIR,—Your favor of 11th inst. was given to me to answer on my return to-day from Toronto. We will give the same full and free consent to the payment of the Hop Bitters' prize as Mr. Hanlan names in his proposition of the 11th inst., if Courtney does the same, provided there is no collusion between them as to its disposition. In explanation to my telegram to you of the 11th inst., I have to say Mr. Hanlan came to our office in Toronto on the 9th inst., and, in a long and cordial interview, offered to row Mr. Courtney at any time, and named five or six weeks, and asked if the Hop Bitters Company would not make the offer that the race should be rowed within that time, the company to pay the $6,000 to which ever won the race, or rowed over the course if the other one did not row, alone. I said that was a fair offer on his part, in the present condition of the affair, but at least it might be charged that his offer was made because he knew Courtney was sick, and could not row (as I had told him that I had received two letters from Courtney's physicians, saying he was sick, and nothing to the contrary) it would be best to first find out Courtney's condition. I told him I would find out Courtney's condition and disposition on my return home and report to him; he then could do as was best. Next day we had another like interview, in which he said his offer was too liberal. I told him it was all the better. I also told him our company would not make the offer that looked like compelling a sick man to row in mid-winter or lose his right to row for the prize, and that he and we both should know that Courtney was well and that the season would permit a race, before publishing the offer. Hanlan said the more he thought of my suggestion the better it looked and the best thing to do. He said he had intended to go to see you, but now saw no use of it, as he could do nothing. When he left I thought we both fully understood that Courtney's condition was first to be ascertained before anything else was said or done. Hanlan, in these interviews, was so [illegible] in his willingness to row, and Courtney had so often said to me he was anxious to row Hanlan, that I believed a race was sure to come off soon, and thinking you would be glad to learn anything that was tending to bring about what you had worked so long and zealously for, I sent the despatch, not knowing that Hanlan was in New York. I said at the time I sent the despatch he had not gone. The despatch was intended as private.

I will only add that since I sent the despatch matters have assumed an aspect that would seem to require no explanation. I still believe that there will be a race, for neither party can afford to make terms that are unchangeable to the detriment of other parties, and I believe you can bring about a good and honourable race. I now think it would have been better to have taken the course mentioned in the explanation. Don't give up the ship.

Very truly yours,
A. T. SOULE, President.

BOBCAYGEON.

THE RIVER.—The Independent says:—The water is now higher than it was last spring, and great complaints are being made in consequence. The mill of Messrs. Needler and Sadler, in Lindsay, is about stopped in consequence of the excess of back water. There ought to be some explanation given of the reason why the water is kept so high. Why not take out the logs? Let us know the reason.

FISH SLIDE LADDER.—Mr. Kennedy is repairing the dam, and has a coffer dam now erected. It is expected that any repair to the fish ladder is not in his instructions. This is [illegible] importance, and the [illegible] should be [illegible] telegraphed to by the Game Protection Society or by somebody.

A NOBLE DEED.

In a dreadfully cold winter, many years ago an army was flying from Moscow, a city in Russia. With this army there was a German prince and some German soldiers. One by one the marching soldiers fell down by the way and perished of cold and hunger. At length, at the end of one day, when only a mere handful of them were alive, the prince and a few common soldiers, and these were all nearly spent, they came up to the remains of a hovel once built to shelter cattle, now ruined by storms, which had blown it all to pieces. But in the wild, snow-covered waste they did not despise it; even a prince was glad of a little shelter from the sleet and wind of the coming night which this tumble-down shed could afford. And there, hungry, cold, and weary, he and his men lay down to sleep. The men were rough, stern-looking fellows, yet the sight of one so delicately brought up, used to comforts which they had never known, spent, heart and body, come to such want, glad to sleep in such a wretched place, touched them. The sight of him asleep, no bed, no covering, probably sleeping his last sleep, was more than they could stand. They took their own cloaks off, and laid them all on him gently, one by one, lest they should awake him. He would be warm with these, perhaps he would live with these. Then they threw themselves down to sleep.

The night passed. The prince awoke. "Where am I?" was his first thought. "Am I at home, in bed? I am so warm!" and he turned over and raised himself up to look about. He was not at home. All around was snow, and all was silent save the wind, which whistled through the planks of the broken shed. Where were his men? He stood up and looked, when, lo! there they lay, huddled together to keep warm, not yet awake. He spoke, but they answered not. He advanced to touch them—they were dead! Without their cloaks, too! Where were their cloaks? Another glance toward where he had lain and all was plain. The prince burst into tears. His men were dead to save him alive. Now, was not the deed, those rough soldiers' deed, a noble deed? Their hearts were gracious hearts; they graciously took upon themselves the death another should have died.—Sunday Magazine.

A RESCUE IN MID-OCEAN.

Terrible Sufferings of a British Ship's Crew in the Open Boat.

The other day the ship Calliope, of Windsor, Nova Scotia, arrived at Boston, having on board the master and four of the crew of the British ship Editha, lost in mid-ocean on her way from London to New York. It appears that shortly before daybreak on November 25, a small light ahead was discovered from the deck of the Calliope, and as the day broke a small boat was seen, having on board five exhausted, [illegible] men, one of whom carried in his hand an extinguished torch. The unhappy crew having been lifted on board, they said that in the second week of their voyage they experienced fearful weather, during which the cargo—grain—shifted, and could not be put to rights again even in the fair weather which succeeded. On November 20 another fearful gale struck them, and the ship became water-logged. Towards night on the 21st it became evident that the barque could not keep afloat many hours longer. As the Editha settled down lower and lower in the water, the danger of the boats being washed away became more apparent. No vessel was in sight at dusk, and Captain Trainor directed his men to get the boats in readiness to abandon the vessel. At midnight the position [illegible] became untenable. A little hard bread and water were placed in the long boat and pinnace, and both were launched. Mr. McKenzie, the mate, and seven sailors sprang into the former, and Captain Trainor, with the ship's papers, followed his second mate and three sailors into the smaller. No one took any clothing except that which he had on at the time. Both boats then dropped astern, but still remained fast to the barque by means of lines. Two hours afterwards she showed signs of sinking, and the lines were hurriedly cut. A moment later she keeled over, and sank out of sight in latitude 44 deg. 30 min. and longitude 48 deg. The boats kept in sight of each other, and a drag, made of an old bucket and her jib, was put over the bow of the pinnace to keep her head up to the seas. At daybreak the long-boat had drifted about a mile from its companion. The Captain directed his men to man the oars, and he ran down to the other boat and directed the mate to put a drag out, as it was dangerous for himself and his men to remain any longer without one. A sharp lookout was kept for passing vessels, but no sail hove in sight during the day. When night set in the two boats were near each other. No one cared to go to sleep in the small boat, which was only sixteen feet long, and its occupants munched their hard tack in silence and patiently awaited the return of daylight. Sheets of spray frequently dashed over them, and it became necessary for the boat's safety to bail her out every few minutes. The salt spray partially spoiled the fresh water which had been taken from the barque, and under any other circumstances it would have been pronounced unfit to drink. The long boat was lost to sight during the evening, but the captain and his men hoped to discover it again in the morning. But when Sunday dawned on them the other boat was nowhere to be seen, nor could an anxious search of the horizon in every direction reveal any sail. After breaking their fast with hard biscuit and spoiled water, they kept up the watch for passing vessels until nightfall. The exposure and the cramped condition of the boat began to tell on the men. The hard bread still held out, and they kept up their spirits as best they could. There was little sleep on board the pinnace that night, and little hope of their being able to attract any vessel during the night if one should be sighted at any distance from them. Monday morning found them in the same condition of anxious watching. During the day the boat was bailed out at regular intervals, and its occupants subsisted on hard bread and poor water. Their limbs were becoming stiff from cold, and hope was fast leaving them. Their slender stock of provisions was now nearly exhausted, and their condition was becoming desperate. When the darkness closed in around them on Monday evening, no one cared to sleep. The tedious work of bailing out the boat was kept up. But for the regular performance of this duty and the aid received from the drag over the bow, the pinnace would long before have been lost with its occupants. No attempt had been made to row the boat or rig sails, but it had been allowed to drift aimlessly before the wind and sea. They were in mid-ocean, and the prospects of being picked up could not have been improved by an attempt to make the land, which was too far off for them to hope reaching it in their present condition. Shortly before daybreak the lights, and soon afterward the dim outlines of a sailing vessel, were observed approaching them from the eastward. The men were nearly exhausted, but the joyful prospect of a rescue seemed to revive them. A torch, at the end of which combustible matter had been placed, was lighted by the Captain, who waved it to attract the attention of the stranger. Great anxiety was felt lest she should fail to observe them. At this critical moment a sudden gust of wind blew out the torch, which had become so damp from lying at the bottom of the boat that it could not be relighted. The ship was close upon them, but they were now too weak to expect their cries to be heard when is passed them. At this moment the first grey rays of morning began to penetrate the darkness, and they were observed by the Calliope just in time. They did not think when they were rescued that the long-boat and its occupants had also been saved, and were agreeably surprised to learn that such was the case. It seems that both boats were picked up on the same day, but at a distance of about thirty miles from each other. When the Calliope fell in with the Editha's small boat she was in latitude 43° 30' and longitude [illegible].

STANLEY.

The African Explorer Engaged in Another Great Mission.

A private letter from Mr. Stanley, the African explorer, dated Banana Point, at the mouth of the Congo River, September 13th, speaks of his working hard in arranging expeditions and making personal explorations. He writes thus of a new enterprise:—"And now I begin another mission seriously and deliberately, with a grand object in view. I am charged to open—and keep open, if possible—all such districts and countries as I may explore, for the commercial world. The mission is supported by a philanthropic society which numbers noble-minded men of several nations. It is not a religious society, but my instructions are entirely of that spirit. No violence must be used, and wherever rejected, the mission must withdraw to seek another field. We have abundant means, and therefore we are to purchase the very atmosphere, if any demands are made upon us, rather than violently oppose them. In fact, we must freely buy of all and every, rather than resent, and you know the sailor's commandment, 'Obey orders if it breaks owners,' is easier to keep than to stand upon one's rights. This is a principle which I have always attempted to follow, but frequently the demands were so exorbitant that they exceeded the value of my property. However, this time a chief must have a large mouth indeed that cannot be filled with good things. A year's trial will demonstrate whether progress can be made and tolerance granted under this new system. In some regions experience tells me the plan may work wonders. God grant it success everywhere!"

Hagyard's Yellow Oil combines in such an eminent degree all the healing, soothing and unctuous qualities known to medical science that it is truly a family medicine that cannot be dispensed with. When applied to any swelling, sore, burn, chilblain, frostbite, excoriation, etc., its effects are magical. It is highly esteemed wherever known, and its enormous sale annually is the best certificate of its merits. w51-d129-2w

The Markets.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Dec. 20.—The market to-day was a large and fine one and may truthfully be called a Christmas-tide market. The square was overcrowded with teams and they extended far beyond the market bounds, and George street was blockaded for some distance, as was Water and other streets. There was a heavy supply of beef, mutton, pork and poultry. Beef brought in many instances higher prices than quotation figures, which, no doubt, is only temporary, and we do not change the list. Pork went at $5.00 to $5.25 for packing, of which there was an unusually heavy supply of as fine pork as was ever brought into Peterborough. Quarters commanded 5½ to 6c. per pound. Mutton was in abundant supply, but the price remained unchanged. Lard was abundant, and a weaker market was the result, 10c. was asked and got by many, but 9c. had to be accepted before the close. Hogs' heads sold at 3c. per pound. Chickens 25 to 30c. per pair, and the better grade went off lively, leaving some poor fowls to be sold for less, or they were taken home. Ducks went rapidly at 50 to 60c. per pair. We saw some beauties sold at 60c. Geese were abundant, and a wide range was the result, 40 to 50c. was for the general run, while fine stock went at 55 to 60c. Some extra lots went readily at 60c. each. Turkeys were in abundance, and met with a wide range of price to effect sales, 50 to 60c. each for fair to good; 65 to 75c. for prime and 80 to $1.00 for extra heavy turkeys. Sausages were very plentiful, the demand was light, 10c. was being asked. Butter in rolls was plentiful, 20c. was asked and received for some lots, while 17 to 18c. was the ruling figure. Some choice tubs were offered, and 20c. asked, which not doubt was paid as the butter was of superior quality. Eggs were selling at 15 to 20c.; 17 to 18c. was the ruling price. Some honey in the comb was offered, 20c. being asked. Strained honey sold at 18c., there were only two lots of honey in. Potatoes were in fair supply at 60c. to 75c. per bag. Turnips 20c. per bag. Onions, red $1.25 per, bag, only a few lots in. Cabbages large and fine, from the garden of Mr. Bell, at 50c. per doz. Apples were in abundant supply, and wide in range of quality, at 40c. to 75c. per bag; some fine eating apples brought $1.00 to $1.25 per bag; one lot of greenings were sold at $1.00 per bushel; choice apples went at $2.25 to $2.50 per barrel. Pickles sold at 45c. per pail. Hay was again plenty, and went slow at $6.00 per ton. Some straw, with a light demand, no change to note. Wood as usual was abundant, and an occasional load sold with no change in price to note. Wheat came in in larger quantities, and disappointment was plainly visible. They expected to get the high price paid last week. They were, however, doomed to be disappointed, and had to accept $1.22 for spring, and $1.24 for fall. There was no rye in that we heard of. Oats in small quantities sold at 31c. to 32. Peas formed a part of the sales to-day, and 65c. to 66c. was given. One load of beans was sold early in the day at $1.10 per bushel. Much of the beef, poultry and apples had to be taken home again, or at the close of the market must have sold at greatly reduced rates.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total, $1,200—all of which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife, who has done her own housework for a year since without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know of it for their benefit."

Victoria Hypophosphites extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing from the foundation, correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving nature to perform its allotted part. It is the finest nervine remedy known, and the greatest brain and blood food in the world. For sale by all dealers. $1 per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

It is formed from the best-known and most reliable Balsams, Gums and Vegetable Tonics, in chemical union with the extract of Wild Cherry Bark and Liquorice in their fresh and unadulterated forms, and is the most pleasant and effective combination that can be secured with a view to relief or permanent cure of Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, and all diseases of the Lungs. For sale by all dealers at 25 cents per bottle. w51-d129-2w

Misery's Throne.

Of all the miserable and unhappy creatures in existence, there are none more so than the confirmed dyspeptic. Life is a burden, and if the sufferer does not soon obtain relief he soon sinks into a dreary misanthrope, with the germs of consumption lurking dangerously near. The only known remedy—tested in innumerable cases—is Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil combined with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. With this medicine the incubus is removed, and the embryo seeds of consumption scattered. It is also nearly as pleasant to the taste as sweet cream. d12w49-1m

A Conundrum Propounded.

Why will the "small boy" persist in eating green apples? The [illegible] may as well give it up at once, since our brightest parents were guilty of the "little indiscretion." Physicians say, the season in which early or unripe fruit is first introduced, is the one they are most severely taxed in cases of colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. Young and old are guilty, but boys and girls are the surest victims and the greatest sufferers. There is no peace, comfort or safety in the family unless its head provides a proper remedy. Scott & Bowne's Emulsion of Palatable Castor Oil. Price 25 cents. d129-w50-1m

LOCAL AND MUNICIPAL.

Town Council Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Town Council next Monday evening.

Mail Detention.

The delay of the Grand Trunk mails on Wednesday was caused by the breaking down of a locomotive a few miles east of Toronto. Passengers and the mails were brought up by the afternoon train from Port Hope.

Municipal Nominations.

The nominations for Mayor will take place on Monday, December 29th, at 10 o'clock in the Town Council Chamber. The nominations for Councillors will be taken at twelve o'clock on the same day, at the usual places in the different wards.

New Year's Social.

The Catholic Literary and Beneficial Society are making arrangements to hold a social ball on New Year's eve in the Choate House. The committee which has the affair in charge will no doubt do their utmost to make it one of pleasure to the patrons who may favor them with their presence.

A Rush.

There has been a perfect rush at the 8 cent store to-day. This afternoon it was impossible to wait upon all the people who thronged the store, even with a saleslady in every four feet of space. Immense sales were effected. New goods will be opened every day, so that those who could not get in to-day will have a chance on Monday, and all of next week.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day are: fresh to brisk westerly to northerly winds; cloudy to fair cold weather with areas of light snow. Peterborough has been within the last 24 hours visited with several light falls of snow, the wind changing from the east to north and west, the thermometer indicating at 10 o'clock 24°, at 12 o'clock, noon, 23°, and at 2 o'clock 19°.

School Board Nominations.

The nominations for School Trustees will be held at noon on Wednesday, December 31. The Trustees whose time will expire are:—For the First Ward, Mr. R. Romaine; Second Ward, Mr. R. W. Errett; Third Ward, Mr. D. W. Dumble; Fourth Ward, Mr. J. Cook. They are all eligible for re-election. There is another vacancy to be filled at the same time in the Third Ward in consequence of the resignation of Mr. C. D. Macdonald. In case of a contest the poll will be taken on Wednesday, January 7th. The retiring Collegiate Institute Trustees are Messrs. Jas. Edwards and Geo. Edmison, the appointment being with the Town Council.

The Entertainment.

The entertainment given by the Peterborough Collegiate Institute Literary Association last evening, at Bradburn's Opera House, was well attended. The programme was a long one, owing to the debate, and the slow movements of the participants. The entertainment opened with a glee, by the choir, who subsequently appeared in songs and glees, which were favorably received by the audience. The recitation, by Mr. C. Clark, was well rendered, although the gestures were not up to the mark; yet for a first attempt, it was creditable to the speaker. The instrumental duets were all fine, and rendered in good effective style by Miss Alice Hamilton and Miss Nelly McLilland, and Miss Ellsworth and Miss Ada Richardson. They were loudly applaused. The recitation by Miss M. Edmison was a fine specimen of amateur elocution, and shows culture and ability. The essay by Miss B. Hall, was received by the audience with marked approval. The subject treated of the universal disposition of the people of the present day to complain of their condition in life, and to show discontent with everything around them. She exhibited ability as a writer, and her delivery was clear and distinct. The recitation by Mr. George McDowell was a masterly effort, and with careful training he will become a ready declaimer. The recitation by Miss Hunt was also a pleasing effort. She is easy in manner and seemed to feel at home upon the stage. The tableaux were very fine, and deserve special mention. The debate upon the question as to the superiority of the Warrior over the Statesman, was conducted by Messrs. J. Stevenson and J. C. Robertson in the affirmative, and E. Blackwell and F. Henry in the negative, and was very well conducted for a first attempt. In the opening, Mr. Stevenson sustained his difficult part of stating the question and opening the argument, with credit. It, however, fell to the lot of Mr. Henry to carry off the palm. His position, on the negative, was a masterly effort, and exhibited in the speaker a ready debator for one so young. He got the audience upon his side at the start and held them during his discussion of the question. He was frequently applauded. There was, perhaps, somewhat to criticise, but we will simply say that practice makes perfect.

THE CHRISTMAS MARKET.

A Fine Display of Meats and Poultry for the Holiday Dinners.

The butchers in the Peterborough market are showing their usual energy in catering for the festive season, and the market house has been thronged with visitors to witness the fine and attractive display. The tickets attached to the various rounds, joints, &c., show the best of the people's appetites for the coming Christmas feasting.

The general decoration of the market house, although not elaborate, is very neat and tasteful. The stalls are decorated extensively with the various kinds of meats of the choicest description.

MR. HARRY WINCH's stall is unusually attractive, and the display of beef alone is worth a visit to the market. Beef, mutton, pork, poultry, &c., are covered with handsome rosettes and tickets, giving the names of the purchasers. At the entrance of the market hangs a young bear, weighing 150 pounds, taken from the wilds of Burleigh, part of is being purchased by Mr. Huffman, for the Huffman House. Among the beefs may be seen one prime heifer, from the herd of Wm. Armstrong, Otonabee; two heifers from John Miller, jr., Otonabee; a heifer from James Tindle, Smith; a heifer and steer from T. G. Grieves, Lakefield; a heifer from Joseph Green, North Monaghan; a heifer from George Webber, cattle dealer, in town. Sheep from Roger Moloney, Douro; Jas. Davidson, Smith, and Wm. Armstrong, Otonabee. Pork and pork sausages, brown and bologna sausages, poultry, &c. Over the entrance to this stall three pairs of horns, one pair brought from Spain by Mr. Webber, and another from Denmark, form a most attractive feature in the display.

MR. JAS. HOWDEN makes a fine display at his stall on the right as you enter the market, especially in beef, mutton and pork. There is no lack of that which is most desirable to a dinner on so important a holiday as Christmas. The tickets upon the different articles displayed show that his customers are not unmindful of his ability to supply a superior article for the satisfying of the most fastidious tastes. Special prize is due to a fine Devon heifer bred and excellently fed by Mr. Jas. Wallis. There is also some splendid mutton, Leicester and Southdown sheep, fed by Mr. Howden himself.

MR. NOAH LAPLANTE makes a good display of beef, mutton, pork and poultry, sausages and lard. Although he has made no attempt at decoration, he is nevertheless exceedingly busy attending to the calls of his numerous customers.

MR. F. W. HEATHER has a fine stock of beef, mutton, pork, etc., and is extensively patronized by the lovers of good cheer. All the beef and other edibles offered in the market at this Christmas-tide are very fine, and it is readily seen that the County of Peterborough and surrounding country can produce as fine cattle, sheep and hogs as any other section of the land, and Peterborough is the place to find a market.

FOUND DROWNED.

A Man Discovered Hanging Head Downward in the Grand River.

CALEDONIA, Ont., Dec. 18.—Last night about 11 o'clock a man named Young was returning home from York, and when about a mile west of that place he discovered a horse and cutter standing in the river about 20 feet from the edge. Young at once tied the horse on which he was riding to a fence, and on going to the river's edge discovered that the horse and cutter belonged to Mr. Wm. Leith, hotel-keeper, of this place, and on further examining the spot he saw the boots of a man above the ice. By placing a number of rails on the thin crust of ice, he succeeded in getting to the spot, when he found the boots belonged to a man hanging head downwards in the water. He pulled the body up, and it proved to be that of Mr. Jas. Leith, a relative of the hotelkeeper. Young then aroused some of the neighbours, who came to his assistance, and took the unfortunate man to the residence of Mr. Christie, a farmer living near by, and tried to resuscitate him, but without success. It appears the deceased left here about eight o'clock last night to drive a man to York, and left York to return home about ten o'clock. How he got into the river is not known.

PORT HOPE.

COL. WILLIAMS.—The Times says:—The accident to Col. Williams will confine him to the house for some time, but we are glad to say, though at times suffering from the injuries received, there is every probability of a speedy recovery.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style. Buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple, pure remedies, Hop Bitters, that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read it in another column. d146-1y

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR GENTLEMEN.

We have been asked "to suggest some pretty, suitable present for a gentleman who has dressing-gown, slippers, rings," &c. Well, how would a foot-rest do? or a scrap-basket for his waste papers? or a holder for his whisk-broom?

Unless you have an amateur workman in the family, you will have to buy the frame for your foot-rest. We have a beautiful one of ebonized wood, ornamented with gilt lines, and inlaid with colored woods; which was made by one of our boys "for his mother," but all are not so fortunate. Very pretty ones, however, can be bought at reasonable prices. About all that you can do will be to work the cover of the cushion. This you can do in cross stitch embroidery on canvas or crash, or you can applique figures cut from cretonne, upon Turkish towelling, ecru linen, silk, or satin—black satin is pretty and serviceable. A cover looks well made of silk patchwork. These last, however, are not so serviceable as the cross stitch embroidery on canvas. Be careful not to make it too fine. If your husband does not feel perfectly free to use it on all occasions, it will be no comfort to him to have it.

Scrap baskets come in all shapes and sizes—square, round, half round with straight back and rounding front, and three sided, to fit into corners.

After you have selected one to suit, you can ornament it if you like, by passing bright colored ribbons through the interstices between the willows which stand lengthwise of the basket, finishing them all at one side, which must be at the front. The joinings may be hidden under a bunch of loops and ends of ribbon, mixed in with artifical flowers and dried grasses. Black and old gold colored satin ribbons are very pretty with deep red rose buds. A pleating of ribbon finishes off the top of the basket, which may be lined or not as preferred, and a handsome bow and ends is placed at each handle. Strips of pinked flannel or cashmere will do to put in and out, around the basket, and the pleating at the top may be of the same, pinked, or fringed out, thus requiring less ribbon.

Sometimes the basket is entirely covered with a wide strip of crash, momie cloth, velvet, satin or several of these in combination. As in everything else, you can spend a good deal of time and money on such articles, or you can make very good effects with simple materials and slight expense.

A cover for a whisk-broom is a very useful gift, and will be a comfort to yourself as well, for the article referred to is not a comely object, and always seems out of place lying on the bureau, where most men persist in leaving it. This ornamental receptacle will look well hanging on the wall in a convenient position. It can be made of a Japanese cuff, or of flannel, Java canvas, or linen, cut to the shape of the broom, large at the bottom, and small at the top for the handle. The flannel designs which come for application are suitable for the decoration. Then, with a pleating of ribbon, or pinked colored flannel, or of worsted braid, it will be both ornamental and useful. Hang it when done with the wide part up. Put the brush in it with the handle down. The opening at the bottom should be small enough to keep the brush from dropping to the floor, but large enough to permit it being easily pulled through when it is needed.—Christian Intelligencer.

MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

COMMON salt, mixed in cold water (tolerably strong,) and used as a gargle night and morning, is found to harden the throat and keep off bronchial attacks.

HONEY mixed with pure pulverized charcoal is said to be excellent to cleanse the teeth and make them white. Limestone water is very good to be occasionally used by those who have defective teeth or an offensive breath.

FOR headache, wet with camphor a piece of flannel (red), sprinkle with black pepper and bind it on the head; and we will assure you before long your headache will be gone, and you will be ready to sing a song.

TO PREVENT BOILS.—A very simple remedy is made known by Dr. Siexen, in a St. Petersburg journal for preventing the development of boils. He states that if the skin be superficially scraped with a small knife, so that a drop or two of blood may be pressed through the epidermis as soon as the peculiar stabbing or pricking sensation and slight induration announce the commencement of the boil, it will not be further developed.

PENCILS FOR WRITING ON METALS.—L. von Fabre makes pencils for writing upon glass, porcelain, metal, &c., as follows:—Black: ten parts of lamp-black, forty parts white wax, ten parts tallow. White: forty parts white lead, twenty parts wax, ten parts tallow. Blue: ten parts of Berlin blue, twenty parts wax, ten parts tallow. Dark blue: fifteen parts Berlin Blue, five parts gum Arabic, ten parts tallow. Yellow: ten parts chrome yellow, twenty parts wax, ten parts tallow.

BORAX AND NITRE FOR HOARSENESS.—La France Medical remarks that these two salts have been employed with advantages in cases of hoarseness and aphonia occurring suddenly from the action of cold. The remedy is recommended to singers and orators whose voices suddenly become lost, but which by these means can be recovered almost instantly. A little piece of borax, the size of a pea, is to be slowly dissolved in the mouth ten minutes before singing or speaking. The remedy provokes an abundant secretion of saliva, which moistens the mouth and throat. This local action of the borax should be aided by an equal dose of nitre, taken in warm solution before going to bed.

RAISINS AS A RECUPERATER.—It is an old story that of the Frenchman who declined to eat raisins or grapes, because he disliked taking his wine in the form of pills; but now comes Sir William Gull, Queen Victoria's physician, who declares it better, in case of fatigue from overwork, to eat raisins than resort to alcohol. In his testimony before the Lord's Commission, in London, a few months ago, he affirmed "that instead of flying to alcohol, as many people do when exhausted, they might very well drink water, or they might very well take food; and they would be very much better without the alcohol." He added, as to the form of food he himself resorts to, "in case of fatigue from overwork, I would say that if I am thus fatigued, my food is very simple; I eat the raisins instead of drinking the wine. For thirty years I have had large experience in this practice. I have recommended it to my personal friends. It is a limited experience, but I believe it is a very good and true experience.

LIME JUICE FOR RHEUMATISM.—In the Canada Lancet, Dr. A. H. Chandler calls attention anew to the use of the old remedy, and reports several severe cases in which good results followed its use. Without regard to the condition of the bowels—unless previously much constipated—he begins with at least ten ounces of lime juice, increasing rapidly to eighteen or twenty-four per diem—from half an ounce to one ounce or more every hour, with not less than double or treble the quantity of cold water, usually diluted and sweetened to the patient's taste. He finds that even on the second day the amendment is decided, and the disease, in acute cases, more particularly sthenic or asthenic, generally subsides on the fourth or fifth day of treatment. He usually prescribes one grain of opium, with or without lead and tannin, night and morning, in order to restrain the bowels, which the juice has a tendency to relax. The effects of this treatment are, he says, rapid diminution of joint swelling, diminished perspiration, steady fall of pulse, which often becomes quite slow, with a slight tendency to syncope, the majority of cases requiring quinine and supporting food about the the sixth day. Such vigorous treatment should evidently be taken only under the supervision of a competent physician.

FATAL SOMNAMBULISM.

The Mother of an Ontario Clergyman Walks Into a Lake While Asleep.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Stewart, aged 89, has been drowned in Lochabar lake, Antigonish county. It is believed that, while in a state of somnambulism, she left her room early in the morning and went down to the lake, where she was drowned in two feet of water. Deceased was the mother of the Rev. Donald Stewart, of Arthur, Ont.

VERULAM.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—At a meeting of the Township Council it was resolved that the Deputy Reeve be appointed as a delegate to attend the meeting of delegates at Ottawa, in connection with the Trent Valley Canal, and that the sum of twenty-five dollars be appointed towards bearing his expense.

Spanish Gratitude.

MADRID, Dec. 19.—A sensation has been produced by the refusal of the Premier to allow the military and bands authority to share in the manifestation prepared by the Murcian Relief Committee in testimony of the gratitude of Spain to France for the aid given to the sufferers by the recent floods. The intention of the Committee was to serenade the French Envoy, and to present an address. The Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs called on the Envoy to explain that the refusal of the Premier was to to avoid political disturbances in the present excited state of public opinion.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Address,—

The CULVERWELL MEDICAL Co., Post Office Box 4586. w3-1y 41 Ann St. New York.

THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT.

It is stated that the case will be taken to the House of Lords for final decision, and that Kenealey will excercise his right as a member of the Irish for to appear for Orton before that tribunal.

RESPONSES TO AN APPEAL.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20.—The appeal made by the Duchess of Marlborough for subscriptions to the fund for the suffering Irish is being responded to throughout England. This generosity on the part of the wife of the Lord-Lieutenant and the English people has had its effect on the Irish people, and the tone of the agitators is materially modified. Meanwhile the distress is increasing in the counties heretofore named, and relief is sorely needed there. Reports come to hand of serious troubles in King's county, where several landlords have been obliged to flee from the wrath of the anti-renters.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—A St. Petersburg telegram says several officers of the artillery and the engineers have been arrested, charged with complicity in the recent Nihilist attempt on the Czar's life. The Winter Palace is illuminated all night with the electric light as a caution. The condition of affairs is not at all favourable. Nihilist conspiracies have been discovered, revealing wonderful ramifications and involving parties who were thought above suspicion. It is rumoured that several of the most aristocratic families in Russia are on the march to Siberia. The condition of the Czar is not improving either mentally or physically. He is continually apprehensive. The servants of the palace is changed daily and the police closely watched.

AMERICAN.

THE CHEROKEES ON THE RIGHTS.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—Col. Adair, Assistant Chief of the Cherokee Indians, has arrived with a delegation from his nation en route to Washington. He says the delegation is instructed to oppose any change in the Government over them and to collect from the Government a very large sum of money due to the Cherokees for lands in the Indian Territory, west of the Arkansas river. They also expect to arrange with the Government to prevent any depredation to their invested funds, to fix the statutes of the colored people in the nation, and to expel intruders. Owing to the drought last summer, his people will have to arrange for a loan from the Government to purchase breadstuffs. The establishment of Territorial Government over the Indian Territory will be opposed by all the civilized tribes, even to the employment of physical force. They can raise 15,000 good fighting soldiers. Adair doubts the ability of the army to subdue the Indians.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Hugh McCulloch writes to the Tribune:—"Our present prosperity is mainly attributable to the fact that the harvests of the United States for three years have been abundant, while they have been the reverse in Europe. We have no reason to expect that this will continue, because it requires no prophet to warn us of what will be our condition when, with a large circulation of notes and with speculation and extravagance in full blast, Europe shall again be favored with fruitful seasons."

CORRUPT OFFICIALS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The Tribune publishes a long story concerning the Indian agent, Hart, of San Carlos reservation, Arizona, on the border of the newly-developed silver district. The statement says that Inspector Hammond of the Indian Bureau, who was sent to investigate Hart's affairs, charged Hart with gross dishonesty. It is intimated that Hammond compromised these grave charges with Hart for the sake of getting possession of the latter's silver mine. Suspicion is cast upon Commissioner Hoyt of approving such a compromise, and of placing his personal friends in the way of profitable mining speculations.

THE EX-AMEER.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 22.—The ex-Ameer, Yakoob Khan, has arrived at Morout under military and police guards. It is doubtful whether he will be kept there long, as the proximity of Morout to Delhi and to other centres of Mussulman tradition renders it an inexpedient place for the safe custody of a Mahomedan state prisoner.

ANOTHER WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Among the 65 contestants in the six days' walking match now progressing, are Murphy, the Haverstraw boy; Merritt, of Bridgeport; Hart (colored), Campana, Brodie, Krohne; Hughes the Leper, and other professionals; also Daniel Burns, Elunia; M. Crawford Salamons; Arthur Croft, Little Falls, and D. A. Heahsey, Troy.

A LOW CHURCH BISHOP.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 22.—The action of Bishop Pinckney, in inhibiting the Rev. Mr. Mortimer from his ministrations in this diocese, is part of an organized plan to check the Ritualistic tendencies in certain parishes, and foreshadows an active low church policy on the part of the new Bishop.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The Tribune's Philadelphia report says the effort to attribute political significance to Evarts' and Sherman's presence here is unwarranted.

The Herald's Goldsboro, N.C., despatch says the emigration movement among the North Carolina negroes, was started by a colored school teacher named Perry, and a colored preacher named Williams, both of whom turned the exodus fever to their own profit, by levying contributions. It is charged that the most glaring deception was practiced to induce the negroes to emigrate to Indiana.

RAILWAY TO SAULT ST. MARIE.—Sir Charles Tupper has given his personal opinion in favour of the proposal for a line of railway from Gravenhurst by Nipissing to Sault St. Marie. A very powerful and influential delegation waited on him recently, when the Minister gave a history of the proposals for building this line from an original proposition of Sir Hugh Allan at Peterborough down to date. He gave his own almost unqualified approval of the work. He suggested, however, that as a considerable part of the line to the south near Nipissing would be common to the main line of the Pacific Railway between Nipissing and the head of Lake Superior, it might fulfill all reasonable expectations if the Government should go on at an early date with the construction of that much of the work in lieu of a subsidy.

THE GREAT SHOE CONTRACT.—Messrs. Fortin, Contant & Co., who have received the contract for supplying the French army with a million pairs of boots, are erecting a new building, in which a separate staff of hands will immediately be set to work, so that the French contract may in no way interfere with the ordinary business of the firm. The contract has to be commenced early in or by the first of May next, so that the firm have ample time to complete their arrangements, and to prevent any delay in the fulfilment of their usual orders.

The Maine Elections.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The Sun publishes a statement of Governor Garcelon, explaining at length what he and the Council did in Maine. He insists that the mandates of the constitution were implicitly obeyed in letter and spirit. He says the great hue and cry about "conspiracy," "fraud," &c., arises from the fact that we have taken the constitution for our guide, fortified by the opinions of the Supreme Court of the State, and the advice of several of the foremost legal gentlemen of the forum, and have not permitted the substitution, alteration or unauthorized amendments of the returns transmitted to us for examination, and by us to be transmitted to the Legislature for their final action. In other words we have not resolved ourselves into a returning board to investigate fraud, bribery, illegal proceedings at the polls, and a thousand and one charges of corruption that are afloat, but have left this whole matter to the action of the Legislature, where it properly belongs.

Go as You Please.

Maud Muller on a fair June day,
Went to the field and turned the hay.

Beneath her hat her hair "banged,"
And from its rim no ribbon hanged.

The hay she pitched on an old ox cart
Until her hands did bleed and smart.

And when she raked into a bumble's nest,
Of all for' time Maud made the best.

She turned and moaned the live-long night,
For her left optic was banged up tight.

Now when her dad a farm-hand lacks,
Maud stays at home and fries slap-jacks—
And tells him to hire a tramp.

OUR INLAND NAVIGATION.

In another place will be found a very characteristic letter from Mr. F. C. Capreol, the energetic and persevering promoter of the impracticable and costly scheme for the construction of a ship canal from Lake Simcoe to Toronto. The widely-spread interest which is now being manifested in the projected Trent Valley Canal is evidently alarming him, and he takes this means of combatting it. He carefully avoids any [illegible] small cost—less than $3,000,000—as compared with the $40,000,000 or more than his own scheme would require; the avoidance of the dangers of the great lake navigation; its shortening of the distance, or the facilities for constructing, maintaining, and navigating it, owing to the large proportion of waterway already provided by nature. He harps upon the subject of its being a barge canal only, in spite of the teaching of experience that carriage by barges is the cheapest and most convenient, and in the case of grain, by far the most suitable for conveying the cargo in good condition. But while thus pooh-poohing the Trent Valley Canal, he manifests a strange inconsistency by truly pointing out the large amount of traffic that the "mere barge canal" would be sure to secure "between Montreal and Europe on the one side, and the great west—American and Canadian on the other." In passing we may call the attention of the people of Montreal to this true description by an unwilling witness, as a very sufficient reason why they should strongly support the construction of this canal. We cannot sympathize with his fears that Toronto will be prejudiced; that city, whatever it may think, is not Canada, or even Ontario, that its fancied claims should stand in the way of a project of national importance, and it should be remembered that the enormous traffic from the West rightfully anticipated by Mr. Capreol, would not be taken from Toronto, but would be a fresh commercial acquisition for Canada and its great ports with their magnificent shipping.

All those who are anxious for the construction of this great work should thank Mr. Capreol for the welcome aid afforded them by the strong arguments in its favour thus adduced by him. We accept as a good omen his prognostications that the energy of its promoters, their influence, the united support along the route from Barrie to Belleville, and in Montreal, will secure its early construction.

TORONTO vs. BELLEVILLE.

An Urgent Appeal to Toronto Citizens Upon the Trent Valley vs. Huron and Ontario Ship Canal Projects—A Barge or Ship Canal, Which?

Under the above heading Mr. Capreol writes the following letter to the Toronto Evening Telegram:—

SIR,—Permit me the use of a small space in your influential and widely circulated journal to make one brief and earnest appeal to the citizens of Toronto, to arouse from their apathy and energetically face the danger with which their interests and the future commercial greatness of the Dominion are menaced by the new canal project which is being pushed forward with so much zeal to connect the waters of the Georgian Bay with those of Lake Ontario by the Trent Valley route. I place the interests of Toronto first, because they most directly concern the citizens. Even if all the rest of the Dominion should flourish and Toronto decay, people here would be too full of their own misery to rejoice much at the general prosperity, and when the true policy for the [illegible] of their prosperity is also the very policy that would most effectually develop the commercial growth of this city, it is a folly worse than madness that induces the people to stand idly by and let one of the grandest opportunities pass them without an effort to grasp it.

The Trent Valley Canal, admitting all that is claimed for it, will be but a barge canal; it can be made nothing better. But such as it will be, it will carry all the trade it does carry entirely away from Toronto. It will place this city out of the range of western commerce, and convert Belleville, whose geographical position adapts it only for being the commercial entrepot of the neighbouring back country, into a grand commercial centre between Montreal and Europe on the one side, and Chicago and the Great West (American and Canadian) on the other. This fact needs only to be mentioned to show the momentous consequence involved in so far as the local interests of Toronto are concerned.
